Attractive Fair Premium List

President Gordon of the Fulton County Fair Association is busy distributing the annual catalog containing the program and premium list of the 1929 fair, which meets here August 27 to 31 inclusive.

The premium list is one of the most attractive ever issued by the fair association and the large special premium list is the best ever.

In the poultry department, special prizes are offered for practically every kind of chicken with Swift & company leading the list with $25.00 in special cash premiums. Interest is being taken in 4-H club work. To the boys and girls, special premiums will be awarded their birds. They are also allowed to compete for every prize offered in the premium list under the rules. The activities of members of the Fulton County Poultry Association is fast developing this vicinity into one of the leading poultry sections of the Southland and Superintendent J. T. Watkins and his co-workers expect to exhibit not less than 800 birds in the poultry department at the fair.

Cattle Department

Ed Williamson, superintendent of cattle at the fair, predicts that his department will outclass all former exhibits. The premium list for 4-H club Jerseys is the best and largest ever offered. In fact, the entire premium list in the cattle department, is very attractive, with large special premiums.

Probably the largest number of special premiums offered by any one contributor is made by the Browder Milling Company of Fulton. Liberal premiums are offered in practically every department by this firm, and this year they are giving each boy and girl entering live stock at the fair, $1.00 in cash. This liberal offer is made to encourage 4-H club work in the five counties adjoining Fulton.

Agricultural Department

Besides the large premiums offered in the regular list for Agricultural products, the Fulton Nursery Co., of which J. E. Young and Joe Davis are proprietors, are offering special prizes on canned fruits, preserves and jellies. They have a whole page of special prizes listed in the catalog.

In Floral Hall

Special premiums are offered on practically everything exhibited in the prize winning list.

If you fail to get a catalog call at the Owl Drug Store and Mr. Gordon will supply you.

WORK NEARING COMPLETION ON SWIFT PLANT

Work continues to progress nicely on the handsome Swift & Company's building. Some of the machinery has already arrived and will be placed in position before the building is entirely completed. The contractors are making every effort to finish the job within the next few weeks. The Swift plant is a big institution for Fulton and means much to the entire country surrounding.

LIONS ENJOY THEIR OUTING AT REELFOOT LAKE

The Lions Clubs of West Tennessee and West Kentucky had an outing at Reelfoot Lake Tuesday. The Fulton club was well represented and the Lions returned home telling of what an enjoyable event it was. Varied features of entertainment was indulged in, such as boat riding, swimming and fishing, but the bountiful dinner served at the noon hour was the most enjoyable of all.

Some of the Lions are telling wonderful fish stories but nothing has been said of how many chiggers brought back. One of the boys said he went prepared and took a bacen rind with him.

VISITOR COMPLIMENTS FULTON

The Illinois Central Railroad parks and flower gardens in Fulton are attracting unusual attention this year. E. J. Pierce and family of Colorado, passing through the city en route south, stopped over all day Tuesday in the city for a brief rest and to size up the town. He expressed himself as being well pleased with our city and said while he had traveled practically all over the country, the Illinois Central parks in Fulton were the prettiest in all of his travels. He also took occasion to compliment the Usona hotel service and the splendid free parking space provided for guests. He was also pleased with our streets, but showed his disgust and disappointment regarding Kentucky highways, but his countenance changed when informed that he would find a road in keeping with our streets after crossing the line into Tennessee.

Too bad that we have to admit that our highways in this end of our "progressive" and boastful state don't measure up to our sister State. The auto tag we are forced to carry is indeed misleading to a civilized and intelligent people. But our gas tax is at the top notch.

OFFICIAL LINE UP

In this issue of The Advertiser we are publishing the official list of candidates as they will appear on the primary ballot, August 3. The voters should have no trouble in selecting good officials from the list as every one on the ballot is qualified to fill the office he seeks. But as the voter can select only one for each county and district office, and six councilmen for Fulton, great care and consideration should be exercised.

Taking the line up as a whole we have never known of a cleaner slate to select a choice. Apparently every candidate has conducted his campaign in a gentlemanly manner, igniting a spark of loyalty for his or her favorite in the race for supremacy.

If any mud slinging has been done it was by the over zealous voter and not the candidate. We have heard some parade their ignorance to the detriment of their favorite.

Take this tip from us, if you really want your favorite to win, boost for him and keep boosting until the last ballot is voted, and don't injure him by talking about the other fellow.

voters. The rush at the city hall kept all officers busy until the last minute for closing at 7 p. m. It is a good indication that the people are keenly interested in those who are in the campaign for city, county and district offices. A good vote will be polled, and while we are not expecting a record breaker, the count will probably total around 4,600, and may go over 5,000.

ERNEST BENNETT MAY BE THE NEXT JUDGE OF HICKMAN COUNTY

Ernest Bennett, candidate for County Judge of Hickman county, was a visitor in Fulton Tuesday. Mr. Bennett is well qualified to fill the office he seeks in our neighboring county and if the voters of Hickman county are alive to their own interests and future welfare, they will consider Mr. Bennett's claims favorably. He is a man with a progressive spirit, a good roads enthusiast and would make a good county judge. His wide circle of Fulton friends would be pleased to see him lead the ticket on August 3.

TRUE JUNGLE LIFE IN TARZAN SERIAL

The jungle life as portrayed in Universal's chapter play, "Tarzan the Mighty," has been declared an excellent reproduction of the real central African jungle by no less an authority than Alfred Aloysius Horn, world famous trader whose adventures have been told to the public in his book, "Trader Horn."

The plants, trees and other tropical growths appear as real as if the picture were made in an actual jungle, he is reported to have said. Even the manner of the animals as they stealthily trod through leaves and tangled roots of the trees suggest the jungle.

It is the spirit of the jungle that the chapterplay has reproduced with such genuine effect, Horn is said to have told a fellow writer. The beating of drums, the call of wild animals, the hint of danger and the magical mystery of moonlight coming through the trees are suggested with romantic realism.

"Flames of Hate," the fifth chapter of "Tarzan the Mighty," will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre, Saturday, where the chapterplay is appearing every week.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL SYSTEM ADOPTS AIR SERVICE

Simplifying air-rail travel by the use of a single ticket for the combination ride, the Illinois Central System and the Southwest Air Fast Express, Inc., of Tulsa, Okla., will make effective on August 1 a through routing via St. Louis that will save many hours on trips from Chicago and vicinity to Springfield, Mo., Tulsa and Oklahoma City, Okla., Wichita Falls, Sweetwater, Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas, and connecting points.

Arrangements are now being completed by which the traveler will purchase his single ticket prior to leaving Chicago at 11:55 p. m. via the Illinois Central, transfer to Lambert Field at St. Louis in the airplane company's fast aero-car the next morning and reach Springfield by airplane at 10:35 a. m., Tulsa at 12:25 p. m., Oklahoma City at 1:55 p. m., Wichita Falls at 3:20 p. m., Fort Worth at 4:10 p. m., Dallas at 4:30 p. m., and Sweetwater at 5 p. m.

By extensions of this routing with connecting rail and air lines, it will be possible to reach Los Angeles in forty-two hours and Mexico City in fifty hours after leaving Chicago. It will likewise be possible, as indicated above, to attend the theater in Chicago one evening and transact business in Tulsa the next afternoon.

The Southwest Air Fast Express, Inc. (the "S. A. F. E. Way," for short) operates nine tri-motored all-metal Ford cabin monoplanes in its scheduled daily services between St. Louis, Kansas City and the Southwest. Each plane has space for fourteen passengers and their baggage, in addition to the pilot and the assistant pilot, and any two of the three 425 horsepower "Wasp" motors will keep the plane in sustained flight with a full load. One motor will enable it to seek a landing place anywhere within seventy-five times its own height from the ground.

The airplane company's passenger rate has been simplified at 10 cents an air mile, with a free allowance of twenty-five pounds of baggage. Additional baggage may be carried at express rates, or it and trunks may be checked through to destination via train. A seat on the airplane will be reserved for each passenger when the single ticket required for the through ride is purchased. Children less than 2 years old will be carried free. Airway maps of the country to be traversed will be furnished passengers at the beginning of the airplane trip.

INQUEST JURY FINDS DR. RIDGEWAY GUILTY

Said to Have Caused Death of
Mrs. Wiggington

Union City, Tenn., July 22.—The death of Mrs. Overa Wiggington, 21, of Shelby County, was caused by Dr. T. B. Ridgeway, veterinarian, according to the verdict returned by a jury of inquest meeting before Squire A. Wilson at Obion today. Ridgeway's bond was fixed at $5,000 pending action of the grand jury in September. After the hearing he was returned to the Union City jail. The investigation into Mrs. Wiggington's death was started by Mrs. John Bailey of Trimble, who swore out a warrant against Dr. Ridgeway in connection with an illegal operation alleged to have been performed last November.

Mrs. Wiggington recently moved to Shelby county with her husband and small daughter. Mr. Wiggington operates a filling station on the North Second Street Road.

FAMILY REUNION

An interesting event of the past week was the family reunion and celebration held Sunday at the family home on Arch street, in honor of the 80th birthday of Mrs. R. H. Boaz, widow of the late Elder R. H. Boaz.

The hand of Fortune has dealt kindly with Mother Boaz in rearing her family and it was indeed a happy day for her to have all her children alive and present with her on this occasion.

At noontide, a sumptuous and bountiful meal was served, from a long table which had been erected the entire length of the old fashioned built-in back porch. Those in attendance were the children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren, as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Boaz; Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Boaz and sons, A. G. and Jack, of Mayfield, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Boaz of Memphis; Dr. and Mrs. T. D. Boaz and son, T. D., Jr., of Shreveport, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Boaz; Mr. and Mrs. J. N. McNeilly and son, Richard, and Aude Boaz; Mr. and Mrs. Durand Boaz and son, Durand, Jr., of Little Rock, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Harvyl Boaz and daughter, Millie Ann, of Hickman, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Dean Collier and children, Joan and Fred; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bard and son, Leon; Mr. and Mrs. Miller Harpole and daughter, Marilyn, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Boaz and daughter, Ruth; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Densford and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Boaz and son, Dick, Jr., of Memphis; Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Boaz and son, Holland Earl.

Four grandchildren and one great-grandchild were unable to attend, namely: Mr. and Mrs. Thurman McNeilly, and Mr. and Mrs. Holly Boaz and daughter, Betty Jane, of Los Angeles, Calif.; Lieut. McFall Boaz of New London, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Boaz of Memphis.

A specially invited guest was Mrs. Tom Holland, a close friend and neighbor of Mrs. Boaz for the past sixty years. The day was pleasantly spent and thoroughly enjoyed by all and will long linger in the minds and hearts of all. May this dear, gentle old lady live to see many more birthdays and continue to bless the lives of her loved ones with her sweet presence.

Route 4, Fulton Ky.
(New Hope Community)

Mrs. Leonard Campbell and little son, of Hagartown, Md., are visiting her sister, Mrs. J. A. Eskew, and other relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Drysdale were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Batts in Fulton.

School opened Monday at New Hope with Mr. Cherry, of Murray, at teacher.

Mr. F. C. Irvine spent several days last week with Mr. J. B. Walker, who is very low at his home in Fulham.

Miss Jessie Wade, of Crutchfield, was the week end guest of Miss Willie Everett.

Revival services will begin at New Hope, Sunday, July 28. Rev. E. C. Hill of Hickman, will preach and Mr. W. L. Matthews of Pierce, Tenn., will have charge of the music. All are cordially invited to attend these services.

Mr. Morris Scott, a former resident of this section, died at his home in Elgin, Illinois, at the age of thirty-five, Friday, July 5. The remains were brought here and funeral services were held at Wesley Sunday, followed by interment in the Wesley cemetery.

He leaves besides his wife, a father, Mr. Will Scott, three brothers, Carl, Marvin, and Wade, and a host of friends, both here and in the town in which he lived. He served as reporter on the news staff of a large newspaper and had the promise of a great future in this work.

Although he was taken from the walks of men at a very early age, his accomplishments were many, both in his newspaper work and in the World War in which he served as lieutenant.

Deepest sympathy is extended to the bereaved.

Mr. and Mrs. Holbert Finch and Mr. Jarrett Finch, of St. Louis, attended the funeral of Mr. Morris Scott here last Sunday.

Community Building

One's Own Roottree Makes for Ambition

Although home ownership has increased measurably during the last few years as the result of educational programs carried on by realtors and savings associations, the majority of American families still pay rent. Only about 35 per cent of American families are under their own roottrees. This proportion could be largely increased in the opinion of a city real estate manager, if as much stress were placed on the spiritual values as on the mere financial value of home ownership.

"Assuming that the purchase is properly financed," he says, "the moral advantage of home ownership over renting is indisputable. To my mind, however, the greater benefit is the enrichment of life itself that comes with planting one's own roots in the soil."

"A strange and wonderful experience comes to the man, who for the first time, owns his home. Hitherto he has been a nomad, living in other people's houses, subject to their regulations, whims and legal requirements. He may live in them a long time and never become a part of them nor they of him. But let him acquire the land and the house that stands on it—and forthwith he begins to grow in an amazing number of ways. He becomes established. He becomes identified with that piece of land and that house. It is his. He is part of it and it becomes part of him in many senses. It acquires the marks of his tastes. Its design, furnishings, upkeep and gardens all become symbols of him self."

"So many people hope to own their own homes eventually and set it as a goal in their lives, but delay too long. The time to begin owning a home is when you can get enough credit to go into debt for it. This provides a spur to ambition; a point on which he can focus his expenditures so that they bring him the greatest return in health and happiness."

Mass Coloring New Object of Builders

American commercial and domestic life is writing its history in buildings with its own individuality, says Harvey Wiley Corbett, nationally known architect and authority on construction.

Every form of architecture the world has known, Mr. Corbett points out, has resulted from two factors: The needs of the people, and the materials available. But it was the skill with which materials were used to meet the needs, which reflected the art and the ingenuity of the period.

With the development of this new type, Mr. Corbett says, the trend will be more and more away from petty decorative details, and toward the skillful distribution of masses, and the use of color. Instead of minute and purposeless ornamentation, obviously superimposed upon a building, color will be applied logically, over large spaces, as an integral feature of the terra cotta, or other facing materials.

The distribution of masses, Mr. Corbett declares, will meet the needs of the building's occupants, with as much beauty as is possible.

Urge Clean Homes

It is full as important to render the home safe from fire and the depredations of the elements as it is to make it colorful and cheerful for its occupants. The mission of the fall clean up campaign is to achieve both of these highly desirable and essential ends.

Each year larger numbers of communities are recognizing the peculiar menace of the winter months and are holding a clean-up campaign in the fall as well as in the spring in order to safeguard themselves at both times of the year.

City Planning Pays

The present haphazard growth with out planning for the future which most American cities experience now involves an annual loss of more than a billion dollars, John Nolen, land scape architect and city planner of Cambridge, Mass., declared before a convention of the International City Managers' association.

More than 200 American cities now have such plans, Mr. Nolen declared, while zoning ordinances have been adopted by 580 cities and planning commissions established by 587.

Game Clubs Are Planting

Towns and cities are doing their part in creating community forests on their idle lands and on the watershed of their reservoirs. Wise farmers are setting slacker acres to work growing wood crops, says the American Tree association. Fish and game clubs are planting areas to serve as sanctuaries and to protect the streams. Land owners are beautifying and making more valuable nonworking acres.

Age of Outdoor Life

This is the age of sunshine and out door life. Homes are built with many windows, sun parlors, sleeping porches and daylight basements. Homes are brighter, cheerier and healthier. To make nize an old house is to bring the sunshine in with more and larger windows.

POULTRY

FATTEN BROILERS FOR MARKETING

For the most part, farmers and poultry raisers who keep Leghorn chickens pay most attention to the production of eggs. They think of eggs as the chief end of poultry keeping. My experience has been that by paying a little more attention to the fattening and marketing of Leghorns, the income from this source can be considerably increased, says a writer in the Successful Farming. Especially is this true when marketing broilers.

Leghorn broilers fatten easily when confined and force fed for about two weeks. They will consume about two pounds of feed during this time and should show a gain in weight of one-half to three-fourths of a pound.

There are two methods which I have employed in fattening broilers. These are pen and crate fattening. The simplest and most logical method for farm conditions I have found is pen fattening.

Following this method, the birds are confined in small pens when about one and one-half pounds in weight and are fed the following mash: 25 pounds cornmeal, 15 pounds middlings, 8 pounds meat scraps, and one-half pound salt. This is fed as a wet mash by adding sour milk, buttermilk, or skim milk. The birds are fed this mash three times a day and are permitted to eat for half an hour at a time, when the uneaten portion is removed. It is important that the intervals between the feedings should be as nearly equal as possible.

The object of feeding this wet mash is to get the birds to eat large amounts of food so they will make maximum gains in the shortest time.

Corn meal and milk in any form should be the foundation of any good fattening mash. It should also be remembered that when milk is used in fattening fowls, not a too large amount of meat scraps should be used.

One reason for the wide spread in prices paid for Leghorn broilers and those of the heavier breeds is because the Leghorn, being more active, will not take on flesh as readily as the heavier breeds when on free range.

Roosters Can Be Sold Now, Says J. H. McAdams

Now that the incubation period is over there is no further need for roosters in the flock and all but one or two of the best male birds can be sold, advises J. H. McAdams, extension poultryman at the Kansas State Agricultural college. Every flock owner knows, according to McAdams, that the male bird is unnecessary so far as the production of market eggs is concerned. Male birds now represent just so many extra mouths to feed, he says.

The hitch to selling male birds comes largely from the price consideration, according to McAdams, who says that when these birds were purchased last fall or early winter they were valued from $2 up to possibly $10 each. Today with old roosters commanding 16 cents a pound an exceptionally high price prevails, but as soon as the old roosters start moving to market the price will drop probably to about 10 cents a pound.

"Even though old roosters were such a drag on the market that he could not sell them at all, a farmer could afford to keep them in his flock," McAdams warns. "To live, a rooster must eat and the feed bill on each individual one will be at least 10 cents a month, making a total cost of at least 80 cents to hold the old birds over until February."

Poultry Hints

The results of chickens eating carbon or spoiled feed are lumberneck or indigestion.

Egg eating is a vicious habit and the best method to combat it is the slaughter of the offending birds.

Convenience for both hens and caretaker should be considered—convenience means cleanliness and cleanliness means health.

A laying hen is about the only example of a going concern that can sit still and yet produce dividends.

The first quality that makes for success and profit in the poultry flock is vigor, vitality or constitution. Choose your own name for this quality.

A chicken that is liberally fed does not, as a rule, exercise enough to run off flesh but only enough to keep in good general health and to have a good appetite.

Eggs will remain fertile up to ten days after the male has been removed from the breeding pen.

Given a chance, poultry will return good profits on the investment. Cleanliness is one of the best guarantees of success.

Poultry diseases spread principally in four ways: By the birds eating dead diseased birds, by contaminated air, through drinking water, and through the droppings of diseased birds.

WHEN WE SERVE SANDWICHES

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

Cheese, Olive, and Green Pepper

1 cupful grated American cheese; 1/2 cupful minced green peppers; bread; 1/2 cup Spanish olives; 2 tablespoons Mayonnaise Salad Dressing; butter.

Mix together cheese, olives, green peppers and mayonnaise. Butter slices of bread, spread half of them with the filling and cover with other slices of bread.

maining toast, arrange slices of broiled bacon. Put together and garnish with watercress.

Garden Sandwiches—Spread

whole wheat or rye bread with creamed butter, then with Mayonnaise salad dressing, to which enough chopped parsley or cress has been added to color it slightly. Scald, peel, and chill four medium-sized firm tomatoes; pare a cucumber, remove seeds and chop with one-half a green pepper and a small onion; tossen with Mayonnaise Salad Dressing. Slice tomatoes and arrange sandwiches on serving plates as follows:

First a slice of buttered bread, then slices of tomato dusted with salt, pepper, paprika, and spread thinly with Mayonnaise; next a second slice of bread, buttered side up, with the vegetables on it. Garnish with spoonful of Mayonnaise and whole Stuffed Olive.

Hot Ham Sandwiches—Spread

thin slice of brown bread with a thin slice of ham, or minced ham, then with a thin layer of Heinz Prepared mustard. Cover mustard with a thin slice of American or Swiss cheese. Cover with another slice of bread. Toast the sandwich, or heat one egg and add to it 1/4 teaspoon salt, a dash of pepper and 1/2 cup milk. Dip the sandwiches quickly into this mixture and fry until delicately browned in a pan with 3 table-spoons melted butter. Garnish with slices of fresh cucumber pickle and serve at once.

Sandwiches Men Like

Rare roast beef and horseradish and onion minced, on white bread. Swiss cheese, prepared mustard, and rye bread.

Hot Frankfurter sausages, in quarter-inch slices, skin removed, and prepared mustard, in rolls or white bread.

Chopped hard-cooked eggs, stuffed olives chopped, and mayonnaise.

Sandwiches vary all the way from the fancy, dainty bits of goodness which we serve at tea, to the substantial, many-layered sandwiches which are always so popular with men.

Bread for flat sandwiches should be a day old, so as to cut more easily. For rolled sandwiches, or for very thin slices of bread to be buttered and put overlapping on a plate, fresh bread should be used.

White or brown bread, rye, Graham, whole-wheat, raisin, date or nut breads may be used, sometimes two or more kinds together. Long, narrow rolls make attractive sandwiches when sliced lengthwise, buttered and filled. For picnics, the roll may be halved and filled with sandwich material. Thin salt waters or crackers are often used for paste sandwiches.

Bread for fancy sandwiches should be cut in slices as thin as possible and the crusts removed. Picnic and lunchbox sandwiches are cut somewhat thicker and the crusts usually left on. The filling and butter for picnic sandwiches should be increased in proportion to the thickness of the bread.

Here are a few suggestions for delicious sandwiches:

Italian Sandwiches—

1/2 cupful minced celery; cayenne pepper; 2 tablespoons Mayonnaise Salad Dressing; white or whole-wheat bread; 1/2 cup minced ham; prepared mustard; 2 tablespoons Chili Sauce; butter.

Combine minced ham and celery and season with dash each of cayenne pepper and mustard. Moisten with the mayonnaise and chili sauce. Use white or whole-wheat bread.

Baked Bean Sandwiches

1/2 cupful Oven Baked Beans; 2 table-spoons grated American cheese; salt; 2 tablespoons orange juice; butter; brown bread.

Mash baked beans. Add grated cheese and salt to taste. Moisten with orange juice and spread between slices of buttered brown bread.

Olive Club Sandwiches—

Bread; Mayonnaise Salad Dressing; stuffed Spanish Olives; butter, lettuce leaves; bacon; watercress.

Toast slices of bread one-fourth inch thick until an even golden brown. Butter lightly and let cool slightly. Spread with thick mayonnaise. On half the slices place lettuce leaves and cover with sliced olives. On the re-

AMERICA'S RADIO LEAD IN DANGER

Gen. J. G. Harbord Sees a Threat to Our Nation's Place in British Merger.

The recent successful effort of the British to bring about consolidation of their cable and radio interests is a serious challenge to the radio supremacy of the United States, and of more importance to our country than oil or merchant marine at this moment, according to General J. G. Harbord, who was chief of staff of the A. E. F. and now is President of the Radio Corporation of America.

"Great Britain being the great cable-controlling power of our planet," General Harbord explained, "the combination there of cables and radio in-perils American leadership more directly than that of any other country. "The answer to this challenge can not be made by private interests under our existing laws. It is for our people to decide whether they think it is worth making, and if so, to make it possible. It is a case where no action, or action much delayed is surrender; or even worse, aid and comfort to foreign against American industry."

Other Countries Alert

The effect of this advanced system of international communication is a subject of discussion in the chancelleries of the world. General Harbord says, and is not viewed with indifference by any great nation aspiring to foreign commerce, unless it be the United States.

"Communications play an important part in national defense," he continues. "This is especially true of radio, and with countries having distant possessions such as the Philippines, Alaska and Hawaii or Australia, Canada, South Africa and India."

Great Britain approached this problem with the seriousness its importance demanded, in the opinion of General Harbord, and on March 15 of last year, as a result, the principal communications rivals in Great Britain, the Eastern Telegraph Company, Limited, representing cables, and the Marconi company, radio, announced a merger in the form of a holding company. The government will have representation on the board of directors, which with the vote of either the cable or radio interest, will be controlling. The press approved this merger.

"This new combined British communications interest will affect American relationships in every part of the world," General Harbord asserts. "There will hardly be a port or principal city on the planet which will not be reached by British communications. American trade in every quarter of the globe cannot but be profoundly affected. The national defense of the United States must reckon with the planetary domination of communications by the British. Such is the result of the action of the far-seeing British race under the lash which American progress in radio has applied—a race of people which centuries ago underwent the diseases of national adolescence through which we still are passing. Her politicians abuse one another, as do our own, but as against the outside world Britain's policy changes little with the advent of one party or another on the political stage."

Hard to Understand

"The time when Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany are uniting radio and cables seems to be the time taken by our country to keep them apart. What others unite to secure leadership in communications we divide. The long deliberations which preceded the consummation of the cable-radio merger in Great Britain say in our country the enactment of the White Act of 1927, which in plain terms forbids any purchase of radio by cables or vice versa. While this provision is understood to have been inserted under the minority lash in the last days of the drafting of the law, its purpose no doubt was to preserve the competition, in form at least, between the two methods of international communication—radio and cables."

"Sitting between the hind legs of the British lion with the tail of that noble beast wrapped around his neck is a poor perch for the American eagle from which to recover lost leadership in world communications."

Old Bethel News

We are very sorry to hear that Mrs. Pearson is very low. The meeting began at Oak Grove, Sunday, also at Bethlehem.

Mr. Leon Golden has returned to his home in Homewood, Ill., after visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rose.

Mrs. Sallie Stack is at home after spending a few months in Detroit.

Uncle Dick Slayden of Fulton was buried in Old Bethel Friday afternoon. A large crowd was present.

Several from here attended the Union meeting at Concord near Latham, last week.

Mr. Ervin Cavender is on the sick list.

Mrs. Minnie Yates has been visiting her daughter, Mr. Cliff Rhodes.

Mrs. Caroline Gordon is very low at this writing.

Bro. Murrel Moody is in our midst, attending the meeting at Oak Grove.

Mr. Ross Rose and wife were Sunday guests of Rube Rose and family.

Mr. Walter Bue and family spent Saturday with Vernie Taylor and family.

Mrs. Ethel Moody and children, Eugene and Carlene, and Dell Cavender attended the Robey Reunion at Andy Robey's Sunday. A large crowd was present and a good time reported.

Mr. Do Webb and family, Amos Hams and wife attended the Union meeting at Brush Creek last week.

The play which was given at Pilot Oak school Saturday night, was splendid, entitled, "Old Spinsters' Convention." The proceeds go to increase the library and laboratory equipment.

It is reported that Mrs. Emily Meacham is better at this writing.

It is reported that Miss Alberta Boren of Mayfield has resigned as teacher at Pilot Oak school this year. We are very sorry she will not be with us as all seemed to like her method of teaching. We do not know who will take her place.

BIRTHDAY DINNER

On last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Brown gave a surprise birthday dinner at their home near Water Valley, in honor of Mrs. Brown's mother, Mrs. Henry Ringo, of Detroit. A long table was placed out on the lawn in the shade of the trees. At noontime it was loaded with good things to eat, and beautifully decorated with flowers. In the center of the table was a white birthday cake with birthday greetings formed of pink ices.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ringo, Mr. and Mrs. Orion Byrn and Mrs. Irad Bushart and daughters, all of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stephens and daughter, of Mayfield; Mrs. Lizzie Brown, of Mayfield; Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Bushart and family, of Fulton; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Dixon, Mrs. Nora Byrn and daughter, Evelyn, Mr. John Howell and family, Mrs. Josie Phelps, Miss Pauline Thompson, Mrs. Ed Brown and family, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mobley and daughter, Katherine, Mr. and Mrs. Byron McAlister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lundy Wilson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Auzie Phelps and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Webb and family.

In all, there were fifty relatives and friends to enjoy the feast and wish Mrs. Ringo many happy returns of the day.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

The Gallatin county soybean acreage is the largest in the history of the county. Only a few farmers failed to inoculate the seed.

The Henry County Golden Hoof Club has been organized among sheep farmers, with a goal of 100 members by August 1.

Many farmers in eastern Madison county are going into the dairy business. Madison is one of the latest counties to employ an agricultural agent.

J. H. Chandler, a Taylor county farmer, cut two and a half tons of alsike clover hay to the acre off a field that had been limed. L. K. Miller, also of Taylor county, cut three tons of alfalfa hay to the acre off a seven-acre field at the first two cuttings. Ten loads of manure to the acre and bone phosphate had been applied to the alfalfa field.

Garrard county farmers report the best clover hay crop in years. Many also cut a ton and a half of alfalfa hay at the first cutting.

Farmers of Caldwell, Hopkins and Christian counties co-operated in building a limeshed at Dawson Springs, where lime will be available at all times.

A Greenup county farmer reports that after wasting $200 on clover seed in years past, he decided to apply limestone to the land, with the result that this year's hay crop made nearly three tons to the acre.

Fifteen farmers, including three from Hardin county and one from Letcher county, made a tour of beer cattle feeders in Nelson county, inspecting 260 cattle and studying feeding methods.

TELLS WHY TEN FARMERS FAILED

Why ten farms had low earnings is set forth by Harry A. Ward, of the farm economics department of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, after a study and analysis of the business of 31 dairy, truck and poultry farmers. Here are some of his reasons why the ten men failed:

1. Wasted and misdirected capital. Too many hogs and not enough cattle, sheep and poultry.
2. Receipts too small. Should increase receipts from sheep, poultry and dairy cattle and also from cash crops.
3. Wasted available man labor which should take care of additional livestock.
4. Inefficient use of available horse labor, causing high feed cost per crop acre. Should either cut down the number of horses or increase the acres of cultivated crops.
5. Low returns from pasture lands, due either to poor quality of pasture or insufficient livestock. Should improve pasture, so each acre will support more livestock and bring in increased returns.
6. Low returns from dairy cattle, due to low average production per cow. Cows should be tested and the low producing ones eliminated from the herd. All other known means should be used to increase the average production.

"Everything is within the control of these farmers, and their farms could be turned into a profitable business within a few years time by some careful thinking, planning and work," concluded Mr. Ward. "After all is said and done, it is up to the individual farmer to decide for himself whether he is willing and ready to pay the price of success or whether he prefers the peace and contentment found along the ruts and beaten paths of the past."

GOOD WATER MEANS MORE HOG PROFITS

Adequate facilities for supplying water would increase the profits from hogs on many farms, declares Grady Sellards, of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Too few farms have proper equipment for keeping hogs supplied continuously with pure drinking water.

Mr. Sellards protests against the use of filthy ponds both as a wallow and as a source of drinking water. He believes it would be highly profitable to haul water to the different fields in which hogs are running, if there is no other good source.

The question of equipment in which to keep drinking water can be met by preparing a regular hog watering barrel. A vinegar barrel can be converted into a good one for this purpose.

Two holes are bored in the head of the barrel and another hole two inches from the bottom. The bottom hole and one top hole should be a quarter of an inch and the other hole in the head, or the filling hole, should be an inch and a half in diameter. The barrel is set into a water tight box bottom, made out of two-by-fours. The barrel and box should be placed on runners, so it can be moved about.

Another simple way to keep water supplied to hogs is to place an automatic waterer on the bottom of a barrel. This does away with the necessity of supplying a container or box for the barrel.

KENTUCKY SHEEP TO CALIFORNIA

The Kentucky Accredited Purebred Sheep Breeders' Association recently shipped 40 breeding sheep to California. The shipment included 29 Southdown ewes and 11 Southdown rams.

Breeders consigning sheep to the shipment included William Belknap, Goshen; P. B. Gaines, Carrollton; Devers Bros., Stamping Ground; Thos. Hornsby, Eminence; William Adams, Stamping Ground; Powell Owens, Helena Station, and John Ingram, Georgetown.

The shipment was a repeat order as the result of Kentucky breeders sending 40 head of sheep to California last year. The western breeders were well pleased with the sheep sent them last year, according to Richard C. Miller, of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, who is secretary of the Kentucky Accredited Purebred Sheep Breeders' Association.

Association.

The Southdowns in both shipments were for establishing flocks of this breed. Until last year there was only one Southdown flock in California.

AUGUST

August brings a touch of fall. The sun is perceptibly on its way south. Earlier it takes its candles through the woods and goes to bed. Evening may bring a suggestion of chill and a thought of a log fire. Queen Anne's lace and button rockets are in the open places with daisies and the fox grass. There'll be red haws and wild grapes to gather.

The silk of the sweet corn is brown. Red-headed woodpeckers have come into the oaks, pounding and skirling. Thickets are growing yellow. Soon a dried leaf will come tumbling out of the shag bark hickory. The tips of the wild rose will turn red. The old wheel is on another turn.

POULTRY

By J. T. Watkins

I read an article in one of the papers the other evening, which told of a new breed of chickens. A scientist of Omaha claims he has perfected a breed of chickens which does not have wings. I hope the breed does not become universal, for that is the only part my mother-in-law eats, and I would hate like thunder to sit up there and eat fried chicken and her not be able to have any to eat.

Saturday was a big day in Fulton. I think everybody and his dog were here. And every one was trying to draw an automobile. I was as bad as the rest. Anyhow I am sorry I did not win the car, for I had it sold. If we can get as many people in the fair each day as we had here Saturday, maybe we can get our new chicken house.

Premium lists are beginning to come in for the big shows in connection with the big fairs, and by comparison, our are just as good.

Candidates were also thick around Fulton, Saturday.

We have adopted for our slogan, "100 standard bred hens on every farm," and we are not going to be satisfied with this, but we will keep on working until Fulton county is the best poultry county in the State of Kentucky. This can be done. If every farmer would begin now to aim toward this goal with me, and do his work accordingly, this would soon be a fact. There are over 120 counties in this great state, and if the government report should come out and show that Fulton county was the greatest poultry county in the state, would you be proud? Well, it can be done. Cull out your common stuff, swap the scrub rooster, save your best pullets, buy yourself a purebred cock bird and build your flock up, and you will find out it will pay you, and at the same time you will be helping make Fulton county the best poultry county in the state.

Have you got your premium list yet? There is one here for you. Get it as soon as you can and decide upon the birds you wish to put in the show and begin getting them in shape. It is only a little over a month now, and you should begin working with your birds so they will not be wild when the judge begins to handle them.

FARM NOTES

By H. A. McPherson,
County Agent

Almer Campbell, of Cayce, is expecting a car of lime this week. Mr. Campbell is a strong believer in lime and the results of his farming operations prove that lime makes farming profitable.

Mr. Benford, of Crutchfield, one of the most progressive poultrymen in the county, reports that he placed 546 baby chicks in his brooder house, and up to date he has lost a total of 34, leaving him $12, which looks good compared with the average loss over the county. He has already sold all the surplus male birds as fliers at a good price. Mr. Benford has kept around 300 hens during the season that averaged 200 eggs per day, over 16 dozen per day.

During the past 30 days I have had numerous call, wanting to know what kind of an insect that is destroying the late bottom corn. I sent a specimen to the Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky., and the following is a part of the reply received:

"I have examined the roots and stalks of corn you sent in and find no insects at all on them at present. The injury seems more like that done by the Corn Bill Bug than that of the Corn Root Worm. It is possible you have had both of them present. Both are most prevalent on a crop grown in low bottom lands.

"There is no effective method of treating either pest and recourse must be had to crop rotation, planting corn on higher, well-drained land and burning infested stubble.

"I am sorry we have no one available just now to send to you. However, there is little he could suggest doing for the present crop. Our nursery inspector, Mr. Simpson, will be down your way later and I will ask him to talk with you about the best method of avoiding such trouble another year."

The above named insects have been very destructive this summer. Corn planted on low, late, stubble land has in most cases been destroyed as many as three times and no stand yet. Some of the farmers who have lost their corn on the wet low lands, are planting soy beans, using an early variety.

Last Saturday the cream stations of Fulton shipped 32,510 gallons of cream, for which was paid the producers approximately $3,240; pretty good for one day's business.

From all indications the Fulton county fair is going to be much better than past years. It looks now like there will be at least 100 dairy cattle shown. This will be a great show, and every citizen in Fulton county should see the show.

Pointer DeMeyer is going to purchase a soybean harvester, which will probably be the first ever brought into the county. He is also going to save red clover seed off of 30 acres.

The third cutting of alfalfa is being made in the bottom. This section of the county has been blessed with a fine crop of hay this season, as well as all other crops.

CLUB WORK

By H. A. McPherson,
County Agent

Eighteen 4-H club boys from in and around Fulton, met with the county agent, Saturday morning, at the Chamber of Commerce to discuss club work. Two of the boys, James Anderson and Harold Muzzell, stated that they were going to show their heifers. After the meeting these heifers were looked over and instructions were given the boys as to fitting them for the Jersey show.

W. B. and Robert Wade claim to have the best 4-4 club acre of tobacco in the county. Their tobacco is fine and will be hard to beat, and if you want to see some real tobacco, look this over.

Later in the season a tour is going to be planned and some of the club projects will be visited. It will be a matter of impossibility to visit all, but a schedule including all that can be visited during one day will be published, and those who would like to make the trip can get in touch with me.

Around 20 boys and girls are getting their club cows and heifers in shape for the fair. A few of the boys will have as many as three to show. Some of the club members have already gotten their heifers in good shape and they should be able to show them to a good advantage.

Please bear in mind that the West Kentucky Club camp will open on Monday, August 5, at Cold Springs, which is about 5 miles north of Paducah. All club members who have done creditable work are invited to attend. Free transportation can be had for all club members who do not have ways to go. Last year we had 25 to attend camp, and this year we want 75 to attend. We would also like to have a few good men to go as leaders. You will enjoy this outing and get some very valuable information.

The livestock judging team will be selected soon for the state fair. If you want to try for the team let me know at an early date. Instructions will be given all who enroll, and later a county contest will be held, probably at the county fair, where the team of three will be selected to make the trip. This is the climax trip of the year, and you should try for it.

Baby Foods in Cans

THE Pure Food and Drugs Act is the United States Government's guarantee that foods processed in cans are pure and wholesome. After seeking the advice of eminent pediatricians, dietitians and domestic science experts, and subjecting their products to tests in the world famous laboratories of national institutions, the commercial processing of vegetables for babies has not only been allowed but also approved, under the stringent provisions of this act. This fact should go far to dispel any lurking fears of canned foods which still persists among a few people who are not abreast of the times. If foods can be canned that are not only fit for but beneficial to the delicate system of a little baby, canned foods will certainly agree with grown-ups.

For the normal baby vegetable feedings should begin according to leading pediatricians, at from six to eight months. But this is a question which you should not decide for yourself or on hearsay. Consult your doctor as to the best feeding schedule for the individual problem of your own particular and precious baby.

Consult Your Doctor

It is permissible, however, to ask him whether the many tedious tire-some hours spent in cleaning, cooking and straining vegetables for your baby cannot be avoided by the use of specially prepared strained vegetable products in cans. He will tell you that the manner in which they are processed effects a greater conservation of the rich mineral salts and vitamin elements than is possible when the same vegetables are cooked in the presence of oxygen in open vessels.

Vitamins In Winter

IN der wintertime, as our Teutonic friends would say, you need plenty of vitamins. Indeed you need them at all seasons of the year, but they're harder to get in winter because you have less outdoor life and less of the sunshine whose health-giving rays supply you with vitamin D. There are, however, many foods which are known to be rich in vitamin D, such as cod liver oil, milk, eggs and green vegetables.

One of the best ways to get a supply of the other vitamins in winter—A, B, C and the recently discovered vitamin E which assists the red blood cells to absorb iron from foods—is to drink canned tomato juice. In a recent article in "Hygeia," published by the American Medical Association, Dr. E. F. Koch states that commercially canned foods have been found to be richer in vitamins than home cooked foods and that canned tomatoes have been tested three years after canning and no evidence found that their storage results in any appreciable loss of vitamins.

For Baby, Too

This drink is good for baby, too. Dr. A. F. Hess of Columbia University says: "Canned tomatoes is the most serviceable antiscorbutic for artificially fed infants. It is well borne, inexpensive and available." And William Howard Fitch of the U. S. A. Medical Research Bureau says: "The popularity of the tomato, fresh and canned, is fully justified by our present knowledge of food values, for the tomato is rich in all three vitamins (A, B and C) and retains them well when cooked and canned."

The Road Toward Home

By CLARISSA MACKIE

THE great circular lunch counter in the railroad station was a busy spot at all times.

One October day after Priscilla Fair had been there two months, and was counted the most rapid of all the waitresses, there came a sudden, unexpected rush of customers that filled the stools to the last one. "Please take that one for me, Prisc," begged fat Annie Hardy, as she lumbered past with a plate of clam chowder in one hand and a hummingbird cup of coffee in the other. She nodded toward the last stool at the circular counter, the one next to the cross-counter. Priscilla nodded and slipped around the shining urtic and faced the waiting customer.

She saw a pale-faced man with drooping eyes, who stared first at her, then down at the menu in his hand. When he lifted his glance to her again his eyes were not drooping nor kind nor anything. Just cold and indifferent as becomes a stranger.

"Well," prompted Priscilla at last. "Oh," he started, looked at her and rubbed his eyes. "Bacon and eggs and coffee," he said curtly. While she was gone, he read a railroad time table. He was still reading it when she returned with the food which she placed before him.

"You are reading it upside down," she said softly.

"Reading what?"

"The time table?"

"Oh—" glancing at it and thrusting it into his pocket, "thank you."

"You're welcome—going away again soon?" she asked wistfully.

"Tonight," he replied. "Sugar, please."

Priscilla pushed the sugar bowl to ward him and tore a check out of the bunch at her waist. "Anything else?"

"What have you got—that's good?"

"Apple pie."

"Sure?"

"I made it."

"All right—I'll take a chance," grudgingly.

Priscilla was glad that Murphy, the proprietor, had agreed to try one of her apple pies. Since then she had earned extra money by making pies for the counter. Murphy's lunch was famous for its homemade apple pie.

After he had eaten the pie, Priscilla punched the check and laid it beside his plate, then she began to remove the soiled dishes.

"Wait," he said, abruptly.

Priscilla waited, her eyes dark, expectant.

"Have you been here long?"

"Two months."

"Where did you learn to make apple pies?"

"My aunt showed me how."

"Oh! Do you want to know what I'm doing here?"

She nodded.

"Looking for my wife. She went away from me because I criticized her cooking. Spunky little thing. And she went away just for that!" He looked hard at her.

"You must have said mean things to her," said Priscilla, the pink creeping into her cheeks.

"Maybe I did, and maybe I was sorry about it. And after I'd put in a couple of loads of hay, perhaps I went to the house to tell her how mean I was and try to make up—and found she had gone. Only married three months!"

"How are you going to find her?" asked Priscilla, her white face eager.

"You don't even know where she went?"

"That day when I got home and found she'd gone, I just closed my house, put my cows in charge of a neighbor, and set out to find my wife. I've been all over the Middle West, chasing clues that led me nowhere. But then, at last, I struck luck. I found her—I'm going to take her home on the 6:30 train tonight!"

In the silence that followed this announcement, the big voice of Murphy was heard in a husky whisper. "Is that feller bawling about the food here? Tell him to come to me if he don't like it, and I'll give him back his money!"

Priscilla turned a radiant face upon her employer.

"Oh, Mr. Murphy! It's only my husband telling me that we're going home on the 6:30 train tonight!"

A hurricane of whistles whirled about the shining coffee urns as Priscilla turned back to her husband, no longer sullen, but smiling, upright with the fine courage that had carried him through a dangerous crisis. "Will you go, Priscilla?" he asked, and there was a tremor in his deep voice.

"Go?" and her hands went across the counter to him. "That's why I took this job, Larry—hoping you might come to this station some day—it's on the road toward home, you know! And if you had not come for me today, I would have started home tomorrow."

Reason Enough

"Oh, what a strange-looking cow!" exclaimed a sweet young thing from Detroit. "But why hasn't it any horns?"

"Well, you see," explained the farmer, some cows is born without horns and never have any, and others shed theirs, and some we dohorn, and some breeders ain't supposed to have horns at all. There's lots of reasons why some cows ain't got horns, but the big reason why that cow ain't got horns is because she ain't a cow—she's a horse."—Royal Arcanum Bulletin.

Advised by the Principal

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

MARY DAWSON went timidly into the principal's room to sign the time chart that first day of her career as teacher in Public School No. 78. As she approached the table a young man drew back to let her precede him.

"Thank you," said Mary, and as she looked at him all she noticed was that he had red hair.

"I didn't know there were any men teachers here," she observed at recess to one of the younger teachers whom she met in the playground. "I saw one when I was signing in this morning—young—with red hair—what grade does he teach?"

"That's Dick Mendham—teaches eighth grade boys. There are three of 'em—if you call 'em men—never seen 'em, real men to me. But they have to have 'em to teach the big boys."

Later Mary Dawson realized that this young woman's attitude toward the men teachers at No. 78 was characteristic of the attitude of the other women teachers there.

After Mary had been teaching for a month or more Miss Graham, the principal, asked her to stop in her office after school to see about report cards. It was a small matter soon arranged and then Miss Graham asked Mary to sit down and have a little chat. Miss Graham asked Mary how she liked her work. Mary said she liked to teach, though she was doing it to make a living.

"I'll give you a piece of advice," said Miss Graham, who was fifty.

"Snap out of it as soon as you can. Once the system gets you it will be hard to get out. You'll put off the idea of marriage because every year you'll look forward to a little more money the next. Then you'll begin to count the years to your retirement with a nice annuity the rest of your life. Now my advice to you is to marry your best young man soon—before you get obsessed with this idea of yearly increase and eventually retirement."

"But suppose I haven't a young man," said Mary smiling.

"Marry the first man that asks you—providing he's decent. Don't wait for a man who can guarantee a yearly increase and an annuity in your old age."

"I'll remember what you have said," said Mary with a little blush, and would have said more but Miss Graham interrupted.

"Don't go away," the principal was saying good naturedly—then in an aside to Mary. "There's poor Mr. Mendham—scared off because you're a. Somehow men teachers never am like real men." Then, raising her voice: "Come right in, Mr. Mendham, I want to show you the new report cards."

Mary hurried out of the principal's room, tingling with a sort of deep resentment. It wasn't because of what Miss Graham had said about marriage. Undoubtedly she had given good advice. It was because of what she had said about Mr. Mendham. Mary herself liked Mr. Mendham and respected him.

After that Mary took pains to speak cordially to Mr. Mendham when she passed him in the corridors. It was absurd to snub him, if he wanted to teach in a public school that was his own affair.

One day she was leaving the school at the same time that Mr. Mendham passed out the teacher's entrance, and because Miss Graham was standing by, Mary waited for him and asked him if he would walk with her—since they both went in the same direction. A few days later when he had walked home with her she asked him to come into tea at her boarding house. It was four o'clock and her boarding-house keeper, who was an English woman, always had tea in the little parlor.

A month later Mary found herself one evening after dinner eagerly waiting for Dick Mendham, who had invited her to go to the theater with him. Mary wondered why she was so feverishly eager for the time of his arrival to come. Then as she walked beside him and later sat beside him in the subway going to the theater she reflected to herself that he looked much more attractive away from school. And coming back after the theater that night Richard Mendham asked Mary to be his wife. Mary accepted him at once.

"I never dreamed that you would have me—at least not right away," Dick told her, and Mary was wondering how much Miss Graham's advice had had to do with her quick decision. He was the first man who asked her, and she had accepted him. They planned to be married in the summer after school was over and Dick told Mary that he would never consent to her teaching after they were married. He himself was giving up teaching when the summer came. He had a position waiting for him in a school-book publishing company and had been teaching for two years to fit himself for this work. His uncle was the president of the concern and wanted someone who knew the public-school system.

In June Mary told Miss Graham of her engagement.

"Not Dick Mendham," said she, amazed. "What made you accept him?"

"You did," said Mary, her eyes glowing. "You told me to accept the first man that proposed. And I want to thank you for your very good advice."

Cultivate The Habit Of A "Salad A Day"

By JOSEPHINE B. GIESON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

The salad habit is growing in America. We have salads suitable for every occasion, substantial ones for the main dish of the luncheon or supper, simple salads of greens for the dinner menu, and the fancier salads for dessert or as party refreshments. Besides being attractive in appearance and appealing to the appetite, salads supply in our diets the minerals and vitamins so necessary for health.

Put kidney beans in strainer and pour boiling water over them. Cool, mix with celery, India Relish, and salt. Moisten with well-seasoned salad dressing, chill thoroughly, and serve in beds of crisp lettuce. Garnish with slices of hard-cooked egg or dash of paprika. Serve with whole-wheat bread sandwiches.

Pear Macaroni Salad—Mash a package of Philadelphia cream cheese. Moisten with Mayonnaise dressing. Spread half a canned pear with this mixture, cover with another half of pear. Dip whole pear thus formed in ground ma-

It is little wonder, then, that when we women meet, new salad recipes are often the topic of discussion. They are a subject of genuine interest to us! Here are a few recipes for easily prepared, attractive salads, which you will enjoy using.

Mock Salmon Salad—

2 cups carrots coarsely grated or ground; 1/2 cup chopped English walnuts; 1/4 cup stuffed olives chopped; 1 green pepper chopped; 1 tablespoon preserved sweet onion chopped; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/2 cup well-seasoned salad dressing.

Mix thoroughly and serve in nests of lettuce. Garnish with slices of stuffed olive. This makes a delicious, healthful salad, also a good sandwich spread.

Kidney Bean Salad—

2 cups Baked Red Kidney Beans; 1 cup celery, cut in pieces or cut cabbage; 2 tablespoons India Relish; 1/2 teaspoon salt.

caroon crumbs (to prepare caroon crumbs roll stale macaroons finely). Serve in nest of crisp lettuce. Garnish with spoonful of Mayonnaise Dressing and a maraschino cherry. Peaches may be prepared in same manner.

Banana and Peanut Butter Salad—This is a favorite salad with children. Peel bananas, cut in half lengthwise. Spread one half with peanut butter and cover with other layer. Cut bananas into thirds and arrange on beds of lettuce. Garnish with spoonful of mayonnaise.

Country Club Salad—Cut cold boiled or baked ham into small dice and add equal amount of diced celery. Moisten with mayonnaise dressing. Chill thoroughly and serve in beds of lettuce; garnish with slices of stuffed olives.
