Fulton Railroad Man Commits Suicide Tuesday

Elmer Hancock, 37, Illinois Central clerk, took his own life Tuesday soon after noon, when he crawled behind a lounge at his home, placed a shotgun against the wall and discharged it by using a cane to push the trigger. The charge blew the top of his head into a blood mass, and death was instantaneous.

The act was premeditated as was evidenced by facts gathered after the shooting. He went by Edwards Food Store and purchased a shell, and from there it is believed he went to his home at the corner of Washington and Main streets. When he reached the house, he asked his wife to go to a neighbor's on an errand, telling her that he was going to sleep a while. Soon afterward the fatal shot was fired.

Mrs. Witt, next door neighbor, heard the shot, and called Mrs. Hancock, who went to investigate when they found the shocking result. A coroner's jury, composed of Homer Roberts, magistrate; T. D. Boaz, Bill Browning, Abe Thompson, Virgil Davis, Sam Campbell, and Shelton Hart, declared that Hancock met death by his own hand. A note addressed to Mrs. Hancock was found beside the body, but was not made public.

The deceased is survived by his wife, three children, Bobby, John and Betty Sue; his parents, several brothers and sisters. The remains were taken to Greenville, Ky., where interment was made Thursday.

Baseball Association Needs Help

The Fulton Baseball Association, faced with a treasury that is practically empty, with another month of the present season to go, issues the following statement to the people of Fulton:

To Baseball Fans of Fulton:

The Directors of the Fulton Baseball Association regret to inform you that the 1938 season has not been very successful in many ways. Our attendance has not been what we expected due to bad weather and our standing in the league has not been satisfactory. A number of games have been rained out, and on days that we did and could play, the grounds have been wet and the weather cool, this keeping many spectators away.

We have not been able to meet the payroll that was due on August 15, and a few other bills are past due, and we know of no better way than to explain the situation to you and see if we can raise approximately $1,000, which will take care of the payroll and all other current accounts.

A committee will call on you tomorrow and your cooperation will be deeply appreciated.—FULTON BASEBALL ASSOCIATION.

The fact that this country is busily constructing dams throughout the nation doesn't get away from the fact that the greatest water power on this earth is a woman's tears.

What Money Cannot Buy—

Pictured above, as proudly displayed upon the coat sleeve of a veteran passenger conductor, are the symbols* of a full half-century of Illinois Central service.

These symbols stand for experienced dependability—a characteristic which money cannot buy and one for which both the railroads and their employees are distinguished.

A railroad is dependable because it combines sound track, strong trains, known rates, financial responsibility and experienced employees who thoroughly know their jobs.

Notably fortunate in the latter respect, the Illinois Central has 8,000 employees who have worked for the road a quarter-century or more, and its total personnel represents an aggregate service record approaching a million years.

The Illinois Central is now in its eighty-eighth year. A great deal has been learned throughout these years that insures dependable service for shippers and travelers.

Suit has been filed in the Supreme Court of Queens county by the Pepsi-Cola Company against the Coca-Cola Company, asking for a restraining order to enjoin the Coca-Cola Company from interfering with the Pepsi-Cola Company, its subsidiaries and licensees throughout the U. S.

Simultaneously with the filing of this Bill of Complaints against the Coca-Cola Company, a petition has been filed in the U. S. Patent Office in Washington, D. C. by the Pepsi-Cola Company attacking the validity of the Coca-Cola Trade-Mark. It is claimed that the Trade-Mark was obtained "through untruthful and fraudulent statements made in the application for Trade-mark registration."

The petition further states that the names "Coca" and "Cola" are both descriptive names, are public property, and, therefore, cannot be used exclusively by the Coca-Cola Company.

The Bill of Complaint alleges that the Pepsi-Cola Trade-mark has been in existence and in continuous use for more than 35 years; and that during all that period Pepsi-Cola has been sold side-by-side in competition with Coca-Cola; and that its rights have never been challenged in the United States by anyone during this entire period.

During the past several years, the Pepsi-Cola Company has been active in sales and advertising, and as a result distribution has been obtained not only throughout the U. S., but throughout a considerable part of the world.

The Bill of Complaints further alleges that "in the Metropolitan District of New York and throughout many other places, the sales of bottled Pepsi-Cola far exceed the sales of bottled Coca-Cola; and that as a result the Coca-Cola Company has resorted to illegal and fraudulent practices in an effort to stifle this competition and injure the good will of the Pepsi-Cola Company, destroy its business and that of its subsidiaries, affiliates and licensees and thus create for itself a monopoly of the soft drink beverage business, especially in the Cola field."

Efforts are being made "to buy out or intimidate all competitors of Coca-Cola in order to create a monopoly" the suit contends.

The Pepsi-Cola Company asks an injunction restraining the Coca-Cola Company "from causing any opposition to be filed to the registration of plaintiff's trade-mark in any State of the United States or in any foreign country," and from any action that might threaten precaution of anyone for manufacturing, buying, selling, distributing or otherwise dealing in the trade name of Pepsi-Cola.

REA Program In This Area

The Rural Electrification Administration has given preliminary consideration to an application of the Hickman-Fulton counties Rural Electric Cooperative Corp., Hickman, Ky., for an additional loan to extend its rural lines in Fulton and Hickman counties in Kentucky; Owen county, Tennessee and has outlined the steps which must be completed before an allotment of funds can be made.

The original application covered 212 miles to serve 968 customers. REA has already allotted $100,000 for this project. The proposed extensions would total 112 miles of line to serve 558 new customers.

It will be necessary for the project sponsors to obtain and submit signed applications for membership in the cooperative as well as applications for electrical service from it; also obtain easements for the right-of-way for the power lines, and prepare and send to REA a detailed map of the proposed extension.

This project gets TVA power, and the standard TVA retail rates apply.

Speed in further development of this project depends in large measure upon a continuance of the community cooperation which is principally responsible for the success of the project so far. If the information about this proposed addition is satisfactory, REA expects to be able to allot money to meet the entire construction costs. No money will be lent to pay for rights-of-way.

VIEWS SOUTH AS GREATEST OF MARKETS

"The South is the nation's greatest untapped market in which American business can expand most easily," declares the report on economic conditions in the South, prepared by a committee of the National Emergency Council. The South presents right now the nation's No. 1 problem, not merely the South's,

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT COSTS EXCEED COLLECTIONS

The first years of the social security act cost the federal treasury $1,232,558,598 and brought in $897,946,271 of revenue. Federal expenditures for the gigantic pension system have included $504,204,188 for grants to the states, $690,000,000 for investments in the old age reserve fund and about $38,000,000 for administration of the law.

TWO NEW FACES APPEAR ON GUBERNATORIAL HORIZON

As a result of the recent Kentucky Senatorial campaign, two new figures popped into the 1939 gubernatorial scene. They are United States Senator M. M. Logan of Bowling Green, and Garth K. Ferguson of Ballard county, state commissioner of agriculture. Both are identified with the Lafoon-Rhea-Barkley wing of the Democratic party as distinguished from the Chandler-Talbot faction.

PURGES TEST POWER OF ROOSEVELT IN 1940

Open warfare by President Roosevelt on two veteran southern senators, George of Georgia and Smith of South Carolina, held the key to the 1940 presidential race, it is believed. If Roosevelt is successful in purging the party of New Deal critics, and replaces them in Congress with members sympathetic to his views, he more than likely will be successful in completing his legislative program in the next two years, and eliminate the necessity of seeking a third term. Too, it will give him control over the 1940 convention and dictate his choice of a successor.

NAZISM GROWS IN U. S. COMMITTEE REPORTS

At least 25,000 Germans in this country are under oath to support Adolf Hitler, and 75,000 are willing associates of Nazi-dressed storm troopers, with 400,000 more sympathizers of Nazi activities, the special house committee investigating un-American activities have been told.

60 CIO LEADERS NAMED AS REDS

In sworn testimony, the American Federation of Labor charges that key figures in John L. Lewis' CIO are Communists and that the CIO movement itself has become a carrier of the revolutionary virus.

Approximately 1,000 employees of the Kentucky State Highway Department will be dismissed this month, state engineer Thomas Cutler states. He said 500 would be dropped in the First District, and 25 to 75 in the other districts.

Based on conditions as of August 1, the new estimate of dark fired tobacco production in the Western District this year totals 26,874,000 pounds compared with 26,206,000 pounds last year and an estimated yield of 26,055,000 pounds as of July 1.

KENTUCKY AND THE NEW DEAL

There is no doubt but that the defeat of Senator Barkley in Kentucky would have been a severe blow to the New Deal. President Roosevelt welcomed the hazard when he came to Kentucky and gave the senator a friendly pat on the back. It is true that Governor Chandler did his best to soften the pat by continually protesting his own allegiance to the President, but the presidential gesture was not to be mistaken. It was notice to Federal officeholders that they were expected to go down the line for Barkley, and they did just that.

However, so many circumstances enter into a contest of this sort that it is often difficult to make any hard and fast claim, or to analyze a victory in a hard and fast way. It must be remembered, for instance, that Senator Barkley is a very popular Kentuckian, and a very vigorous fighter. In 1932, he broke a precedent of 40 years in Kentucky by being re-elected to the Senate—an event which had not occurred on the ever-shifting stage of Kentucky politics since the days of Beck and Blackburn. The very fact that Senator Barkley occupied a commanding position in the leadership of his party added no little to his prestige.

But what practical political observers regarded as probably the most powerful circumstance in his favor was that Senator Barkley is the product of Kentucky's Democratic Gibraltar. He was born and still lives in Jackson's Purchase—a section of the state which was more Southern during the Civil War than some parts of South Carolina, and which today is overwhelmingly Democratic. Time and again West Kentucky has saved the Democratic ticket in Kentucky. In fact, on election night Democratic headquarters in Louisville determines whether to close up shop or begin shouting when the early returns from the "State of Graves" begin to indicate whether Graves County Democrats have really turned out or have gone fishing.

Those who doubt the enthusiasm West Kentucky has for a native son need only to glance over Saturday election returns. While Senator Barkley and Governor Chandler nipped and tucked in most of the other sections of the state, Senator Barkley carried West Kentucky's two congressional districts by between 25,000 and 30,000. These two districts with Louisville, where Governor Chandler is up against a highly organized city organization virtually account for Senator Barkley's majority in the primary.

This is all aside from the fact that every available agency of government was pulled into the campaign creating a situation which the Senate Investigating Committee denounced as "deplorable." It was a case of the state machine pitted against the Federal machine. How many votes these activities accounted for will never be definitely determined. But while the experts are trying to figure that out it is well to remember that in Kentucky, as in all of the other states, local issues, local circumstances and local influences had much to do with the result. That is true whether the New Deal is in issue or not—(Commercial Appeal.)

DUCK SEASON 15 DAYS LONGER STARTS OCT. 15TH

Sportsmen who enjoy hunting ducks and other migratory fowl will get a break this fall when the duck season opens. The open season has been extended 15 days on duck and migratory waterfowl by the authorization of the Federal Government.

The season will start 15 days earlier on ducks, geese, jacksnipes and coots. This will allow a 45-day season instead of the 30-day period permitted the last three years. The season for Kentucky opens Oct. 15th and closes on Oct. 28th.

The earlier and longer hunting was authorized in an order approved by the President and Secretary Wallace and based upon a bureau investigation of waterfowl conditions.

CO-OPERATION IN DENMARK

Denmark is one of the greatest agricultural countries. According to the Dairyman's League News, "Danish farmers are about the best in the world and the happiest."

In the light of that, it's an interesting fact that practically all Danish farm produce is sold through farmer-owned agricultural marketing cooperatives. Individual selling by lone, unorganized farmers is virtually unknown.

American agriculture is gradually coming toward this state, with the memberships and the volume of business done by the selling co-ops steadily growing. The result: a sounder farm economy, more stable markets, and a better return to the producer.

WORM TALK

Did any of you folks in Fulton ever happen to drive through a city at night, about this time of year, and notice the flickering of flashlights in the parks you would chance to drive past? Any local man would know what was going on, folks are looking for fishing worms, of course. It is possible to get these night-crawlers, or if you want to be technical—lumbrius by digging in the ground or using the electric-rod in the earth in the daytime. But the more popular way is to hunt for them by flashlight at night. A worm can't see, they only listen for the sound of approaching footsteps, and since they are somewhat intelligent, usually keep their tails concealed in the hole in order to draw back as soon as prowler approaches. They are hard to capture but are well worth your trouble when it comes to satisfying the fish. There are always fishermen who scorn the worm bait, and the night crawler is simply a large garden worm. But we have seen a worm work where the fancy bit of color and feathers fail to get a nibble. Six inches is a nice sized night-crawler in our country, but we take a back seat when South America and Australia comes along with them six feet. You will figure we are trying to put over a fish story when we state that where these worms come in this length, the local fishermen train them to wrap themselves around the fish from a center pole on which they are fastened. Personally, we think it would be a man-sized job to train a worm.

IN CLOVER

There has been quite a lot of surmising on the part of all of us as to where the large and unusual white clover has come from. Folks around Fulton have noticed there is such an abundance of it in their yards and pastures. It has been a good many years since there has been so much of it. The lawns in our cities show more than the regular trace of it's presence, while the air is sweet with it's fragrance. Where has it been, and where will it go, perhaps not to appear for maybe many years again in such profusion? Will it give way this next summer to growths not nearly so pleasant. Every farmer has his weeds to annoy him, and white clover is more to his liking. We can remember many a crown and necklace braided of this plant which was one of our ways of entertaining ourselves in the days of our youth. This is our year for being in clover, and we welcome it, the pleasure of the bee and of man.

TO A ROASTING EAR

Here's to the king-pin of summer, the good old American "roasting ear." It is one of the reasons we can stand the heat and the sun—the fact that summer-time means "roasting ear" time. In the old days they used to roast the corn on the cob, but that was when the hunter couldn't be bothered with tending a pot in which to boil the corn, as we do today, but preferred to toss the ear into the ashes and embers of a camp-fire. Ask any Fulton man which way he would rather take his corn. There is a different taste to it when it is baked and when it is boiled in water. This is an ode to corn on the cob, however it is prepared—the golden grain of the gods, which finds its proper place on the tables of both the rich and the poor. Plentiful in number, all manner of men find it within his means. There may be proper ways to hold it, for we have noticed the new-fangled corn-forks that stick in each end of the cob, (to keep your fingers clean). It matters not how you bite it, nor how thickly you butter it, whether you spread it from ear to ear or nibble daintily, it still remains the most satisfying vegetable that pops from the ground. There are no holds barred in corn-eating. The fellow who comes out the same after eating as he was when he begun, does not know the joy there is in getting butter on your nose. The sorriest sight is the fellow who can no longer dig down to the cob with his mouth spread wide, but is forced to cut the grains off the cob in order to eat it at all. That is when you really realize that the years are many.

It may not be of any interest to our readers, but we think it must be terrible to marry for money, and then not get it.

RURAL HEALTH

The well worn "you can take the man out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the man," always made us proud rather than irritated, for we like being "country." And we like it more so since we learn from the United States Public Health Service, that the folks residing in the country live a healthier and a longer life than the folks that live in the city. We have a lower rate for almost every cause of illness, and have fewer doctor and medical aid for treatment of what illnesses we do have. There are so many things in the city to help in the prevention of disease, so many ways of making their environment and living conditions more healthy, while most of us in the country just go on living and using the same method of surviving that our families before us used and figure what was good enough for their health is good enough for ours. Of course, we have progressed with the times, availing ourselves of modern conveniences and keeping abreast of new and required equipment, but when you compare the health and medical means received by the city dweller and those same things that are more difficult to find in the rural communities, it is something else that gives us this longer life. Of course those diseases that are contracted by living so close to each other would naturally be harder to control in the closely populated areas. However, the service of our public health points out that the life expectancy in cities now has reached the point of expectancy enjoyed by rural dwellers as far back as the year 1900."

GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY

CAN JAPAN WIN

Two years ago Japan was considered one of the world's foremost powers. Power, of course, in terms of military might. Today the top ranking nations are beginning to wonder and in reality are placing her in second rate list.

Japan's "good neighbor" policy toward China gained her this rating. It resembles Napoleon's march into Russia. Japan, like France, had the greater fighting machine—but nature took a hand. Napoleon's army was starved and though Japan's situation is a little different—Japan's people who back the army are starving—the ultimate result most probably be the same. Eventually the people of Japan will let their army down. Why, Because a weak, sick, and emaciated body can neither yield an effective sword nor work 16 hours a day for two yen or 58 cents a day. The highest industrial wage paid in Japan today is $1.14 a day which goes to the steel workers—those who make death dealing devices. (Attention Jno. L. Lewis of the C. I. O.) In one factory, over a period of a year, 950 of the 1,000 employees were at one time or another on the accident list. In 12 months 2,000 labor disputes arose, and labor disorders have increased 20% over the preceding year.

These figures seem foreign to articles of war and military prowess, yet they represent a factor as important as gunpowder itself. They are indicative of the Japan that is to be unless thru some hocus pocus they can soon win the war with China, settle her dispute with Russia and build something upon the bloody disreputable mess that it modern China—thanks to Nippon—from which she can feed her starving masses. These are the problems Japan must vanquish if she is to be the victor—they are not problems for a starving nation!

Picked Up About Town

Jack Edwards says, "They advise the use of fruit and vegetables to improve a girl's complexion, but how often do you see a girl go into a grocery instead of a drug store?"

"If fashion has anything more freakish in styles than these new 'doll hair,' the women folks are wearing," remarks Gilbert DeMyer, "She better trot them out now, for she will be a long time finding a generation as crazy as this one."

The fact that history always repeats itself, doesn't necessarily mean that the door is going to be open for lots of this stuff that is going on now, being made welcome when it puts in a return engagement.

When Aaron Butts read that the per-capita consumption of meat in this country in 1925 was 138 pounds and last year it was only 119 pounds he wondered if we were becoming a nation of vegetarians or merely slowly starving to death.

For folks that might be interested in the sneezing end of it John Davies, read where enough ragweed pollen grains can be grown on a plot of 20 feet square to give hay fever to 15 billion persons.

It is always better to start at the bottom of the ladder—except in case of fire.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

Alfalfa

The time for sowing alfalfa is almost here again. Farmers who sowed during the last days of August in 1937 have reported securing better stands and are surer of a hay crop than when alfalfa is seeded late in September.

An application of Manure along with plenty of lime and a good application of phosphate works wonders in helping to secure a stand and increasing the tonage of hay next year.

The following men have stated that they have land already prepared for seeding about August 20: J. M. Roper, Herman Harrison, Ed Thompson, C. L. Drysdale, J. M. Atteberry, Will McClanahan, J. P. DeMyer, Joe Griffith, Raymond Griffith, Paul Hornsby, Joe French, Leslie Nugent O. C. Burton, G. H. Dallas.

Sheep

Neal Little and H. C. Helm purchased some Western ewes which will be used to compare with native grade Hampshire ewes this coming year in the production of market lambs.

Order Lime And Phosphate

Enough orders for 43% phosphate have been placed to fill two cars. The committee wishes that all orders for phosphate would be placed by September 1st, so they may be applied for early and no one will be left out. So why not come to the office and check up on the amount of your soil building payment and if it has or has not been earned order enough phosphate and lime to treat all of the land that is to be sown to grain and grass and clover this fall.

Sept. 6. They will be guarded under lock and key.

Complete rules governing all displays and a complete list of all opportunities for competition and the awards offered are contained in the premium booklet which may be obtained by writing to Kentucky State Fair, Louisville, Kentucky.

STATE NEWS

Frankfort, Ky., August 18.—The requirement that motor vehicle operators' licenses be secured before August 1 has not been extended, Department of Revenue officials announced today.

The regulations prescribing the method of issuing 1938-39 operators' licenses provided that until August 1 a new license might be secured by a simple renewal process. The simple method of renewing licenses has been extended by the Department of Revenue until September 1. A person driving during August without a 1938-39 operators' license is, however, subject to the penalties provided by law, the Department announced.

After September 1 any person securing a new license will be required to make a detailed application, and his license will be forwarded to the Department of Revenue for checking before release. In addition, such applicants may be examined by the State Highway Patrol.

Frankfort, Ky., August 17.—The Division of Game and Fish gives several points for every sportsman to learn and abide by. If these are strictly observed, there will be more game and fish, better hunting and fishing, and a closer relationship between the sportsmen and the landowners:

1. That game and fish belong to everyone.
2. To get permission from the landowner to fish or hunt and enjoy in peace your holiday.
3. That you can believe in trespass signs without being superstitious.
4. That the word "Sportsman" is dubious unless you can truly add the word "Gentleman."
5. To respect the laws of man and nature and you'll respect yourself.
6. To take only your legal share of fish and game in season.
7. To familiarize yourself with the game laws and abide by them.
8. That limits on birds and fish are fixed for good and obvious reasons.
9. To unload your gun before entering your car.
10. That a fool from his gun is soon departed.
11. That carelessness can be abolished by thoughtfulness.
12. That a gate's efficiency depends on its being closed.
13. That fire is a menace and only God can make a tree.

Notice Given To Cotton Farmers

Instruction have just been received by the Conservation Committee and County Agent that farmers who placed their cotton in the Government loan last year, and have not sold their cotton at the present time, should inform the County Office as to the number of bales of cotton that they now have in the loan. If the cotton has been sold no report is necessary but it is very important that the report be made by farmers who have not sold their last years cotton.

Since marketing quotas will be in effect this year in cotton, certificates will have to be presented when the cotton is sold or two cents per pound will be deducted from the selling price. Therefore, a report should be made of all cotton now on hand so the producer can secure a special certificate to sell old cotton tax free.

FUTURE PICKUP AND BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT

Business generally during the past week showed increases, continuing the forward movement of retail trade, according to reports to the Department of Commerce from 35 key cities, just received by its Louisville District Office. Losses in retail volume from last year's totals continue to narrow and wholesale movement is following retail though still at a slower tempo. Merchants are expressing much optimism over outlook for future pickup and business improvement.

Employment service report 1-15 placements during past week, 142.5 per cent increase over preceding week. Placement for July totaled 2,737, a 13.9 per cent decrease from June.

Heavy rains past week caused hundred thousand dollars' damage in eastern Kentucky, flooding parts of that area.

Soaking rains were valued at $500,000 by farmers of Jackson Purchase section of Kentucky. A $200,000 corn crop was saved.

West Kentucky peach crop named as best in the nation, Peach Growers Association estimating it will total 35,000 bushels, prices ranging up to $3.50 per bushel.

Road contracts awarded for total expenditures of $1,167,298.94 in Kentucky.

Marked development recently in production and distribution of extensive variety of clays at clay mine near Mayfield, Ky.

"THE NEWS" WEEKLY SCRAPBOOK

WEEK'S BEST RECIPE

Spiced Pineapple Juice—Boil 1 cup sugar, 1½ cups water, 2 sticks of cinnamon and 8 whole cloves, for 5 minutes. Strain and cool. When cool, add this syrup to 4 cups of unsweetened pineapple juice, 1 cup orange juice and ½ cup lemon juice. Pour mixture over crushed ice and serve as a refreshing drink on hot days.

USE YOUR FRUIT JARS

Place your left-overs in your empty fruit jars and conserve on space in your ice-box. You can cut meat into pieces and put gravy over it. Put the vegetables that are left and maybe a portion of a dessert that is better heated. Keep the lids on the jar until ready for use. By putting a roaster or deep saucepan half-full of water, then setting the jars in this water, in ½ hour after the water boils, your entire dinner will be heated and ready to serve without extra pans to wash.

STAINED FINGERTIPS

During the season of canning your fingertips will probably become rough and stained. It is not necessary to scrub. Simply rub a piece of pumice over damp fingertips. Bleach your hands with a lotion of half a lemon. Cream your hands well at night and wear a pair of loose cotton gloves and the trace of canning will disappear from the hands.

FEW FARM FACTS

Corn can be cultivated too much as well as too little. Soil could be kept in a granular condition, but not pulverized by over-cultivating or by the use of equipment which tends to grind granules of soil into flour-like particles. . . . Red clover cut early makes better hay and also stands a much better chance of maturing a crop of seed in the second growth. Late cutting reduces prospective seed yields 50 to 100 per cent.

NEWSPAPER BAGS

Newspaper stitched together can be made into moth-proof bags to hold stored garments, out of season. Moths are not fond of newspaper. These bags will be found economical and useful.

INSPIRATIONAL

Three men are my friends:
He who loves me,
He who is my enemy, and
He who is indifferent to me;
He who loves me teaches me tenderness,
Who hates me teaches me caution,
And who is indifferent, self-reliance. — Anon.

UNCLE JIM

The farm marketing season will soon be here. What will the profits be?

It never pays to produce more than the market will take at a fair price.

The wheat grain contains three percent more protein, has a larger percentage of carbohydrate, but contains two and five tenths percent less fat than corn.

Under average conditions wheat should be regarded as worth slightly more than corn, pound for pound, in the feeding of farm animals.

Livestock should have salt before them at all times. They will consume more when it is in the ground rock form.

More farm machinery rusts out than wear out. Oil tools and put under shelter—they are too expensive to set out under trees and rot.

Land selection, soil preparation and other factors connected with successful alfalfa production are explained in U-T Agricultural Extension Service Publication, No. 213, "Alfalfa in the Tennessee Farm Program."

A SINGER OF BALLADS

Back in old Fidelity in the long ago, when there were few means of entertainment, ballad-singing was still in vogue. Nearly everybody could sing, in his own way, traditional songs and religious songs and sentimental songs. Vigor of voice often took the place of pleasing sounds, but the singing did us all good. When we met together at church, we sang as a matter of course, at first by following the lining by the preacher, and later from actual hymnbooks. But the pleasantest of all singing took place at our homes, when some of the neighbors came in to sit till bedtime. Sometimes we might have a fiddle and guitar or banjo to accompany us, but usually we sang a capella. In the better-fixed homes there were sometimes organs, often very wheezy, that helped out in this neighborhood sing.

But better than anything else was the ballad-singer. Not many of such were left even in those times, but our little country district could boast of one of the best I have ever known. Aunt Jane was my mother's best friend and often came to see us, accompanied by her daughter, Mary. We children so much liked to hear the two sing that we began soon after they arrived from across the hills to beg them for songs. They liked to sing so well that the begging was not wholly necessary. We had our favorites, which we requested again and again from year to year. Mary sang alto to her mother's soprano, a plaintive alto that I still remember. Their list of songs seemed then and now perfectly endless. Such a thing as a songbook for them would have been unthinkable; they sang from memory long ballads or long songs, some of them with words that were strange to all of us, words that had come from across the sea and had been transmitted orally for generations.

Their repertoire included besides ballads all sorts of things; church hymns, Civil War songs, love songs, trick songs (like their version of what is now called "Old McDonald Had A Farm"), patriotic songs. Sheet music was then unknown among us, but I know now that some of these songs had been published as popular pieces and had drifted to us in the backwoods from some far-off source. I never challenged her to try it, but I believe that Aunt Jane could have sung church hymns from memory for two or three days and nights, without stopping. In addition to the fine old hymns, her list included dozen of songs in quaint old hymn-books that used to be found in singing schools all over the South.

No power of mine can tell of the quality of Aunt Jane's ballad voice. I have heard all sorts of queer imitations of ballad-singing, but all sound like imitations by the side of the genuine. There was a minor ring in Aunt Jane's voice that few of her contemporaries could approach. While most of the voices of our community were decidedly flat and unmusical, her voice had resonance, even in ordinary speech. Ireland will always be to me a land of romance because she sang "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls" and "There Came to the Bench a Poor Exile from Erin." I greatly fear that when she and her daughter died, the singing voice practically disappeared from our little neighborhood. How I wish that someone could have recorded her ballads while her voice had all of its old-time ring!
