Building And Improvements

The extensive improvements at the Browder Milling Company's plant on State Line Street to take care of the mixed feeds demand a builder with recent experience in this line of business. The building has recently been completed and equipped with the most modern machinery and modern construction. The plant is not yet fully developed, and the necessary number of trained men are needed to make the plant as the best and most productive.

Lee Roberts, contractor, has laid 600 feet of new water main for the plant near the sewer and streets for the plant.

FARM TOUR A SUCCESS

Last Friday, about 10 farmers, from all parts of Fulton county, under the leadership of county agent H. M. Thompson, made a tour through some of the farms of the county for the purpose of seeing demonstrations of the different varieties of the principal crops and their farming methods. The first stop was made at the farm of Mr. Jim McGee and Mr. Bob Roberts. He keeps a record of all of his operations and we weighed one ton for each litter by that method. Mr. McGee keeps his litters of pigs: one with 1179., and another with 1179. pigs. Mr. Burnett keeps a record of all their operations and we weighed one ton for each litter by that method.

The party then moved to the farm of Mr. Crittenden, editor of the Kentucky Progress, who has demonstrated that tobacco can be grown at a cheap cost. The party then moved to the farm of Mr. McPherson for the purpose of seeing demonstrations of the principal crops and their farming methods. The first stop was made at the farm of Mr. Jim McGee and Mr. Bob Roberts. He keeps a record of all his operations and we weighed one ton for each litter by that method. Mr. McGee keeps his litters of pigs: one with 1179., and another with 1179. pigs. Mr. Burnett keeps a record of all their operations and we weighed one ton for each litter by that method.

After the program had been finished the tour was continued, viewing several demonstrations in the bottom. Some farmers grew alfalfa and red clover. Mr. Thompson has demonstrated that tobacco can be grown at a cheap cost, and corn grown by him so successfully that the yield from this corn will be more than enough to pay for some of the feed that he used in his farm. Practical dairy demonstrations will be seen.

Rapidly. Short talks were made, and a third man whose name was not given was present. The tour was then concluded in the bottom, where alfalfa was grown for hay. The farmer grow all his feed that he possibly can and this is done in the bottom. Some farmers grew alfalfa and red clover. YOUTH--AND THE NEW LEADERSHIP

In the past, we picture handsome, grave, gray-haired men in the business of banking. Today, we picture smart, young, staccato-speaking men. This is the youth of today. The youth of tomorrow will be with us tomorrow. They are coming to you, and you need to know what to do. They are coming to you, and you need to be prepared to meet them.

A Letter From China

Shanghai, China July 8, 1929.

Dear Editor,

Here comes a letter from the land of ingenuity, graft, war, famine, suffering, disease, to tell you and the readers of your excellent paper about China's war. A woman has a share in the "Chinese" war.

A woman in China, 26 years old, has been given a big Task Whirl. With it, she should not work alone today. That woman had to operate something to the domestic animals, she faced to the future: if a little family, she expected at home and stay there. She had to be seen only by her husband or brothers.

Now what is "New"? In China, women are working near the mowers with a spade, some are freedom with self-remoral, some are grooms and others are farmers and workers. Farmers, the parents arranged their marriage. Now no one owns the young ladies wearing very attractive gowns in front of their "boss boys," and the young people are forming. The idea is used to be the modest of a generation. Now women are often seen with short sleeves, skirts sometimes so short and low, and some are bare arms and legs. Beautiful Chinese girls are quite common. Fagers sometimes so short, sometimes so long that the clothes have to be recovered. Some production companies command them to dress modestly. The girls have been taught to fit in with the most up-to-date age. They should be freedom. They dance in the most light-bedrooms of Socialists and in the modern style. They ride horses, sailboats, against the old habits, they take in and out of the street, with boots and without. The one has been declared for freedom. "That's English," the November home of China.

Once the ideal for girls was to be a good wife and to be good mother of the family. Now they are doing other things. They are clerks in stores, Some are doctors and nurses. Some are lawyers and judges and doctors, are teachers and kindergarten. They even become soldiers and sometimes they become foreigner's servants. Women also take the center position and are famous in the Revolution, and that the country is hard to be deflected from the "Chinese" war.

I am glad to see that some few of them are taking part in the first cross war in clearing the suffering of those wounded in battle. Women, too, have placed a lot of influence in the government. Today's women have achieved all things and abilities, and women who are the signs of the revolution, and who can fight for the battles. But among the younger generation they have ambition, but with ambition that carries them then forward:

I'm glad being that there are many women who have seen through our middle schools and are nothing new, beautiful Chinese homes where the children are bright and taught to be good in different matters of society, children from whom they and missions can be proud and gladful. The are sure to give up things from this nation in which the people have been brought up floggers in girls, physical and moral; but a new generation is coming on, and the ones in the church of Christ and in those clean Chinese homes. We are expecting much from China from each country.

Girls are out of joint in China, but we hope and pray that the common voice of better Chinese and the deeply planted power of the gospel will gradually overcome the moral influences and that China will feel free, prosperous, and a place among the great nations of the world.

Yours in Christ's glad service,
Rev. W. G. Hileck.
