Busy Session of City Council

Monday night's session of the city council was largely attended by visitors who took a keen interest in the proceedings.

A committee from Cemetery street appeared before the body asking relief from the dust nuisance, expressing a willingness to go their part in defraying the expense of oiling the highway in that vicinity. The matter was referred to the street committee for prompt and satisfactory action. Highway 51 comes in on this street and the dust is almost suffocating at times and exceedingly annoying to citizens residing on the street.

Mayor Shankle appointed Messrs. Hart, Hopkins and Roberts to test the flow of water from the new well at the water plant just completed, to see if all the requirements of the contract has been met, before the city accepted the job. The mayor also recommended installing a new strainer in the old well, so in case of an emergency the city would have plenty of water for all purposes at all times. After some discussion the matter was deferred to a later meeting.

The matter of erecting frame structures in the fire district was brought up for discussion. With the state laws in his hands against it and a city ordinance prohibiting same, Fire Chief Lee Roberts had all the authority necessary to stop any one attempting to build a frame structure in the fire district. The requirements for building materials under the state laws in a city of Fulton's class are brick, concrete and stone.

No action was taken on any street petitions filed at Monday night's session.

Sunday, May 26, was set for Decoration Day at Fairview, and the Mayor's Proclamation is published in this issue of the Advertiser.

Jane Daly, M-G-M Player, Gives Views on Right Garb for Women

If you're tall, don't try to conceal the fact by wearing flapper clothes, and if you're short, don't try to look like a vamp!

That is the advice of Jane Daly, who plays one of the important feminine roles in Lon Chaney's new starring vehicle for Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer, "West of Zanzibar," synchronized with sound, and with a surrounding sound program, which comes Monday to the Grand Theatre.

Miss Daly herself is above the average height, being five feet five inches tall, yet she does nothing to make herself look shorter than she is.

"When a woman does not dress her type she loses all individuality," says Miss Daly. "How ridiculous I'd look in short, pleated skirts and flapperish sweaters. I invariably choose frocks that accentuate my height instead of taking from it."

Miss Daly's gowns for personal use are longer than the average, being half way between ankle and knee. One stunning frock in her wardrobe is a black satin model, with insets of self material piped in beige. These insets are long and pointed and extend to the flared skirt, posed at the hip tops.

In "West of Zanzibar," the actress plays the role of Lon Chaney's wife. Others in the cast are Mary Nolan, Warner Baxter, Lionel Barrymore, Kalla Pasha, Roscoe Ward and others. Tod Browning directed. It is his original story, scenarized by Elliott Clawson.

SUPERVISOR W. H. COX OF I. C. SYSTEM, DEATH'S VICTIM

After an illness of several months, W. H. Cox, highly esteemed citizen of Fulton, passed away at his home on Maple avenue, Sunday night, May 12. Everything that skilled physicians and loved ones could do to prolong life, was done, but the time had come to answer the summons and a devoted husband and father sleeps today in beautiful Fairview.

Mr. Cox was born in Hickman county, Tenn., near Nashville, and came to Fulton some 24 years ago. For the past few years he had been supervisor for the Illinois Central, with headquarters here. He was well known and greatly liked by his fellow employees on the railroad system, and was held in high esteem by the people of the entire city. He was a member of the Odd Fellows and Woodmen of the World. He took an active part in all matters of community interest, and will be greatly missed.

Mr. Cox was married to Miss Willie Allmon, in September, 1887, in Rutherford, Tenn. His widow survives, as well as the following children: Thurmond Cox of Jackson, Tenn.; Wade Cox of Fulton; Mrs. A. H. Moore and Mrs. J. D. Walker of Fulton, and Mrs. J. H. Forrester, of Detroit. There are also seven grandchildren. One brother, J. A. Cox, of Ravina, Texas, also survives.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, from the First Baptist church, conducted by Pastor C. H. Warren. Burial followed in Fairview cemetery. The following acted as pallbearers:

W. H. Purcell, J. A. Purcell, D. T. Crocker, J. M. Jackson, F. J. Coates, J. M. Woodson.

REMAINS OF DR. BOYD BROUGHT TO FULTON FOR INTERMENT

After a lingering illness, Dr. A. C. Boyd, retired rector of Trinity Episcopal church, of Fulton, passed away Monday evening at his home in Crutchfield.

Dr. Boyd was born in Port Deposit, Md., January 25, 1864. In 1923 he became rector of Trinity Episcopal church of Fulton, where he remained until ill-health caused him to retire in 1927. With his family he moved to a farm near Crutchfield, hoping to be benefited by the active outdoor life, but owing to his serious condition, there was little hope of his recovery but up to the end he retained his interest in those around him.

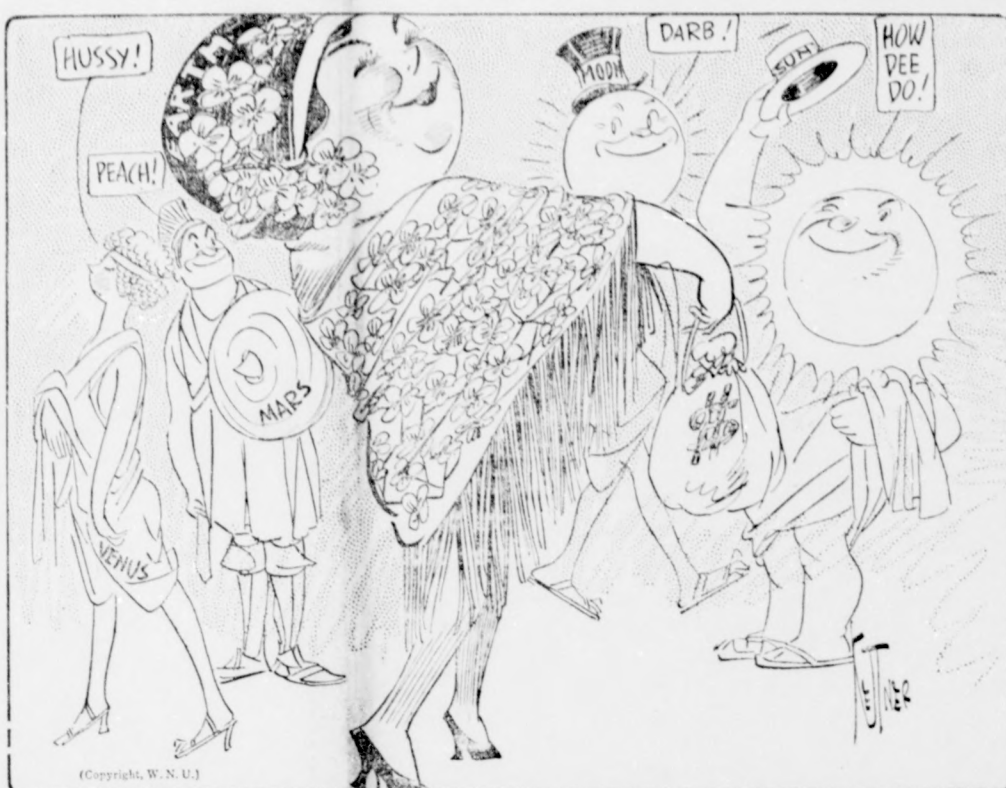

Dr. Boyd is survived by his wife and one daughter, Claire Elizabeth, who were at his bedside when the end came.

A short service was held in the chapel at his home in Crutchfield on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. The body was brought to Fulton and lay in state from noon until two o'clock in the Parish house of Trinity Church and the funeral service was conducted at Trinity Church at that hour, conducted by the Rev. D. E. Johnstone, assisted by the Rev. Curtis Fletcher, of Paducah. Burial followed at Fairview cemetery.

During Dr. Boyd's residence in Fulton he won the esteem and admiration of a large circle of friends who sincerely sympathize with the bereaved ones.

Many a promising young man turns out to be a man who keeps on promising.

MASTERPIECE OF SCREEN IS "THE GODLESS GIRL"

Which Comes to the Orpheum Monday for Two Days

Produced by film experts in their respective fields, Cecil B. DeMille's latest contribution to the American screen, "The Godless Girl," the story of which was written by Jeanie Macpherson, is in every sense of the word a masterpiece. Personally directed by Mr. DeMille for Pathe, the picture ranks as one of his finest efforts. It is dramatic, its investiture massive, the theme exceptionally impressive. The cast is one of the strongest ever chosen for any photoplay. The theme is lofty and in its development Mr. DeMille was at his best. "The Godless Girl" is a powerful arraignment of the effect of irreverence upon present day youth and of more or less reprehensible practices in modern reformatories. Although the picture presents in graphic style truths of which society is amply aware, it is no preaching, but from start to finish, vire screen entertainment that will delight and amaze film fans the world over.

JUDGE H. F. TAYLOR ASKS FOR RE-ELECTION AS POLICE JUDGE

It is with pleasure we announce the candidacy of Judge H. F. Taylor for re-election to the office of Police Judge, of Fulton, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, August 3, 1929.

During Judge Taylor's long term of office he has distinguished himself as an impartial jurist, conducting the office on the highest plane of efficiency. His attentiveness to business and courteous treatment to all have won the esteem and admiration of the entire citizenship, who will be glad of the opportunity to retain him in office with their vote. He will probably have no opposition.

Judge Taylor is appreciative of past favors and in the following statement briefly addresses the voters in his characteristic way:

To the Voters of the City of Fulton:

I am a candidate for re-election to the office of Police Judge of Fulton, Ky., subject to the Democratic primary of August 3, 1929. You have been exceedingly kind to me by giving me your support in past years, and to say that I appreciate this deeply would be a feeble way of expressing my gratitude. I assure one and all that I feel profoundly grateful for your support. I trust my course as an officer and as a citizen has come up to your expectations, and that you will again give me your vote and influence at the coming primary. I have tried to be just, fair and impartial in all my actions as an officer, and if re-elected, will undertake to the very limit of my ability to continue along the same lines. If I have made mistakes, I have not made them intentionally, nor for my personal gain. If you feel that my experience has fitted me for re-election, I shall do my very best to give you the best I have and be on the job at all times.

Again thanking you for your past support and soliciting your support and influence in the coming primary, I am,

Very respectfully,
H. F. TAYLOR.

GOOD WOMAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

The sad news of the death of Mrs. Alice Burford was received in Fulton, Monday, with general regrets, by her large circle of friends and acquaintances.

For many years Mrs. Burford made her home in Fulton with her daughter Mrs. Sam Butler, and was loved and admired by all who knew her. For the past two years she had been in declining health, spending most of her time with her daughter in Springfield, Ill. Mrs. Burford is survived by three daughters and three grandsons, Mrs. McVay and Jack McVay, of Fresno, Calif., Mrs. William McKenzie, Bill and Donald McKenzie, of Springfield, Ill., and Mrs. Sam Butler of Fulton.

Funeral services were held from Mrs. McKenzie's home Monday, and the body laid to rest in the Springfield cemetery.

The friends of the family sincerely sympathize with the bereaved ones.

Swarms from the human hive may operate differently from early times but they still swarm.

W. C. SOWELL ANNOUNCES FOR MAGISTRATE OF DISTRICT NO. 2

The Advertiser is authorized to announce the candidacy of W. C. Sowell for Magistrate of District No. 2 of Fulton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, election August 3, 1929.

Mr. Sowell is well known by the voters of Fulton county. The best part of his life has been spent in the county and for the past 30 years he has been an outstanding factor in the community life of near Cayce, where he resides. His progressive spirit has made him a leader in his community and much of his time has been contributed to the betterment of surrounding conditions. His wide circle of friends urged him to make the race for County Judge, but he was not willing to run against some of his lifelong friends who are now making the race, therefore, he comes before the voters asking that they support him for Magistrate of his District. If elected, he will be in position to use his best endeavors to lift the burden of taxation from the shoulders of his people in a way that will elicit the praise of every man, woman and child throughout the county. He believes in a strictly business administration, featuring honesty and good old common "horse sense." Those who know him best say that his life is an open book filled with brilliant chapters of good deeds. He stands for everything that is good for the people's best interest, and nothing would please him better than to see county warrants worth 100 per cent on the dollar and the taxpayers get the full value for every cent paid into the county treasury. False economy is a nightmare and as a progressive, honest and all around good citizen, Mr. Sowell will, if elected, do his utmost to make every dollar go as far as possible. He is a firm believer of good roads, good schools, good churches and everything else that is good. But above all, he believes that a man should deal fairly and squarely with his fellowman, and the ladies too, if you please.

He will personally solicit your vote during the campaign and ask you to consider his claims to the office of Magistrate of District No. 2.

Sprague Players Present "Sun-Up" and "Rip Van Winkle" at Chautauqua

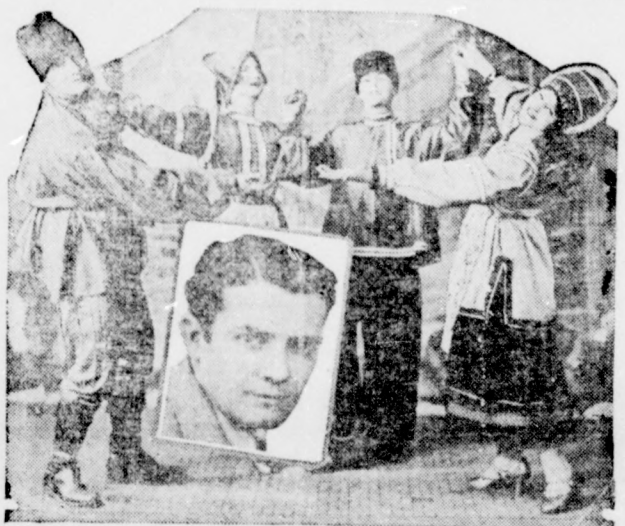

THE WIDOW CAGLE IN "SUN-UP," POWERFUL DRAMA TO BE PRESENTED AT CHAUTAUQUA BY THE SPRAGUE PLAYERS

"Sun-Up," vivid drama of the mountain people of North Carolina, will be presented on the fourth night of the coming Redpath Chautauqua here by the widely known Sprague Players.

On the afternoon of the fourth day of Chautauqua, the Sprague Players will present the play that is perhaps best loved of any American drama—"Rip Van Winkle." Herbert Sprague is considered the greatest "Rip" since the days of Joseph Jefferson. The charm and romance of this beautiful play have lost none of their power to thrill, and children and grown-ups alike are enchanted as the picturesque story unfolds.

Redpath Chautauqua to Present John Ross Reed Musical Revue

JOHN ROSS REED COMPANY IN GAY RUSSIAN SCENE; INSET, MR. REED

John Ross Reed, late of the Nice, Monte Carlo, Boston and Festival Grand Opera companies, notable singer, actor and composer, heads this outstanding company of singers and entertainers. Mr. Reed has appeared in opera, concert and oratorio throughout America and Europe with tremendous success. He is widely known for his Columbia records and as the composer of many published songs. He is a pupil of Jean De Reszke.

The Reed company will present on the last night of Chautauqua a musical revue featuring such numbers as scenes from "Pagliacci," "Carmen," "The Pagoda of Flowers," the Russian vaudeville "Chauve Souris," Norwegian folk scenes and others. Each number is a dramatic, artistic presentation, complete in every detail of scenery, costumes and lighting effects.

In the afternoon, Dagny Jensen Reed, soprano of the company, and assisting artists will present a concert program of old favorites and new hits. Following the concert John Ross Reed will give his delightful and inimitable account of the discovery of music, "Flats and Sharps."

PROVED IT

"I am expecting no packages due today," said the book store manager. "This is your number," said the expressman, looking on the box. "Your name's Johnson?"

"Yes."

"Then it's for you."

"It must be a case of mistaken identity."

"I'm not concerned with what is in it, but it's yours."

AWFULLY MANNISH

"Mary's awfully mannish."

"Yes, and mannish in consequence."

"Have you ever studied the history of ancient Rome?"

"I have," answered Senator Sorghum. "And I am impressed by the disadvantage under which that classical old government labored, through lack of modern improvements. If ancient Rome had enjoyed conveniences of radio and gas filling stations, and other methods of quick communication, results might have been different."

Washington Star.

Great Liberality

"You deny that republics are ungrateful?"

"Emphatically," answered Senator Sorghum. "If anything, republics are too liberal. Every once in awhile some republic has made some historic personage a present of the entire country simply because he put up an able oration at the psychological moment."

"HITCH YOUR WAGON—"

It does us all good to "hitch our wagon to a star" occasionally, and I know from many talks with poultry raisers everywhere, and from recent letters, that our readers will be interested in a brief statement as to just what that "star" is in the poultry field today.

"Yes, the 300-egg hen does actually exist."

That much in answer to the most frequent questions of all. Many almost incredible claims are being made by various individuals in favor of their particular birds, most of them true I presume, but we have only to turn to the official egg-laying contests conducted by the various state governments and other reliable agencies, to find the facts which every person in the world must recognize as the unvarnished truth.

These official contests last year produced 138 birds that made official trapnested records of 300 eggs or better during their pullet year of laying. Five Brown and Mann Leghorns, for that matter, entered five successive years, even averaged 307 eggs a piece at the official Washington State contest at Puyallup. Of course, the 300-egger is still a very phenomenal bird, though the fact that there were nearly three times as many with 300-egg official records last year as the year before, gives a true indication of the wonderful improvement being achieved in recent years by the scientific trapnested breeders, breeding for greater egg production. The 300-egger is about as common today as the 200-egger was a few years ago.

The above mention of the outstanding "stars" should not confuse one as to the value of the good consistent layers who may fall very far short of the 300-egg aristocracy. A 200-egg bird is still a wonderful bird. The average of all the picked birds at the great national contest, last year was 184.24, a fact which justifies a poultryman's pride in any commercial flock which averages anywhere reasonably close to even that figure. Quite a long way below this is the "profit line" at about 130 eggs per bird per year. And then comes the average of all commercial hens in the United States, as given to us by the government estimates. This average is only 100 eggs a year, quite a bit below the profit line, and certainly a far cry from the official 300-egg "star" that we can "hitch our wagons to" even though say a 150 egg flock will pay as handsome a profit as we would need to wish for.

High School Notes

With the closing of the track events last Friday afternoon, the fourth annual West Kentucky - Tennessee Spring meet went down in history.

Although Fulton high lost in the track events to Tilghman high, of Paducah, she was ably represented in both the scholastic and field events of the meet.

Fulton was victorious in the Dramatic contest, Wednesday night, over Murray, who presented "The Other Kitty," and Clinton, who presented "Engaged for a Month." Fulton presented "Treasure," by McKay. A beautiful loving cup was awarded to Annie Lee Godfrey, leader of the Fulton cast. Those participating in our play were Clanton Boyd, R. V. Putman, W. P. Burnett, Rachelle Elledge, Elizabeth Williamson, Annie Lee Godfrey, Martha Kendall and Carl Edward Jones.

The scholastic day of the field meet, which was Thursday, was a great success. The gymnasium was crowded to overflowing at both the afternoon and evening events. The contests opened Thursday morning with a shorthand contest. The Fulton team was the only contestant. Eugene Paschall won first place and Hazel Pewitt won second.

The spelling contest was won by J. W. Morehead, formerly of Fulton, but who is now in school at Bardwell. C. L. Humphreys of Murray, won second place.

Ruth Weaks, of Murray, won first place in the public discussion contest. Her subject was "The Nicaraguan Canal." Avery Hancock of Fulton won second, his subject being "Should the National Origin Clause Become Effective?"

Union City was awarded the silver loving cup for typing; although the individual award was won by Eugene Paschall, of Fulton, and second place was won by Virginia Hauser, of Union City.

Randolph Kramer of Fulton won the Impromptu Speaking Contest. His subject was "The Cruiser Bill." Second place went to Annie Laura Farmer of Murray, who talked on "Prohibition."

Edward Carlick of Paducah, who was unopposed, won the violin contest.

Annie Laura McWhorter, of Fulton, won the vocal contest, singing, "The Answer." Emma Laura Calhoun, of Mayfield, singing "Bird of June," won second place.

Rose Amelia Pyle, of Hickman, won first place in the piano contest. Elva Davis, of Fulton, won second place.

The first contest of Thursday evening was Girls' Declamation. Janet Bamberger, of Paducah, was awarded first place. She read "The Valiant." Mary Fernstrom, of Greenfield, who read, "Courage," won second place.

F. H. S. was ably represented in this by Julia Frances Beadles.

Alton Wade, of Fulton, won first place in Boys' Declamation, giving "Webster's Reply to Haynes." J. W. Delbridge, of Greenfield, won second place. He gave "Address on Irish-American Day."

The crack Tilghman track squad outscored thirteen opposing schools, Friday, gaining 32 points. Fulton came in second with 22 points. Wickliffe, with a one-man team composed of Rollins, came in third. Other schools in order of their points are South Fulton, 9 1-3 points; Murray, 8; Mayfield, 3 1-2; Cayce 2 1-3; Union City, 1; and New Concord 1. CALIFORNIA'S CANNED FRUITS

CALIFORNIA'S canned fruit industry nets this great Western State today twenty times as much every year as its annual production of gold. How inconceivable this statement would have seemed to the Forty-niners who trekked across the prairies in covered wagons or circled the Horn in sailing ships in quest of California's precious yellow metal in the early days of the gold-rush.

Communities sprang up almost overnight at that time, and it is curious to recall that in California, today's land of plenty in whose peace and sunshine so many people go to spend their declining years, there was not enough food to support this sudden new population.

But there were a few far-sighted men among those pioneers who saw that California's real wealth lay in her sunshine and the soil of her fertile valleys. These were the men who started that State's great fruit industry.

Three-fifths of All Fruits

It was not long before California was producing not only sufficient fruit for her own consumption but gigantic quantities for export. Then canneries were established to make available for the rest of the United States, and even the lands beyond the seas, the luscious fruits that were being grown in such abundance. Today, as a result of these natural advantages of soil and climate, California produces more than three-fifths of all fruits that are canned commercially in the continental United States.

More than ninety per cent of this country's canned peaches and practically all of its apricots are packed in California plants. The coming of fruits there today has become a highly specialized industry, and many varieties have been developed which are particularly adapted to its needs.

An Army of Experts

Experts watch every step in the growing of these fruits, from the selection of the stock, care of the soil, cultivation and pruning, to the picking of the perfect sun-ripened product at exactly the right time. The orchards are carefully located in just those parts of the State where each variety grows best.

The canneries are located close to the orchards, so that the fruit may ripen fully on the tree and be canned at once, without loss of time in transportation. That's the best method yet discovered to seal in all their lusciousness, so fleets of big trucks rush the freshly picked fruits to the packing plants. There they are carefully inspected, and experienced workers—experts—with the aid of the most up-to-date machinery, peel, grade and can the fruit within a few hours after it arrives.

Modern Machinery

Specialized machines have been invented to keep pace with the growing demands of this industry, and the speed, thoroughness and skill with which each job is done is a constant source of amazement to the plants' many visitors. Spotlessly clean surroundings and constant inspection at every stage of the canning process insure the fruit's final tempting appearance and natural flavor.

As a result of this modern machinery and constant care both in the orchards and at every stage of the processing in the canneries, the public can be sure that California will supply it with the finest fruit that Nature produces—fully sun-ripened, delicious in flavor, its natural healthful goodness sealed in the cans and ready for enjoyment at any season.

Lesson for May 19

JEREMIAH CALLS TO OBEDIENCE

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 7:1-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—Hearken unto my voice, and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Obeying God.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Obeying God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Doing what God commands.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Obedience Essential in True Religion.

The prophet stood in the gate of the temple in order that the multitudes might hear him. The occasion was the coming together of the people from all over the country to attend some feast.

1. What God Requires (vv. 1-7).

1. Amend your ways (v. 3).

Their general course of living should be reformed, bad deeds giving place to good ones. On the basis of this change, God would permit them to remain in their city and country. Failure to do this would eventuate in their expulsion.

2. The folly of trusting in religious forms (v. 4).

The people regarded the temple as a charm against evil, irrespective of the condition of their hearts. Without a heart experience, the most sacred institutions and ordinances are valueless.

3. Social Justice (v. 5).

The proof of their having reformed was the execution of judgment between man and his neighbor. The proof of one's being in touch with God is his fair dealing with his fellowmen.

4. Not to oppress the helpless (v. 6).

The stranger would likely be ignorant of the laws of the land. The widows and orphans could easily be imposed upon. Protection for the weak is a requirement of godliness.

5. Not walk after other gods (v. 6).

Worship of idols and conformity to heathen customs go hand in hand. True morality is determined by the attitude of the individual toward God.

II. Solemn Warnings (vv. 8-15).

1. Teaching of false prophets (vv. 8-11).

These prophets taught the people that attention to ceremony, and observance of religious forms, exempted them from strict attention to morals. Those who heeded the words of the false prophets were not slow to steal, adulter, commit adultery, swear falsely and practice idolatry. They would even come into the Lord's house and claim freedom to practice such abominations. The sacred temple itself, filled with such worshippers would be a den of robbers.

2. Warning of Shiloh (vv. 12-15).

God caused His tabernacle to be set up in Shiloh, but in Eli's time He gave it into the hands of the Philistines because of the idolatry of the people (Psa. 78:59-60). Even so would He do with the temple, the city and the whole country. This He had already done with Ephraim, the northern kingdom.

III. The Hopeless Condition of the People (vv. 16-20).

Their propensity to do evil was so strong that all efforts at reclamation were futile.

1. Pray not for them (v. 16).

There is such a thing as shining unto death, in which case prayer is useless (1 John 5:16).

2. Entire families devoted their energies to that which provoked God's anger (vv. 17-19).

This was done by young and old—men and women. This they did to provoke God's anger. He assures them the outcome of such conduct would be their utter confusion.

IV. Judgment to Fall (v. 20).

Because the people poured out their offerings to idols, the furious anger and wrath of God would be poured out upon man, beast, tree, and the fruit of the ground. How this has been fulfilled, the history of the Jews makes clear.

V. Obedience Better Than Sacrifice (vv. 21-23).

The prophet appealed to history to show that God requires heart service rather than the observance of religious forms. Blessings came to Israel through obedience, while cursings followed disobedience. On the condition of obedience to His requirements, God promised to own them as His people and to bless them.

Confidence in Prayer

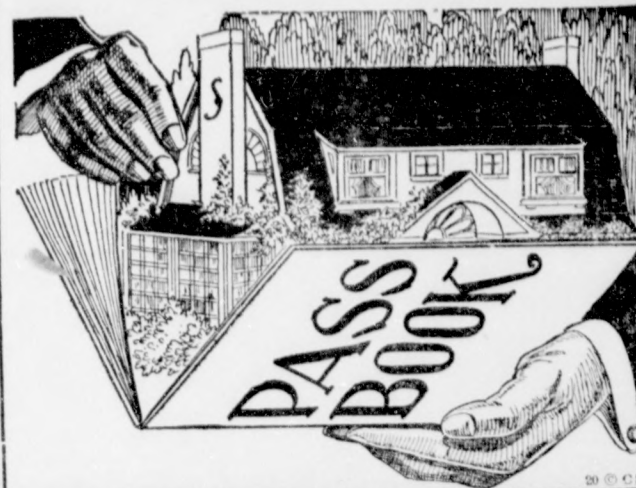

And this is the confidence that we have in Him, that, if we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us; and if we know that He heareth us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of Him.—1 John 5:14, 15.

No Discharge in That War

There is no man that hath power over the spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death; and there is no discharge in that war; neither shall wickedness deliver those that are given to it.—Ecclesiastes 8:8.

A Neglected Bible

A neglected Bible means a starved and strengthless spirit, a comfortless heart, a barren life, and a grieved Holy Ghost.—F. B. Meyer.

DAIRY DEVELOPMENT

By H. A. McPherson,
County Agent

O. E. Van Cleve, field representative of the American Jersey Cattle Club of Tennessee and Kentucky, spent Monday and Tuesday of last week in and around Fulton in the interest of the dairy development. Regardless of weather conditions, a large crowd of interested farmers attended a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce, Monday evening. Mr. Van Cleve explained the working of the Bull Club and urged every community to form an organization and purchase a good bull out of a high producing dam. Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, another meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of perfecting a bull organization. The meeting was well attended and Mr. Van Cleve explained in detail the working of the bull organization and urged that the organization be completed and a committee be appointed to purchase the bull. The Palestine organization was completed at the meeting, the committee having sold 50 shares at $5.00 a share and a committee, composed of Lehman Drysdale, Ed Thompson, Herman Roberts, Clyde Burnette and H. A. McPherson, was appointed to go to Calloway county with Mr. Van Cleve to purchase a club bull for the Palestine community.

The Bowers community has just about completed their organization and the bull organization will be known as the K.-T. Association, known as Kentucky and Tennessee.

Thursday, the Palestine committee drove to Murray, where they were met by Mr. Van Cleve and H. A. McPherson, and the very profitable day was spent looking over the dairy development of Calloway county. After looking over seven or eight of the best herds in the county, we were shown the world's champion butter cow that was developed and owned by Hilson Guyer. This cow produced 784.4 pounds of butter fat as a three-year old. Harry Guyer, Hilson's brother, club cow produced 551.97 pounds of butterfat as a Jr. 3 year, making a silver medal, the first club in Kentucky to make a silver medal.

After looking over several hundred fine Jersey cows and bulls, the committee decided to purchase a young bull from Noah Rodger. This young bull is out of a very fine cow, with a register of merit record. She produced 700 pounds of fat. This young bull not only has a high butterfat record behind him, but he will show up well in the show ring.

We found the hill farms of Calloway county dotted with outstanding good Jerseys. We also found that five years ago they possessed very few Jersey cows, but after the tobacco crop got the farmers and business people into rather a bad financial shape they got together and began to look for something that would restore the fertility of their soil as well as prosperity, they finally decided on the Jersey cow. The banks told the county agent and the farmers that they had the money to purchase good bulls and the best heifers for the 4-H boys and girls' clubs. The First National Bank of Murray has loaned farmers around $2,300.00 to buy 3 imported bulls without interest for 2 years. This bank also put out $6,000 to purchase club heifers for boys and girls without interest. The Bank of Murray let farmers have $1,800 to buy 2 bulls. This money was put out without interest. A service fee of $10.00 is charged and the notes are paid off.

Calloway county is the only county in the U. S. that has 3 bulls out of world's champion cows. You will recall that 5 club heifers from that county, shown in a group won first place at the National Dairy show.

Calloway county was awarded the silver cup by the American Cattle Club for having made the most development in dairy work than any county in the U. S. in 1928.

I merely mention the above to show just how they got started and the method they used which might be summed up as follows.

First. Every one lining up for dairy development.

Second. Banks putting up money for bulls and club calves.

Third. Buying only heifers and bulls from high producing sires and dams.

Fulton county has a wonderful opportunity to develop into a real dairy center and if our people will start right and keep in the straight and narrow path, we will have a dairy county second to none in the state.

Some of our progressive farmers are going to attend three sales which will be held in middle Tennessee, on May 20-21 and 22. This will be the best place in the country to purchase some good outstanding club heifers and young bulls. I would like to see a large delegation of our farmers make these sales. If you are interested in going, or purchasing cows, bulls or heifers, let the Chamber of Commerce or myself know.

GOVERNOR PATTERSON
In Commercial Appeal

Politeness is a word that appears to be now little used. Some years ago we would hear it very often as applied to both men and women who were known to be kind and considerate of others.

Whether the quality of politeness is getting so common that it is no longer a subject of interest and comment or whether it has become so rare that we never think about it, may be an open question, but the fact remains that we seldom hear the word. When it was in general use politeness was more frequently applied to men than women probably upon the theory that we naturally expected to find it in women, whereas it was not so common in men, and therefore when found in them was spoken of in terms of praise and admiration. The words gentleman and gentlewoman are now also little heard. Men and women are used to express everything. Special designations have gone out of fashion. I don't know when I have heard or seen in print together, the words "good man," unless they referred to some physical state of fitness or superiority. To indicate moral quality the adjective "good" has become almost obsolete.

The world may not be getting any worse but it certainly is becoming more practical and what were once considered the fine and important things of life no longer concern us as they once did. This is true in the relations of men and of the sexes.

Our admiration is for successful men rather than good ones, and our ideas of success are very largely measured by what a man is worth in money rather than what he is worth in character.

Politeness and the other gracious things of life are not cultivated as they once were. It is still thought worth while to be polite, and we will recognize this more when we get over the fever now in our veins and become more settled with more time to cultivate the virtues and practice those courtesies and amenities which make life pleasant and interesting.

There are signs that we are getting away in some degree from the hard materialism which has pressed down so ruthlessly upon our times and that we are just now beginning again to understand that politeness has a distinct value all its own. We are finding this, strange to say, in business, where politeness is being recommended and insisted upon by corporations and others upon the part of their employees towards the public.

This is especially noticeable with the telephone companies. It has become a ritual for the fair operators to thank us whenever we ask for a number. This form of politeness may be a part of the game, it may be learned and conned by rote, but it is nevertheless pleasant and soothing. When we are out of sorts and grab the instrument from the call for a number in gruff tones to hear a female voice from somewhere in the distance quietly reply, "Thank you," we feel ashamed of our haste and are even ready to forgive and forget when we get the wrong number. When this politeness began to be employed, all the operators caught it at the same time, which looked a little suspicious, that it was not altogether spontaneous but a sort of canned article for immediate consumption, but there was no way of getting away from it and it had to be recognized.

At first I wondered what particular favor I had done these fair operators, and even now I have become used to their urbanity, whenever they say "thank you." I always want to tell them they are welcome. Their politeness may be business but it is nice business and the people like it. From this acorn a big tree should grow producing other acorns of like quality until we reforest all the waste drab places of earth with the beautiful trees of courtesy.

If in business politeness is recognized as an asset of positive merit, though it may be dealt out in a synthetic form, how much more is it worth when it is employed individually as a habit in the other affairs of life.

Politeness costs nothing but it earns a great deal. Nothing aids more to help us over the hard, rough places we encounter. Nothing is more effective to round off and make smooth the jagged surfaces which are exposed. The world would be safer and we would be happier if we regarded politeness both as a duty and a pleasure.

Like the quality of mercy which the poet says blesses both the giver and receiver, so we may say of its close blood relation—politeness.

DECORATION DAY AT WESLEY, SUNDAY, MAY 20

Decoration at Wesley Cemetery, Sunday, May 19, 2:30 p. m. Every one interested please come and decorate and help pay the janitor.

C. C. HANCOCK,
Trustee and Secretary.

TRAINING IS NEEDED

Possibly because in the early days so large a percentage of our population engaged in farming the idea has persisted that anybody can be a farmer, regardless of ability or training.

The truth is that today it requires knowledge and good judgment to be a successful farmer, just as it does to be a successful manufacturer.

The farmer is, in a way, a manufacturer. He takes the soil and seed as his raw materials and through labor converts them into products which must be sold on the market, just as a manufacturer's products must be sold.

His task is even more difficult than that of the manufacturer, because he must plan farther ahead and is unable to foresee what market conditions will be when his crop must be sold. To avoid loss he must make his plans with a reasonable margin of safety.

Like the manufacturer, he must produce those commodities which may be expected to bring a price which will show a profit over cost of production. If he cannot do this he had better produce nothing. Other words, he should change his vocation.

To be successful, the farmer, like the manufacturer, must read and think and plan. The farmer who will not do those things is doomed to failure. He is a misfit on the farm and should get a job where he will have some one to do the reading and thinking and planning for him.

“A WINDOW IN THE CAN.”

THAT the housewife is entitled to know whether the canned foods she buys are of a certain definite grade, or below it, was the universal consensus of opinion at the National Canners' Convention held in Chicago this year. This great gathering turned into a paean of praise for the proposed McNary-Mages amendment to the Pure Foods and Drugs Act calculated to accomplish this end. This bill, if passed by the House and Senate, will authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to set fixed standards for the various canned foods, and will enforce the labeling of all canned foods which fall below these standards as “sub-standard.”

The Pure Foods and Drugs Act is the housewife's existing official government guarantee that all canned foods now offered to her for sale are pure and wholesome, but it does not provide that any distinction shall be made on the label between the different grades. If this amendment is passed, the consumers of canned foods will invariably be told “what's what” on the words of the Government of the United States.

Canners Enthusiastic

“Pass that legislation!” “We are upon our honor.” “We must deal directly and openly with the consumer.” “This is a step which puts a window into the tin can.” All these were phrases of the foremost officials in the canning industry in regard to this proposed legislation. They regard it as not only a protection to the housewife, but a protection to themselves in offering her fine quality packs at proper prices, and the cheaper substandard packs for their poorer uses.

The National Canners Association is a nation-wide organization formed in 1907, consisting of producers of all varieties of hermetically sealed canned foods which have been sterilized by heat. It neither produces, buys nor sells. Its purpose is to assure, for the mutual benefit of the industry and the public, the best canned foods that scientific knowledge and human skill can produce, and it has made steady progress year after year.

Many Women Help

That the Convention was in deadly earnest about putting canned foods before the public with the consumers' interests and desires in mind, was proved by the many women from whom they sought counsel as to how to accomplish this end. These women told in address that the housewife wants to know about canned foods, and the views of all of them coincided remarkably.

Margaret Justin, Dean of the Division of Home Economics of Kansas State Agricultural College said that the two questions which the housewife wants answered are: “What is best for me and my family?” and “How can I get what I want, and get it most readily?” She urged explicit advertising and labeling of canned foods and the standardization of products.

“Prudence Penny,” Home Economics Editor of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, speaking on the subject of baked beans, said that her daily letters from hundreds of women show that they welcome stories in newspapers and magazines that give them definite suggestions they can put to practical use, and that her hundreds of thousands of inquiries during the past two or three years have been largely for recipes, food values, menus, special and general cookery help and foods for special occasions.

The Demand for Recipes

Ellen Rose Dickey, Director and Announcer of Women's Programs at Station WJJD in Chicago, spoke on the subject of sauerkraut and how she had explained the advantages and possibilities of this food for women over the radio, and distributed thousands of recipes.

Ruth Atwater, Director of Home Economics of the Association, maintained that many women read carefully the labels on canned foods and that the more real information that can be put on the label the better women will be pleased. She also urged, in an address on canned foods that helpful suggestions be made that will interest women in using this product in a greater variety of ways and that simple directions for using them be put on the label, and stated that women want quality and want also to feel secure in their buying of specific brands.

Erna J. Bertrams, Director of the Department of Food Economics of Armour and Company also emphasized this demand for recipes, and urged that correct information, not only regarding the wholesomeness of the meat that goes into the can, but the economy in money, time and labor made possible by canned meats, be given to the school girl—the potential housekeeper—as well as to the housekeeper of today. Both, she said, should be given recipes and suggestions to prepare these canned meats. She, too, made a plea for more explicit labels.

All these and many other speakers advocated this sort of “a window in the can” and, at its closing session, the Convention adopted a resolution heartily endorsing in principle the object of the McNary-Mages canned foods bill.

THE PROMENADE

A contemporary writer bewails the passing of the old custom of "promenading" on pleasant evenings, and wishes that it might be restored. There is reason in his plea.

Not so long ago the summer twilight in almost every community found groups of people—nice people—strolling quietly along the streets, stopping to chat with other groups and combining social intercourse, mild after-dinner exercise and enjoyment of the best part of the day in a fashion as inexpensive as it was charming and conducive to health and neighborliness. As the champion of the promenade points out, it is a pity that the fashion of tearing about in motor cars with little result but the exhaustion of purse and nervous energy has so completely superseded this calmer method of enjoyment. "Use your legs," he urges. "It is cheaper than riding and more restful of mind and body."

Those who have the courage to adopt his suggestion and leave the car standing in the garage for a few nights while they promenade, unhooked and unhooking, in the peaceful twilight, will find that he is right.

THE STRAW HAT

Most of those who donned straw hats in advance of the "opening day" looked ill at ease and just a trifle self-conscious. Pioneering has its thrills, but it has also its discomforts. Those dauntless souls who were first to wear straw kellys may derive satisfaction from the glowing things the National Association of Men's Straw Hat Manufacturers has to say on the subject.

According to members of this body, who appear to have been delving into the past to some purpose, the straw hat is of venerable antiquity, and has behind it a vast store of tradition and history. They point proudly to the fact that the various representations of Mercury, the messenger of the gods of old, and himself a god of good standing, always show him wearing this particular style of headgear. Doubtless it was thought to be especially appropriate to the airy missions and rapid flights which he was continually being called upon to perform. Even the greatest of goddesses did not disdain it, for it is noted that the statue of Juno, by Praxiteles, which dates as far back as 350 B. C., is crowned with a "stephanos," which is in reality a straw hat. Whether she wore it as an ornament or for strictly utilitarian purposes, is not revealed.

Coming down to times more recent, but still respectably distant, those archaeologists have discovered that Edmund Spencer, author of the "Faerie Queene," and one of the great glories of the Elizabethan period, disported himself on his extensive Irish estate at Kilmolman castle in a light summer suit and with his luxuriant locks escaping from under a regulation straw hat. After that one is not inclined to stress unduly the skimmer worn by the eighteenth century Thomas Gray, poet of the "Elegy," except to notice that he boasts it is lined with green.

It is interesting to learn that this is the sixty-first year of the general use of the straw hat in the United States and that the industry has grown to quite respectable proportions. 6,000,000 hats, of the value of $20,000,000, being annually produced.

YOUR VACATION

That vacation you are planning is just like your purse. You can only get out of it what you put in it.

Your week or month away from familiar scenes and duties should be as carefully planned as any part of the year's work. Remember, you are going to vacate. That means to vacate the mind of its worries and obligations, to vacate the familiar tasks of the hands and feet, to vacate the work-a-day haunts of the year. If you live inland, visit the sea. If you live near the coast, visit the mountains. Get away from everything that is familiar, if you can.

The place in which you decide to spend your vacation is not so important as the mood in which you decide to spend it. Two people start out on their vacations. Both go to the same place, traveling over the same route, and stay the same length of time. One will have a splendid time, meet charming people, enjoy beautiful weather and find fun in every crowded minute. The other will be bored to death, curse the rotten weather, and wish all the time he were somewhere else. The second vacationist put no soul into his outing. He had no plan. He had nothing to give and so found nothing to take.

Pleasure on your vacation comes, oddly enough, from the work you put into it. Know where and why you are going to the particular place you have chosen. Fill every minute with activity, but with the kind of activity not native to the year's routine work.

And, speaking of weather, those who can choose their vacation period would do well to learn the time of full moon in July and August. Good weather usually holds sway just before and after that event. And a moonlight night in the mountains or at the ocean trebles the joy of a vacation.

Go to it with a purpose. Refresh your body and stimulate your mind. Feast your eyes on new scenes. Broaden your sympathies by new contacts. Vacation means recreation, and recreation is really recreation.

JUST LIKE HOME FOOD

Smith's Cafe is in reality a home-like restaurant because it has been trying to overcome the prevalent idea that restaurants can't serve food like you get at home.

Scores of patrons will testify that there is no difference between our meals and the meals they get at home. That's the reason they eat here so regularly.

Years spent in catering to the appetites of particular people make it possible for us to serve wholesome, tasty meals.

The next time you feel like eating away from home, bring your family here.
