Want An Old Monastery: Well, You Can Buy One For $50,000

New York — The December sun was shining bright as the caller knocked on the door of a small old house. In the years of New Deal reform, he had seen many old houses, and had often thought of buying one for himself. He had never seen one that had been so beautifully furnished, and he had often wished that he could have bought one. He had gone to the house a few times, and had been impressed with the beauty of the interior. He had finally bought the house, and had been very happy with his purchase. THE DENIAL MEANS NOTHING

A few days ago a formal denial was issued by Adol Hiter and his generals that Germany planned to make any use of poison gas in the all-out attack on England. Secretary Knox of this country has just issued a statement that it was the general belief among experts in the United States that Germany was preparing to use this inhuman weapon against an attack which is now brewing against the United Kingdom. The German denial was issued in reply to that statement. The denial took the usual form, saying that no use of any weapon was contemplated which was not used by the enemy. This form of denial makes any use of any weapon quite possible, for all Germany will have to do at the last minute is to announce that the gas is to announce some day that British bombers have used gas in some German cities. The same form of denial was used in the World War and it is a well substantiated fact that Germany actually used gas first in that conflict.

Therefore, it can be written down that when Germany makes a charge that Britain has used gas in some place where in Germany it means the beginning of a gas attack to the enemy.

The denial is but the preparation for the first phase of the attack.

As to that which world of any idea of a statement made by Hitler, except to disbelieve any pledge given? His past record shows that his word means nothing.

Experts claim that the oil reason Hitler has not used gas before is because Germany is well aware of the terrible effect of poison gas attacks. Germany is said to have had gas masks for her troops before the outbreak of the war up to a few months ago. Before the war broke Hitler issued a public statement and agreed to no further territorial aims in Europe. At which he made a trip to Munich with Chamberlain, and this was broken in a matter of weeks, time after time when he said one thing and did another, and no man and no government would be bound in believing any pledge that might be given by Hitler and his Nazi government. The Nazis promise merely to throw an enemy off guard, and there is never any intention of keeping any pledge which may be given if German interest calls for a breaking of that promise.

WAR AND TRIPOLI

From dispatches reports that Royal Air Force planes have dropped several tons of bombs on Tripoli, capital of Italian Libya. The R.A.F. claim that three vessels in the harbor, one airplane destroyed and others damaged. While War and Tripoli are by no means strangers, it is in for a severe test of whether the Germans will have to do from the days when officers and men of the United States were making war in those waters. It all began when the United States eventually became fully set up with the exactions of the Barbary pirates. In those days naval vessels under Commodore Pessol to say that had been and that ships rather than diplomatic relations of tributes. The test result was the clipping of the power of the pirates, but it did not come about easily or without incident. In 1806 a war was forced upon 1813 the first phase of the war. The pirates were put out of business and the first brushes with them came 10 years or more earlier.

The most dramatic happening of all, perhaps, came in January, 1811. The United States had run aground and been taken over by the pirates. In due course the In-terlop, with 54 men aboard and com-manded by Louis Stephen Decatur, slipped into the harbor. The Philadel-phia captured from a hostile crew of about 200 and then set on fire. Decatur and his crew escaped without a man in one of the most daring and successful enterprises of the kind to be found anywhere in naval annals. It moved Lee Nelson to express admiration and tribute. The whole affair is one apparently infrequently recalled when the question of internation-ation by United States forces in wars abroad is discussed.

At that hour the attack of the Tripoli on a United States ship was not so different from that of the Tripoli on a United States ship. The Tripoli was put of commission by the British, and a large and a large number of British units were taken over by the pirates. To that statement means nothing. The Tripoli these days are not so different from those that went to train men to combat more than a century ago in the same spot New York News, as some one once said, is largely the same old thing that is happening to different people.

WASHINGTON, March 28—United "States officials are considering the purchase of five Spitfire passenger aircraft from the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., aviation company in England.

Such ships, these officials said, would be useful in ferrying passengers to and from this country, the states engaged in flying planes from Canada to England.

The Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., aviation company now operates in this country.

"Of course," he added, "since Mr. Stinson is in business if an offer of sufficient interest is made it would be considered."
