THE LISTENING POST

● This will be a sort of bodge-podge column, for frankly, my thoughts are of that order today. It seems to me that the sun has not been out for weeks and it also seems to me that rain has fallen all the time. I know this is not correct, but that's the way I feel. I have been sleeping too little and living with a cold that seems to be permanent, and in general my thoughts are worth less than nothing. I'll just have to improvise as I go along and hope for the best and know the worst is coming out.

● I am always amazed at the things folks can do. The other day, for instance, I read about that young girl who stowed away on a destroyer which was ready to sail for Far Eastern ports. The ship was ready to sail, when seamen found a young girl hiding in some part of the vessel. They brought her before the commanding officer. She was clad in sea uniform, grease was over her face, but when she was cleaned up the story said she was quite a good looking damsel. (This may have been a newspaper man's yarn, for I never saw any such story in which the gal was not beautiful. I know that ugly ones should sometimes figure in such stories, but the stories always say that they are beautiful.)

● Anyhow, the commanding officer of the destroyer was quite stern with the girl. She told him that she came from Flint, Michigan, and had hitch-hiked to California because the weather was so cold in Michigan. Arriving in California she decided to go to Hawaii, and forthwith she smuggled herself aboard the United States destroyer Long. This feat is presumed to be quite difficult, for these days the United States Navy is practically on war footing and everything is double checked and scrutinized. This young girl told the commander that getting aboard was quite easy.

● "I just took a shoreboat with a bunch of sailors, ambled up the companionway past the guards and hid in the engine room," she explained quite demurely. If she had not been discovered within a few minutes the destroyer might have been well out at sea, for she was ready to slip her lines when the girl boarded the vessel. The girl stated that she thought if the destroyer got pretty far out they would not turn back to put her ashore. However, she was quite vague about the matter of food and might have been pretty hungry before the destroyer reached her destination.

● The commanding officer was not greatly perturbed over the girl herself, but the entire staff was concerned with the easy manner in which she got aboard. It seemed that there was a suspicion and it might be pretty well founded—that some man helped her in boarding the ship. If so, and the man is discovered, it is quite likely that some federal prison will have another pupil, for restrictions are quite strict in the Navy these days. This was what stung the Navy's professional pride. They pride themselves on being constantly on guard, and it must have been a trifle disconcerting to find a pretty young girl hiding in the engine room of a destroyer just as the vessel was ready to shove off for a foreign voyage. It also has dangerous implications. Instead of a pretty young girl and a harmless prank, it might have been a foreign spy lurking in the engine room, and it is against such possibilities that restrictions have been tightly drawn. While we are not at war at the present time we are so close to it that war-time rules are necessary. I'll guarantee that the officers of Uncle Sam's fleet will remember this incident for a long time and that it will be far more difficult for any person to slip aboard a ship of war in the future.

Welles Cites Dangers If Nazis Win

Predicts Economic Political, Physical Attacks On Americas

New York. —Questioning whether a negotiated peace now would be worth the paper on which was written, Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, declared to night that an axis victory in Europe would lead to economic and political attacks on South America. He added that if these attempts were successful a "physical invasion" of the area soon would follow. He described this as a more imminent danger than an "immediate attack directed against continental United States" and asserted that "the menace to our security through the passage of the control of the high seas to unfriendly hands is to my mind overwhelmingly apparent."

Must Render Aid
In an address prepared for the annual dinner of the Alumni Association of the New York University School of Law, Welles declared this nation must be prepared in its own self-defense to render Great Britain, China and Greece "all necessary assistance which America can produce."

"The provisions of the legislation now pending in the Congress (the lend-lease measure), if enacted into law, would greatly facilitate that task," he said.

Answering accusations of Japanese leaders that the United States is "pursuing an aggressive policy in the Far East," and that "we have placed our line of defense in the Western Pacific," Welles asserted this country's "lines of defense are determined solely by the acts and by the policies of other nations."

Safety Our Keynote
Denying that the United States was seeking to extend "its hegemony or jurisdiction in the Pacific area," Welles said "those lines of defense are fixed solely by what we estimate is required, in the light of such policies and acts by others, to insure the inviolability and the safety of our territory."

Danger Of Ghost Towns After War Is Impressed Upon Officials

New Orleans, La. —Real estate appraisers were told Wednesday that they face a great test in the near future because they will have to make valuations in booming defense areas which, in a few years, may be "ghost towns."

The warning was sounded by Ralph V. Field of Galesburg, Ill., former president of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, in an address at the South Central regional conference of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Field said, by way of illustration, that an appraiser might be called to estimate the value of an office building in a town near a large defense industry. Rents are rising, he said, and there is great demand for office space. "Should we regard this very great increase in rentals in such a property as permanent, or as lasting two or three or five years?" Field asked. "Is the city to be permanently bettered by virtue of a considerable influx of population?"

Sensible Appraisals Advocated

Appraisals at the present time, he asserted, are "likely to require more thought, more study, more hard work, more common sense, and more integrity than ever before in the history of appraisal practice in the United States."

C. Shows Formal Appreciation To Three Who Gave Needed Help

On the night of January 2 of this year a bridge on the Edgewood Cut-off of the Illinois Central, two miles north of Fulton, was discovered to be on fire. Had it not been promptly and effectively action on the part of one woman who lived at the scene, coupled with equally effective action by two Illinois Central employees, a disastrous wreck might have resulted. A train could have struck the burning bridge without warning within a short time and this would have probably meant the loss of several lives and tremendous property damage. Such heroic service was rendered at the time, the train was stopped and the bridge was saved, and yesterday the Illinois Central system extended its formal appreciation to the three persons who saved the bridge.

Miss Rena Finch, 64, who lives about one half mile from the bridge, with her sister and brother have lived in this same house all their lives, having been born here. She awoke at about three o'clock the morning and saw the reflection from the fire. Uncertain as to its location, she roused her brother, who was ill at the time, and finally Miss Finch saw that she must investigate the matter. She dressed, took a lantern and went through the woods lot and fields until she came near enough to see that it was the bridge, and that it was burning steadily on the piling.

Returning to her home, she called Fulton and in short time help came on the way to combat the fire. Railroad workers also swung into action, for it was realized that a train was almost due and must be stopped. In this emergency Joe Cochran and L. M. Maxey cooperated and succeeded in getting the train stopped.

This is the story as it unfolded on the night of January 2 of this year.

Yesterday afternoon Trainmaster W. H. Street of the Blufford District wrote the happy sequel. In company with his secretary, Dick Schneider, he drove to the Finch home on the Enon road and there presented Miss Rena Finch with a gold medal, suitably engraved, and in a feeling talk expressed his personal appreciation and the appreciation of the great railroad system he represents. Miss Rena, as bright and chipper as a sparrow, told the reporter the story of that eventful night, and depreciated her part in it. "Pshaw," she laughed, "I just knew that the fire ought to be put out and I saw that help was called." She had been asked to come into town and attend a dinner in her honor, but refused. "I've lived sixty-four years without all this hurrah," she said, "and I guess I'll just keep on the same way."

Employees at Dinner

At six o'clock Mr. Street was host to a number of guests at a dinner served at Smith's Cafe. At this dinner Mr. Maxey and Mr. Cochran were presented with gold medals, and Mr. Street again explained how the Illinois Central always appreciated service that was rendered outside the line of duty. "These men did such service," he said, "we are proud of them and we are proud to show this appreciation." Mr. Cochran and Mr. Maxey expressed briefly their deep appreciation for the honor bestowed upon them.

Morgenthau Says 65 Billion Debt Limit Sufficient

Washington. —Secretary Morgenthau said today that Army and Navy plans for great purchases are overly optimistic and a $65-000,000 public debt limit should cover all needs of the next fiscal year, regardless of needs of the War-Britain program.

"If Congress passes the leasing bill, and I am sure they will," the Treasury head told his press conference, "whatever orders are placed by the Army and Navy, the productive capacity of the country is such that they will not be able to draw on the Treasury in excess of the President's program whatever the amount of British aid turns out to be."

Housewife Told Army Won't Raise Her Food Costs

Washington. —The housewife need not fear she will be bidding against the army for food supplies, the Agriculture Department said today.

Describing food supplies as ample, the department said expansion of the armed forces was expected to increase consumption of all food less than one-half of 1 per cent this year.

Army rations call for considerably more meat, butter, cereals and potatoes than the average civilian consumes, but less fresh milk and fruit, and more canned commodities than fresh.

Study Of Peacetime Uses For Defense Plants Is Being Made

New Orleans. —To prevent a possible new depression, the incoming president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards advocated Wednesday night the creation of research laboratories in wartime plants to plan their conversion to peacetime uses at the end of the present emergency.

Philip W. Kniskern, president of the First Mortgage Corporation of Philadelphia, said in an address before the south regional conference of the association that he felt "this work should be sponsored equally by the Government and by industry."

Repetition of the "ghost" industries and housing left idle after the last war largely could be prevented, said Kniskern, "if we will but plan today."

Warns of Keen Competition.

"Why not research laboratories within each war plant," he asked, "where men and women will work with only one aim—the seeking of peacetime products which that particular plant could manufacture?"

"If we would even off, perhaps prevent, the depression which usually follows a war, we must work and plan today. . . . At that time we also will have the demobilized

Irish-American Won't Join Army And Help Britain

New York. —Thomas J. Kelly, 30, born in Belfast and naturalized five years ago, refused Wednesday to serve in the Army under the Selective Service Act and told Federal Judge Edward A. Cooper he had "no alternative as long as this country gives aid to Britain."

During questioning he said the judge who presided at his naturalization had neglected to tell him that some day he might be required to "aid Britain."

Large Crowd Is Expected For Game

A large crowd is expected to attend the basketball game between the Lions club of Fulton and Hickman tonight at Science Hall. The starting lineup for Fulton will be as follows: Dr. D. L. Jones, forward; Hoyt Moore, forward; Louie Kasnow, center; Bill Cravens, guard and Dr. J. L. Jones, guard.

Substitutions will be made every few minutes to keep the score from becoming too heavy for Fulton and also to enable the players to attend to their duties tomorrow.

Dr. D. L. Jones, never having played in a basketball game before is expected to give a stellar performance. Hoyt Moore, who says that it is just as easy to play basketball as it is to get rich in the newspaper business is going to be hard to hold—especially when the Lions club doctor begins working on him after the game.

Louie Kasnow is covering all bets that he will out jump his opponent on the tip off. Prof. Bill Cravens and Dr. J. L. Jones will not make a prediction but acknowledge that Fulton has a good chance to see such players as them before.

A. G. Haldrup has won the honor of the substituting for the first player carried off the floor. Two other players, while not in the same class as the first team, but expected to see service are, Frank Beades and Harold Thomas, who put on one of the funniest underwear shows to be seen at any game—and any number, perhaps the entire membership of other players will be out there giving their best.

ENGINEER TO BE TRANSFERRED

E. A. Hilliard, who has been employed by the Kentucky Highway Department as assistant engineer in Fulton, has been transferred to Hopkinsville, effective February 1st. Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard have had rooms with R. M. Belew.

BOYS TO ATTEND GAME

Ten members of the Fulton High basketball squad have a half-holiday today because of their victory over Mayfield recently. Several of the boys will attend the Firestone-Celtics game in Memphis tonight. Those who will attend are Charles Browder, "Hot" McClellan, Joe Treas McCollum, and David Homra.

Mrs. William Caldwell has returned to her home in Louisville after attending the bedside of her father, W. O. Shankle, who has been quite ill.

Germans Unreel War Film, But No Secret Weapons Are Exhibited

Berlin. —The German High Command's documentary film, "Victory in the West," was shown Wednesday to the press, but it left unanswered the question whether Germany has a secret weapon and, if so, what it is like.

The film account of France's defeat revealed a huge amount of mechanical war equipment which clicked with almost unbelievable precision. But how it went to work on such tough defenses as the Maginot Line and "Hitler's supposedly invincible fortresses, Eben Emael, remained the High Command's secret.

Strong Resistance Indicated.
The film indicated that the Ger-

Committee Urges Lend Bill Passage

Report Is Issued As Martin Declares He Opposes Measure

Washington. —A 17-to-8 majority of the House foreign affairs committee urged the House tonight to pass the lend-lease bill, asserting in a formal report that its prompt enactment was "of the highest importance to the vital interest of our country—and even of our civilization."

The committee asserted that after extended hearings and public discussion it was clear that:

"Our national policy is and should be: (a) To keep out of war; and (b) for our own national security, to aid Britain and those other nations whose defense is vital to the defense of the United States by supplying them as quickly and as efficiently as possible with defense articles in a manner consistent with our democratic procedures."

Bill Meets Objectives
"In the considered opinion of your committee," the report continued, "the bill as amended squarely meets these objectives of our national policy. It is the considered view of your committee, insofar as human minds can evaluate the situation, that the probable effect of the bill will be to keep us out of war rather than to get us into it."

"It is also the judgment of your committee that the bill provides the most efficient way of supplying all possible material aid to those countries which are resisting aggression."

"It accomplishes this objective in a manner which is best for our national defense and wholly consistent with the Constitution and international law."

Martin Opposes Bill
The report was issued at the close of a day which saw the committee approve the bill, saw Representative Martin of Massachusetts, the Republican leader, announce his opposition—unless the powers proposed to be granted to the President are "substantially modified"—and saw the Senate foreign relations committee receive confidential information from Henry L. Stimson, the secretary of war.

WILLKIE CASTS LONGER SHADOW.

When Wendell Willkie was so badly beaten in the recent Presidential election—although the defeat was not so complete as had been anticipated—many people reached the conclusion that he was a mere skyrocket, and would soon be forgotten. He had come from nowhere one might say, to head the Republican ticket, and his defeat would drive him deeper into obscurity. Recent events do not bear out this conclusion.

For Mr. Willkie has refused to allow himself to be driven back into obscurity. Whether he wishes to continue as a great national figure; whether he wishes to try the Presidential campaign again, or whether he simply has a deep and abiding interest in international matters, he has adopted a course which is certain to keep him in the public eye and right now many millions of Americans are thinking of Mr. Willkie and with kindly thoughts. For a few weeks ago Mr. Willkie announced quietly that he was not satisfied with his knowledge of conditions in England and proposed to make a personal study of the situation.

With somewhat of a fenafare, although he had nothing to do with this feature, he embarked on a clipper plane for Lisbon and from there to another plane for London. Landing in London he at once plunged into a personal investigation of conditions in that bomb torn world capital. He went about the streets, he visited bomb shelters, he lunched with the great and humble and in general made himself at home with the English. Naturally the British outdid themselves in telling and showing things in their great city. The English are not slow in matters of this sort and they are really anxious for the United States to know real conditions there. They saw in Willkie a man who had polled many millions of votes in a Presidential race; a man who might even yet loom large in the national administration of the United States, and they tried to show him that aid was vitally needed.

Press reports from London indicate that Mr. Willkie made a tremendous impression on the English. His final action cannot fail to make an even deeper impression, for he announced that he would cut short his visit in England in order to hurry home and give his first hand impressions before the committee which is working on the aid bill for the British. Evidently Mr. Willkie is satisfied that all the reports he had heard of England were well justified and is eager to get home and do his part in getting that aid started.

One cannot fail to recall another colorful figure of years ago when the British trip of Mr. Willkie is discussed. Older people will recall the more or less triumphal pilgrimage of Theodore Roosevelt which embraced a large part of the world. The colorful Roosevelt made a hunting trip to Africa; he visited the capitals of Europe; he lunched with Kaiser Wilhelm and delivered an address at Oxford University in England. And finally, like a conqueror, he came home to greet a cheering throng in New York. It was

A CAREER OF PARADOXES

Death ends the career of Gen. John Metaxas, Greece's diminutive Premier—a career of paradoxes. He was the political opportunist and the man of the hour. He was pro-Fascist and the scourge of Fascists. His leanings were toward Germany and he was the bulwark against Germany. It might even be said that he was the dictator who became the defender of free peoples. The heroic stand against Italy and the subsequent drubbing given the Italians are in large measure attributable to the courage and leadership of Greece's soldier-statesman.

Metaxas' rise to power was largely an accident. The elections of 1936 resulted in a virtual tie between the two leading factions in the Greek Parliament. The nation was without outstanding leaders, former Premier Venizelos, Kondylis, Tsaldaris and Demerdjis having died in rapid succession. As Minister of War Metaxas seized control and abolished the national assembly. Then he established a corporative State along the lines of Fascist Italy and gave himself a life tenure in office.

Not an accident, however, was the courageous stand against Italy. Metaxas' patriotism was unquestioned. His military ability was recognized; he had learned strategy at the feet of German strategists. His patriotism and his military knowledge rallied his country behind him. Political animosities ceased when the call to arms was sounded. The little Premier—he was less than five feet tall—suddenly took on heroic stature.

Though he named as his successor Minister of National Economy Alexander Coryzsis, his loss will be seriously felt. A dictator cannot relinquish his grasp on affairs without necessitating a readjustment. The advance in Albania may be still further slowed down due to the change in leadership. But Greece is united and it will continue the crusade led by Metaxas—the mediocrity who rose to something akin to greatness.—Courier-Journal.

color plus for that day and setting; Mr. Willkie has added a lot of color to his life by his pilgrimage to London while that ancient city is going through bitter days and nights.

Yes, Mr. Willkie proves his Americanism and he will be difficult to forget in coming years. The Republican party may wish to forget him, and make other plans for the future, but Mr. Willkie right now is the biggest man in the party.

SOUTH FULTON P. T. A. MEETING YESTERDAY

The Parent-Teachers Association of South Fulton held its January meeting yesterday afternoon at the school building in charge of Mrs. Leon Hutchens, the president. Approximately thirty members attended the meeting.

During the business meeting the treasurer, Mrs. Carl Kimberlain, gave a report that the association has paid its W. P. A. building debt and that the new year was started free of debt. Mrs. Will Craven, kitchen chairman, reported that three hundred children are now being fed daily in the school kitchen. Good reports were given by all chairmen of committees, followed with an announcement regarding the Nutrition Clinic which will be held at the school building on February 12.

Plans were then made for a plate drive which will be held in a few days and a committee was appointed by the president to make a house to house canvas of houses in South Fulton, asking for one plate for the W. P. A. kitchen.

The National President's message was then given by Mrs. Hugh Barnes and the meeting adjourned to be held on February 20 in the form of a pot-luck supper, in observance of Fathers Day. "The Tom Thumb Wedding" will be presented by students in the second grade at this time.

MRS. HOMER FERGUSON ENTERTAINS BUNCO CLUB

One visitor, Mrs. Ernest Huffman, was present with eleven club members when Mrs. Homer Ferguson entertained the Thursday Bunco club yesterday at her home on Eddings street. After an afternoon of bunco games the following prizes were presented: Mrs. Lee Roberts, high, a sack; Mrs. Joe Mullins, second high, a novelty flower pot; Mrs. R. O. Williams, bunco, perfume; Mrs. Walter Shupe, traveling bunco, what-not novelty; Mrs. Huffman, low, a flower basket and Mrs. Mullins, consolation gift.

Mrs. Ferguson served cold drinks and crackers late in the afternoon. The club will meet next Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Walter Shupe at her home on Pearl street.

TREVA-WHAYNE LEAVES FOR SCHOOL

MRS. GEORGE MOORE HOSTESS AT CONTRACT

Mrs. George Moore entertained her weekly bridge club last night at her home on Fourth street when she was hostess to eleven club members and one visitor, Mrs. Harry Jonakin of Dyersburg.

At the conclusion of contract games Miss Adolphus Mae Latta held high score and received an umbrella as prize. Following the contract games bridge-bingo was enjoyed and Mrs. Dewitt Matthews was the winner. She was given a box of stationery as prize.

Mrs. Moore then served boiled custard with cake to her guests. The club will meet next Thursday night with Miss Tommie Nell Gates at her home on Central Avenue.

SEW AND SO CLUB WITH MRS. BROWDER

Mrs. Thomas Browder was hostess to the Sew and So Club yesterday afternoon at her home on West State Line and entertained fourteen members of the club.

The afternoon was spent in playing games of bridge and then winning the prizes were Mrs. Par- rish Carney, high; Mrs. John E. Bird, coverall; and Mrs. Sam Steele, low.

Mrs. Browder served a delicious plate lunch to her guests. The club will have its meeting next Thursday aft-

Carney
street.

Favors United States Declaring War On Germany

Washington, —James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Berlin, announcing that he favored declaration of war against Germany, predicted today that the Nazis would "seize" Mexico if Great Britain was defeated.

Supporting the administration's British-aid bill, Gerard, who served as ambassador to Germany from 1913 to 1917, told the Senate foreign relations committee that if Germany is victorious "we will meet the first shock of her attack in the countries to the south of us."

Germany and Italy now are sending "vast sums" to Mexico and enough

Germany in declaring war on us.
But they don't do it because they are afraid of the effect on their own people."

WRIGHT FIELD STRIKE REPORTED SETTLED

Dayton, O. —Michael J. Crosetto, a federal mediator, announced tonight settlement of a strike of building craft employees that tied up work on a $1,550,000 expansion program at Wright Field, testing laboratory for the Army Air Corps.

Crosetto said that the War Department ordered Col. Lester T. Miller, commandant at the field, to suspend "pending further investigation" an electrical project being handled by the Penner Installation Co. of New York.

Between 400 and 500 members of AFL building trades unions left their jobs yesterday morning because, a spokesman said, the Penner company imported four men affiliated with a CIO union.

Crosetto said he was advised by AFL leaders that the building trades men would return to work tomorrow morning.

On Jan. 24 and 3 men business session a few "Bacon" were played. This meeting ended the first girls' basketball contest between the four patrols. Tolbert Dallas, patrol leader, and his boys—Paul Gholson, Don Morris, Eddy Bell, Joe Campbell, Ed Williams, Joe Edwards, Jack Austin, won the contest. These boys will receive their reward at the next meeting.

Tolbert Dallas and Dave Winfrey received their registration cards. Clead Hays finished his tenderfoot test.

After this Charles... led the boys in the Scoutmaster's Benediction and the meeting was dismissed by Donald Sensing, one of the Senior Patrol Leaders.

Troop No. 44 enjoyed their regular meeting Thursday night at the Baptist church with scoutmaster,

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Troop 1 of Fulton met last Monday night at the Woman's club. Betty Lou McClellan, patrol leader of the Thoroughbred Seniors, had charge of the meeting. We repeated the Girl Scout promise and Mrs. Robert Bard made the necessary announcements. Also the chairman, Mrs. Ward Bushart, attended. At 8 o'clock next Monday all the Girl Scouts of Troop 1 will be required to meet at the Woman's club for practice on our program we are going to give. Then we went to our patrol meeting and after we came back from our respective groups we reported all activities within the patrol.

The Bluegrass patrol has a new member who has just finished her tenderfoot badge—Jessie Nell Carter. Afterwards we played games and were dismissed.

Lois Jean Hindman, Scribe.

IN search for impressive size, cars have been getting longer every year.

Bumper has retreated from bumper until there's hardly room left in the family garage for the lawn mower and the good wife's gardening basket.

Does that mean you'll have to build a new garage to enjoy a big car's glories? Not now!

For there are four new Buicks on the market—additions to our 1941 SPECIAL series—that let you indulge your big-car tastes in spite of 1929-car-size garages.

*Optional on the Buick SPECIAL; standard on all other Buicks.

They are big cars in ability—with a 115-horsepower Buick FIREBALL engine that can be stepped up to 125 "horse" by the addition of Compound Carburetion.*

They are big cars in their room—with plenty of leg-, elbow- and head-room in their spacious interiors.

But—they fit your garage, handle like baby carriages, park on small change —all because we have trimmed down their bumper-to-bumper length!

So if you've been itching for a big car—but wondering where you'd find room for it—better hop right over to see these beauties now. You'll call them the season's biggest news!
