MURRAY, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1911.

COUNTY UNIT PLANK ADOPTED.

The democratic state platform convention which was convened Tuesday of this week in Louisville will go down in history as one of the stormiest sessions ever held in the state. It was a bitter struggle between the whiskey and county unit forces, the former led by Henry Watterson, editor of the Courier-Journal, and the latter by Gov. C. W. Beckham. After long hours of wrangle and bitter feeling Beckham won by a small majority and the county unit plank was made a part of the platform. Each champion of the forces behind him made rousing speeches and were in turn hooted, hissed, jeered and jollied as the occasion arose. It was a bitter struggle and the effect will be felt by the party in the November election.

On national issues the convention affirmed its faith in the declaration of principles on which the democratic party is organized and especially in the Denver platform, which was adopted in 1908.

The convention denounced the Republican party and President Taft. It endorsed the record of the Democratic members of congress and Democratic senators, especially the representatives of the party from Kentucky.

Gov. Wilson was denounced for his partisan and unjust action in pardoning the men indicted for participation in the assassination of Gov. Gobel.

The convention also favored the following:

The direct primary election law. The enactment of an explicit and effective corrupt practice act which shall determine what campaign expenses are legitimate.

Better schools.

A bill against lobbying.

The creation of a state utilities law.

The removal of the prison commission from politics.

A uniform system of accounting in all public offices.

Legislation and co-operation among the farmers and laborers of the state and the enactment of such constitutional laws as will protect them from the greed and oppression of the trusts.

Good roads.

The creation and removal from politics of a department on banking, providing for competent inspection of all state financial institutions and similar to the system existing for national banks.

The nomination and election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people.

In conclusion the committee which drafted the platform called upon the voters to support the ticket which has been nominated by the Democrats.

The platform is signed by the following: J. C. W. Beckham, state at large; H. A. Sommers, state at large; Denny P. Smith, first district; S. W. Hager, second district; Ben T. Perkins, third district; W. C. Montgomery, fourth district; J. A. Sullivan, eighth district; M. F. Conley, ninth district; John C. C. Mayo, tenth district; S. B. Disham, eleventh district.

CALLOWAY'S CONVENTION.

In answer to Fig Newton's call for a county mass convention, to be held here last Saturday to elect delegates to the state platform convention which convened in Louisville, only four individuals responded. These four participants convened themselves in open session in the office of Coleman & Wells, attorneys, and proceeded to pass resolutions and elect delegates to the state convention. Old Calloway, dry as a chip, was placed on record with the whiskey gang of the state and while delegates were elected none attended and the vote of old Calloway was sent to W. A. Berry, of Paducah, who carried it to Louisville and voted in the interest of the whiskey gang upon every proposition submitted to the convention. The supposition is that Berry was permitted to take the vote of Calloway and use it where and when he chose in return for his infamous decision of some two years ago when he declared Fig Newton the chairman of the democratic party of Calloway, in the face of the fact that the people voted for and elected another man.

When a party with over 2,000 majority is so reduced in its ranks and support that only four voters respond to the call of its head it does seem that those responsible for the condition of affairs would readily recognize that Fig Newton's claims have run to seed. The longer the shameful pretensions of the usurper who parades his claims to the chairmanship of the party in this county is continued the more thoroughly the people become disgusted and determined to wipe out the last vestige of the rule or ruin policy. Calloway voters believe in the county unit law and believe it should be extended to every county alike throughout the state, and were the question left to a vote it would be carried by a majority of not less than 20 to 1, and to place this county on record with the whiskey gang is an outrage upon this people.

PAT MURPHY.

T. W. PATTERSON RE-INSTATED AS JUDGE.

Thos. W. Patterson has again resumed the duties of the office of County Judge to which he was elected two years ago by the people of this county. A judgment was rendered by Judge J. T. Hanbery, of the Third Judicial District, on the first day of the present term of Calloway Circuit Court declaring that the office was vacated by reason of Judge Patterson's failure to execute a new bond as demanded upon motion filed by S. H. Dees and Rainey T. Wells, sureties on his old bond.

This judgement was set aside Friday afternoon by Judge Hanbery upon agreement by all persons concerned and a new bond was executed by Judge Patterson with the Bankers Surety Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, as surety. The new bond is an indemnity and is for $25,000. Mr. Harry Fitch, of Louisville, representing the surety company as state agent, spent several days here awaiting the action of the court. The delay was occasioned by failure of a letter addressed to Judge Hanbery from the state insurance commissioner arriving earlier than Friday morning.

Judge Hanbery, before he would agree to the new motion, desired to be assured that the Bankers Surety Co. was responsible and authorized to execute bonds for public officials in the state of Kentucky. The Ledger rejoices that this matter that threatened to again involve the county in turmoil and dissention has been amicably adjusted and that Judge Patterson will be permitted to fill out his term of office to which he was elected by the people. The matter has been properly and honestly adjusted and we congratulate all parties concerned upon the wisdom of their final action, and peace will again settle down upon old Calloway.

ASSOCIATION SPEAKINGS ARE AROUSING PEOPLE TO ACTION.

Enthusiastic association meetings are being held daily throughout the entire black patch, and the growers of tobacco are becoming aroused to the necessity of pledging their crops to the organization that it might hold sufficient amount of the growing crop to control the price. A rousing meeting was held last Saturday at Farmington, where Judge G. B. Bingham, of Cadiz, and J. H. Keys, of this county, were the speakers. Much of the growing crop of that section was pledged. During the past week several meetings have been held in this county. O. J. Jennings spoke at Palestine last Saturday night, at Denham school house Monday night, South Howard Tuesday night, Center Grove Wednesday night, Jackson school house Thursday night and will be at McCuiston school house Friday night, Pine Bluff Saturday afternoon and Lone Oak school house Saturday night. Mr. Jennings will also speak at Dick's school house next Monday night, and at Oak Grove school house next Tuesday night. The meetings thus far have been very well attended and quite a large amount of tobacco has been pledged.

Esq. J. B. Swan and Esq. Lee Clark will meet the growers at Calloway school house Thursday night and will be at Chunn school house Friday night and Coldwater Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The people are urged to keep these dates in mind and attend the meetings. There will be something of interest to every man and it is important that these meetings be well attended.

Rev. J. S. Hawkins, pastor of the Christian church, left the first of the week to join a party of Cadiz friends on a ten days outing on Little river, Trigg county.

OKLAHOMA'S JACK RABBITS, GNATS AND MOSQUITOS.

Maysville, Okla. Aug. 9.

Dear Editor and Readers:—

I decided I would send you a few more items. I am still doing fine in the west. We have been having some awful big rains since my last letter, but this week has been fair and some of the hottest days you ever saw. It was so hot as I came home from school this evening that I had to pull my hat down over my face and part of the time keep my hand over my face to keep the sun and wind from blistering it. Perspiration ran down my face like the water down the potato rows.

Some folks have said that I have been telling some miraculous things about these rabbits out here. If you could see them coming across the prairie you would think it was Uncle Joe Canada's hounds coming. The only difference is you cannot hear him tooting his horn.

The cotton crop is looking fine in this country, and if the worms and boll weevil will only quit eating on it the yield will be large.

I will give you a few words on the gnats and mosquitos. I have just been sitting outside my door with a breach loading shot gun across my lap to see if I could drive the mosquitos away from the house. They come in the house at night and sing cousin, cousin, auntie, uncle, and grandpa, but finally they settle down upon their destination then there is a weeping and wailing and a gnashing of teeth. As I was on my way to church one night one came down on my arm and his bill went through my coat and shirt just as though it had been nothing but tobacco canvassing. Now you can imagine how sharp their bills are. One bit the preacher while he was praying and he drew his prayer to a close at once and rose and said, "this meeting will close to-night." The gnats are so bad at the school house that we have to keep one of our hands going to keep them out of our faces while we recite the lessons. Some think I will keep many of you good people from coming to this country, but I do not mean to do that. I would like to see many of you good Calloway people out here. I think this is one of the finest countries in the Union, but of course, there is no place like home to a good Kentuckian. The country homes out here, look so common. I have never lived only in very common houses, but my home is like a palace compared to many of these places.

I was talking with an elderly gentleman a few days ago and he said all a boy needed here to get married was a small tent or a big wagon sheet for a tent, a side of meat, sack of flour, cooking stove and a few quilts, and really he would not have room for anything more. You can readily see why I am not married, because I have not secured those things.

Mason Hart is generally very busy on Saturday, but as soon as gray mule and buggy comes to town he says, "boys I must go Hunt (ing) or for Miss May."

W. P. Hopper says Miss Maggie don't look so good since he escorted her home from the hop.

The gentleman where I am boarding ask me to describe him to you all. The best I can say is that you have seen the pictures in the Almanac of those before and after taking and he is the after taking, although he is a real fine fellow.

I get awful lonesome here Sat. and Sun. but when I get the good, old reliable Ledger then I feel like I was back in good old Calloway with my many good friends. Because you know that the song says the hearts are the truest in Ky. Especially the girls hearts.

My school is getting along real well considering my number of pupils. I have everything to teach from the primer to the sixth reader and agriculture and domestic science included.

Good people read this and think while you are reading that I am out here killing Jack Rabbits, gnats and Mosquitos.

Good luck to all.

A Calloway Boy.

Fall Victim to Thieves.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala. has a justifiable grievance. Two thieves stole his health for 12 years, they were a liver and kidney trouble. Then Dr. King's New Life Pills throttled them. He's well now. Unrivalled for constipation, malaria, headache, dyspepsia. 25c at Dale & Stubblefield.

Outland District, Route 5.

The people on the east side of Calloway county wish to thank Mr. Charley Bradley for the kind favor shown to us by letting us put our horses and buggies in his lot on last Friday. If it had been lots of men they would have had a negro on top of the gate post hollering out, "five cents to hitch in this lot." But instead of that he said make yourself at home while here, and in return we want to say that this fall when quails get ripe, put your gun in your buggy, drive out here, put up your horse and make yourself at home. A VITTOR.

Miss Ruth Humphreys left last Sunday for Nashville where she will study the new things in millinery. She will be absent about two weeks.

BELCHER TOPS MARKET PRICE.

J. A. Belcher, association prizewinner at Almo, this week sold a hoghead of Calloway county tobacco on the Paducah market for $15 per hundred, giving to him the credit for receiving the highest price for a crop of tobacco grown in Western Kentucky and sold either through the association or independent. More than 250 hogheads were sold this week at Paducah by the association and the prices ranged from $8.75 to $15. Last week about the same amount was sold and the price ranged up to $14.50. The tobacco sold by Belcher was grown by Albert Futrell, east of Almo. Mr. Belcher and Mr. Futrell are both delighted with the results and have reasons to feel that the association is worth more to the people of the black patch than any other organization in the history of tobacco growing. It be hooves the people of the county to pledge their present growing crops, realizing that without the association no such prices could be maintained. A strong effort is now being made to get the growers to pledge the crop, and the Ledger again calls attention to the fact that the books close Sept. 1st. See your committeeman or call at the Ledger office and sign up at your first opportunity.

Hail Damages Crops.

W. L. Easter, a prominent farmer of near Clear Springs, was in the city Friday and his reports of the damage done to the growing crops by hail is appalling. He says the reports of the damage have not been exaggerated and that crops in some parts are a total loss. The damage to his crop is estimated at $1,000, there being fifteen acres of tobacco and forty acres of corn that was ruined. The leaves of the tobacco in some patches were entirely stripped from the stalks while the corn was battered and beaten in the ground. W. Y. Neely lost about half of his crop and also Henry Cope land, while Tom Emery had six acres of tobacco beaten to a pulp by the heavy hail—Mayfield Messenger.

Work was commenced the first of the week upon the new residence to be erected by Miss Eva Hale on the lot on Institute street opposite the residence of Mrs. N. T. Hale. A building was recently burned that stood on this property.

Residence Struck by Lightning.

Last Tuesday afternoon, while the storm was in progress, the residence of Dr. V. A. Stilley was struck by lightning, the roofing on one corner being badly torn out. The roof caught fire but the downpour of rain extinguished it and no damage was done. Mrs. Dr. Stilley was pretty severely shocked but soon recovered. Dr. Stilley was away from home at Paducah, and knew nothing of it until he arrived home. Benton-Tribune-Democrat.

Misses Fay and Maggie Houston left the first of the week for Fulton where they will be the guests of their brother for several days.

A Heart in Cold Storage

By JEANNE O. LOIZEAUX

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

"It was a hot August afternoon, and Sylvia Morrison, with a wan listless face, lifted her arms to re move her white hat. Her eyes avoid ed the eager face of the man who had come into the cool drawing room with her after their walk in the gar den. Her slim figure and dark, sad eyes had something tragic about them. Finally the man spoke.

"Sylvia—you don't treat me fair ly. It isn't as if I hadn't been patient."

"No—it isn't fair. I'll tell you in the morning. Won't you leave me now? I won't keep you waiting longer than that."

He turned and left her, and look ing after him she wished she loved him, wished she would love him real ly. She stood a moment and then went slowly up to her own room.

On the landing, resting a moment, she heard her elder sister's voice, and for sheer fascinated misery for got she was eaves-dropping. Janie was speaking to Nellie.

"Sylvia treats Lee Stevens badly; she should marry or dismiss him. What do you suppose ails her? Could it be John Morrison? You know he suddenly stopped coming here in March. I think it was. They came in from a walk one night—and he never came again. Somehow I have never dared ask her what happened."

Sylvia put her hands to her ears, fled noiselessly to her room, locked the door, and flung herself upon the bed.

As she lay miserably thinking of the past, she recalled that March walk. She was so sure he loved her—she was sure he was going to say so, but at a corner Tessie Clark, al ways where she wasn't wanted, joined them and stayed with them until John, with a final squeeze of Sylvia's arm, left her at the door.

She had ever since been unable to bear the sight of the fur coat she had worn. Then she recalled the next day.

Lee Stevens, whom she had known before John, had come to call on her; then they had gone out into the bright winter and down town for some tea—she was always kind to Lee; he did nicely for company when John was too busy to be with her. When they reached the tea room and were seated, she remem bered having a queer, sinking feel ing. She looked up and saw—who but John Morrison at a little table alone. He looked at her and she smiled brightly. Then he rose and walked over to her. She would never forget his words.

"Just why did you come here?"

"Why—because Lee asked me to."

Then John had laughed a strange little laugh, and bowed to Lee.

"You are sure you didn't come be cause I asked you?" She thought it must be one of his jokes, and tried to laugh.

"No," she had answered. "I only came with Lee."

John bowed again, and walked away. It was queer, but after that he had never come near her. She recalled the awful sinking of the heart, the wretched days and nights that followed.

Later, Nellie came to the door and called her to dinner, but she said she had a headache and would not go down. The good little sister wanted to come in, but was not ad mitted. She chatted a moment, then called out:

"Sylvia—I got your coat out of cold storage with mine today—thought you might like to have it made over. It's on your couch—look it over, and if you don't want it fixed I will have it sent back. Now go to sleep for your poor head."

But Sylvia sprang up, turned on the lights, and dragged the fur coat from its box. Half mechanically her hand slid into an outside pocket—and touched something stiff. Wonder ing, she drew out an envelope. It was still white and fresh, and her heart stopped. It was addressed to her, and—in John's bold handwriting. Still as in a dream, she tore it open and stood reading, while a flood of warm fire came over her. Oh, he had—he had loved her—even though it was too late now! She saw why he had acted so queerly at the tea room. She saw it all. She could not cease reading the letter:

"Dearest Sylvia:—

"You're always so surrounded that I can't get a word with you, so I am writing how I love you. I have loved you from the first minute, I believe. It takes few words to tell the real thing. But—I love you. I am rushed to death at the office, but if you can care, if you do care, come to the tea room and meet me tomor row afternoon at three, and I shall at least see you, and know, and be able to wait until I can get to you in the blessed evening. Somehow I do feel that I am to be—how happy! Will you come? Write me a note and say you will, but come anyway. John."

That was all. He had slipped it into her pocket, sure that she would find it—and she never had!

After standing for a long while, in the glaring light, a sort of cold white decision came over the girl. It was—too late now, but anyhow John Morrison should not think her guilty of such heartlessness as she had appeared to show. She would write a note to him. She set down and wrote:

"In looking over my old fur coat I just found the letter you wrote me last March. I had not seen it before. I know you will believe me and forgive me. By tomorrow I shall have promised to marry Lee Stevens. Sylvia Morrison."

It was a horrid note, but she could not help it. It was here-true-ly. It killed her pride to write it at all, but he should know how it was. He should not think she still cared, but he should know that she had been fair. She finished the note, sealed it, and slipped down into the twilight and found a boy who gladly ran the dozen blocks to John's house for the dollar she offered.

But she had not counted on John Morrison. A bare half hour later Nellie came to her door.

"Sylvia," she said, "John Morri son is here. I told him you were ill, but he says he will see you even if you are dead. He is following me upstairs—what shall I do?"

Sylvia rose and opened the door, but she had no time to speak. John reached his long arm past Nellie and pulled Sylvia boldly into the hall. He looked at Nellie.

"Don't go for a minute, Nellie. Sylvia," he said, holding her arm until it hurt, "do you love Lee Stevens?" He waited for her, but somehow she was unable to lie to him. She knew her own heart so well by now. "Do you love him—or me?" She looked at him pitifully, and he saw how it was. He laughed a tender little laugh.

"You can go now—if you want to, Nellie," he said. And Nellie went as fast as she could. There in the dim hall John caught Sylvia in his arms and held her close while she cried quietly with her face against his rough coat.

CHINESE BELLS.

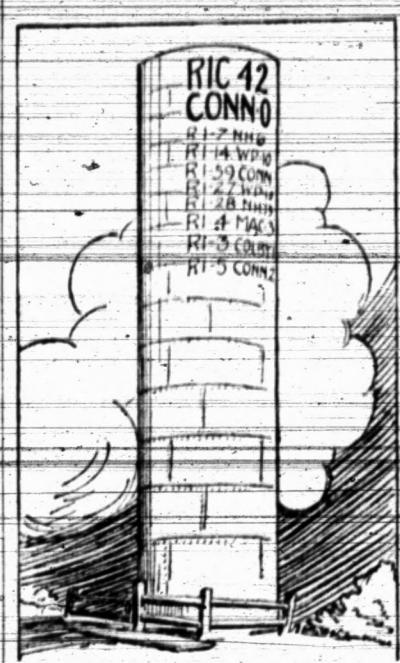

The natives of China use large bells of their own make in many of their temples and monasteries. I have noticed all through Japan and China that the tone of the monastery and temple bells is very soft and smooth, due to the superior quality of the material used in their manu facture and to the absence of iron clappers, the result being a mar velous softness of tone. The bells are never swung, being always suspended in a fixed frame, and the sound is produced by striking them on the outer edge with a wooden mallet. This makes the soft tones which are so delightfully melodious. Consular Reports.

NOVEL FOOTBALL TOTEM TANK

Method Adopted by a Rhode Island College Team to Record Grid-iron Victories.

Providence, R. I.—The illustration shows the novel method adopted by the football team of the Rhode Island college to record their victories. Be fore this, in their previous seasons, they covered everything on which they could write with such records, not only on the college grounds, but also throughout the country for a radius of several miles. This often resulted in the college authorities having to pay damages to the owners of the properties thus defaced.

A compromise was then brought about with the students by which they were given the privilege of recording such victories upon the most conspic uous place within the college grounds. This tank was finally decided upon, the figures being replaced every time the tank receives a fresh coat of paint.

A MONUMENT TO CHAMPLAIN

Lighthouse in Memory of Explorer to Be Erected on Shores of Lake Champlain.

Burlington, Vt.—A beautiful light house commemorative of Champlain is being erected on Crown point, Lake Champlain. A lighthouse stands on Crown point, and it is necessary that this tower should be removed before building the new one. It is also nec essary to leave the glass light cham ber of the tower suspended in the air. This will require very delicate en gineering.

Crown point is near the southern end of Lake Champlain and visible from both shores. It is in sight of two ancient batteries and not far from the ruins of Forts Frederick and Amherst, which date from 1731 to 1756. The very beautiful decorative lighthouse will be of white granite with a bronze group on the front.

The Champlain Memorial.

This group will be a statue of Cham plain with an Indian on one side and a guide on the other, and directly be low will be the bow of a canoe. The monument will be dedicated in 1912.

STAKE TURTLES TO GET RAIN

Plan Adopted by the Creek Indian Tribe in Oklahoma. Followed by Showers.

Wetumka, Okla.—Creek Indians in this vicinity are resorting to ancient tribal customs in an attempt to ob tain a rainfall. One of their customs, which has been followed, is to stake mud turtles on the edge of a stream just far enough from the water so that they cannot reach it. It is the In dians' belief that the turtles, despair ing of their attempts to reach the water, invoke the aid of the "great spirit" to send rain, so that the stream will be raised and brought near them. Since the turtles were staked out several rains have fallen. The Indians believe their prayers are answered and are fastening up more turtles to pray for a still greater rainfall.

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suf fered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could not had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On ad vice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vege table Compound and Liver Pills and an enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more.

I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it.—Mrs. Orlin Woodruff, Morton's Gap, Kentucky. Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

In Seculsion.
"Is your mistress at home?"
"Are you the manicure lady?"
"No, indeed."
"Then she ain't at home, mum."

The Fly.
"Where one earth do these flies come from?" is a frequent and de spairing question.

They may come down the chimneys, if the fireplaces have tipping dampers. These should be tightly closed in fly time. An appreciable falling off in their number will be the result.

If the chimneys have not the tip ping dampers, a screen such as is used for a window can be fitted into the fireplace, or, easier still, a bundle of paper may be stuffed up the chimney.

Either method is successful, and no trouble is too great to get rid of these summer pests.

AT THE PARSONAGE.
Coffee Runs Riot No Longer.

"Wife and I had a serious time of it while we were coffee drinkers. She had gastritis, headaches, belch ing and would have periods of sick ness, while I secured a daily headache that became chronic.

"We naturally sought relief by drugs without avail, for it is now plain enough that no drug will cure the dis eases another drug (coffee) sets up. Fortunately, so long as the drug which causes the trouble is continued.

"Finally we thought we would try leaving off coffee and using Postum. I noticed that my headaches disappeared like magic, and my old trembly nerves left. One day wife said, 'Do you know my gastritis has gone?'

"One can hardly realize what Post um has done for us.

"Then we began to talk to others. Wife's father and mother were both coffee drinkers and sufferers. Their headaches left entirely after a short time after they changed from coffee to Postum.

"I began to enquire among my parish ioners and found to my astonish ment, that numbers of them use Post um in place of coffee. Many of the head aches left entirely after a short time after they changed from coffee to Postum.

PANIC NOT MADE FOR BANKS' RUIN

PERKINS, STEEL TRUST DIRECTOR SAYS SUCH CHARGE IS WITHOUT BASIS.

CORPORATIONS WARNING

Standard Oil Decision is a Severe Lesson, Says Morgan's Partner — Thinks Time for Action at Hand.

Washington, Aug. 11.—George W. Perkins, director of the United States Steel corporation testifying before the house steel trust investigating committee created a stir when he jumped to his feet and branded as false a charge that the panic of 1907 had been started to ruin certain banks.

Representative Bartlett asked Mr. Perkins whether such was not the case, and the New York financier was on his feet in a second, saying: "Such a charge is absolutely false. There is not a scintilla of truth in it."

The government's separation of the Standard Oil company into 33 parts, Mr. Perkins declared, was certainly a warning to corporations. He suggested that something should be done to relieve the present conditions under which, he contended, corporations could not continue to exist.

Representative Bartlett of Georgia questioned Mr. Perkins regarding the purchase of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co.

"You stated the other day, Mr. Perkins," said Mr. Bartlett, "that the three concerns in New York principally involved at the time of the transfer of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. were the Trust Company of America, the Lincoln Trust company and the firm of Moore & Schley?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you not in your testimony before the judiciary committee of the senate two years ago refer to only one particular firm as being in trouble?"

"My examination there was very brief. It was not complete enough to bring out all the details."

"Were you not given an opportunity to make a full statement?"

"I tried to make a full statement, but the examination was confined chiefly to the actual details of the taking over of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. by the steel corporation."

"Did you not confine your testimony before that committee to the individual or firm and not refer to the trust companies or banks?"

"That senate inquiry was almost a technical one about the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. They didn't go outside of it."

STRIKE MAY TEST POWER

Officials Say Walkout Is Planned as Demonstration of Strength of Federation.

The action of the Harriman lines in refusing wage increases, it is said, was followed by the heads of other railroads. The informal conference among western railroad officials on the subject of the strike are being continued.

Leader of Tennessee Troops, Lawyer and Congressman, Succumbs in Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 11.—General George W. Gordon, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans and member of congress, died at his home here. His illness dated from his last political campaign, when he was re-elected to the national house of representatives, the last general of the confederacy to serve in that body.

General Gordon was chosen commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans at the reunion of 1910 at Mobile, Ala., and was re-elected last May.

When the southern states seceded he enlisted in the Eleventh Infantry, Tennessee Guards, and was made drill master. Soon he was transferred to service in the Confederate army and promoted to the rank of captain.

General Gordon participated in every engagement fought by his command, with the exception of one at Bentonville, North Carolina, he being a prisoner of war at Fort Warren at that time.

LONDON SUFFERS FOR FOOD SUPPLIES

BEER SENT IN PASSENGER TRAINS FROM LIVERPOOL WHERE TROOPS DO DUTY.

125,000 MEN ON STRIKE

Table Supplies Not in Ships and Thames Literally Blocked with Vessels—No Relief in Sight.

London, Aug. 11.—That all London, with its 6,000,000 population, will have to walk unless the great transportation strike is settled within 48 hours, is predicted, and a food famine is considered inevitable.

The strike spread to carters, freight handlers and teamsters at all railway stations, and to others employed in the handling and transportation of freight. 25,000 men going out. A conservative estimate places the number of strikers and those indirectly thrown out of work at 120,000, but there are constant accessions. Affiliated unions either are walking out in sympathetic support or are present in sympathy with the strikers.

Motor bus traffic is paralyzed. The supply of petrol is running low and there is only half service. All motor bus service, on which London is so dependent, will be at a standstill soon.

Thousands of tons of food supplies are rotting in ships on the Thames, the vessels being unable to dock. Prices of meats and other provisions are soaring. In many instances they are going up 100 per cent. The Thames is fairly blocked with vessels.

Large Markets Fail to Open. Numerous large markets failed to open, as their supplies were exhausted. Dealers appealed to cab drivers to make deliveries where need of food was urgent, but were refused.

Many turbulent scenes marked the strike. Mail wagons, escorted by heavy detachments of police, were the center of disorder. Clashes between strikers and the police began with daybreak and continued all day. At noon mounted police surrounded Paddington station, which had been blocked by throngs of strikers. The temper of the workmen became uglier as the day grew. The police used to cope with the situation.

Home Secretary Winston Churchill has under consideration urgent appeals made to call out troops to assist the police.

Reciprocal Postal Rate Refused. Melbourne, Australia, Aug. 11.—The United States government has declined the Australian proposal for a reciprocal 2-cent postage arrangement. The question of 2-cent postage with the United States has been the subject of an agitation since the discontinuance of the mail service between Australian ports and San Francisco.

FOREIGN SPIES IN UNITED STATES

OFFENDERS GETTING SO BOLD THAT MOST TRIVIAL CLEWS ARE NOW INVESTIGATED.

NEW LAW IS IN EFFECT

Severe Punishment Provided—Drawings of Philippine Fort Picked Up in Calcutta—Others Found Elsewhere.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Startling evidence of the pernicious activity of foreign spies in the possession of the army general staff, which accounts for the serious consideration that is now being given to the discovery of the military secrets of the country.

Some of these incidents are of comparatively recent date. It was upon the submission of such information to a secret session of the judicial committee of the house that legislation was obtained at the last session of congress providing for the severe punishment of spies in time of peace.

An Englishman in Calcutta picked up in the streets a small package of blue prints showing every detail of the defenses of Corregidor Island, the main stronghold of the United States in the Philippines.

The prints were not copies of any drawings or charts prepared for use of the United States, but were evidently the result of a careful and deliberate investigation of the official and confidential records of the United States.

The existence of the blue prints made it evident that there were other copies in existence. The Englishman sent the papers to the war department here, but the most careful investigation failed to discover the means by which the information had been obtained.

A waiter in a Seattle hotel was found to be a foreign officer in disguise possessing many drawings and notes he had made of the Pacific coast defenses.

An American ambassador notified the state department that a certain captain belonging to the army of the country where he was stationed had been detailed to spend three years secretly investigating the American countries and studying their military conditions.

Even the Panama canal has not escaped. One of the engineers found a foreign officer, an attaché to one of the American countries, secretly studying the canal from a strategic standpoint and he understood that there were six or seven other officers of the same nationality in the United States gathering military information.

A New York policeman arrested an American for a trivial offense and found in his trunk military maps and information which convinced the officials that he was in the employ of a foreign government.

MINERS BACK TO WORK

Two Thousand in Indiana Fields Get Arbitration Orders and Will Resume Operations.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 11.—Two thousand Indiana miners who have been on strike two months will return to work, following a settlement made by International President John P. White of the United Mine Workers of America and President H. N. Taylor of the Illinois coal mine operators.

The strike at the mine of the S. W. Little company, near Evansville, which was caused by the discharge of a pump man, the arbitrators find the company was justified in relieving the man from duty and direct he be put back to work without any compensation for the time lost.

In the Coal Bluff Mining company dispute operation is ordered resumed at once, and the conditions of labor complained of will be settled by the next joint scale convention.

In the strike at the Jackson Hill Coal and Coke company's mine the right of the concern to require miners to work double width in wide entries is sustained. The latter mines are near Clinton, Ind.

DEATH FROM AN ACCIDENT

Coroner's Jury Finds Inane Patient Died from Accidental Strangulation in Strightjacket.

St. Louis, Aug. 11.—Accidental death by strangulation was the verdict of the coroner's jury in the inquest into the death of Eva Jarzouvek, 40 years old, who was a patient at the city sanitarium.

FORM SUNLIGHT TRUST

PROMOTERS OF SUN ELECTRICITY HELD BY COURT.

More Than $1,000,000 Worth of Stock Sold to Investors in New Project.

New York, Aug. 11.—Just because A. D. Tinsley of Concordia, Kan., invented a simple little invention for generating electricity by the sun's rays, George H. Cook, president of the Sun Electric Generator Co., an alleged inventor of sunshine electricity, and Ellsworth Burlingame, stock selling agent of the company, were taken before United States Commissioner Shields and held in $2500 and $5000 bail respectively for examination Oct. 10.

The Sunshine Electric Generator Co. is a $5,000,000 Arizona corporation with offices at 118 Maiden Lane. It claims to have a main plant at Baltimore, and demonstration plants in several cities, including New York.

Postoffice inspectors found that the company has several machines on the top of skyscrapers in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New Orleans.

These machines consist of a large frame of glass prisms, behind which are combinations of lead and tin. It is the claim of the company that the sun shining upon this framework generates electricity at a rate sufficient to light a large building if the sun shines one day a week.

Investors, it is said, were taken to one of the exhibition plants and shown how rapidly electricity was generated. It looked so good that more than $1,000,000 of the stock of the company has been sold, the condition always being made, it is alleged, that no attempt should be made to dispose of it for two years.

Inspector Bittsley, who swore out the warrants for the arrests, alleged that the electricity used in demonstration of the machines comes from batteries connected with the machines by secret wires.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 11.—Admiral Count Togo, who arrived here, made a formal call on Mayor Rayburn at the city hall on schedule time, the mayor returning the visit a half hour later to the minute, and the Japanese was then promptly whisked away in an automobile to the Philadelphia navy yard. There he was the guest of Capt. A. W. Grant, the commandant.

Later the distinguished Japanese was scheduled to visit the yards of Cramps and the New York Shipbuilding Co., on the Delaware river. Admiral Togo has looked forward anticipantly to that part of his program, as he has been particularly desirous of inspecting the yards, where one or two of Japan's warships have been built.

SUITS HIT THE BIG FOUR

United States Attorney Charges Forty Violations of Sixteen-Hour Labor Law.

Danville, Ill., Aug. 11.—William E. Trautmann, United States district attorney for the eastern district of Illinois, said eight suits with five counts each had been filed against the Big Four railway at Danville for 40 violations of the federal law governing the hours of continuous service of employees of interstate railroads. The suits, Trautmann said, will be tried in East St. Louis at the November term of the federal court.

Mr. Trautmann said that few, if any, of the many actions against railroads for violations of the 16-hour service law had been successful. Most railroads, he said, have paid their fines promptly. The cases filed against the Big Four, he said, would, if proved, result in fines aggregating $40,000.

MULE RECEIVES A LEGACY

Wealthy Farmer Provides in Will for Proper Care of Faithful Animal.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 11.—James English, a wealthy farmer, who died in Shelby county, near Memphis, in his will, which was probated provided for an old gray mule, Jennie, the only property he owned when he came to Shelby county 15 years ago, a poor man.

One of the provisions says: "My heir must keep the mule, Jennie, until she dies, not ride her nights, feed her well and provide a good stable. He must not work her in the day time. I bequeath $1000 to pay for this."

Roller Towels in Ordinance

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 11.—The old roller towel, the slippery elm towel, the old common towel that hangs by the well or the sink, or the washstand, was given a stay of execution by the health department. These towels were abolished by ordinance as a sanitary measure and were due to join the drinking cup in exile, but it was found that the property interests involved were so large, amounting to $2,000,000, that more time was necessary to allow adjustment to the new condition.

8. That we shall endeavor to grade our schools according to the State course of study, and shall graduate our pupils from the eighth grade, that they may enter the County High School, and other high schools.

Nervous Prostration For Three Years

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine cured me of a period of nervous prostration of over three years duration, and the Anti-Pain Pills are as necessary to us as the roof of our house. They have been household remedies with us for many years."

Much sickness is due to nervous troubles. Headache, dizziness, epilepsy and insanity are nervous troubles. Then there is a large class of disorders which arise from a weakness of the nerves of an organ or part, as weak lungs, heart, stomach, kidney, bladder, rectum, etc. Dyspepsia and indigestion are usually the result of nervous disorders.

Restorative Nervine soothes the irritated nerves, and assists the nerve cells to generate nerve force.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit your drooping will return your money. MILES MEDICAL CO., SHILOH, IND.

FLIES have no use for a Westinghouse Electric Fan—they are as helpless in the air currents which it produces as a bi-plane in a hurricane. No matter what tempting morsels your table affords, turn the button that starts the fan and every last fly will vanish.

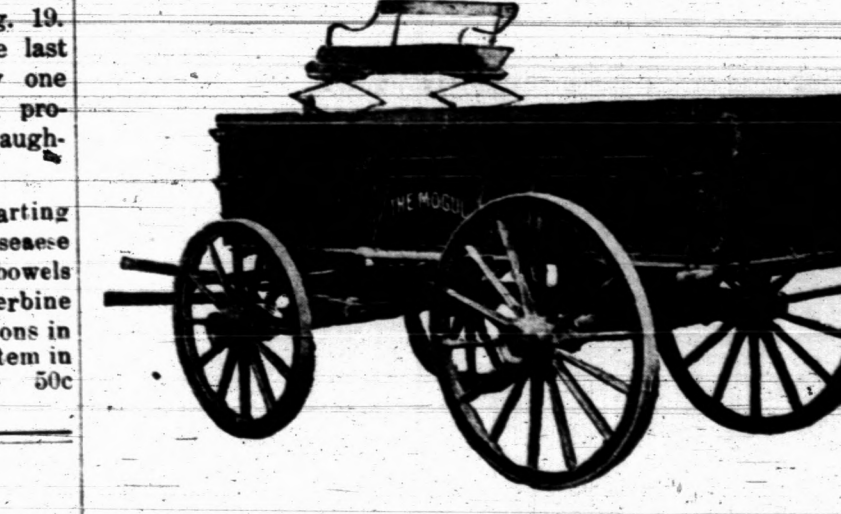

That's one reason why the larger sizes of Westinghouse Fans are used in all the best restaurants and why you should have a little Westinghouse Fan in your home. Another reason is solid comfort. You find the air currents that are shunned by the flies very agreeable and refreshing on a hot day.

You use the fan in the dining room at meal time and in the kitchen before and after, then in the living room, then on the porch, then in the bedroom. It is always in demand somewhere. Keep it going all day—from 2 o'clock in the evening till 12 at night, and the cost for current will be between two and three cents. Pretty cheap comfort, is it not? Telephone for one to-day.

Misses Christine and Mamie Whitnell were thrown from their buggy Wednesday night while returning to their home from church and fell under a wagon which passes completely over their bodies. It seems a miracle that both were not seriously injured but Thursday they were reported as without serious injury and were only slightly bruised. They were in a pony trap and in endeavoring to pass around the wagon which contained ten or a dozen persons also returning from church, the vehicle was overturned and they were thrown under the wagon which passed over their bodies before it could be stopped.

DO YOU NEED A WAGON?

A Wagon Built of Hickory Axles, Oak Hubs, White Oak Spokes, Heavy Oak Felloes, and in Fact Out of First Class Material Throughout.

DOUGHT TO BE A GOOD WAGON.

And this is the reason that the Mogul stands in the first row. Improved skein now used on this wagon insures light draft, and the material used in the wagon insures the maximum carrying capacity. Buy a Mogul, you won't regret it. And the price is right. A new car just received.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS
By RANDALL PARISH
Author of MY LADY OF THE SOUTH
WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING
ILLUSTRATIONS BY DEANBORN NELSON

SYNOPSIS.

Jack Keith, a Virginian, now a horseman, is riding along the Santa Fe trail on the lookout for roaming war parties of savages. He notices a camp of a distance and then sees a team attached to a wagon and at full gallop pursued by men on ponies. When Keith reaches the wagon the raiders have massacred two men and departed. He searches the victims' pockets and finds a letter and a woman's portrait. He resolves to hunt down the murderers.

The trail, continually skirting the high bluff and bearing farther away from the river, turned sharply into a narrow ravine. There was a considerable break in the rocky barrier here, leading back for perhaps a hundred yards, and the plainsman turned his horse that way, dismounting when out of sight among the boulders. He could rest here until night with little danger of discovery. He lay down on the rocks, pilowing his head on the saddle, but his brain was too active to permit sleeping. Finally he drew the letters from out his pocket, and began examining them. They yielded very little information, those taken from the older man having no envelopes to show to whom they had been addressed. The single document found in the pocket of the other was a memorandum of account at the Pioneer Store at Tpeka, charged to John Sibley, and marked paid. This then must have been the younger man's name, as the letters to the other began occasionally "Dear Will." They were missives such as a wife might write to a husband long absent, yet upon a mission of deep interest to both. Keith could not fully determine what this mission might be, as the persons evidently understood each other so thoroughly that mere allusion took the place of detail. Once the name Phyllis was mentioned, and once a "Fred" was also referred to, but in neither instance clearly enough to reveal the relationship, although the latter appeared to be pleaded for. Certain references caused the belief that these letters had been mailed from some small Missouri town, but no name was mentioned. They were invariably signed "Mary." The only other paper Keith discovered was a brief itinerary of the Santa Fe trail extending as far west as the Raton Mountains, giving the usual camping spots and places where water was accessible. He slipped the papers back into his pocket with a distinct feeling of disappointment, and lay back staring up at the little strip of blue sky. The silence was profound, even his horse seemed motionless, and finally he fell asleep.

The sun had disappeared, and even the gray of twilight was fading out of the sky, when Keith returned again to consciousness, aroused by his horse rolling on the soft turf. He awoke thoroughly refreshed, and eager to get away on his long night's ride. A cold lunch, hastily eaten, for a fire would have been dangerous, and he saddled up and was off, trotting out of the narrow ravine and into the broad trail, which could be followed without difficulty under the dull gleam of the stars. Horse and rider were soon at their best, the animal winging urged into the long, easy lope of prairie travel, the fresh air fanning the man's face as he leaned forward. Once they halted to drink from a narrow stream, and then pushed on, hour after hour, through the deserted night. Keith had little fear of Indian raiders in that darkness, and every stir of his horse brought him closer to the settlements and further removed from danger. Yet eyes and ears were alert to every shadow and sound. Once, it must have been after midnight, he drew his pony sharply back into a rock shadow at the noise of something approaching from the east. The stage to Santa Fe rattled past, the four mules trotting swiftly, a squad of troopers riding hard behind. It was merely a lumpy shadow sweeping swiftly past; he could perceive the dim outlines of driver and guard, the soldiers swaying in their saddles, heard the pounding of hoofs, the creak of axles, and then the apparition disappeared into the black void. He had not called out—what was the use? Those people would never pause to hunt down prairie outlaws, and their guard was sufficient to prevent attack. They acknowledged but one duty—to get the mail through on time.

The dust of their passing still in the air, Keith rode on, the noise dying away in his rear. As the hours passed, his horse warred and led to be spurred, into the swifter stride, but the man seemed tireless. The sun was an hour high when they climbed the long hill and loomed into Carson City. The cantonment was to the right, but Keith, having no report to make, rode directly ahead down the one long street to a livery corral, leaving his horse there, and bought the nearest restaurant.

Exhausted by a night of high play and deep drinking, the border town was sleeping off its debauch, saloons and gambling dens silent, the streets almost deserted. To Keith, whose former acquaintance with the place had been entirely after nightfall, the view of it now was almost a shock—the miserable shacks, the gaudy saloon fronts, the littered streets, the dingy, unpainted hotel, the dirty flap of canvas, the uncoupled road, the dull prairie sweeping away to the horizon, all composed a hideous picture beneath the sun glare. He could scarcely find a man to attend his horse, and at the restaurant a drowsy Chinaman had to be shaken awake, and frightened into serving him. He sat down to the miserable meal oppressed with disgust—never before had his life seemed so mean, useless, utterly without excuse.

Life possessed the appetite of the open, of the normal man in perfect physical health, and he ate heartily, his eyes wandering out of the open window down the long, dismal street. A drunken man lay in front of the "Red Light" saloon, sleeping undisturbed; two cur dogs were snarling at each other just beyond over a bone; a movers' wagon was slowly coming in across the open through a cloud of yellow dust. That was all within the radius of vision. For the first time in years the East called him—the old life of cleanliness and respectability. He swore to himself as he tossed the Chinaman pay for his breakfast, and strode out onto the steps. Two men were coming up the street together, from the opposite direction—one lean, dark-skinned, with black goatee, the other heavily set with closely trimmed gray beard. Keith knew the latter, and waited, leaning against the door, one hand on his hip.

"Hullo, Bob," he said genially, "they must have routed you out pretty early today."

"They shore did, Jack," was the response. He came up the steps somewhat heavily, his companion stopping below. "The boys raise hell all night, an' then come ter me ter straighten 'em out in the mornin'." When did ye get in?

"An hour ago; had to wake the 'chink' up to get any chuck. Town looks dead."

"Tain't over lively at this time o' day," permitting his blue eyes to wander up the silent street, but instantly bringing them back to Keith's face, "but I reckon it'll wake up later on."

The color mounted into the cheeks of the other, his lips grew red and white, and his gray eyes darkened. "Let it all out, Marshal," he said sternerly, "you've got me roped and tied. Now what's the charge?"

Neither man moved, but the one below swung about so as to face them, one hand thrust out of sight beneath the tail of his long coat.

"Sure, I know you're square, Hicks," he said coolly. "And now I've unlimbered, kindly inform me what this is all about."

"I reckon ye don't know," he said. "No more than I do, but I reckon I'll tell ye. You see, I've been here but an hour."

"That's it; if ye had been longer that wouldn't be no trouble. You wanted for killin' a couple o' men out at Cimmaron Crossin' early yesterday mornin'."

Keith stared at him too completely astounded for the instant to even speak. Then he gasped.

"For God's sake, Hicks, do you believe I'm a murderer?"

"I'm damned if I know," returned the marshal, doubtfully. "Don't seem like ye'd do it, but the evidence is straight nough, an' that ain't nothin' for me ter do but take ye in. I ain't no judge'n jury."

"No, but you ought to have ordinary sense, an' you're known me for three years."

from the steady gaze of the marshal, who had half-drawn his gun, fearing resistance, to the man at the bottom of the steps. Suddenly it dawned upon him where he had seen that dark-skinned face, with the black goatee, before—at the faro table of the "Red Light." He gripped his hands together, instantly connecting, that sneering, sinister face with the plot. "Who swore out that warrant?" "I did, if you need to know," a sarcastic smile revealing a gleam of white teeth, "on the affidavit of others, friends of mine."

"Who are you?" "I'm mostly called 'Black Bart.' That was it; he had the name now. 'Black Bart.' He straightened up so angrily, his corners blinding, that the marshal jerked his gun clear.

"See here, Jack," shortly, "are ye goin' to raise a row, or come along quietly?"

As though the words had aroused him from a bad dream, Keith turned to front the stern, bearded face.

"There'll be no row, Bob," he said, quietly. "I'll go with you."

JEW IN PLACE OF POWER

As Governor of Egypt, Sir Matthew Nathan Would Occupy Position Once Held by Joseph.

Should Sir Matthew Nathan, former governor of Natal, be appointed to succeed Sir Eldon Gorst as governor of Egypt, history will have taken one of those curious turns that set acrobats' balances of signs and omens, for this appointment, that is pending would place in supreme administrative control of Egypt the second Jew in four thousand years.

Sir Matthew Nathan would be the successor to Joseph of his race in the administration of a country that in the time of Pharaoh, who befriended Joseph, was the granary of the world, and in these later days is becoming one of the most significant countries of modern times.

Those who con the sacred scriptures for cues for the turns history may make will seize upon this incident as fulfilling one or another prediction or fancied prediction of the past, and much may be built upon it. In fact, it will be but a coincidence, but one of unusual interest, however.

The practical import will be that Sir Matthew Nathan is reckoned a fine administrator and worthy of all honor.

An Incentive. "Now, my boy," said the head of the firm, "if you will attend strictly to your duties I will do something fine for you. I want you to always ask when you answer the telephone, who it is before you let it be known whether I am here or not, and always be careful, when the people come here, to find out who they are and what they want before you come into the private office to learn whether I wish to see them or not."

"Yes, sir," replied the new office boy, "I understand. I had to do that where I worked before."

"Very well. See that you make no mistakes, and as I have said, I will do something fine for you. What are your duties?" "What are your duties?" "What are your duties?" "What are your duties?"

Universal Race Congress. In the official call for the first universal race congress, suggested by Prof. Felix Adler, at Eisenach, in July, 1906, the president, Lord Wearmouth, says: "Great is the historic pride of London. Great also is its manifold tragedies of equality and poverty. This varied story will be distinguished in the summer of 1911 (July 26-29), by an episode both brilliant and unexampled. In London will assemble mankind in council. Representatives of all human groups will come from the four quarters, and lands that lie under the southern cross will meet each other in friendly intercourse, in the 'First Universal Race' congress. The official congress languages will be English, German, Italian and French, though an oriental tongue may now and then announce the soul of Asia."

No Dust, No Light. Diffusion of light through the atmosphere is due to thousands of millions of dust atoms floating in it. The finest dust floats highest, and imparts the tint of blue to the heavens. Were it not for dust the sky by day would appear black, and the moon and stars would be visible. All shadows would then by tiny black. Everything would appear differently. It is not the light we see, but simply reflections caused by the dust of dust, as when a ray of sunlight enters a dark room, through a hole in the shutters. Millions of dust particles catch the light, reflecting it back and forth, from one another, so making the atmosphere so silicious.

SURF RIDING IS FINE

KANAKA STANDS AMIDST THE SWIFT RUNNING WAVES.

Jack London's Vivid Description of This South Sea Amusement as Practiced at Waikiki Beach.

Much has been written about the native sport of surfing in the South seas, but the following description from London's "Cruise of the Shark," is novel and very vivid. The locality referred to is Waikiki beach, near Honolulu.

The trees grow right down to the salty edges of things, and one sits in their shade and looks seaward at a majestic surf thundering in on the beach to one's very feet. Half a mile out, where is the reef, the white head-lands combers thrust suddenly skyward out of the placid turquoise blue and come rolling in to shore.

And suddenly, out there where a big smoker lifts skyward, rising like a seagull from out of the welter of smoke and churning white, on the giddy, toppling, overhanging and downfelling, precarious crest appears the dark head of a man. Swiftly he rises through the rushing white. His black shoulders, his chest, his loins, his limbs—all is abruptly projected on one's vision. Where but the moment before was only the wide desolation and invincible roar, is now a man, erect, full statured, not struggling frantically in that wild movement, not hurried and crushed and buffeted by those mighty monsters, but standing above them all, calm and superb, poised on the giddy summit, his feet buried in the churning foam, the salt smoke rising to his knees, and all the rest of him in the free air and flashing sunlight, and he is flying through the air, flying forward, flying fast as the surge on which he stands. He is a Mercury—a brown Mercury. His heels are winged, and in them is the swiftness of the sea. In truth from out of the sea he has leaped upon the back of the sea, and he is riding the sea that roars and bellows and cannot shake him from its back. But no frantic outreaching and balancing is his. He is impassive, motionless as a statue carved suddenly by some miracle out of the sea's depths from which he rose. And straight on toward shore he flies on his winged heels and the white crest of the breaker. There is a wild burst of foam, a long multitudinous rushing sound as the breaker falls full and spent at your feet; and there, at your feet steps calmly ashore a Kanaka.

Green Turtles of Indian Ocean. Concerning the great turtles of the Southwest Indian ocean a traveler says: "The chelonian, or green turtle (Chelone mydas), is an animal of considerable economic importance to the settler, for it still occurs in the vast herds which are so often described by early voyagers in the tropics. There appear to be two distinct groups—one resident and small in numbers, the other migratory and visiting the atoll to breed in numbers impossible to estimate."

The latter arrives in December, and from then to April the sea seems alive with turtle. The females seek the small sand beaches and then ascend them with the rising tide, pushing themselves laboriously above high tide mark. Holes are then dug in the sand by means of the fore flippers until a satisfactory one is obtained, and the eggs, 200 in number, are buried. The turtle returning to sea immediately.

"After forty days the eggs hatch, almost simultaneously, and the young turtles dig their way up out of the sand and down to the sea in a long and slow line in the course of which they offer an easy prey to their enemies, the frigate birds and herons. Once in the sea sharks and other large fish eat them, and only 10 per cent reach maturity."

Smoke Disipated. The practical way to obviate the annoyance of smoke is to dissipate it before it leaves the chimney by top in a gaseous volume. A German professor believes he has found a way to secure this result without chemical or mechanical aid.

Described in Die Umschau, the professor's chimney is perforated on all sides by what might be called little horizontal windows. As the furnace smoke and gases rise they are mixed with air, both before and after emergence, by the eddy forming action of the wind passing through the openings.

From the time the smoke enters the chimney and reaches the height of the lower openings, which receive the wind from any quarter, the intermingling begins, and in each stage of its upward movement the volume becomes less and less. At the mouth of the chimney the outpour is comparatively small and so diffused with air that only a sheet of dark blue smoke waving like a flag to the leeward is seen, where, under other conditions, there would be a cloudlike column of dense black smoke a mile long.

Chimneys constructed on the professor's plan look not unlike windowed towers.

A Cool Costume. Rather startling is the announcement in a seaside paper that "at shoes are very much worn this summer. Mounds of the collages were nothing else." A pair of trousers certainly makes a very cool costume.

A WALKING SKELETON.

Worn Out and Prostrated with Terrible Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Margaret Cook, North Market St., Logan, Ohio, says: "It is almost impossible to describe my sufferings. My back ached constantly and so awful was the bearing down pain that I could scarcely drag myself about. Kidney secretions were in terrible condition and pains through my head, were so intense I could scarcely refrain from screaming. I could not sleep, was nervous and lost flesh so rapidly I looked like a walking skeleton. I doctored all the time but had begun to think there was no help for me. Then I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and was entirely cured. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me a new lease of life."

Cruel Disappointment. Jugund tells this story: "In the lower court of a small town in Saxony William had served faithfully and well as attendant to the presiding judge for many years without ever having received any reward aside from his legal stipend. On the day of adjournment for the season, when visitors had retired, the judge, who was also about to leave, asked: 'William, do you smoke?' Seeing a square box under the judge's arm, he answered respectfully: 'Yes, your honor.' 'I knew it by the smell of your coat,' said the judge, as he walked out."

A New Allment. Mother was sick, and Janet, four years old, had heard the doctor say that she had plumaine poisoning. A short time later Janet was heard confiding to one of her playmates: "Mamma's sick. She's got plumaine poisoning."

Better Go On, Boys. Beishazzar saw the writing on the wall. "It means your wife will be home on the 9-22 and you had better begin to wash up all the dishes," advised the interpreter. Herewith a distinct gloom was cast over the banquet.

Important to Mothers. Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Fitch. In Use For Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria.

Original "Hello Bill." William G. Meyers, who died in Philadelphia, Pa., January 7, 1911, is said to have been the original "Hello Bill" of the Fraternal Order of E. S. From the Magazine of American History.

OPPORTUNITY

Is the Hand that Offers to the Ambitious a Chance.

HERE in Murray lives a man, who late conceived ideas by which yet may fetch to this proud South Land, the long hoped for wonder of the cotton patch.

His ideas were well founded, having conceived the thought, he dreamed no more, rather forged his ideas into that more practical, built a crude piece of machinery, set it together, had it patented, thence to St. Louis he took it and had a perfect working model made, and now his name is fast becoming a household word where ever a stock of cotton is grown.

Why? Because this "Cotton Chopper and Scraper" combined does the work of 10 men at $1.25 per day (each) chopping cotton and at the same time scrapes both sides of the row all at one time. To see it working is to but wonder the conceptive power of village blacksmith. The inventor is William D. Osbron. Some of the largest implement people representing the stupendous wealth of present day employment on labor saving farm machinery have had their agents here to see and to examine this wonderful piece of farm machinery.

In St. Louis, Mo., beginning the week of September 11th next, there is to be the first yet ever held "Exposition of Patents" in the country, at the Coliseum where a display of all known patents and labor saving devices, embracing every known thing belonging to the uses of the soil. This is to be a day here and on this occasion millionaire and mendicant will rub shoulder to shoulder. The poor will be there to show his genius, the rich for the purpose of buying. Now these are days of "doubting thomases," and the atmosphere is full of "Get Rich Quick" grafts. Yet with common sense people 'tis even easier to make Missourians (by showing them) than to deceive the wayfarer.

We want every man in Calloway county to be at W. D. Osbron's shop on Saturday, the 18th day of this month, at 2 o'clock P. M. to witness a free display and demonstration of what is believed by all who have seen this "Cotton Chopper and Scraper" to do the work. Free for all a demonstration will be had. You owe it to your progressive self to come. Man owes a duty to himself to grow and broaden, no better way can be found than to visit public demonstrations and catch up with present day progress. This curiosity is worth yours and your neighbor's presence.

Do Not Forget the Day and the Hour—Free to All.

THOUGHTS FOR HIM THAT HAS A THINDER: But a few years ago there lived a man in Paris, Tenn., who had an idea, he had no money. A few friends bought some stock and every living soul today is immensely rich. At has stock in that company—Grove's Tasteless Thinning.

For $500 cash I will sell one-fourth of my interest in my U. S. and Foreign country right to this patent and not for $2,000 would I sell this second fourth. This money will be expended in placing this perfect model before the great show of patents at the Coliseum Exposition and getting same before the public where thousands will be there for prospective purposes and which is the last one week beginning the week of Sept. 11—next month, where my promoter, Mr. Z. T. Conner goes to meet the millionaires for the one purpose of selling my patent for a good cash bonus and a royalty on each machine made thereafter.

Five men with one hundred dollars each can own one fourth interest in a labor saving device that will doubtless prove to be the best patent having left Washington in the past 25 years and should make each one of the five respective owners rich men that can live and enjoy the splendid fruits of a big and sober investment. To labor is honest but fortunes never come through the toils of man's hands. Only do riches come to those that exercise good judgment and best of management. Income money counts the money saving powers and to them that bath, remember, more shall be added. Opportunity now extends to some one her fortune hand and lucky be the man or men who gets in on the ground floor.

Some Murray People Have Learned How to Get Rid of Both.

Backache and kidney ache are twin brothers.

You can't separate them.

And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong, the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

Mrs. H. B. Miller, Murray, Ky., says: "I had such severe pains in my back that I could not stoop and whenever I lifted, sharp twinges darted through my loins. My back ached at night and in the morning when I arose, I was very lame. I became tired easily and occasionally suffered from nervous spells and headaches. The kidney secretions were unnatural and greatly annoyed me. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at Dale & Stubbins' Drug Store, and began their use. In a short time I felt better and I was soon cured. I think heartily of Doan's Kidney Pills."
