Vote Record For Sheriff

In the Past Five Elections in Fulton County

Now that the campaign is warming up, a little data on past elections is not out of place. Some good men have gone down in defeat in former elections and some good men will go down in defeat on August 3, 1929, while others will go into office with a triumph and victory by the popular vote of the people.

Today it requires double effort on the part of the office seeker to win than it did some years ago, and the candidate who fails to exert his best efforts during the campaign may be disappointed when the final count is made.

In this issue of The Advertiser we give the names of the candidates and total vote in the last five campaigns in the Sheriff's race, as follows:

For Sheriff, Nov. 4, 1908
Dave Morgan 254
Herschel Johnson 320
L. C. Roberson 321
GOALDER JOHNSON 959
A. G. Kimbro 104

For Sheriff, Aug. 1, 1925
JOHN M. THOMPSON 1593
Swayne Walker 1069
Walter I. Shupe 282
Goalder Johnson 1,391
J. H. Rankin 235
Tom Hales 105

As the campaign proceeds, The Advertiser will publish political news of interest to the public and candidates.

Note the variation of votes received by winners during the past twenty years.

In 1908, with five candidates in the race, Goalder Johnson won with 959 votes.

In 1913 with ten in the race, Bailey Huddleston won with 645 votes.

In 1917 with four in the race, Swayne Walker won with 894 votes.

In 1921 with eleven in the race, J. O. West won with 1059 votes.

In 1925 with six in the race, John M. Thompson won with 1593 votes, the largest vote ever cast for a candidate for sheriff in Fulton county. In the same campaign Goalder Johnson received more votes for sheriff than any successful candidate received during the four preceding elections.

FRANK LOVE, WELL KNOWN INSURANCE MAN COMMITTS SUICIDE

Friends and acquaintances of Frank Love, were shocked Sunday, when news of his death was received here.

In reporting his untimely death, the Paducah News-Democrat, in part, said:

"With a bullet hole in the right temple, Frank Love, 57-year-old insurance agent, was found dead in his office on the third floor of the City National Bank building about 2:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, by a number of persons soon after they heard a shot. Mr. Love is thought to have shot himself because of despondency over protracted ill health.

Mr. Love, who was considered one of the best insurance agents in the state, was born in Uniontown, Alabama. He had lived for sometime in Selma, Ala., where he leaves two sisters. He was a graduate of the University of Alabama. Coming to Paducah from Memphis fourteen years ago, Mr. Love took charge of the agency for several insurance companies. Attend Opening.

The City Ice Company will hold Open House to their friends Saturday and all ladies in attendance will be given 25 pounds of ice as a souvenir.

BELOVED CHILD PASSES AWAY

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McGhee, were grieved on receiving the sad news of the passing of their little son, James Bennett, in a Vicksburg hospital, Saturday afternoon, May 25. He became ill while on a visit with his parents to Mr. McGhee's relatives. Everything that skilled physicians and loved ones could do to prolong life failed, and a happy home is saddened with loneliness, and fond parents are bowed in deepest grief.

The following was taken from the Vicksburg (Miss.) Post:

James Bennett McGhee, aged two and one-half years son of Mr. and Mrs. Will H. McGhee, of Fulton, Ky., passed away early this afternoon while on a visit to relatives of the McGhee and Platte families.

Besides his grief-stricken parents, the infant is survived by an uncle, Lindsey McGee, of this city, and two aunts, Miss Lemira McGee and Mrs. Steve Platte, of this city. His grandmother, Mrs. Joe Bennett, of Fulton, Ky., and another aunt, Mrs. Pittman, of Water Valley, Miss., are here for the services.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow, Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock at the McGee home on Fort Hill, with Rev. J. L. Neill, of the Crawford street Methodist church officiating. Interment will be in the city cemetery here.

SHOCKING TRAGEDY IS CAUSE FOR SYMPATHY FOR SURVIVING MEM- BER OF FAMILY

Sympathy of the entire community is sincere for Lennis Williams in his bereavement over the tragic and untimely death of his parents and brother, principals in one of the most shocking tragedies in our city's history, when his father, E. R. Williams, 55, Friday afternoon, at the family home, 500 Arch street, shot and killed his wife, Martha, 53; his son, Dennis, 33, and then, walking across a hallway into another room, fired a bullet into his own brain, dying instantly. The mother lived about 20 minutes after being shot. The son lived about 30 minutes, and managed to tell officers and his brother, Lennis, in a whisper, that "papa did it."

The motive for the tragedy remains a mystery and may never be known.

Funeral services were held for Mr. and Mrs. Williams and son, Dennis, at the First Baptist Church, Sunday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. C. H. Warren, interment following in Fairview cemetery.

Lennis Williams, the only surviving member of the family, is an employee of the Illinois Central railroad. The deceased brother, Dennis, was a lineman with the Kentucky Utilities Co. His father was also employed by the same corporation as fireman at the power plant. The mother conducted a boarding house at 500 Arch street.

POPPY DAY, MAY 30

"Poppies in the wheat fields, on the pleasant hills of France.

Reddening in the summer breeze that bids them nod and dance."

So sang a soldier poet of the A. E. F. that blazing summer of 1918, when an unleashed American army was writing victory into our history. He sang of the poppies because it was through machine-gun raked fields of them that the doughboys plucked them and wore them on their helmets as they forged ahead; and we wear them to remember.

The Flanders poppy which provided cheer to the marching soldiers and gently watched over the fallen heroes, grew amidst complete devastation on the battle fields of France—between abandoned trenches, and even in No Man's Land—thus typifying the courage of the men who fell. It is in reality the corn poppy—not the poppy from which opium is made—and is an ancient wild flower which grows annually and prolifically.

Because immediately after the war where the battle had been the fiercest and the bloodshed the greatest, the poppies grew most profusely. The French women tell you today that the poppy is significant of the sacrificial blood of the men who fell.

Because of this beautiful superstition, the poppy has been adopted as the national memorial flower of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary.

Wear, heart-sick, disabled soldiers make these little artificial poppies for a cent a piece; it affords their families a small income on which to live; it affords them recreation; it affords them a contentment in knowing they are earning something for their loved ones who are in need. We, the American Legion Auxiliary, offer these same poppies for sale on Poppy Day, May 30, the proceeds of which are turned back to these disabled and needy veterans, and ask that you give your donation cheerfully and wear your Poppy proudly on the day set apart as a Memorial Day for the dead heroes of the World War.

HATTONS MOST NOTED CO-AUTHORS IN AMERICA

Writers of "Synthetic Sin"
Have Collaborated in Many Plays, Novels and Scenarios

A combination of comedy-experts conceived the humorous plot of Colleen Moore's newest picture, "Synthetic Sin," which opens Monday at the Grand Theatre.

Frederic and Fanny Hatton, recognized among the outstanding playwrights of the day, created the original story from which Tom J. Geraghty prepared the scenario. The Hattons have justly earned their reputation as exceptional co-authors, such stage successes as "Upstairs and Down," "Lombardi, Ltd." and "The Great Lover," being among the score of plays they have written, with "The Auction Block," "Lovelorn," and "The Night Bird" numbered among their scenarios. In addition to their stage and screen writing, they have collaborated on numerous short stories and several novels, all of which have aided in carrying them to a conspicuous position among modern writers.

"Synthetic Sin" is said to overshadow all their other stories in humorous complications, it having enjoyed a successful run on Broadway as a play before John McCormick purchased it as a motion picture vehicle for Miss Moore. William A. Seiter directed "Synthetic Sin," with a supporting cast made up of Antonio Moreno, Montagu Love, Gertrude Astor, Edythe Chapman and Kathryn McGuire.

"A WINDOW IN THE CAN"

THAT the housewife is entitled to know whether the canned foods she buys are of a certain definite grade, or below it, was the universal consensus of opinion at the National Canners' Convention held in Chicago this year. This great gathering turned into a pan of praise for the proposed McNary-Mapes amendment to the Pure Foods and Drugs Act calculated to accomplish this end. This bill, if passed by the House and Senate, will authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to set fixed standards for the various canned foods, and will enforce the labeling of all canned foods which fall below these standards as "sub-standard."

The Pure Foods and Drugs Act is the housewife's existing official government guarantee that all canned foods now offered to her for sale are pure and wholesome, but it does not provide that any distinction shall be made on the label between the different grades. If this amendment is passed, the consumers of canned foods will invariably be told "what's what" on the words of the Government of the United States.

Canners Enthusiastic
"Pass that legislation!" "We are upon our honor." "We must deal directly and openly with the consumer." "This is a step which puts a window into the tin can." All these were phrases of the foremost officials in the canning industry in regard to this proposed legislation. They regard it as not only a protection to the housewife, but a protection to themselves in offering her fine quality packs at proper prices, and the cheaper substandard packs for their proper uses.

The National Canners Association is a nation-wide organization formed in 1907, consisting of producers of

Many Women Help

That the Convention was in deadly earnest about putting canned foods before the public with the consumers' interests and desires in mind, was proved by the many women from whom they sought counsel as to how to accomplish this end. These women told in address what the housewife wants to know about canned foods, and the views of all of them coincided remarkably.

Margaret Justin, Dean of the Division of Home Economics of Kansas State Agricultural College said that the two questions which the housewife wants answered are: "What is best for me and my family?" and "How can I get what I want, and get it most readily?" She urged explicit advertising and labeling of canned foods and the standardization of products.

"Prudence Penny," Home Economics Editor of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, speaking on the subject of baked beans, said that her daily letters from hundreds of women show that they welcome stories in newspapers and magazines that give them definite suggestions they can put to practical use, and that her hundreds of thousands of inquiries during the past two or three years have been largely for recipes; food values; menus, special and general; cookery help and foods for special occasions.

The Demand for Recipes

Ellen Rose Dickey, Director and Announcer of Women's Programs at Station WJJD in Chicago, spoke on the subject of sauerkraut and how she had explained the advantages and possibilities of this food for women over the radio, and distributed thousands of recipes.

Ruth Atwater, Director of Home Economics of the Association, maintained that many women read carefully the labels on canned foods and that the more real information that can be put on the label the better women will be pleased. She also urged, in an address on canned meats that helpful suggestions be made that will interest women in using this product in a greater variety of ways and that simple directions for using them be put on the label, and stated that women want quality and want also to feel secure in their buying of specific brands.

Erna J. Bertrams, Director of the Department of Food Economics of Armour and Company also emphasized this demand for recipes, and urged that correct information, not only regarding the wholesomeness of the meat that goes into the can, but the economy in money, time and labor made possible by canned meats, be given to the school girl—the potential housekeeper—as well as to the housekeeper of today.

Both, she said, should be given recipes and suggestions to prepare these canned meats. She, too, made a plea for more explicit labels. All these and many other speakers advocated this sort of "a window in the can," and at its closing session, the Convention adopted a resolution heartily endorsing in principle the object of the McNary-Mapes canned foods bill.

LOYALTY

Most persons who are happy have in them those elements of steadfastness and conviction to which applied loyalty gives visible form. It is, indeed, difficult to conceive of any continuous pleasure in an existence not motivated and spiritualized by unwavering allegiance to certain fundamental tenets of the established truth. But loyalty to the general, the abstract proposition, is likely to be ineffective—probably as an influence upon one's self and most certainly as an influence upon others—unless it is visualized in loyalty to the concrete issue, the definite institution, the living person.

Every man, perhaps, is conscious of a desire to be loyal to his God, but it is only when he translates that fidelity into a loyalty to his church that his purpose has meaning. Every man, too, desires to be loyal to his country, but it is only when that wish is translated into vigorous, militant loyalty to the responsible agencies of government that his loyalty is worth while.

For the man who is discouraged, downhearted by the rush of events, oppressed by petty failures, there is no stimulant like the compelling power of an intensive loyalty. Let the man who is not making good in his work dedicate himself to a new sense of allegiance to those with whom and for whom he labors. Out of vigorous loyalty to his fellow workers, and his employer will come the spirit of which success is forged. Let the man whose life seems dull and sordid find a loyalty—a loyalty to his home, perhaps, to his city, to his college, to his church—and life will be transformed for him as the gleam of purpose dispels the clouds of cynicism and mistrust. Out of loyalty to others will come that greater loyalty to self that transmutes a person into a personality, a slave into a servant, and a human into a man.

Let us attain to a loyalty and hold fast to it.

A GROUNDLESS FEAR

The medical director of the Life Extension Institute has just been telling fellow workers that the regular "he-man" style of American masculinity has retreated before the advance of a "soft," fluffy creature who lives longer, but gets far less out of life and gives society less than the old-fashioned "rough-neck." He fears that unless a change is effected, modern men will be a sex of pink-and-whites, not worth much, measured by the standards of two or three, or more, generations ago.

Another fear is that even if his warning is taken as seriously as he seems to view it, at least a century will be needed to bring about the physical improvement he has in mind. He explains that the men of today live more years than their grandfathers only because they have been given extraordinary protection by science, and that the same means is the force which will pamper until the human race will not be able to take care of itself.

The medical director probably is giving himself unnecessary alarm over the future of the races. Evidences that the modern man has become a "soft," pink-and-white effeminate, are not so distributed that every one who runs may see, and interpret them as does the medical director. In fact, the reverse may be claimed. On the strictly physical score, the up-to-date race asks no odds of its ancestry. The world has more strong men than ever. The classical periods knew no such lists of women and girl athletes in all branches of physical excellence.

The man of today not only lives longer, thanks to science, but lives better, more happily, can hit harder, run faster, swim farther and when at work can turn out more than the producer of any age.

JUNE

This is the year's tip top month. It brings the longest days and the best days. June grass is cleanest and June month of the gay blossoms and trees are greenest. It is the high-floating clouds. Average all the Junes of your lifetime and you will find that the result approximates the year's perfection.

And yet for a good reason, we labor through June instead of making the best month our chosen month of rest and play. The reason is that the hot, tiresome summer months loom ahead of June. In order to be privileged to loaf in June most of us would be compelled to pay the penalty of working through July and August. The prospect would be disheartening that it would mar the pleasure of a June vacation.

Even though we must make June a work month, we may, if we are resourceful, enjoy June's gifts. We may save our off-hours for little trips into the country, or we may putter about our own premises and persuade ourselves that we are working while in reality we are only making yard or garden activity an excuse for soaking ourselves in the glory of the month. We may, for once, decline to take June for granted.

We may take an aggressively active interest in the rich and solacing verdure; we may make a mental note that June sunshine and June clouds are joys to be received with enthusiastic gratitude instead of being accepted merely as a matter of course. Our mental attitude has a great deal to do with our enjoyment of June. Working or loafing, we can, as we choose, make much or little of the year's best month.

Enthusiasm is something that begins to ooze away after the third instalment has been paid.

Sunday School Lesson

(REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean
 Moody Bible Institute of Chicago)
© 1928, Western Newspaper Union

Lesson for June 2LATER EXPERIENCES OF JEREMIAH

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 20:1-6; 27:11-21; 28:1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being True in a Hard Test.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Being True in a Hard Test.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Standing True in Hard Places.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Forms of Modern Persecution.

I. Jeremiah in Stocks (20:1-6).
He had predicted the downfall of Jerusalem because of the disobedience of the people (19:1-14, 15).

Pashur, an officer of the temple, heard him. Pashur gave Jeremiah a cruel beating and placed him in stocks. "Stocks" was an instrument of torture, confining the legs in a cramped position. On being released the next day, Jeremiah predicted the terror which was to be Pashur's portion. His words were literally fulfilled (vv. 4-6).

II. Jeremiah in Prison in Jonathan's House (27:11-21).

He was arrested by Irijah as he was about to leave Jerusalem on an errand. He was charged with deserting to the Chaldeans. While here in prison, King Zedekiah secretly consulted with him and ordered lenient treatment.

III. Jeremiah in the Dungeon (28:1-13).

1. He predicts the capture of Jerusalem (vv. 1-3).

(1) To whom (v. 1)?

Jeremiah had been taken out of the prison by the king (27:17) and ordered to the court of the prison (27:21). Here the people seem to have had free access to him (28:12). From this place of limited confinement Jeremiah announced to the people their approaching captivity.

2. Counsel given (vv. 2, 3).

a. All that remain in the city shall die by the sword, famine and pestilence.

b. He that goeth forth to the Chaldeans shall live. "He shall have his life for a prey," doubtless means that he shall escape with his life, though losing all else.

2. Jeremiah accused by the princes (vv. 4, 5).

(1) He weakened the lips of the men and all the people (v. 4). "A human standpoint what they said was true, but since Jeremiah was but the interpreter of God to the nation, they ought to have heeded his advice to surrender.

(2) This man seeketh not the welfare of this people, but the hurt (v. 4). This charge was utterly false. Jeremiah was the best friend of the people, for he faithfully proclaimed to them God's judgment and advised them how to make the best of their unfortunate situation.

3. The king's cowardly act (v. 5).

The very one whom Jeremiah was trying to help, deserted him. "The king was afraid of the Chaldeans, the princes, Jeremiah, and God."

4. Jeremiah cast into the dungeon (v. 6).

This seems to have been a cistern which had been emptied of its water during the siege, leaving only mire. Into this mire he sank, possibly up to his neck. The purpose was to let Jeremiah die there. In this situation he is a type of Christ (Isa. 53). No one ever suffered more unjustly, save Jesus Christ.

5. Jeremiah rescued from the dungeon (vv. 7-13).

(1) By Ebed-Melech, an African servant (vv. 7-9).

The Jewish prophet, whom his own countrymen tried to destroy, is saved by a Gentile. Though Ebed-Melech had a colored skin, he was the whitest man in Jerusalem. He went to the king and boldly declared that the princes had done evil in imprisoning Jeremiah.

(2) The method (vv. 10-13).

The king yielded to his request and furnished a guard to prevent interference with the work of rescue. He let down soft reeds and worn-out garments by ropes and instructed Jeremiah to put them under his armbands and under the ropes to prevent injury to him as he was being lifted up. He was lifted out of the dungeon and given the freedom of the prison court.

IV. Jeremiah in Egypt (vv. 14-17).

His closing years were spent in Egypt. He was taken there by Johanan, where he continued his ministry. He seems to have been unpopular there. Tradition has it that he was stoned to death by the Jews in Egypt.

Rewards Awaiting

When we land on the bleak shore of disappointment we shall make the wonderful discovery that the Savior has anticipated our coming and has made ample provision. There will be heavenly cordials, and there will be comforts of grace, and there will be the exhilarating wine of a new hope.

SPLINTER CAUSES DEATH

Blood Poisoning Develops After Hickman Man Operates on Self

Memphis, May 27.—Blood poisoning, incurred by extracting a splinter from his hand with a pocket knife, caused the death of Walter Austin Luten, prominent Hickman, Ky., planter at the Baptist Hospital at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Luten ran a small splinter into his hand about a week ago. Last Wednesday his hand began to pain him and he opened it with his knife. Blood poison developed rapidly and Friday afternoon he was taken to the hospital here. Mr. Luten showed slight improvement after treatment at the hospital and it was believed that his hand would not have to be amputated. Saturday night, however, he began to sink rapidly, death following in a few hours.

His wife, Mrs. Marguerite Luten, and brother, Sam Luten, who had accompanied him to Memphis, were at his bedside.

Mr. Luten was a member of one of the oldest families of the Hickman vicinity and one of the most prosperous planters. Besides his wife and brother, Mr. Luten is survived by a two-and-half years old daughter, his mother, Mrs. Louise Luten, a second brother, Willie Luten, and a sister, Mrs. J. T. Milner.

DAIRY FACTS

CARE FOR COWS AFTER CALVING

Because of Her Low Vitality Good Treatment Needed.

The care of the cow after calving depends upon a variety of things. Her vitality is low following parturition and she should be treated accordingly. She should be protected from cold drafts and in cold weather her water should be warmed for two or three days or at least she should not be compelled to drink very cold water. For the first few days the ration should be light in character and not very abundant. A bran mash made by moistening bran with warm water is well adapted for the grain portion with which may be fed such hay as the cow will consume. If the udder is swollen and hard, the grain ration should be increased very slowly, possibly using two weeks before attempting to get the cow on full feed. With heavy milkers it may be well to postpone this even longer. No alarm need be felt if the udder remains inflamed and hard for a number of days, providing milk can be drawn freely from each quarter. It is recommended that if the cow is a good milker she should be milked at least three times daily or oftener until the inflammation leaves the udder.

It is preferable to allow the calf to suck for at least the first twenty-four hours and some allow them to suck for even a longer period than this. With high producing cows liable to have milk fever, it is quite a common practice to milk out a little milk several times a day until danger from this trouble is past. This may be continued for two or three days or until such time as may seem necessary with the individual cow. It is believed advantageous to leave enough milk in the udder to cause considerable pressure during the dangerous period and for this reason only sufficient milk is drawn to relieve the extreme pressure.

After the first two or three days the frequency of milking will depend very largely upon the ability of the cow to produce milk. As a general rule, it is advisable when a cow produces 50 pounds or more a day to milk her more than twice daily. For lower producing cows it is of doubtful advantage to milk oftener than this, at least so far as profit in milk production is concerned. It is estimated that milking cows three times a day instead of twice will increase the production by 12 to 18 per cent, particularly with the better producing animals.

Red and White Holsteins Are Not Very Desirable

Occasionally the offspring of a pure-bred Holstein bull may be red and even when the dams are likewise pure-bred animals of the same breed. When this happens it shows the cows also carry the red color, but it is not seen until mated with a bull that also carries it, then about half the calves will be red and white in place of black and white. Red and white Holsteins are not accepted for registry but are just as good for ordinary use.

As a matter of fact when such animals appear in a Holstein herd they are usually disposed of at once. This red and white color is very interesting from a scientific breeding standpoint and the facts as stated are well understood. Another interesting fact is that if red and white offspring of black and white Holsteins are mated the offspring will be all red and white. The black color is lost forever unless black and white blood is again introduced.

Keep Milking Machines Sanitary at All Times

The milking machine is coming in common use on dairy farms. It is a splendid labor-saving device for milking, but it does require some extra labor to keep it clean and this is apt to be overlooked.

Old-fashioned cream is often traced to unwashed milking machines. It should be remembered that milk is the most fertile ground for the growth of bacteria, and when the milking machine is not kept clean it is very apt to become unsanitary.

The extra labor required to keep the machine clean and sanitary is small in comparison with the amount of labor it saves in milking. It is simply a matter of seeing that it is properly done every day.

Keeping the milking machine in proper condition requires study and care the same as it requires study and care to learn how to run any important piece of machinery. Give it your attention!

Maintaining Cows

The cost of maintaining cows is best shown by example. A dry cow weighing 1,000 pounds, if maintained on corn silage and clover hay, would require daily 20 pounds of silage and eight pounds of clover hay. This does not appear to be much, but a herd of 12 cows of similar weight would require in a year 43.8 tons of silage and 17.5 tons of hay if fed throughout the year on these two roughages. If no more than this were fed there would be very little milk produced.

Business men of Auburn in Logan county, gave a banquet to 150 farmers, at which time a cooperative livestock shipping association was formed.

The Calloway County Junior Agricultural Jersey Calf Club has a membership of approximately 100 boys and girls.

Harrison county farmers are planning to grow sufficient strawberries to supply the Cynthiana market, which uses about $10,000 worth annually.

J. F. Giles, Eugene Stegar and Howard Brame, Christian county farmers, have established herds of purebred Hereford cattle.

The Webster county wool pool is entering its twenty-first consecutive year. The Larue County Golden Hoof Club plans to import 2,000 breeding ewes into the county this year.

CELEBRATE DAIRYING PROGRESS IN BOYLE

The completion of five years of dairy development work in Boyle county recently was celebrated with three community Jersey cattle shows and a luncheon given by the Danville Chamber of Commerce.

The Jersey breeders' section of the county farm bureau, County Agent C. E. Miller, the Chamber of Commerce, railroads, dairy products companies and other agencies have co-operated to make dairying profitable on many Boyle county farms.

There are 6,000 cows, 300 of which are purebred, within a radius of 10 miles of Danville. Five years ago there were 3,000 cows, and only 30 of them were purebred.

Production-bred bulls have been purchased, better feeding encouraged, new markets found, and dairying progress in general stimulated. Junior agricultural clubs have played an important part in interesting not only boys and girls in good dairy cattle, but adult farmers also.

Remunerative prices are being received for milk and butterfat. Sweet cream is commanding a premium of 5 cents a pound over ordinary cream, and is being gathered daily at farmers' doors. Milk prices continue favorable, and the general outlook for dairying in the county is considered good.

Seventy-five purebred animals were exhibited at Parksville, Perryville and Danville. The Danville Chamber of Commerce gave a luncheon to dairy farmers and visitors, among whom were President S. F. Crabbe of the American Jersey Cattle Club of New York; President Perry Gaines of the Kentucky Jersey Cattle Club; President A. B. Sawyer of the Kentucky State Farm Bureau Federation; Secretary Tate Bird of the Kentucky State Fair Board, and farm journal editors, newspaper men, representatives of dairy products companies, county agents and junior club members.

When Lucy Eloped—and How

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright)

"THIS time next week, young lady," concluded George Rowland, father to Lucy, "you and your mother will be headed for Europe. Watch your step!"

Lucy regarded her irate parent apprehensively. "Please may I write to Craig while I'm away, daddy?"

"You may not! If he sends you flowers when you sail, throw them overboard. No daughter of mine shall have anything to do with a son of that man Blakesley. I don't even know the young whippersnapper. Don't want to know him!"

"And that's where the trouble lies!" cried poor Lucy. "If you would only consent to meet Craig, you would discover that, whatever his father may be, Craig himself is an ace!"

There was nothing, however, to be gained by further argument. Either she and Craig must take matters into their own hands and run away or pressure must be brought to bear from some new source. The alternative, giving each other up, was unthinkable.

As soon as a slammed door announced her father's departure, she called Craig on the telephone.

"There is no time to be lost, Craig. Father is about to have me taken to Europe. But first, I've a bit of an idea I would like to try out. You know that I have felt it was not quite loyal of me to let you take me to see your father, knowing how dad feels about him. But I am ready to throw loyalty overboard in a good cause. What is the best hour of the day to hear your parent in his den?"

Evidently Craig gave her whatever data was necessary for precisely at three a slender, far-coated girl was admitted to the inner office of John B. Blakesley and any observer could have seen that there was a scared little look about her eyes.

After all, however, there was nothing remotely terrifying about the very genial man who rose at her entrance. It must be, thought Lucy, that only in his business dealings did he justify her father's opinion.

"So this is Rowland's daughter?" was his greeting. "My boy tells me your father opposes this match. For my part, I consider Craig a darn lucky beggar!"

Lucy dimpled. "I've come to ask you to change your mind about that!" she said demurely.

The two of them talked an hour, while out in the office two of John B.'s prospective customers cooled their heels.

That evening George Rowland was summoned to the telephone.

"Yes—yes—"

"Well—Mr. Blakesley!"

"You're absolutely opposed to—what? To your son having anything to do with my daughter? You want me to—well, of all things!"

"He's coming here tomorrow afternoon to ask her to elope and you want me to throw him out? That's exactly what I had in mind myself! Good night!"

Furiously he turned to his daughter. "There you are!" he shouted. "Your—your young man's father doesn't want you in his family any more than I want him in mine. Now, where's your pride?"

But Lucy avoided a direct reply. Instead, "What was the trouble between you two?" she asked. "I never knew exactly."

"He trimmed me good and plenty in the market," said Rowland shortly, "using information that I had given him as a friend."

"How—how unlike him!" murmured Lucy thoughtfully.

"That's all you know about it," said her father, but her words were true. At least, it had been unlike the man he had always supposed Blakesley to be.

The following afternoon Lucy, waiting for Craig in the library, saw her father drive up and come up the steps. So he was going to be there to throw Craig out! Well, at least he would be able to see what a splendid young man he was first! But she hoped she hadn't carried things a bit too far.

"Waiting for that son of Blakesley's?" demanded her father. Then, at Lucy's nod, "I'll wait, too," he said curtly, and threw himself into one of the big leather chairs.

The familiar roll of Craig's sport roadster brought her heart to her throat. A second later he stood on the threshold looking from one to the other.

Rowland rose slowly, with a keen glance at Craig. "Your father tells me you are planning to elope with my daughter," he said quietly. "Very well—I took passage for Lucy and her mother on the Homeric. I am thinking of cancelling it for a later date and letting the two of you go for a honeymoon!"

Then, drawing Lucy into his left arm and extending his right hand to Craig, "I know enough to acknowledge when I have been wrong," he said. "I got under my skin when I thought your father was opposed to my girl here and I went straight round this morning to see him about it. In the course of conversation, I learned that your father had never gotten the information I sent him. He showed me proofs of his having been up in the Adirondacks, beyond even the reach of a telegram. So—I apologize and—well, bless you, my children!"

MR. ROOSTER IS A POOR ASSET

Public Demands Infertile Eggs, Culling Advised During Hot Months

Roosters have nothing to do with egg production.

They are worthless loafers during the summer months, when egg production is low. They gobble up a lot of feed and do nothing—but lower the quality of eggs. A fertile egg begins a decaying process the moment it is laid. This process is speeded up during the hot months. Farmers in the United States lose millions of dollars annually through fertile eggs.

The public is discriminating about its breakfast egg. And you can't blame it.

A widely known poultry specialist, C. F. Parish, of North Carolina, says: "As first produced, eggs are about as nearly a perfect food product as one can find. If the hen is properly fed, the nest clean, and the eggs gathered twice each day in hot weather and stored in a cool, clean place until delivery to the consumer, the market will pay the top price. If roosters are allowed to run with the flock after the hatching season is over; if the hens are not well fed; if the nests are dirty and the eggs gathered 'occasionally,' and kept in a poorly ventilated, warm room, the consumer feels like ordering a gas mask along with his eggs."

Mr. Parrish insists that bad eggs are not accidents. They result from laziness, neglect, and poor management. It is just as easy, he says, to produce high quality, infertile eggs as it is to offend the customers with stale, fertile, low quality eggs.

Get rid of that rooster. If he is a good bird for breeding, segregate him from the layers during the "off" season.
