THE LISTENING POST

I noticed the other day that sixteen years ago it was quite doubtful if the Kitty League would function in the year 1925. If my memory is correct on the point it did not function. It seemed that at that time sixteen years ago about three or four of the six clubs decided in February or March that they would not enter the league, and my memory is that no league took the field in that year.

Sunday matters will be clarified for the 1941 season. There have been many rumors of probably changes in the circuit, these rumors mostly involving Bowling Green and Owensboro. It seems certain that the clubs in this end of the loop will start, for Fulton, Union City, Mayfield, Paducah and Jackson have plans rather well advanced for this time of year. Sunday the owners of the various clubs will gather in Paducah and at this meeting a definite picture should emerge. However, dispatches from Owensboro indicate that the Oilers under Hugh Wise will again take the field. The Owensboro news says that only Hopkinsville is doubtful. Necessity of clearing up some old debts, the possible necessity of building a new park and the weight of a disastrous season last year have all worked havoc with the Hoppers. It is possible that no team will take the field from this city, and if so, a new club must be secured or an old club dropped from the league. Down here in this section there is a lot of interest in interesting Dyersburg or Paris in the league. Paris made an effort a couple of years ago, when the Lexington team went to Bowling Green, but lack of a park stopped the Paris folks before they really got started. Whether Dyersburg could utilize the park that has been used by semi-pro teams for several years is not known; although it is known that lighting would be necessary. Dyersburg would be another "natural" in the circuit, for extreme rivalry always existed between Dyersburg and Jackson, and the feud between the Tennessee town and Mayfield was always a classic one. In old days some of the best independent teams ever assembled battled for those two towns, and in these days of improved roads and automobiles the rivalry would be even more intense.

Locally there is more interest and more hope for success than for the past two or three years. Local baseball officials, along with the fans, believe that Manager Moon Mullen can really assemble a one-two-three club for Fulton. There is no doubt that a winning team will bring out the crowds, for attendance has been better than average with almost a tail end club. Selection of Fulton as a training camp for a higher class league team will also add to the interest and give Manager Mullen a chance to actually look over some of the prospective talent that is assembled by the Detroit Tigers.

Financially also the Fulton setup is better off to start the year than usual. Old debts have been cleared away, and while more money will be needed, none will have to be raised to pay for the past unsuccessful season. Money which will be raised this spring will go directly into building the team for the coming year and this is always a lot more pleasant than paying for a season which has already passed and which was altogether a failure. If Manager Mullen can put together a team which will start and remain in the first division we can look for better baseball days in Fulton during 1941. Our baseball fans are confident that Moon can do that little job, for he is a hustler himself and knows baseball players when he sees them. He played a splendid game himself last season against discouraging odds, and in the brief time he handled the club made a decided improvement. He is certain to have a hustling, fighting club, and that is what Fulton needs.

Time Limit In Prospect To Gain Votes

Leadership Veers From Cost Limit; Night Session Held

Washington.—The House, with but a small fraction of its membership present, dined through an evening session on the leasehold bill tonight, while administration leaders considered the possibility of new amendments designed to increase support for the bill. In prospect was a modification to limit the overall period of time in which war supplies could be delivered to England. But, after studying the question, the leadership was veering away from proposals that the bill restrict the cost of the program to a stipulated figure.

Both these changes had been proposed by Rep. Wadsworth (R.-N. Y.), an influential member of the minority, who although ready to vote for the measure, thought his amendments might allay apprehension lest a dictatorship emerge from the operations of the bill.

The House itself was at the ragged end of three days' general debate. To give all who wished to talk an opportunity to have their say, a night session was ordered. It found some 30 of the chamber's 435 members present.

Although Democratic leaders said that even without amendments they were assured of a comfortable majority for the measure, they nevertheless were seeking as great a showing of unity as possible for the sake of its effect overseas.

During today's session, friends and foes of the measure had mixed it up in some warm debate. Pleading for passage of the measure, Rep. McCormack of Massachusetts, majority leader, asked: "What do you think Nazi Germany and army-controlled Japan will do to the United States in case of an axis victory?"

"A victorious axis will demand tribute of us in some way, and unlike the crude method of the pirates of the Barbary Coast of old, they will exact tribute in a brutal, vicious, ruthless modern manner."

Ex-Service Men To Register In National Defense

All ex-service men are requested to be present at the meeting at the American Legion Cabin on Thursday night, February 6 at 7 p. m. This is a very important meeting, being held for the purpose of registering the ex-service men in the National Defense program, and to assist this country in any way possible in this program.

A committee will be at this meeting to register all ex-service men and their cooperation will be appreciated by the officers of Marshall Alexander Post of the American Legion.

Some Of U. S. Planes Sold To Britain Will Convey Vessels

London.—Shipping Minister Ronald H. Cross disclosed today that Britain is to get patrol planes from the United States for conveying her merchant fleet.

Cross, addressing the Empire Society, spoke of "the very valuable acquisition" of 50 United States destroyers and added that "long-distance aircraft which we are to receive from the United States will also play an important part in protecting our ships."

Cross told the Society that the United States "will make some contribution" to Britain's merchant marine through its shipbuilding program "because they have appointed themselves the arsenal of democracy."

He added that he could not say what the contribution would be.

Joint Meeting Of Towns Held With Clinton

Representatives from Fulton, Union City, Hickman and Columbus met last night with the Clinton Chamber of Commerce to hear a report of the results of a trip made by Clinton men to Washington last week; also to make additional plans for carrying on the campaign to secure a defense project for this territory.

Harry Lee Waterfield, Clinton publisher, reported on the trip to Washington and stated that it was his honest belief that location of these plants is done largely at the direction of the War Department and without much political pressure. He said that he could not claim that the trip to Washington had been of any great value, except that they had learned what was wanted there and the proper steps to provide the information wanted by Washington officials. "Those people there did not encourage us; neither did they discourage us," he said. "We believe that we did secure some valuable information, but we did not make any progress in getting any promises."

Following this report the meeting was turned into a general round table discussion of the problems involved and men from the various towns reported what had been done in the different localities. Bert Cox, president of the Union City Chamber of Commerce, was in Washington and was now able to attend the meeting, but the Tennessee town sent nine men to attend the meeting. Hickman was well represented and several men from Columbus were present. Four men from Fulton, Joe D. Davis, Lynn Phipps, Hendon Wright and Hoyt Moore, were present.

It developed that more time was needed to perfect the permanent organization. This was formed two weeks ago at Union City, with Joe Davis, Fulton man, as temporary chairman, and the nominating committee reported that it was not able to make permanent recommendations last night. Mr. Davis then asked that each town name three men to serve on an executive committee, and each town agreed to this, the names to be sent to Mr. Davis this week.

While no definite progress can be reported, it is felt that much good has been accomplished, and Mr. Waterfield, in his report said that one high Washington official told him that the combination of towns in this district appeared to be highly sensible and offered possible opportunities.

Another meeting will be held in a short time to form the permanent organization.

UNUSUAL BARGAIN STRUCK IN BAKERY

Chicago.—There was an unusual bargain at Mrs. Lena Langer's bakery today.

A young man entered the shop and handed her this note: "This is a stickup. Give me the money in the register or I'll blow you up."

"Why," queried Mrs. Langer, "do you want money?"

"For food," replied the robber. She gave him two cup cakes and he left.

Let Yourself Go—Act Nervous If You Feel That Way, Expert Says

Evanston, Ill.—If you're nervous—just go ahead and act nervous—run your hands through your hair, tap your feet, or pace about the room.

It's probably better for a person with the "jitters" to give vent to his emotions by such actions than it is to try to force himself to remain entirely calm. Dr. G. L. Freeman, Northwestern University psychologist, says.

Dr. Freeman studied reactions of individuals to pistol shots and unexpected electric shock. They lay on an air-filled mattress while he recorded their amount of outward energy discharge; that is, movements. Measurements of their internal stress in terms of palm sweat were recorded before, during and after the startling to determine the time necessary to return to a previously relaxed and normal condition.

"We found," Dr. Freeman said, "that nervous individuals who discharged their aroused energy most overtly—those who moved about the most—tended to recover their internal equilibrium more rapidly than nervous individuals who inhibited their movements entirely."

"The amount of overt motor discharge was positively related to recovery. The implication is that, up to a certain point, if you are nervous in a trying situation—be nervous. Do something to help discharge your aroused energy."

"In many trying situations we often mobilize more energy than is necessary. The excess energy needs to be worked off by some action like gum chewing, pipe smoking, foot-tapping, drumming your hands, pacing about the room or just scribbling on a piece of paper."

Behind the experiment, Dr. Freeman added, was the serious purpose of attempting to learn whether some simple but scientific device could be developed for use as a measuring stick of potential emotional stability.

Hardy Apartments Badly Damaged By Fire Yesterday

The Hardy apartment house, located at 510 West State Line, was badly damaged by a fire of unknown origin yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock. Both the Fulton and South Fulton trucks were called to extinguish the blaze.

The house, which has three apartments, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Crowell in one of the downstairs apartments. Misses Margaret Sprague, Frances Veatch and Virginia Dare in the other, and Mrs. Jean Poe in the upstairs apartment.

Practically all the Crowell furnishings were destroyed, but the occupants of the other downstairs apartments saved most of their belongings. The contents of Mrs. Poe's apartment were nearly all destroyed or ruined by water.

It is not known as to how the fire started, but it was discovered by Mrs. Thomas Browder, who lives next door, and she turned in the alarm. Mr. Hardy stated that the house was covered with insurance with Fall and Fall, and work will be started immediately toward rebuilding the house.

ARKANSAS TROOPS BUY THEMSELVES ELECTRIC WASHER

Camp Robinson, Ark.—The Government provided the hot water, soap and electrical energy, so the men of Company A, 110th Quartermaster Regiment furnished the thrifty idea and the finances. They bought a washing machine, assessed each man 10 cents a week to meet payments and quit sending laundry to Little Rock.

THREE WHO BOUND FATHER IN DESERT DRAW PRISON TERMS

Shoshone, Idaho.—Two brothers and a sister who bound their father with a clothesline and left him in the desert where he died of exposure were given sentences today of from one to 10 years. They pleaded guilty to manslaughter.

The three, Mrs. Flossie Phillips, 18, Joe Sanders, 20, and George Sanders, 16, acknowledged they had left their father, rancher Charles Sanders, 48, in the desert last June but they said they had counted on Mrs. Phillips' husband, later committed to the state mental hospital, to release him.

Treasure Hunt On Streets Of City

Draw Crowd To Watch Work

Los Angeles.—Surrounding by kibitzer John H. Ryan, 67-year-old hard rock miner who spent years on the Mojave Desert, shoveled dirt today beneath a city sidewalk in search of Christopher Columbus' log of his Atlantic crossing and a chest full of silver and gold.

Behind the hunt is a vision Ryan says he had thirty years ago as he sat with friends in a mystic circle.

"A man suddenly joined us there and gave me the commands," he related. "He was a Sicilian don. He was the guy who put it all there."

The don, Ryan went on, was a descendant of Columbus, had received the log and treasure passed down through the family for 350 years, and had buried it in the '40s when the Spanish residents of Los Angeles heard of it. John C. Fremont was leading an army into California.

Later the don went away to fight in the Mexican War and returned, Ryan added, only in the vision.

Willkie Fires Message At Hitler's People

German - Americans Hate Nazis' Lust For Power, He Says

London.—In a frank attempt to speak to the German people over the heads of the Nazi regime, Wendell L. Willkie left behind him in England tonight this message to the land of his forefathers:

"Tell the German people that we German-Americans reject and hate the aggression and lust for power of the present German government!"

Willkie was on his way back to America when the British ministry of information released his message. It was broadcast tonight in the British Broadcasting Corporation's regular German news transmission. Later it was repeated to Germany on the air.

(Willkie arrived in Lisbon by plane from England at 3:50 p. m.—9:50 a. m., C. S. T.—and was scheduled to leave on a Pan American clipper at midnight—6 p. m. C. S. T.—for the United States.)

Climaxes 10-Day Tour

His message to the German people climaxed a 10-day tour of England in which he talked to Britons of all classes—from dwellers in battered slums to Prime Minister Churchill and the King and Queen—and left with them the promise to do all he could "to help Britain in her fight for freedom."

"I am purely of German descent," the 1940 Republican presidential contender said in his message. "My family name is not Willkie, but Willkie. My grandparents left Germany 90 years ago because they were protestants against autocracy and demanded the right to live as free men. I, too, claim that right."

"I am proud of my German blood. But I hate aggression and tyranny. Tell the German people that my convictions are shared to the full by the overwhelming majority of my fellow countrymen of German descent. They, too, believe in freedom and human rights."

Day by day, as the tempo of the war against Britain is intensified and when the all-out attack is expected at any time, one tragic figure stands across the sea and continues his efforts to do something for his own nation. His days are a series of humiliations; there is never a time when he can take a stand and feel that he can live up to that position. He is surrounded by enemies, armed and ready to tear his nation apart, yet he continues to do what he thinks best for his disarmed and helpless country.

That man is old Marshal Petain of France. He has lived a long time. He has known something of glory and victory and a great deal of humiliation and defeat. Today he can know little of where he really stands or what he can actually accomplish. Any action of his may cause more humiliation for him personally and more trouble for his helpless nation. He knows that not many more years lie ahead of him, for his years are many, and his sole task is to preserve and defend what is left of France against that day when his nation may again take her rightful place among the free nations of the world. Yet, because he is an intelligent man and knows the difficulties, it is not likely that he has any great hope of success. His only hope is to postpone, to delay, to dally with the victorious Germans and hope that out of all these delays may come some good for France. Yet he knows that there is no assurance. He is merely playing whatever cards he may have and hoping for the best.

Perhaps we in this country do not look at the situation fairly. As a writer pointed out a few days ago, we consider the situation more from the standpoint of helping England than of helping France. We are perhaps too critical of France because she surrendered and too prone to think that a British victory will make all things right again for France.

The old Marshal of France sees more realistically. The French are always realistic, for memories of war and its devastation are too fresh in the minds of all French people to permit any rosy dreams. Marshal Petain and the people of France know that even a British victory would not compensate France for all the damage that has been done and which is still being done. It must be remembered that even now the major attacks of British bombers is centered on Channel ports belonging to France. Marshal Petain knows that a successful British invasion of the Continent, although it might ultimately liberate France, would do vast damage to French territory. Memories of the last war are still fresh in his mind as he wearily faces the task of trying to placate Hitler's ministers.

Nor can he be certain at all of a British peace being finally imposed. He knows full well that peace terms may be dictated in Berlin instead of in London, and he is trying with all his wisdom and all his patience and all his cunning to arrange French affairs in such manner as to benefit France on that day when war finally ends. That is his sole aim, his only passion, and we of this country should remember this when we grow too critical of his actions. He has accepted deep personal humiliation for the larger purpose of helping the France of the future, and there can be no nobler work done than that. He still holds some cards which may help him. The African army and the remains of the French fleet are still powerful talking points and he is making the most of them.

French Plea

Washington. — Secretary Hull reported today that discussions were in progress with Gaston Henry-Haye, French Ambassador, about shipping food to France, but he indicated that no action would be taken pending tangible evidence of acute need in that country.

The French Ambassador told newsmen yesterday he had submitted a plan to the State Department under which France would purchase foodstuffs here if the United States would release frozen French assets estimated at $1,593,000,000.

Hull gave no indication of what attitude the United States would take regarding unfreezing of French funds for food purposes.

Kentucky Won't Gain House Seat

Washington. — Although each of Kentucky's nine Congressional Districts showed gains in population from 1930 to 1940 and two shifts in relative population rank occurred among the districts, the State is not expected either to lose or gain representation in the House of Representatives as a result of the 1940 census.

In figures released Wednesday by the Census Bureau showing the 1940 population of the present Congressional Districts in each State, along with the 1930 population of the same areas, it was shown that Louisville and Jefferson County, comprising the Third District, which in 1930 had the largest population of any in Kentucky, has dropped to second rank.

Ninth District Leads
Taking over first place was the State's lone Republican district, the Ninth. In 1930, the Third District surpassed the Ninth by 2,481. In the 1940 census, the Ninth surpasses the Third by 28,298.

The other change shows the Seventh District moving from seventh place to sixth in population and the Fourth from sixth to seventh.

Problem Child Of 30 Years Ago Revisits Police

Pueblo, Co. — The best books on psychology problems don't recommend an uppercut to the jaw as a successful method of making friends, but once in a while it works.

An elderly gentleman walked into Pueblo police headquarters, shook hands with Detective Capt. Luther Walton and asked if the officer remembered him.

"I sure do," said the detective. The old fellow explained he just wanted to renew an old friendship. Later the detective explained that thirty years ago he had to knock the man down at least once a week to keep him subdued when he was a loafer on Pueblo streets.
