THE LISTENING POST

● To a person who writes a daily column on the order of this—save the mark!—reader reaction is always something to consider. It is the only standard of excellence or the opposite and if there is no reader reaction at all, and if this continues for long periods of time, the writer had just as well get a job on the defense program or change his style radically. Reader reaction need not be favorable. It will do just as well if it is largely critical, although this will not be as pleasant as the favorable sort of reaction, but it must draw either criticism or praise. That means it is being read—and that is the only mission of any sort of writing.

● After writing for a long time a fellow begins to see some broad patterns beginning to emerge. He recognizes certain fundamentals of the column writing business. As a matter of fact, it becomes possible to write a column which one knows will draw reader reaction. The basic idea in such a column is a column based on a subject in which many people are interested. Certainly a daily column should always be written on subjects in which many people are interested, but at times this is not possible, for the columnist must write what comes into his supposed brain, and many times these thoughts are not those in which many people are interested. Also, there is quite a fillip in writing a column about some private thought, some memory, some experience, and having it attract a lot of reader reaction. Such experiences are not common, but year in and year out, a man who writes a daily column will ring the bell along this line a few times in a year. It's worth while when it does happen. Like precious jewels, the value is high because the articles are scarce and hard to come by.

● Almost all persons who write daily columns have discovered there is one subject which is always certain to attract reader reaction. That subject is food. Everybody is interested in food to a certain degree. Some are more interested than others, but all have that interest, for food is something people think of at least three times a day. Human thought in this subject is widely divided. Some like certain foods; some like certain methods of cooking; some people make a hobby of preparation and selection of food, and any time a columnist writes of food he is certain to create interest among many people. I have tried it deliberately at times and it never fails. At times I have given my beliefs about certain foods, and found that I appeared to be the only human alive who held such beliefs. All well and good, however; there was reader reaction.

● I had another experience last week which proves the soundness of the theory of writing about things in which many people are interested. On a day last week I seemed to have no ideas at all worth writing about, I began to fear that I might have to borrow something from some source. I never like to do this, although I could probably borrow better stuff than I could write. There is a certain pride, however, in the matter of doing a daily chore and only as a last resort will I borrow anything. Even if I borrow I try to add a few original touches probably making it worse, but giving it, at least, a touch of the home made column.

● Well, I finally thought of the flu situation. At once I knew that there was a subject in which everybody was interested. Many had sur-

Wendell Willkie Announces His Support Of President's Bill; Certain Modifications Asked

Republican Leader Plans To Visit England In Near Future To Make First-Hand Study Of War Situation—Asks Full Debate On Lease-Lend Bill

New York, —Wendell L. Willkie declared Sunday he favored "with modification" President Roosevelt's "lend-lease" arms bill, and announced he would fly soon to England for a private survey of international situation.

He asserted the bill should grant powers to the President "for a fixed term, not too far in the future" and that Congress should not be "harried" in its passage. The defeated Republican President candidate expressed the belief the Nation faced an emergency under which "extraordinary powers must be granted to the elected Executive."

Urges Close Scrutiny of Bill
His announcement was contained in a 1,200-word statement given to newspapermen in his office in the Hotel Commodore and amplified through questions and answers at a press conference.

"The so-called 'lend-lease' bill, now before Congress," said Willkie's statement, "asks for an enormous grant of executive power. Under a democratic system, in which the people's power is preserved by limiting the powers of government, every such grant of power should be jealously scrutinized."

"I have examined this bill in the light of the current emergency, and I personally have come to the conclusion that with modification, it should be adopted."

Willkie said that the bill should be subjected to "thorough debate" and amendment should be made "as Congress, representing the people, may deem necessary to retain in its own hands the fundamental power to declare war."

"We could all wish," Willkie said, "that this Administration loved power less and that it more readily relinquished it when the purpose for which it was granted ceased to exist."

"I was... perfectly serious in my charge that the re-election of the Administration would jeopardize the continuation of the democratic process in the United States."

Rebuts Landon's Idea
"Yet the people chose this Administration and we must abide by that choice. We must not fall into the fallacy of depriving it of powers necessary to defend us in order to preserve the mere form of democratic procedure. We must give it the power to act in this emergency, while at the same time assuring ourselves, by competent amendments, of a reversion of that power to us after the emergency is over."

Germany Loses First Bomber To British-Flown U. S. Plane

London, —The air ministry announced today that "Germany has lost her first bomber to an American fighter aircraft flown by a British pilot."

The ministry told the story this way: "Three of these (American) aircraft were on patrol when weather conditions necessitated recall to their bases."

"The leader had actually landed when he caught sight of a JU 88 (Junkers bomber). He promptly took off again and, climbing back into the clouds, rejoined his two companions just as one of them opened fire on the leader."

"Smoke at once enveloped the leader and when the leader joined

Rev. J. W. Waters, Retired Minister, Dies At Ripley

The Rev. John Watson Waters, 87, one of the best loved ministers in the Memphis Methodist Conference and who had served 50 years as an active minister before his retirement 12 years ago, died Sunday morning at 5:50 at his home in Ripley, Tenn. He had been ill two weeks with influenza and pneumonia.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at the First Methodist church at Ripley conducted by the Rev. O. C. Wraether of Jackson, former Ripley pastor, and Dr. R. P. Buckworth of Brownsville.

Dr. Waters, who served as pastor of the First Methodist church here 25 years ago, is well known in Fulton. He was in Fulton from 1917 to 1919. For the past 50 years he and Mrs. Waters have often visited in the home of the late J. E. Fields and Mrs. Fields and have many friends in Fulton who mourn his passing.

Dr. Waters filled some of the most important churches in the conference. Due to his advanced age he retired and he and Mrs. Waters moved to Ripley to live. Among the appointments he served were churches at Dyersburg, Brownsville, Murray, Fulton, Paris, Humboldt, Trenton, First Church and Hayes Avenue at Jackson, Tenn.; Lexington, Huntington and Galloway Memorial in Memphis. He was presiding elder of the Lexington District for four years.

Dr. Waters was a native of Murray and was reared there, receiving his education in schools in that section. His brother, the Rev. W. C. Waters, now retired and living at Martin, also held many leading appointments and for years the Waters brothers were considered among the leaders of West Tennessee Methodism.

He missed attendance at only two annual conferences in 62 years. Even after he was superannuated he never lost his zest for the work. Dr. and Mrs. Waters were looking forward to the celebration of their golden anniversary in March. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lois Ann Summers Waters, a daughter, Mrs. John E. Naylor, Ripley; two sons, Fletcher Waters, Dyersburg, Tenn.; and Roy Waters, Bogalusa, La.; and his brother, the Rev. W. C. Waters, Martin.

Officials Working Out Plan To Take Care Of Draftee's Families

Washington, —A plan to take care of the families of those who go into military service is being worked out for incorporation in the Social Security program.

Informed officials say it will be sent to the capitol in the new session of Congress along with a renewal of suggestions that farm and domestic workers be added to the 52,000,000 men and women in industry and commerce who already have Social Security accounts.

For the needy man who heads the call of military service, the plan being considered would work something like this: As a soldier, he would get $30 a month. Of this, he might keep $5 and allot $25 to the needs of his family. In addition through the Federal Security Agency, the government would pay another $15 or $20, perhaps even more, toward the support of his family, the amount depending somewhat upon the number of dependents and their needs.

Claims Approved
Already the Social Security agency is approving about a thousand claims for benefits a day from retired wage earners, their aged wives, and from widows, orphans or the dependent parents of workers who have died. Benefits of this type became available only last January and upward of 237,000 such claims have been approved already. Benefit payments are going out to them at the rate of $4,250,000 a month. That figures out to the average of $17.93 a person. Actually, there is considerable variation in the figures for the different groups. Retired workers of 65 or older are getting an average of $22.72 a month. Added to this, in many cases, is the $12.21 a month drawn by wives who are 65 or older. Children under 18 get an average of $12.23 a month. Widows 65 or older get $20.45. Widows of workers who have died, and with children under 18 are getting an average of $19.73 a month. And dependent parents of insured workers who have died are getting an average of $13.11.

28 Million Covered
Twenty-eight million workers now are covered by unemployment compensation laws, operating in all states, which help them to bridge the gaps between jobs. Significant of the rise in employment under the Defense Program, benefits paid to them in November were only $29,600,000 compared to the $56,000,000 paid in July. Total benefits paid out during 1940 will amount to about $520,000,000.

The biggest decreases in benefit payments during the last half of the year were in industrial states such as Michigan and Indiana, though such states as Kentucky, North Carolina, Texas, Virginia, Washington and Wyoming showed decreases of from 30 to 40 per cent in claims for unemployment benefits between August and September.

Washington, —Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), said Sunday that if Congress approved the Administration's bill empowering President Roosevelt to send vast quantities of war supplies to the "democracies" it would mean "open and complete warfare" for the United States.

Discussing the legislation on the American Forum of the Air, Wheeler added that the form of the bill "definitely stamps the President as war-minded."

Senator Lee (D., Okla.), speaking in support of the measure, contended the United States' only chance of escaping war is to send aid to England.

Calls England U. S. Barrier
"England," he said, "is the only barrier between America and a baptism of blood."

"Hitler is at war with America today. He is making war on us economically, politically and morally. Only one obstacle prevents him from making war on us in a military sense, and that is England."

"If England is willing to furnish men, to fly the planes we should be willing to furnish the planes. Suppose it does take our wealth. That is not as precious as the blood of our boys."

The Forum discussion furnished a prelude of what is expected to be a prolonged Senate debate on the measure which would give the President broad powers to transfer military equipment to Great Britain, China, Greece and other nations opposing the Axis.

Hopes to Act First On Bill

Under plans of Democratic leaders, the House will act first on the legislation. Its foreign affairs committee is scheduled to begin hearings Monday with Secretary Hull as the first witness. Chairman Bloom (D., N. Y.), said he was prepared to go ahead with the hearings despite an effort by the military affairs committee to win the right to consider the bill.

Bloom said his committee's hearings should be completed Thursday, in which case leaders said there was a possibility the House might act on the legislation by the end of the week.

In the Senate, opponents were taking of lengthy hearings by the Foreign Relations Committee and at least three weeks of debate in the chamber itself. Committee Chairman George (D., Ga.), said there must be some limit on committee hearings, to begin Wednesday, or discussion would "take all session."

Bill Called "Triple A" Plan
Wheeler called the bill "The New Deal's 'Triple A' foreign policy—plow under every fourth American boy."

"Never before," he said, "has the United States given to one man the power to strip this Nation of its defenses in time of peace or war. Never before has the Congress coldly and flatly been asked to abdicate."

Selected Feature

AN EXCELLENT CHOICE

Ernest W. Gibson of Vermont is an excellent selection for the leadership of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. He possesses the qualifications suggested by William Allen White when, retiring from the active chairmanship last week, he recommended that his successor be "some strong, high-visioned young man."

Mr. Gibson's service in the Senate was brief but it was long enough to cause widespread regret that he did not seek election to that body at the expiration of the period of his appointment. He revealed such capacity and such awareness of what is going on in the world that it seemed a shame that he was not to continue in the public service and in high place.

The effect of his election to the committee chairmanship is to restore him to an important station in public life. He and the highly competent Lewis W. Douglas, with whom he is to share the burdens of leadership, undertake a great responsibility and a great task—a task which was more than ably begun by Mr. White.

Nothing could be more vital to the future of America than the mobilization of that sentiment, which is overwhelmingly in the majority, for the protection of our freedom and our way of life from the revolutionary forces which threaten them. Nothing could be more vital than making effective and active the belief to which most Americans have come, that for our own sakes we can afford to stint nothing in help to Great Britain.

The minority is well-heeled, extremely vocal and determinedly obstructive, but it cannot be allowed to interfere with the processes of democracy. We must, as Walter Pippmann wrote the other day, see to it that the majority prevails, that democracy works in this crisis. Mr. Gibson and Mr. Douglas are men who can be counted on to do their part.—Louisville Times.

EXTRA BURMA ROADS

Dr. Lin Yutang, the Chinese scholar whose writings are best sellers in the United States, made a revealing comment the other day about the war in his native land.

"There are hundreds of little Burma Roads," he said, "each one representing a Japanese officer who is anxious to be bribed. We can smuggle anything into China—actually anything, and any place."

Accidentals have long understood that bribery was a common weapon in Oriental military affairs, but somehow the revelation made by Dr. Lin is a little surprising. Even the military Japanese, apparently, are not "sold" on their conquest of China by numerous officers, for the sake of personal gain, are willing to let help get through the lines to the Chinese.

Many Chinese and foreign observers testify to the fact that the Japanese war has come closer than anything in modern times to unifying that great and sprawling nation. The Chinese who resist the invaders, by fighting or by bribing, have a big, impelling motive for their action. The Japanese soldier or officer must have far less strength of conviction.—Mayfield Messenger.

ARE GREEK VICTORIES TO BE SHORT LIVED.

Against stiffened Italian resistance, Greek forces in Central Albania capture the strategic stronghold of Klisura, only 15 miles from Tepelini and 30 miles from the important port of Valona. If the heroic little Hellenic army can follow up with a series of smashes like those in November, the Fascist legions may be driven into the sea or may find themselves isolated in the barren northern section of their protectorate without port facilities and without communications.

But Albania is not Libya. The Greek campaign is not what it was when Italian troops surrendered by the thousands or took flight leaving all their equipment and supplies. For more than a month the Greek advance has been held in check in the central sector and progress up the coast from Porto Edda has been at a standstill. Mussolini's Black Shirts have been re-organized. They have a secret weapon—that no longer is secret—in the form of regiments of German soldiers. They are aided, too, by German bombers and transport planes. Valona, the last remaining port of entry—Durazzo, too small to be of effective use, has been bombed out of commission—will no doubt be defended stubbornly. And if it can hold out until spring there is the promise of German invasion of the Balkans.

This is no disparagement of the latest Greek success. In fact it emphasizes that success. Klisura is the cross-roads to both Valona and Tirans, the capital. It occupies the same mountain trail as Tepelini. The position was highly important to the Italians and they held on to it with un-Italian stubbornness. But that stubbornness was not sufficient.

Unless the Greeks can repeat the smashing blows of the early part of their campaign, their victories may be shortlived. Already the Fascist press is preparing the Italian people for the entry of a German army and predicting a German offensive in the Balkans. The mobilization in Rumania and Hungary probably has no immediate objective, but an invasion of Greece by way of Bulgaria or Yugoslavia or an attack on the Greeks in Albania by way of Italy is indicated by all the signs.

If Italy is to be blocked out in Albania, as it seems likely to be knocked out in Libya, the Greeks must work fast.—Courier-Journal.

Miss Idelle Batts Becomes Bride Of Dr. H. B. Bailey, Jr., Sunday

Marked with sweet simplicity, the marriage of Miss Idelle Batts of Fulton to Dr. H. B. Bailey, Jr., of Murray, Ky., was solemnized yesterday afternoon, January 12, at three o'clock in the beautiful country home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Batts, east of the city. The Elder C. L. Francis, minister of the Church of Christ in Murray, said the single ring ceremony before a small gathering of families and friends.

The spacious double living room and dining room held a profusion of carnations and gladioli of pink and white. The vows were spoken in the west room before a lovely improvised altar arranged in front of the mantle. Ferns formed the background with a huge floor basket of pink gladioli on each side. Standards of pink tapers and candles on the mantle holding tall pink tapers furnished the only lighting. In the center of the mantle was a picture of the bride's mother.

Pre-nuptial music was furnished by Miss Katie Cost of Paducah who played "Greetings" by Elgar, preceding the ceremony, while the candles were lighted by Robert Batts, brother of the bride. Miss Kathleen Winter of Fulton sang "I Love You Truly." As the bride and groom entered through the hallway, unattended, Miss Cost played "The Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" by Wagner and after the ceremony, Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was used.

The bride was attractively attired in a dress of duonnet velvet with a turban of matching velvet, her shoulder corsage being of yellow roses. Her only jewelry was a gold pendant set with diamonds, a gift from her mother.

Miss Bailey, a graduate of Fulton High School, class of 1934, attended Murray State Teachers College and received her B. S. Degree in Home Economics there in 1938. After her graduation she was a faculty member of Crofton High school, Crofton, Ky.

The groom attended Murray High school and also Murray State Teachers College. He received his O. D. Degree at the Northern Illinois College of Optometry in Chicago. He is now practicing optometry in Murray.

The couple will make their home on Poplar street, Murray. Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Bailey, Jr.; parents of the groom. Miss Imogene Bailey, sister of the groom, Miss Naomi Lee Whitnell, Frank Ryann, Bernard Bell, Mrs. Tom Rowlett, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Swann.

Professor R. A. Johnson, Lloyd Albritton, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ward Outland, "Boody" Russell, all of Murray; Mrs. Herman Willingham of Memphis, and Miss Helen Wallace of Wardell, Mo.

BILL ELLIOTT -- Wednesday Fulton

BILL ELLIOTT—COLUMBIA CONTRACT PLAYER

Bill Elliott, who will make personal appearance with his latest Columbia picture "Wildcat of Tucson" at the Fulton Theatre Wednesday was not exactly born to the saddle, but he knew considerable about cows before his voice changed. The son of a pioneer, born in Pattonburg, Mo., he was practically weaned on spurs, saddles and ten-gallon hats.

Elliott, born Gordon Nace on October 16, earned his first money rounding up cattle for his father, a cattle buyer and raiser. Little dreaming that his cow-punching would result in a motion picture career.

His earliest ambition was to be a cattle-raiser like his father. Then he wanted to be a real cowboy. When his family moved to Kansas City, Bill spent a lot of his leisure time watching the cowboys who brought big herds of cattle to the stockyards.

tucky as its background, was reviewed by Mrs. Carl Hastings in a most interesting manner.

Following the program delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Robert H. Binford and little granddaughter, Miss Fall Binford.

He obtained his education in the grade and high schools of Kansas City. Following graduation from High School, he went to Hollywood, where he enrolled in the famous Pasadena Community Playhouse, training ground for many present-day screen stars.

After a succession of society roles, he was given his chance in westerns. Executives from Columbia Pictures saw one of his films and immediately put him under contract as a Western star. Since then he has appeared in a series of outdoor dramas and rapidly is becoming one of America's favorite western heroes.

Elliott, who weighs 173 pounds, is six feet, one inch tall, has blue eyes and brown hair. He is married to the former Helen Josephine Myer, a non-professional. They have a daughter, Barbara, and live in San Fernando Valley, on a ranch.

ferred, others were suffering and many others would suffer, and I knew it was a natural. So I wrote a disquisition on flu, taking the view that if a person kept on going, never went to bed, but toughed it out, as the saying goes, that person did not really have the flu. It was not much of a column, for it was done in ten minutes, and with little or no preliminary thought. But it brought reader reaction. The paper had not been out ten minutes before a telephone call brought the first, and even yet I am getting scattered returns from the vast number of those who have had the flu, either personally or in their families.

Well, this should be a valuable lesson for all those who write. If a person could always write of subjects with vast reader appeal that person could do a good job of getting reader reaction. And when steady reader reaction can be had all will be well with any writer. The human mind, however, cannot grasp this simple formula, for too many times the writer will insist on writing about something in which only a few are interested. That's the barrier to successful writing, whether it be writing for fun as mine is, or that done for profit on the part of the professional writers.

Flavor hints for Vegetables

by Dorothy Greig

GRANNY used to say, "All vegetables are more exciting with a bit of fixing up." In her house we'd find little white onions mixed in with the peas, and the peas cooked with sprigs of mint; or a flecking of nutmeg on carrots, or onion butter over beets. Granny never had to coax the members of her family to eat vegetables. They always passed back for more.

One of my own pet flavor enhancers for vegetables is condensed soups. These being skillfully seasoned in themselves give forth of that flavor to the vegetables. For instance:

Savory Glazed Carrots

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons onion, chopped
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
9-10 whole scraped carrots (5-6 inches long)
1 can condensed consommé
Cook the chopped onions in the butter until soft but not brown. Roll the carrots in the flour and salt and sauté with the onions and butter for about 10 minutes. Then pour the consommé with 1/2 cup water over the carrots. Cover tightly and cook until tender. Sprinkle with chopped parsley just before serving.

And meaty baked potatoes, good as they are, taste even better as:

Tomato Cheese Baked Potatoes.
Bake the potatoes. Scoop out the shells and mash well or put through a ricer. For each medium sized potato add:

2 tablespoons condensed tomato soup
1/4 teaspoon salt
Pinch of pepper
2 teaspoons butter
1 tablespoon sharp grated cheese
Mix all together thoroughly and put mixture back in potato shell. Brown in hot oven or under broiler.

Our younger set calls for GRAVY

Dorothy Greig

EVERY wave of small fry as it comes along over the years just naturally loves gravy—over bread, in a brown pool atop fluffy mashed potatoes, on meat, over vegetables. Even grown-ups have been known to view with anticipation a big bowl of rich brown gravy on the dinner table.

But I know a thing or two about gravy I'm going to pass on to you. One is how to enrich the flavor and increase the quantity of pan gravy. This I call:

Savory Beef Gravy

3 cups browned beef gravy
1 can condensed mock turtle soup
Add the mock turtle soup to the browned beef gravy. Heat to the boiling point and serve. This gives about 4 1/2 cups of gravy.

And next, believe it or not, it's possible to have gravy any time you want it whether you have meat to start from or not. It's done with condensed soups. This particular one is a deeply flavored beef gravy because the consommé and mock turtle soups are both made on a rich beef stock base:

Quick Gravy

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 can condensed consommé
1/4 can water
1 can condensed mock turtle soup
Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the flour and blend. Then add the consommé and 1/4 can of water, cook until thickened. Add the mock turtle soup and simmer 3-5 minutes to blend thoroughly the flavors. Strain before serving. Makes 3 1/2 cups gravy.
