WILD PIGEONS NOW EXTINCT.

Wild pigeons formerly went in such flocks through this country as to darken their flight the very heavens. It is now practically established that of these countless numbers there is but one survivor, a female bird 18 years old, in captivity at the zoo in Cincinnati. Rewards aggregating several thousand dollars have been offered first and last for a single specimen, other than the one at Cincinnati, but there have been no takers.

These birds formerly come in to this country to roost in flocks of many thousands. The famous pigeon roost section of this country, just west of Murray, is today the richest section of the country by virtue of their coming here. At the time they were so numerous hunters killed them by the hundreds. Every conceivable character of gun was used in their slaughter, the army musket loaded with shot and one year a small canon was employed to destroy the birds. Hunters came here from every section of the union and the birds were killed and shipped to the markets where they afforded cheap and at the same time wholesome food for the poor. The trees in the section where they roosted were almost completely destroyed, the birds lighting on the branches in such numbers as to break the limbs from the trees. Hundreds were killed with clubs and sticks by torch light at night and many were destroyed when the over laden branches on which they were roosting gave way. The birds always arrived here at about the same hour every day and they came from remote sections where they secured their food. As a result of their frequent visits large numbers of holly bushes are now to be found in the section where they roosted. It is said that the birds fed below Nashville, Tenn., and returned here each night to roost. Hundreds of our citizens remember the time of their coming into this section in such great numbers and pigeon pie, fried pigeon and roast pigeon was for many years a tempting delicacy of the people of this country.

BERGER INTRODUCES HIS OLD AGE PENSION BILL.

Washington, July 31.—Every person in the United States, 60 years of age or older, who has been a citizen sixteen years, who has an income of less than $6 a week and who has not been convicted of a felony, would be put on the pension roll of the United States if Congress passes a bill introduced today by Representative Berger, of Wisconsin, who constitute the Socialist party in the House. The bill would give pensions of from $1 to $35 a week. Mr. Berger offered a joint resolution providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the old-age pension question.

"The old working men and women are entitled to a living outside of the poorhouse and without aid of private charity," said Mr. Berger in discussing the bill. "If the old parties and the Supreme Court do not realize that fact, they will be wiped out of existence, together with the old Constitution."

ASSOCIATION TO HOLD FOUR AUGUST PICNICS.

At the last regular meeting of the county committee of the tobacco association date and places were definitely settled upon for holding four big picnics and speakings for the county this year, at which time strenuous efforts will be made to pledge the entire crop of Calloway tobacco to the Planters Protective Association for sale this year.

The first meeting will be at Lynn Grove, Wednesday, August 23. The second at Hazel the 24; third at Cherry the 25th and the last at Almo 26th. Capt. W. J. Stone, Felix G. Ewing, and a number of well known association men will be present at the meetings. The Almo band has been secured to furnish music at each meeting. Other details are now being arranged and it is hoped that the largest gatherings in the history of the county will result from the efforts put forth.

The success of the association the past several years should convince any thinking person that without its influence in the dark tobacco belt the present splendid prices for tobacco could not be maintained. Every grower should become a member of the organization. It has been the salvation of the farmers of this district and has put more dollars in circulation than any other organization ever effected in the state. Bear in mind the dates of these picnics, fix up a basket of dinner and come spend the day with your neighbor and pledge your tobacco.

COMBINED AGE IS 169 YEARS.

The children, grand children, great grand children, neighbors and friends of Uncle Reubin Rowland, one of the county's oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, who makes his home with his son, Robert Rowland, of the Martin's Chapel neighborhood, gathered at the home of the venerable citizen last Friday to observe his 87th birthday. It was in the nature of a surprise and when the children and neighbors came with baskets filled with the good things to eat in such abundance the aged people could not conceal their happiness and pleasure, and tears that evidenced their feelings coursed down their furrowed cheeks. Exactly 87 persons partook of the feast that was spread in the shade of the old walnut tree in the yard. The table was about 50 feet long and it was loaded to its fullest capacity. There was chicken piled knee deep, ham, mutton and pork everywhere, vegetables in abundance, and pies, my, my. One story, two story, three story, in fact piles of pies and high enough to hide a mule behind. Cakes, they were there of every kind, color and description. Ice cream, pickles—we give it up. There would be but one way we know of just now of finding out just what all there was to eat, and that would be to ask Boaz Gibbs or Bro. Mack Pool. Boaz started at one end of the long table while Bro. Pool started at the other. They met about half way and after looking at each other for a few brief seconds continued on their way until they fairly ate their way from end to end of the long table. It was a happy day and happily spent by all. After dinner had been served Bro. Pool preached to the crowd and then followed a happy re-union and handshaking that brought tears to every eye. It was good to be there and the editor of the Ledger rejoices that he was one of the privileged guests, and for three days after we stood in water ankle deep trying to cure a bad case of founder.

Those who were 70 years of age and above were Reubin Rowland 87; Mrs. Rowland 82; Mr. Doss Rowland, Mrs. Alice Booker and Rev. Mac Pool. Those present and over 50 years of age were W. C. Scruggs, J. R. Whitnel, W. I. Adams, C. W. Guthrie, A. W. Sweatt, L. W. Rowland, R. M. Rowland, Mrs. Susan Gordon, Mrs. Mary Dunn, Mrs. Bettie Adams, Mrs. Arcada Scruggs, Mrs. Fannie Guthrie, Mrs. Annie Sweatt, Mrs. John Howlett.

The pleasure evidenced by every one of the big gathering was good to see. It makes the human family better, it wipes out at least for the time being the worry and strife of life and gives us all a glimpse of the better and brighter things and makes the struggle from the cradle to the grave a happier burden for the time being. The editor of the Ledger joins in wishing for Mr. Rowland many happy returns and hopes to see him live and enjoy the hospitality of his children and neighbors yet many years.

There was great alarm among the 83 men indicted as members of the steel wire trust when it was learned company, Trenton, N. J., and several of his associates, would plead nolo contendere, virtually admitting their guilt. They hope for a fine, instead of imprisonment.

Frankfort.—The cylinder head of big engine in penitentiary blew out but no one was seriously hurt. The cylinder head shattered itself against the stone foundation of the boiler for the other engine, and did no damage to the building. It will take several days to repair the damage, but the auxiliary engines will probably be able to keep the machinery in all the shops going until the repairs are completed.

One of the convicts who worked about the engine room was in the room at the time of the explosion and breathed some of the escaping steam.
For a time it was thought that he was seriously affected by it, but he revived in a few minutes.

New Military Company

The new Frankfort military company was formally mustered in by Major C. W. Longmire, with a full tain and his experience should make him one of the best equipped captains in the state guard. Jas. M. Pulliam was elected first lieutenant and John Wright second lieutenant.

Licking, Too, Will Be Improved.

The committee of Newport citizens, appointed by Mayor Krieger and the Newport commercial associations, met this morning to discuss the proposed companied by Congressman Arthur Rouse, of the Sixth district, who is making the Licking navigable. The committee assured the delegates that they were in favor of the improvement, and that they would make a recommenda-

There are 65 pieces in the band, which is under the leadership of Lieut.
William H. Sandeman. The opening concert will be given Sunday night, August 6, and each day and each evening thereafter, throughout the week of the fair, the band will furnish music at the grounds.

On Monday afternoon, August 7, Miss Ada Meade, the prima donna, whose home was originally in Lexington, where she is connected with the most prominent families of Kentucky, has consented to sing with the band.

Changed Dates Suggested.

Gov. Augustus E. Wilson has written to President Taft suggesting that he come to Kentucky the day after the election to dedicate the Lincoln Memorial hall at Hodgenville, and the Lincoln statue at Frankfort. He wrote the president that he supposed Mr.
Taft would be in Cincinnati on election day and perhaps would prefer to come to Kentucky the day after, so as to avoid a trip from Washington. The first dates the governor thought of were November 8 and 10, instead of 15 and 16, as on those days the chances are that the weather will not be good, but on consideration he decided to suggest the earlier date, just after the rest with the president and the time will be fixed to suit his convenience.

Gov. Wilson plans to have the president come to Frankfort the morning of November 8, reaching here at 9:15 o'clock. He will take breakfast with the governor and will be accompanied by the Lincoln monument, probably about noon. Gov. Wilson plans to have a special train take the president to Louisville in the afternoon, at a convenient time that suits Mr. Taft.

A reception in Louisville on the evening of November 8 is planned if it meets with Mr. Taft's approval. The following morning the party would go back to Louisville and on to Washington in the afternoon.

Crowds at Capitol.

Eight hundred men, women and children came to Frankfort in one day to see the capitol and other points of interest. They were from Eminence and gave the Third regiment only a curs-

Rate Complaint.

A complaint was filed with the state railroad commission by the Ohio Valley Ry. Co. against the Louisville and Nashville Ry. Co. and the Cincinnati and Great Miami Ry. Co.
The complaint says the railroad company has collected $940.38 more than it is entitled to as freight on shipments on ties. A hearing will be given in the matter on the first Wednesday in September.

CLAIMS DISCOVERY OF PERPETUAL MOTION.

Noel Hodges claims his perpetual motion motor has been running eight months, without any means of propulsion outside of the power the machine itself generates. He claims it will produce power enough to run an electric fan or small dynamo and he says he has refused $50,000 for his invention. It consists of a wheel with steel balls at the end of rods on one side of the wheel, the weight of these being enough Mr. Hodges says, to drive the wheel around.

HARMONY OF SIXTY-FIVE PIECES.

Crack United States Marine Band Plays First Away from Home at Blue Grass Fair, Lexington.

Lexington.—The most notable musical event in the history of Central Kentucky, within recent years, will be the appearance of the famous United States Marine band, from Washington City at the Blue Grass fair to be held at Lexington the week of August 10 to 12.

This will mark the first appearance of the marine band upon the grounds of any fair association in any section of the country. It comes to Lexington as the result of three years' work upon the part of the management of the Blue Grass fair and is due primarily to the fact that Hon. Champ Clark, speaker of the house of representatives, used his personal influence to bring about the fair officials.

In order to permit the band to come, special dispensation had to be granted by the president of the United States and by the secretary of the navy.

There is no other musical organization in this country, probably none other abroad, which has so wide a reputation as has the marine band. It is known as probably the best band ever organized and has for a great many years been a source of pride to the navy. It is coming to Lexington in being hailed with delight by the management of the fair as well as by the general public.

There are 65 pieces in the band,
which is under the leadership of Lieut.
William H. Sandeman. The opening
concert will be given Sunday night, August 6, and each day and each evening thereafter, throughout the week
of the fair, the band will furnish music at the grounds.

On Monday afternoon, August 7,
Miss Ada Meade, the prima donna,
whose home was originally in Lexington, where she is connected with the most prominent families of Kentucky,
has consented to sing with the band.

QUERY IN PEARY'S RISE

If North Pole Discoverer's Elevation Is Retroactive, How About Others?

Washington, July 31.—The promotion and retirement of Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary in recognition of his discovery of the North Pole, have presented a vexatious problem which the navy department has not solved.

The bill honoring the explorer passed congress in March, 1911, but provided that the promotion and retirement should "date" from April 9, 1909, when the pole was discovered.
The promotion of Peary made a vacancy in the list of captains of civil engineers and afforded opportunity for promotions.

"The question which has arisen is whether these promotions should be retroactive and date from April 9, or begin with March, 1911, when the act was passed.

ONE ON THE OLD GENTLEMAN

Absolute Fact Destroyed Force of Well-Meant Argument for Temperance.

On a pleasant Sunday afternoon an old German and his youngest son were seated in the village inn. The father had partaken liberally of the home-brewed beer, and was warning his son against the evils of intemperance. "Never drink too much, my son. A gentleman stops when he has enough. To be drunk is a disgrace."

"Yes, father, but how can I tell when I have enough or am drunk?" The old man pointed with his finger. "Do you see those two men sitting in the corner? If you would see four men there, you would be drunk."

"The boy looked long and earnestly.
"Yes, father, but—there is only one man in that corner,"—Lippis

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head.
All the hair came out and his face was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicines, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time.
He had about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura."

"I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap several times since to use for cuts, sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, R. F. D. 2, Atoka, Tenn., Sept.
10, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 16 L, Boston.

RECALL OF THE JUDGES.

The misguided or malignant passions of an unimportant fragment of the community may rocklessly accuse the most stainless judge and by groundless charges put suspicion in the place of confidence and distrust in the place of faith. The seasoned and staid traditions of impeachment are to be translated into a trial by tumult. The recall will strike from the splendid structure of free government the arch upon which it has come to rest with unshaken confidence. God forbid that the sanctuaries of the country of America shall ever be ravished by the sibilant hiss of a mob crying, "Crucify him! Crucify him!" Mayfield Messenger.

Really there is a "high-falutin'" sound about the above clipping that is going the rounds of the press and appearing in each paper as an original product of the editor in charge. If there is any justice or merit in the recall of any public servant there is the same merit in the recall of the judiciary. By what authority is the judge placed upon the bench, to sit in judgement upon the lives and property of the citizenship over which he presides? Does not the same citizenship place him there that places the constable, or the sheriff, or the legislator in his position of authority? If the origin of the judge's authority is the same as that of the constable, or sheriff, or legislator by what mode of reasoning does he become the "holier than thou" servant, and why should he not be amenable to the recall of the same source of origin? How often do we see the corruptly elected judge, the purchased hirling of the special interests sitting in the places of the mighty, draped in the authority and dignity of the bench, spur justice and meet out the expressed wishes of his creators regardless of the masses? How often do we see him disregard the plain statutes and place a meaning upon them never intended by the law makers of the land? Where is the "mob" to come from that is to ravish the "sanctuaries of the country" as the above writer would have you to believe exists in every community throughout the land? If Mayfield is infested with "mob" spirit it is high time the Messenger was crying out for its suppression. If the "mob" actually exists why not have it dispersed and the leaders convicted and placed behind the prison bars? Why is it not possible to call the attention of the existence of such an organized band of outlaws to the "stainless judge" and have him cause its destruction before "staid proceedings of impeachment are to be translated into a trial by tumult?" Such articles are but the rankest sort of rot, and with the progressive spirit today sweeping America with a determination of the people to reclaim the government from the hands of the special interests and place it where the founders of the republic intended it to be and to remain, a final struggle is being made by the money interests and the special privilege class to continue in the control of the judiciary with a hope of yet preserving them in their pillage of the masses. It possibly ill behooves an ordinary citizen to make criticism of the highest legal tribunal of the land but it is unquestionably a fact, that the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Standard Oil and American Tobacco Co. cases of recent date was, as Justice Harlan said in his dissenting opinion, a menace to a free people, and by reading into it any meaning not intended was destructive of the legislative right of the government. We believe these decisions will tend to impress upon the people the necessity of the recall of all public servants, and not least among them will be the judiciary.

N. N. Bonney, of Corinth, Miss. last week purchased L. A. Chandler's interest in the Mayfield Mirror. Mr. Bonney will move to Mayfield at an early date, change the name of the paper to the Sentinel and will also issue a daily. Mr. Chandler has been a controlling factor in the Mirror for many years, coming to Mayfield and accepting employment on the paper, and by dint of hard labor and business ability he afterwards became its editor and owner. Chandler is a live wire and his leaving the newspaper field of our neighbor city leaves the poorer. He has not made known his future intentions but wherever he may go he will readily become a factor in the community. The Ledger wishes him success in whatever field of usefulness he may decide to enter.

Judge Alvin W. Barkley of Paducah, was the orator for the W. O. W. picnic at Backusburg last week. Judge Barkley is a splendid speaker and is popular with the people. In making up the list of "eligibles" in this district to succeed James as congressman it would be well to keep an eye in the direction of this astute judge of the McCracken county court. Come over and see us some more, judge.

The Courier-Journal's daily spasm in opposition to the democratic state convention incorporating a county unit plank in its platform is having but little effect upon the party. This is as it should be. Why should the party commit suicide for the sole benefit of the Courier-Journal? It has led the party already and too often through a slaughter pen into an open grave. Following the star eyed goddess isn't always democracy.

"It gives me great pleasure to be able to refer to Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills as the best remedy we have yet had in our house for the prevention and cure of headache. My wife who has been a constant sufferer for a number of years with above complaint joins me in the hope that they may fall into the hands of all sufferers."

"Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are the best I ever tried for the relief of headache. I have used them for nearly four years and they never fail to give me relief. I have tried many other remedies, but have never found any better."

JOSEPH FRANKOWICK, 854 Fremont Ave., Detroit, Mich. There is no remedy that will more quickly relieve any form of headache than

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

The best feature of this remarkable remedy is the fact that it does not derange the stomach or leave any disagreeable after-effects.

Kirksey News.

Since our last writing we have had a nice rain and crops are looking fine in this section. Rev. J. C. Rudd is conducting a series of meetings near Atlas, Mo. in the edge of Marshall county. They named the new church "Mt. Hebron" last Sunday.

There will be an ice cream supper at Wyatt's school house next Friday night. Everybody is invited.

The W. O. W. picnic at Backusburg was rained out. They think they will have it over soon. Amos Turnbow has sold his farm of 72 acres for $3,600 to Charlie Watson. We hate for Amos and family to leave us; they will move to Graves county near Antioch church the first of the year.

Lloyd Reed, of Metropolis, Ill., is visiting relatives and friends in this section. Mac Radford is talking of going home with him on a visit and prospecting also.

J. C. Dunn's relatives and friends gave him a nice birthday dinner a few days ago which was enjoyed by all who attended.

Revs. Rudolphs are in a meeting at North Pleasant Grove church with a good interest in the church and several professions.

Bob Marine is building an extension to his barn.

Henry Smith is very low with typhoid fever. This is the 15th day for him.

Rev. Lusk, of Elizabethtown, Ky., made a nice Temperance lecture at the Methodist church last Sunday at 11 o'clock.

The meeting at the Baptist church will commence the 2nd Sunday in October at 11 a. m. Rev. Castleberry will do the preaching.

Osie Beach and Miss May Turnbow were united in the holy bonds of wedlock a few days ago. Rev. Monroe Edwards officiating. Their many friends wish for them a long and happy life together.

The Goshen meeting is in session this week with good results and several additions to the church.

The school at the C. N. C. will commence the 14th of August. Every patron should be present with Prof. Chunn, our teacher, on that morning.

Irvan Dunn is moving along nicely with his school at Thompson. All are well pleased.

On the morning of the 31st the many friends and neighbors of Mr. J. J. Swindell gave him a nice birthday dinner. He was sitting out in the yard with one or two of his friends and along about 9 o'clock he was completely surprised when he saw quite a number of buggies and wagons filled with people come driving up. He stood and gazed on the situation for a while and then ran to the door to tell his wife, he exclaimed "we have not got any thing cooked for this crowd!"

—but when they came in with filled baskets with good things to eat he changed his mind. The table was spread and thanks were offered, then all began to partake of its luxuries which everybody enjoyed. After dinner was cleared away the Turnbow Band played several nice pieces, and Mr. Swindell said he enjoyed everything nicely. We trust to see Mr. Swindell live to see his next birthday as enjoyable as this last. He is now 77 years old and bids fair for several more.

Success to the Old Reliable.

Obituary.

The death angel has visited the home of Robert Campbell and wife and took away their little grandson, Prince Mason Campbell. He was born Sept. 30, 1905; died Jan. 14, 1914—age 8 years, 3 months and 14 days. Prince was a bright little lad and loved by all who knew him, but God who doeth all things well, took him unto himself, where parting is no more, where life is eternal and where no tears of sadness fall, but where all is peace and love around the throne of God for ever and ever. He leaves a father, grand father, grandmother and a host of friends to mourn their loss. Weep not friends I am gone to rest.

Where I am you too, shall dwell. I am gone before your face a moments time, a little space; when you come where I have stepped, you will wonder why you wept, you will know by wise love thought, that here is all and there is naught.

REV. J. M. P'POOL.

FLIES have no use for a Westinghouse Electric Fan—they are as helpless in the air currents which it produces as a bi-plane in a hurricane. No matter what tempting morsels your table affords, turn the button that starts the fan and every last fly will vanish.

That's one reason why the larger sizes of Westinghouse Fans are used in all the best restaurants and why you should have a little Westinghouse Fan in your home. Another reason is solid comfort. You find the air currents that are shunned by the flies very agreeable and refreshing on a hot day.

You use the fan in the dining room at meal time and in the kitchen before and after, then in the living room, then on the porch, then in the bed room. It is always in demand somewhere. Keep it going all day—from 2 o'clock in the evening till 12 at night, and the cost for current will be between two and three cents. Pretty cheap comfort, is it not? Telephone for one to-day.

The Plainsman.

The man was riding just below the summit of the ridge, occasionally uplifting his head so as to gaze across the crest, shading his eyes with one hand, to thus better concentrate his vision. Both horse and rider plainly exhibited signs of weariness, but every movement of the latter showed ceaseless vigilance, his glance roaming the barren ridges, a brown Winchester lying cocked across the saddle pommel, his left hand on the rein. Yet the horse, as he bestrode, scarcely required restraint, advancing slowly, with head hanging low, and only occasionally breaking into a brief trot under the impetus of the

The rider was a man approaching thirty, somewhat slender and long of limb, but possessing broad, powerful shoulders above the waist. His hair was black, slightly in plaits, and his complexion, yet with an erectness of carriage which suggested military training. The face under the slouch hat was clean-shaven, browned by sun and wind, and strongly marked, the chin slightly prominent, the mouth straight, the eyes full and keen, and the nose straight and daring. His dress was that of rough service, plain leather "chaps," showing marks of hard usage, a gray woolen shirt, and low top boots, with a black leather holster loosely about the slender bronzed throat. At one hip dangled the holster of a "forty-five," and the other hung a "revolver," one of the "big" figure and face to be noted by anyone, a man from whom you would expect both thought and action.

Where he rode was the very western extreme of the prairie country, a billowed like the sea, and from the crest of its high, and from the level of its floor, the plains was visible extending like a vast brown ocean to the foothills of the far-away mountains. Yet the actual commencement of that drear, barren expanse was fully ten miles off, while the hills about where he rode the conformation was irregular, comprising narrow ridges and swelling mounds, with here and there a sharp ravine, river, or the rock and inviolable unit of the upland, at its very brink. A general trend of depression was doubtably southward leading toward the valley of the Arkansas, yet irregular ridges occasionally added to the depression. The entire desolate landscape presented the same aspect, with no special out-upon which the ere could rest, no guidance—no tree, no open road, no peculiar landmark to commit the traveler to the trail—all about the same dull, dead monotony of brown, sun-baked hills, with slighter greener depressions lying between. Interspersed by patches of alkali. It was a dry, a deserted land, parched to the bottom summer sun, brightened by vegetation, excepting sparse bunches of buffalo grass or an occasional stunted sage bush. In this stress of sudden emergency—every available soldier on horseback and actively engaged in the fight—two and into service, and hastily despatched to war-exposed settlers, guide wagon trains, or carry despatches between outposts. And thus our rider, Jack Keck, who knew every rider and his horse by name, Republican and the Canadian rivers, was one of these that suddenly requisitioned, merely because he chanced to be discovered while employed by the harassed community of the environs of Carson City. Twenty minutes later he was riding swiftly in the northwest, bearing important news of General Sherman, commander of the Department of the West, and was expected to be at Fort Cairn. To Keck this had been merely another page in a career of adventure; he took to his life in his hands as long ago become an old story. A day or two after the expedition was allotted him, watched a squadron of troopers trot forth down the valley of the Republican, received hearty thanks of the people, little later, and then, for the first time, he turned off his horse in at the general camp for a fresh mount and started back again for Carson City. For the greater portion of two nights and a day he had ridden in the saddle, and he had returned to this, for he had driven more than one bunch of longhorns up the Texas trail; and he had slept three hours at Carson, and as his nerves were like steel, thought of no more of it.

He was thoroughly and rested him to get out of saddle, while the freshness of morning air was a tonic, the breath of which made him fore-

After all, this was indeed the sort of experience which appalled him, and always had this peril in the open, under the starry sky. He had not been a young fellow for so long now, eight years, as to make it seem merely unadventurous. He had been steadily through the shifting sand of the low, his thoughts had been so often, and sometimes he was and occasionally frowned, as if incidents returned to memory.

It was a rough life, yet one not new to those of the family in tidewater Virginia. His father, a successful planter, mother had died while he was early boyhood, and he had grown up with the family, and had been cut off from it, retained his major's commission, and had been sent out at William and Mary's when the Civil War came; a month after Virginia seceded from the Union, and he had been with the 10th Virginia regiment, commander of the regiment, commander of the regiment, commander of the regiment. He had enjoyed it and won his spurs, yet it had been a rough life, yet one not new to those of the family in tidewater Virginia. remember, and those strenuous years of almost ceaseless fighting, of long night marches, of long marches, of long raiding, of long scouting within the enemy's lines, of severe wounds, of hardship and suffering, had left their marks on both body and soul. His father had fallen on the march to Chattanooga, and he had been nearly alone in the night when he had fought his way to the trench, until the last flag of the Confederacy had been furled. By the time, upon the collapse of the grand army, he had been left the tarnished remnant of a captain. The quick to dimmed his eyes even now as he recalled anew that final parting from Appomattox, that horrible march to the sea, that long, painful journey homeward, defeated, wounded, penniless. It was no home when he got there. Only a heap of ashes and a few dead grown about the campfire. He left him; not even a sign was left.

He had honestly endeavored to maintain there, to face the future, to work it out alone. He persuaded himself that his life and his loyalty to the state, to the memory of the dead. But those very years of army-life made such a tax was traveling suddenly changed direction, compelling him to climb the rise of the ridge. Slightly bent, he halted. In front of him the wide expanse of the A valley, a scene of splendor under golden rays of the sun. The contrast of colors, the brown of the yellow of sand and the brilliant hills, the green of vegetation and the glaze sheen of the snow hidden behind the fringe of tawny woods lining its banks. The sight Keith had often looked for, but always with appreciation. The moment his eyes were blow bluff to bluff without thought except for its wild beauty. The perceived something in the air. Instantly he turned his attention—yonder, there beside the river, just beyond that ragged bunch of cottonwood slender spirals of blue smoke visible. That would be the camp of the Indians, this hour of the day.

 Besides, the Santa Fe trail along here ran close in against the bluff, coming down to the river at the ford, two miles further west. The plainsman had no venture to build upon in so exposed a spot, and no small company would take the chances of the trail. But surely that appeared to be the place where the wagon trail crossed to the right of the bluff was so far away he could not be certain. He stared in that direction a long while, shading his eyes with both hands, and decided that the trail was four or five black dots higher up the river, but so far away he could not distinguish whether men or animals. Only as outlined against the yellow sand could he see the trail. He was advancing toward the ford.

Decidedly puzzled by all this, 'Ye determined to solve the mystery and unwilling to remain hidden there any longer, Keith led his horse to the slant of the hill, where he attained the creek through the bluff leading down into the valley. It was a rugged gash, never impassable; but a half hour of toil won them the top of the prairie, the winding path preventing the slightest wind that might let the fugitives transpiring below. Once safely out in the valley the river could no longer be seen, while barely a hundred yards away, winding along like a great serpent, ran the river, rutted track and all. In the north it disappeared any sign of human life. As near as he could determine from those distant cottonwoods or lifted against the sky, for the smoke spirals were too thin by considered to be enough. With this idea in mind advanced cautiously, his every sense alert, searching anxiously for signs of passage or evidence of wagon train having deserted the toward the packed hard yself, doing nothing, but some five hunyards, beyond the ravine he discovered what he sought—here two wagons

Manuscript of Thirteenth Century While reading a French manuscript of the sixteenth century in the city library, St. Andrews, the lecturer, Dr. Schaaffs, noticed fragments of an 'old French' which the binder had pasted and covers of the book.
After loosening them he found the glue and out of the four parts obtained composed two larger parts of two leaves of a manuscript written in a beautiful and clear hand in two columns of red and black ink. 144 in all, with red and Guessing Contests for Porch Parties.

Girls who have been to recent after-noon porch parties tell me of these contests which were used while the hostess was putting the last finishing touches to her refreshments. For the first one cards were passed having bumble bees in water color on the first page, and the second page re-vealed the following questions, all to be answered by words ending in "ating."

1, a sting that cures fatigue; 2, a sting that cures hunger; 3, a sting that takes you room; 4, a sting that makes you laugh; 5, a sting that cooks your meat; 6, a sting unwise people indulge in; 7, a sting that browns your bread; 8, a sting that spoils your tools; 9, a sting that makes you read a book through; 10, a sting that tries; 11, a sting that adapts; 12, a sting that shop-keepers dislike; 13, a sting we observe in Lent; 14, a sting that experts do; 15, a winter sport.

Honey cookies and iced tea were served and the prize was a cake of honey from the hostess' own bee hive.

This contest was used at what the hostess termed "an informal pot tea." The cards passed were white with quaint little tea pots and cups and saucers painted on them with A Coiffure Party.

This is just the funniest kind of party. Ask the guests to come to a regular conventional evening. But with the exception of their hair, both men and women must change style of hair dressing. Either picturesque or grotesque mode must be chosen: For instance, imagine a man in perfectly correct evening dress with his head representing an

This seemed such a capital idea for making money that I gave the thought of hoping some "Ladies" or other would be attracted to the scheme. The scheme was carried out in a small room and the sales lasted every Saturday during the month of August. Booths were erected upon the lawn above the admissions, and the ladies were to take the names alphabetically. There were cookies, cold meats, rolls, bread, cakes, candies, jams and jellies, macaroons, nardles and cheese cakes. The ladies were always making orders for the things to be in the home cooking. Young housekeepers found the place a great help and strangers at the boarding houses and hotels patronized them for a good home-made sherbet. The young girls to serve and the arrangements were so perfected that the burden was not heavy upon the staff. A good deal of money was made, and the summer effort during the summer.

Place Cards for Engagement nouncement.

A young woman used these clever cards at the luncheon her fiancé gave to make known her engagement to a few favored friends. Each card was a slip of paper of delicate silver color (like wax for holiday parcels) was sewed with a pink heart-shaped card, a wee heart being seemingly caught in the meshes. The monogram of the pair was stamped in silver under the web. After the dinner was served, stiff white cards seven inches square were passed with pink hearts and each guest asked to plan a party for the couple; these cards were kept for "future reference." The cards were stamped with a pink heart, a glass of champagne, a glass of lemonade and each girl was asked to pass a card with a toast to the new home and charming mistress.

THE gown on the seated figure is of pink flannel. The skirt is arranged in front with a band of the material, embroidered with a mandarin embroidery. It is finished with two ruffles, embroidered with the same embroidery and made with fine tucks.

The corage forms like covers or pinnated with embroidery and bordered with pink satin. The corage and girdle is also made.

The quimpe and the ornamental cuffs of the skirt of the other gown with a moniselle de soie, covered with a tulle of blue-line moniselle de soie, which is finished with a zigzag.

The corage is of lace arranged in a fashion and forms a sail finished with point fringe. The skirt is edged with blue-satin and the corage is also edged with a point fringe. The girdle is finished at the neck with a double ruff of lace.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys, the interior finished throughout. The 2 and 3 burner models can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with deep shelves, towel racks, etc. Descriptive literature or write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the

Obituary.

July A. Altom was born Jan. 17, 1859, departed this life March 20, 1911, age 52 years, 2 months and 3 days. She professed faith in Christ in her 16th year and joined the Methodist church in which she lived a consistent christian life. She was sick a great while but bore it with christian fortitude. I saw her and talked with her often and said to me that she was not afraid to die she said the same religion she professed in childhood was still the same in sickness as in health and it was all her stay her religion which began in early life and developed and ripened to the end was her coming grace. It pervaded every department of her life and illumined the whole with a bright radiance. Hers was an active working religion. She loved her church with a sincere devotion and found enjoyment in helping her husband in his daily work as a farmer. In spite of much physical feebleness she was abundant in labor for the welfare of the church and the salvation of the people. She has left the impress of her noble life and character upon every community in which she lived. The death of such a person is no ordinary event. By her departure the earth is made poorer and heaven richer. Faith and affection follow her up through the shining portals of the skies into the land of light and love. The gates are left ajar and through them is streaming the supreme light of endless day. The horizon of our faith is broadened and brightened. The anchor of our hold upon the verities of the eternal city. We catch a glimpse of the blood bought millions in radiant faces all aglow with infinite love. We hear the sweet melody of the song of redemption through the blood of the lamb and feel anew the charm of a heavenly attraction towards that home of perfect peace. No one doubts that sister Altom is there, that she has met her Saviour face to face and sees Him as He is, that she has found exquisite delight in a reunion with her babe. There are all our glorified friends, they are awaiting our coming and will meet us at the beautiful gate and we shall be forever with the Lord.

T. P. Jones.

County teachers institute convenes next Monday and will be largely attended. Sorry we were not furnished a program for the meeting. Special endeavor will be made to have all the school children of the county here next Friday for one day. Let the children come, and every teacher of the county should attend and bring every pupil of his school. Make it a glorious occasion and one long to be remembered.

We Do Not Recommend Suther and's Eagle Eye Salve. It is a speedy and harmless cure for granulated lids, eye fulons, sore eyes, styes, weak eyes and dimness of vision. Sold everywhere.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Ballard County Fair Association it was decided to prorata the expenses and pay them in streaming the supreme light of endless day. The horizon of our faith is broadened and brightened. The anchor of our hold upon the verities of the eternal city. We catch a glimpse of the blood bought millions in radiant faces all aglow with infinite love. We hear the sweet melody of the song of redemption through the blood of the lamb and feel anew the charm of a heavenly attraction towards that home of perfect peace. No one doubts that sister Altom is there, that she has met her Saviour face to face and sees Him as He is, that she has found exquisite delight in a reunion with her babe. Reuby Charlton.

On the morning of June the 19, 1911, just as the sun was peeping from behind the eastern horizon, and shedding its rays upon the new born day, the spirit of Reuby Charlton gently and silently took its flight, and left the body cold and lifeless.

Reuby was twenty-five years old at the time of her death. She leaves a young husband, mother, father, two sisters and five brothers to mourn her death. She was a member of the Church of Christ and was one of its most devoted members. She will be greatly missed in her church where she was a regular attendant. She was loved by all who knew her, for never did a friend who was in distress or in need apply to her for aid, but that she was their willing helper.

It is indeed hard for her young husband to face the future alone, but it was God's will. We will not say to him, "do not grieve" for it is but natural that he should grieve for his beloved dead, but we would say to him, "grieve not for her as for those for whom we have no hope." She can not come to you, but if you live as God has directed, you can meet her and God will wipe away all tears from your eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow or crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away.

We cannot tell who next may fall beneath this changing veil. One must be first, so let us all—Prepare to meet or God.

A loving cousin,
