THE LISTENING POST

One of the oddest fashions or styles which I have observed in many years is the widespread use of ear muffs by the boys of high school age. I have no objection to the style, understand, and perhaps these ear muffs have some practical use on extremely cold days. As a matter of fact, however, I have grave doubts that we have had any days this winter which were cold enough to create a real need for ear muffs. Perhaps one or two days have been cold enough to cause them to be needed, but the boys have been wearing them right along—even on days when the temperature was around fifty degrees. So I am forced to the conclusion that they are worn as a sort of badge of up-to-date style.

It simply proves that when a boy wants to do a certain thing—and he will want to do that thing if other boys do the same thing—it is entirely different to doing something that his parents want him to do. For I remember my period of ear muffs with extreme distaste. My parents wanted me to wear ear muffs and I thought it was the badge of a sissy. Few others wore them; therefore I wished to have nothing to do with them. I spent many bitter moments thinking of this indignity and therefore the widespread use of the things is more or less amazing to me.

When I was a lad, and for several years after reaching manhood, I suffered with a more or less chronic ear trouble. I had terrible earaches, even after I thought I was grown, and curiously, all these earaches, ceased after I began using tobacco. I have never claimed that smoking had anything to do with this; I only know that I never had an earache after I started smoking at the age of twenty-one. Previous to that time I was likely to wake up any time at night with a fearful earache, and many times I have spent an entire night trying to obtain relief.

I know, of course, that my parents had as much trouble as I did, for they were kept up many nights when I was a child with those recurrent attacks. They did not suffer the pain I did, but they lost fully as much sleep, and naturally they had ideas about preventing them. So one day my father came home with a pair of earmuffs. I remember they were made of plush, the color being black, and I seem to remember they were much larger than the ones I see today.

It was a fearful cold winter; probably the terrible winter of 1898, and I had suffered many earaches during that winter. Night after night I suffered, and night after night my parents ministered to me. So father had an idea that if I wore those earmuffs when outside it might prevent some of the trouble. The days were all of zero sort—I remember that distinctly—all winter long. As a matter of fact, I almost froze when I stayed out of doors those days, and my ears frequently suffered tremendously. But when I looked at those black earmuffs and thought of what Porter and Louis and Herman and Harry and all the other boys might say, my soul quailed. I could not see myself appearing on the school grounds with those accursed earmuffs making me look like a human beaver; I knew that a loud and ribald shout would arise which would leave me shamed and from which I might never recover.

Would Buy Investments In America

Empire May Gain Almost Billion To Spend On Arms

Washington.—One of the largest lump transfers of American property in history was indicated today in an announcement by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau that American investment trusts were negotiating for the purchase of the United Kingdom's "direct" investments in the United States.

A few minutes before making the disclosure at a press conference, the secretary said Sir Frederick Phillips, undersecretary of the British treasury "informed me they (the British government) are ready to do business." The proceeds, the secretary said, will be used to pay for war purchases before the lease-lending plan takes effect.

Assets Near Billion Morgenthau said he was unable to estimate the amount of property involved but a recent Federal Reserve Board estimate of these assets was $850,000,000.

Thus it was indicated that the contemplated deal, while it might be huge, would cover only a part of the total British investments in this country, which have been estimated variously at from $4,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 or even more.

"Direct" investments were understood to comprise land, factories, etc., directly owned by British citizens but not readily negotiable on the public markets. In addition to the possible sale of these investments, the British have been selling readily disposable securities in a comparatively small but steady stream.

Many Demand Sales Some legislators have demanded that Britain dispose of all her assets before seeking loans. Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), said today that he had been advised by Harry L. Hopkins last summer that British assets here aggregated $14,000,000,000 then. Wheeler said these assets now total at least $7,000,000,000 and added that Britain should exhaust her credit before asking any "loans, leased equipment or gifts."

Gov.-Elect Talmadge Of Georgia Says Budget Balancing Is Easy

Atlanta.—Blackhaired Eugene Talmadge, about to take office his third term as Georgia's Governor, after a four-year interlude, optimistically dismisses government financial problems with this statement.

"I can balance any budget in the world in the time it takes to get downstairs in an elevator.

"A budget ain't a thing with me but 'don't spend any more than you got.'"

Promises "Pay Cuts"

He will take over the administration Tuesday—after four years of Gov. E. D. Rivers' "Little New Deal"—at a time when state departments have been estimated variously to be "in the red" from $3,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Talmadge flaunts his red suspenders less conspicuously than in the past, but denounces "high salaries" and "useless employees" as vigorously as ever. The regularity with which he insists "there'll be some pay-cutting" is disconcerting to some 8,000 State jobholders.

Finance Company Reelects Officers After Good Year

The West Kentucky Finance Company held its annual meeting at the company offices on Lake street last night and re-elected the former board of directors and officers for the coming year. The directors are as follows:

Ira W. Little, Arch Huddleston, N. G. Cooke, R. H. Wade, L. J. Clements, Hoyt Moore and W. S. Atkins. Following the election of directors the new board named the following officers: Ira Little, president, Arch Huddleston, vice president, N. G. Cooke, treasurer, Smith Atkins general manager and secretary, and J. M. Martin, assistant secretary.

The financial report for the year of 1940 revealed that substantial gains had been made over the previous year, and an eight per cent dividend had been declared at the December meeting and paid. After payment of the dividend, amounting to $9,996, the surplus showed an increase of slightly more than $2,000 over last year, now standing at $16,311.09.

During last year total loans were made of $479,246. Capital stock now outstanding is $124,950. Officials of the organization feel that the coming year should prove profitable, despite the fact that the tax load is steadily increasing.

American Steel Makers Expect To Spend Largely For Expansion

Cleveland.—War's insatiable hunger for steel has started the grimy faced strong boy of the machine age industry off on another cycle of growth.

American steel makers, possessors of the greatest productive capacity on earth, are expected to spend at least $250,000,000 in 1941 improving and enlarging primary facilities to handle U. S. defense needs and British war orders.

Uncle Sam's $3,000,000 tons of steel capacity, estimated to outweigh the combined facilities of continental Europe, might prove a decisive factor in a long war.

Multiplied During World War Out of steel basically must be forged the weapons of modern war—battleships, tanks, gains, munitions, merchant ships, mechanized transport.

In the World War before military mechanization had advanced as far as it has today, steel mills multiplied and expanded. The United States increased its capacity more than one-fourth adding about 14,000,000 tons.

New Books To Be Added To F. H. S. Library

Sixty new books are ready to be released in the Fulton High school library, according to Mrs. Hugh Pigue, librarian. These books will be put in the library at the beginning of the second semester, Monday, January 20.

Fulton High school's library now compares favorably with any high school library in Western Kentucky, and with the addition of the 60 new volumes the library will have approximately 2,000 volumes.

Recent additions to the library have been a new set of "The World Book" and "American Encyclopedia." In the past five years the library has had remarkable growth and students are showing a great deal more interest. Over 100 fiction books were checked out during the holiday period.

Finland Faces Famine Soon, Minister Says

Helsinki, Finland.—Minister of Supply Valno Kotilainen today told American correspondents that Finland faces famine by next summer unless food shipments from the United States are received to augment the nation's grain stocks, down to a four-month supply.

The Minister said Finland could be aided by $7,000,000 worth of food sought in the United States, but that the Government's request for a loan in that amount, as suggested by the American Minister of Finland, had been rejected by the United States.

Kotilainen expressed amazement at this action.

"Surely the Finns proved their good faith in paying their (war) debts," he said. He attributed Washington's refusal to "malicious reports abroad" to the effect that Finland exports food to Germany.

Local Girl's Picture Appears In Magazine

A picture of Marjorie Kelton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kelton of this city, appears in the current issue of "Modern Screen." Miss Kelton, who went to California three months ago, is now employed as a model for I. Magnin, one of the leading stores in Los Angeles.

Miss Kelton, who graduated from Fulton High school in 1940, was one of the most popular students here. She was a twirler in the Fulton High band and her unusual beauty added a great deal to the band. Several weeks ago in Los Angeles, she led the band of the University of Southern California in a parade, when the drum major was unable to be present due to injuries received in an automobile accident. This was quite an honor for Miss Kelton.

Her picture has appeared in several of the leading papers and magazines in the West. Her many friends will be pleased to learn of her success in her chosen field.

Jackson Urges Public Defenders For U. S. Courts

Washington.—Attorney General Jackson renewed Monday his request to Congress to create a system of public defenders for Federal district courts.

In a letter to Speaker Rayburn, Jackson said the present practice of having indigent defendants represented by assigned attorneys acting without pay "is frequently unjust to the defendant and unfair to members of the bar" and "occasionally result in an inadequate presentation of the defendant's rights."

He proposed legislation to authorize each district judge to appoint one or more public defenders for each place at which terms of court are held, the defenders to be compensated "on a modest fee basis."

Beloved Woman Passes Away At Son's Home Today

Just as the shades of night were drawing aside for the entrance of a brilliant sun, the life of a beloved woman, Mrs. Charlie G. Fields, ended at the home of her son, Roy Fields, on Central Avenue, this morning. Mrs. Fields had been ill for a number of years and had been devotedly cared for by her son and his wife. All that medical assistance could do, with tender care and constant nursing seemed to fail in restoring her to normal health.

Patient, hopeful and cheerful to the last hours of her passing was a characteristic noticeable to her loved ones and friends. Mrs. Fields endeavored herself to a large circle of friends by a thoughtfulness often coveted. Her loving deeds to the distressed and sick were outstanding. She was a great lover of flowers of which she raised many and rare ones, which truly she believed in giving to the living. She always shared generously her happiness and was a devoted and loving wife and mother. For many years she has been a consistent and faithful member of the First Methodist church in Fulton.

Mrs. Fields was before her marriage Mattie Blanche McGehee, born March 3, 1864 on the McGehee estate near Cayce, Ky. On April 6, 1887, she was married to the late Charlie G. Fields who passed away October 12, 1934. Three sons blessed this union, one dying in infancy. The surviving sons are Guy L. Fields, residing in Jackson, Miss., and Roy Fields of Fulton Kentucky. One brother survives, John R. McGehee, of Fulton. The surviving sisters are Mrs. Cornelius Hankins of Nashville, Tenn., Miss Lena McGehee of Cincinnati, Ohio; one granddaughter, formerly Miss Marjorie Kelton, now Mrs. E. L. McGehee of Meridian, Miss.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from Hornbeak Funeral Home, conducted by the Rev. Loyd O. Hartman, Methodist minister, assisted by the Rev. E. R. Ladd, minister of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. Interment will be at Palestine. The body will remain at the funeral home until time for services.

Active pallbearers will be C. C. Parker, W. E. Bell, F. M. Branch, Jake Huddleston, Abe Jolley and Max Cummings. Honorary pallbearers named are John Bowers, J. H. Cavender, Smith Atkins, A. G. Baldrige, Hunter Whitesell, Jack Parker, R. A. Stille, Lawson Roper, Roper Fields, Vodie Hardin, Lee B. Rucker, Dr. Ward Bushart, T. J. Travis and J. J. Owen.

Negro Is Arrested Here For Stealing

Ezekiel Lee, 29-year-old negro, of Childersburg, Ala., was arrested yesterday afternoon by local police and charged with breaking into a box car of the Illinois Central railroad, and stealing a quantity of chewing gum.

He will be given a preliminary hearing this afternoon before Judge Lon Adams on a charge of stealing from a common carrier.

Two Toxoids Are Combined Into A Single Vaccine Against Diphtheria

San Francisco.—Lasting immunity against both diphtheria and lockjaw now can be built up through injections of a single substance, the pediatric department of the University of California Medical School reports.

Toxoids of both diseases have been mixed together and used successfully for the first time on more than 400 children and on members of the medical school staff, the department said.

The administration of these toxoids separately is not new, but the combination is a forward step because three injections of a single substance now can give protection against two separate diseases hazards at no more cost or inconvenience than formerly was involved in administering either.

Public May Benefit

Another outgrowth of this research is the prospect that the toxoid which confers a more or less permanent protection against lockjaw or tetanus will be made available to the general public.

At present the common treatment for lockjaw is an injection of anti-tetanus, which is given only as an emergency measure because it produces only a temporary barrier to the spread of tetanus toxin in the body. The toxoid, which can be given at any time, causes the production of up a long-lasting defense against the disease.

Time Limit On Lend Bill Recommended

Changes Influenced By Willkie Offered By House Members

Washington.—Amendments to the British aid bill reflecting in part at least the ideas of Wendell L. Willkie, were introduced in the House today soon after administration leaders had expressed a willingness to accept some restrictions on the powers the measures would give President Roosevelt.

After talking with the defeated Republican Presidential nominee by telephone, Representative Simpson (R-N. Y.), proposed that the bill's grant of authority be limited to two years and that the legislation name specifically the nations which this country is to assist with loans of war equipment.

Simpson, a new member of the House but long prominent in national Republican affairs, said he had talked with Willkie before presenting his proposals but did not wish to commit the titular party leader to them. However, in announcing his general approval of the British aid bill yesterday, Willkie asked that a time limit be included.

British Seek Cash Meanwhile Secretary Morgenthau disclosed that the British government, in order to get dollars to finance the war, was negotiating with American investment trusts for the sale of an undisclosed amount of British investments in the United States.

While the British aid bill, as introduced by administration leaders would present the President to lend or otherwise furnish military defense of the United States, Simpson's amendment would authorize help only to England, Ireland and members of the British commonwealth of nations.

Before assisting any other nation, he explained, Mr. Roosevelt would have to come back to Congress for special authorization.

Earlier, Speaker Rayburn said he had no opposition to a time limit if it covered the foreseeable extent of the emergency. A sixty or ninety-day restriction, he indicated, hardly would do.

IT SEEMS A PITY

This week formal debate will begin on the proposed Lease-Lend Bill, under which it is planned to furnish Great Britain with all-out assistance in her conflict against Nazi Germany. Administration spokesmen, as well as President Roosevelt, claim that this bill is urgently needed to enable England to keep on with her war; opponents of the bill in both parties, particularly Senator Wheeler, claim that the bill is in effect a declaration of war against Germany and an abdication of Congress in favor of the President. Somewhere between those two claims lies the real truth.

It seems a pity, when now as never before we need national unity, that such utterly divergent views should exist. It seems that some plan could have been devised in committee that would have met the views of all parties concerned, and then the plan could have been passed without any bitter debate. Bitter debate now will cut two ways. First it will strengthen the hand of Adolf Hitler as he sees apparent bitter division in the United States, when he should be made aware of a united nation that is firmly set against him and his ways. Second, it will delay the passage of possible needed legislation which should be passed at once. The time has passed, long since, when we should merely talk about giving aid to Britain. Right now, and from this time on, our stream of munitions to England should move across the seas in steadily increasing column. Without this increasing flood England is going to be beaten. The war torn islands cannot continue to stand many more months under the savage attacks that are being made day and night. Right now, if the British air force could begin to equal the damage being done to British cities on German cities, it would be the greatest encouragement to the British people who are seeing their nation torn to pieces in a systematic way. If those people could wake up some morning and be given the assurance that Berlin had really been pulverized as London has been many times, they would take new hope. That is a curious thing, but it is human nature. Destruction of Berlin might not be of great military value, but it would be the greatest encouragement to Britishers that could be given.

That time will never come until American planes, in ever increasing fleets, are placed in British service. The British have done a magnificent job in continuing their production of planes, but it is impossible for them to ever gain a decisive edge until the production capacity of this nation really begins to be used. Perhaps we have been of great help, but the fact remains that British production of planes, even under the stress of war and bombing, is still greater than our own production. We have not even started to use our real capacity; we have been talking, talking, while Britain was being systematically shattered.

All of us know that we have the capacity to tip the scales in Britain's favor. If there is still time we can so bolster the British air fleet that it can not only defend its own cities, but can sow the seeds of destruction on all parts of the Reich. Whether sufficient time remains is an open question.

There is not time, however, for another year of talking about what

CONSERVATION IS FOR ALL KINDS OF LIFE

Political plums probably are the specialty of the Kentucky Conservation Department. Major Brown may have been as relieved to shake the dust of the Game and Fish Division as Dr. Wilson was to get out of the Welfare Department. The "damnedest" characteristic of Kentucky politics is its pretense of being something else.

All this granted, letters to The Point of View concerning the scarcity of fish and game and excess of highway accidents reveal the same disposition on the part of otherwise respectable citizens to violate either the spirit or the letter of fishing, hunting and traffic regulations.

An eminent biological adviser to Game and Fish Commissions has called attention to the fact that the average sportsman isn't satisfied with a mess of fish or a few birds. He wants the "bag limit" regardless of his needs. There is a legal limit to the "catch"; but there is a natural limit to the supply. Neither game nor fish will ever be as plentiful again as both were before the country was settled. Too many sportsmen, perhaps, think only of slaughter and leave conservation entirely to the authorities. Middle ground between these antithetical aims as a basis for co-operation is hard to reach for the best intentions.

On the other hand, complaint is heard that some individuals shoot and buy a winter's supply of birds to keep on ice. There are closed season and market hunters. Fish are seined and dynamited.

But Indiana, we are told, has well stocked fields and streams. Indiana also has fine parks and highways. Government is pretty much of a pattern. An Administration whose innate self-respect demands a good showing in one quarter is apt to be particular about everything.

In 25 years Kentucky has ceased even trying to enforce the dog law for the benefit of the sheep industry. Can sportsmen expect a government to take more interest in protecting wild life than it takes in protecting domestic livestock?—Courier-Journal.

we are going to do. We have already had sufficient conversation, and what we should be doing now is working steadily, twenty-four hours per day and seven days a week, with but a single purpose in our minds—the utter defeat of Hitler. Those who propose to debate the Lease-Lend Bill this week should remember this fact. Perhaps the bill does have some bad elements. Perhaps it should be amended. This writer confesses to having little knowledge of its provisions or its implications. We only know that the decisive hour is at hand, and we must strike a blow for democracy and for freedom, or see a terrible danger arising before us before many months.

Training For Defense

By Rufus T. Strohm

Dean, International Correspondence Schools

SKILLED man power is needed to put national defense plans in operation. New jobs are being created faster than they can be filled. It takes time, much time, for a man to learn the work of a skilled mechanic or electrician. You can't educate men overnight, no matter how good the instructors.

These are facts of the greatest importance to industry. The War Department, under the National Defense Act of 1916, has surveyed 20,000 manufacturing plants to ascertain what equipment they can produce in case of war. More than 10,000 of these have been earmarked as being available for carrying out one or another phase of defense production when needed. The plants cannot be put to work making weapons and equipment overnight. Machine tools must be designed and made, the mechanism of production must, in many instances, be rearranged and adapted to different uses.

The problem of national defense, therefore, is one of men and machines. The men must be highly trained, and the machines must be fashioned for special jobs. The problem is so important and so complicated that we cannot afford to have any illusions about it. We cannot afford to overestimate or to underestimate our ability to do it. The job will be done, but it requires cool, earnest, realistic, and intelligent effort, with a full understanding of what is to be done and how to do it.

Flier's Police Dog
Cashes $50 Check
At Maine Bank

Norway, Maine.—The dog trotted down the street, turned in at Norway's Savings Bank, and placed his paws on the cashier's window. Teller Clayton Heath knew just what to do.

He made out a Christmas club savings check for $50.63 payable to the 3-year-old dog, whose owner, Capt. Harry Lyon, piloted the plane "Southern Cross" on its trans-oceanic flight. The police dog placed an ink-wetted paw on the check, Capt. Lyon endorsed it "Peter Yon, his mark," and the check was handed over to the dog.

Capt. Lyon started the fund a year ago, "just to watch it grow."

Threatened
Plane Factory
Strike Settled

New York.—Settlement of a threatened strike of 200 workers in the Ranger Aircraft Engineering division of the Fairchild Airplane and Engine Corporation at Farmingdale, N. Y., was announced today by John R. Owens, labor relations assistant of the National Defense Commission.

The strike originally had been called for Thursday, but a postponement until Monday was won just before the deadline. The plant has $7,750,000 worth of Government orders.

The settlement terms will be submitted to the workers for ratification today.

Complete terms of the agreement were withheld pending ratification by the union, but Owens said the contract as approved calls for a 5 per cent wage increase for all employees.

German Papers
Withhold News Of Britain Bill

Berlin.—With one brief exception, the German press Saturday withheld from its readers any mention of the proposed new United States law to give the President broadened authority to lend aid to Britain.

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung published a brief description of that part of the bill which would permit warships of belligerents designated by the President to be repaired in the United States shipyards.

Dients Aus Deutschland, well informed special press service not for public circulation, called attention to the 1907 Hague convention under which neutrals were to refuse belligerents warships the right to be repaired in neutral harbors beyond the necessities for reaching a home port.

Piano Stages 1940 Comeback In Home Favor

New York.—Fatter consumer pocketbooks in 1940 pushed the year's piano sales to the highest level since 1927, according to the National Piano Manufacturers' Association.

Piano shipments for the year totaled 136,322 instruments, a rise of 19.5 per cent over 1939 and 12.8 per cent over 1929. December, 1940, ended with unfilled orders for 5-

042 pianos, an increase of 57.7 per cent over the like 1939 date.

About 80 per cent of the pianos produced last year were the small console type.

"The piano has returned to its old place of prestige in the home," said the association. "Only a few years ago the piano appeared to be on its way out. Now manufacturers are hard pressed to fill orders for dealers."

Woman Dreams Of Bankroll And Finds One

Pittsburgh.—Ida Randall dreamed someone handed her three-one-dollar bills and the next night had a vision of holding a whole bankroll in her hands.

Two days later she went to the basement of her home hunting an old picture of herself.

"Something, I don't know what it was, made me tear out lining of a trunk my father used for camping trips before his death," she said. "I started to throw the lining and a newspaper which was behind it into the furnace. Then I saw a roll of bills $200 in musty old national bank notes."

ONE AMERICAN IN WAR REGION WANTS TO STAY

Washington.—There is at least one American who apparently does not want to come home from the war zone.

The Foreign Service Journal, issued today, revealed his story in a letter received by the State Department.

The letter said: "Perhaps you can advise me in a very personal matter. I have a young brother, an American citizen resident for some years in England, who flatly refuses to return. First, because he was sick; then, because he fell in love; then, because he was getting married; now because a bomb fell on his mother-in-law. What can I do to persuade

Training For Defense

By Rufus T. Strohm

Dean, International Correspondence Schools

At this moment, we in the United States have a 14 billion dollar job confronting us. It is the job created by the money which has been appropriated for a national defense program. It is a stupendous undertaking, one which may well decide the future of our civilization.

Vast quantities of materials and supplies must be assembled to build ships, tanks, airplanes, guns; to maintain the fighting men who man our first line of defense; to equip the one or two million men who make up a "protective mobilization force." There are new plants to be erected, machinery to be built and installed, and skilled men to be developed.

The United States has virtually all the essentials needed—the money, the natural resources, the man power, and the industrial leadership.

Only one thing is lacking—a sufficient number of trained men. This problem can and will be solved, but it is one that will make our defense program slow up in spots. Although much has been done by some industrial groups to provide for a sufficient force of skilled workmen, others have been slow in establishing an apprentice training plan.

The skilled mechanic never had a greater opportunity to serve his country and himself.

STATE FARMER HELD AS DRAFT DODGER

Owensboro, Ky.—Deputy United States Marshal O. A. Denton, Owensboro, said a 240-pound six-foot farmer listed as William Newcomb, 34, was arrested yesterday at his home, Livermore, on a charge of failure to register under the Selective Service Act.

Denton said Newcomb had served nine months in the Army.

He was arraigned before the U. S. Commissioner at Leitchfield, and held in $1,000 bond.

adamant. I was to wear those cursed things at all times when I was out of doors, and so with heavy heart, I set out for school with them over my ears. Truth compels me to admit that they were pretty comfortable that cold morning, but ah, me, I needed no earmuff when the boys saw me on that cold school yard that morning. It was worse then I had anticipated, and my ears began to burn under their plush covering. Some of the boys pointedly called me a sissy; others inquired who the little girl might be. It was terrible; probably as difficult a period as I ever lived through. I pondered over the problem all that morning in school, and I did not use the earmuffs during recess. Going home at noon I came to a sudden resolution. I removed the hated earmuffs and thrust them into the deepest snow-drift I could find. Fortunately at the noon meal the family made no inquiry about them. That night, without actually saying so, I left the inference they had been lost, and this was the common fate of many things I had. Mercifully, no more were bought and so I gradually lived down the memory of that dreadful morning and in a week or so the boys ceased referring to it.

So now it seems odd that boys willingly and gladly wear the things which practically wrecked my life one time.
