Murray Police officers control the scene at the JR Food Mart BP station on Main Street Saturday morning following a robbery.

Police investigating weekend robbery of convenience store

Staff Report

Murray Police Department are investigating a weekend armed robbery at JR Food Mart on Main Street.

MPD officers responded to the call at 6:27 a.m. Saturday at the convenience store located at 1306 W. Main St. During the initial investigation, police learned an unidentified black male walked in the store with a pocket knife and demanded money.

The suspect took an undisclosed amount of cash and fled the scene, according to a

MPD release.

Anyone with information about the robbery should contact MPD Detective Kendra Smith at 753-1621. Anonymous tips can be left with Murray-Calloway County CrimeStoppers at 753-9500.

Briggs to cut 112 jobs, 3rd shift assembly

By KRISTIN TAYLOR
Staff Writer

Citing a softer demand for its equipment, Briggs & Stratton Corp. is cutting more than 100 jobs from its Murray facility.

Briggs Plant Manager Rodney Bohannon said the layoff is expected to begin Nov. 27 and will eliminate 112 jobs — or slightly less than 10 percent of the total employment. He said the 1,130 local employees were informed Friday and over the weekend about the cutback.

"This is unfortunate but given the market conditions unavoidable," Bohannon said.

This is the fourth recent cutback among the national corporation. Other layoffs have come at the Milwaukee, Wis.; Rolla, Mo.; and Auburn, Ala., plants. In August, 146 people lost their jobs at the Rolla plant. About 200 employees were effected by a September layoff at the Auburn facility.

Murray's layoff is attributed to the softer demand for lawn and garden equipment and retailers' efforts to maintain reasonable inventory levels in the distribution channels at the end of the selling season. This is consistent with industry forecasts that indicated shipments of lawn and garden equipment by original equipment manufacturers would be down for the 2006 season.

"This is a direct effect of the seasonality of our business," Bohannon said.

Bohannon said the layoff will eliminate the third-shift assembly line, leaving the Murray plant to assemble engines only on two shifts. He said the third shift was added about three years ago.

In its 21st year in Murray, Briggs & Stratton has had seasonal cutbacks in the past, but Bohannon said this is the first since the local plant was revamped four or five years ago. Six percent of the 110 salaried positions — meaning six or seven positions — at Briggs in Murray were eliminated in February as part of the company's global workforce reduction to create better cash flow.

Briggs & Stratton is the largest manufacturer of small, air-cooled engines for lawn and garden and other outdoor power equipment. The company also is the largest producer of generators and pressure washers in the United States.

Carroll Hubbard seeks political second chance

By JOE BIESK

Associated Press Writer
PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) - Former congressman Carroll Hubbard, who served time in federal prison for his part in a congressional scandal, is banking on voters to look beyond his troubled past this fall as he attempts a political comeback against an incumbent known for dramatic party switches.

Hubbard

Hubbard's eyeing the seat of state Sen. Bob Leeper, who was first elected as a Democrat, tilted the balance of power toward the GOP in 1999 by converting to Republican and then became an Independent last year after a dispute with leadership. A third candidate, Republican Neil Archer, hopes both men come with too much political baggage for the liking of voters in this far western Kentucky district, bordered partly by the Ohio River.

Hubbard, who was once an FBI informant and has claimed he was forced to sign papers under the alias "Elmer Fudd," readily acknowledges his past. And, Hubbard's certain it'll become a political issue as the race to Nov. 7 winds down.

"I've asked God to forgive me for my huge mistakes. I've asked my family to forgive me, my friends and the people I'm seeking to represent in these three counties," Hubbard said in an interview at his downtown Paducah law office. "I find an overwhelming support."

Some of that support, Hubbard says, remains from his 18-year career in Congress which ended after he lost the 1992 Democratic primary. During the House banking scandal, it was uncovered that Hubbard had 152 overdrafts at the House bank — a figure that ranked him 15th among the 325 House members who overdraw.

Hubbard pleaded guilty in 1994 to various felony charges related to the failed congressional bid in eastern Kentucky by his then-wife, Carol Brown Hubbard. He pleaded guilty to conspiracy, official misconduct and theft of government property.

Lumberjacks enjoy local event

Chips were flying as roaring chain saws and axes bit into wood during Kentucky Lumberjack Challenge Saturday at Murray-Calloway County Central Park.

During the event's second year in Murray, 19 competitors from several surrounding states competed for prize money in 10-event competition that included ax throwing and various chop and chain saw competitions.

Veteran competitor Dennis Daun said he drove more than 400 miles from his home in Round Lake, Ill., to take part. However he has traveled much farther to participate in what has become a personal hobby and sport to him for the past 20 years.

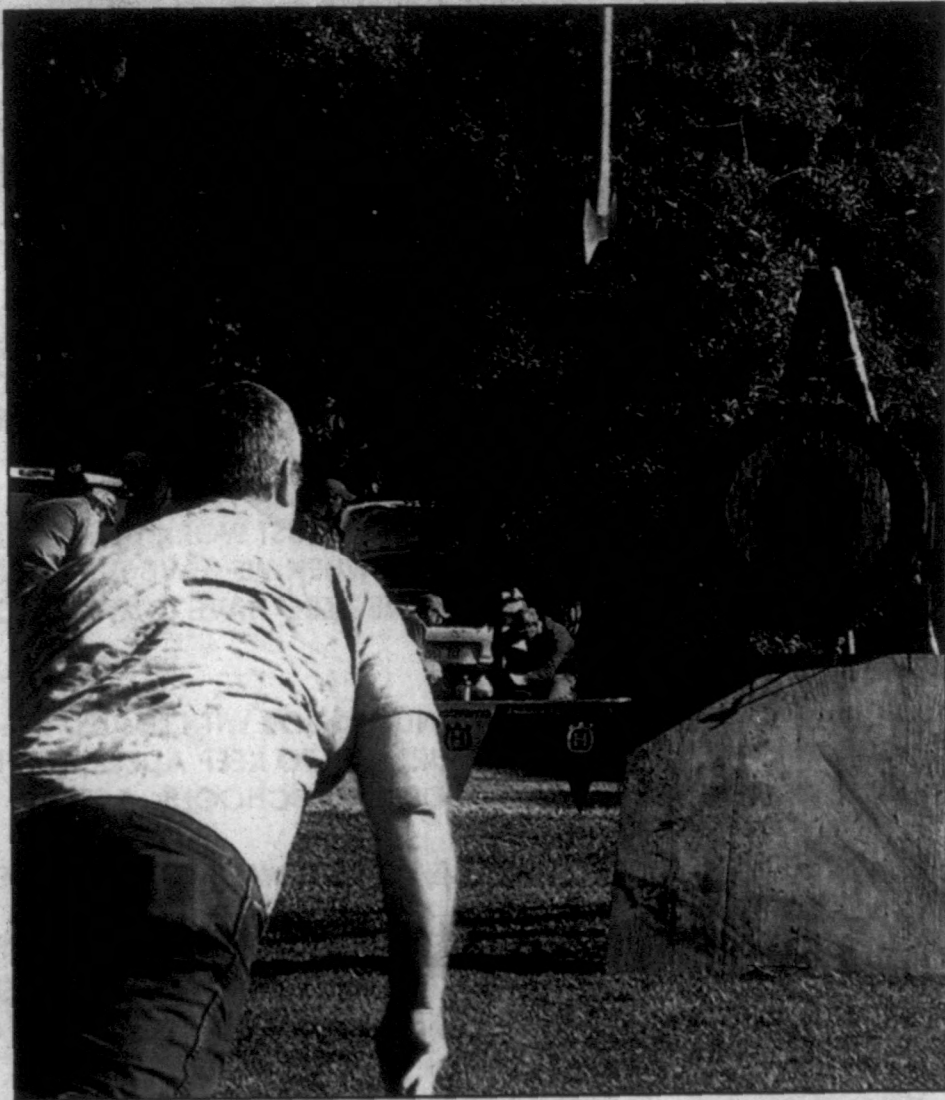

"I was born and raised in Wisconsin where they have the Hayward World Lumberjacking Championship and I used to go up there and have a good time," he said, relating how he got started in the sport back in the 1980s. "While I was there I think my second year a competitor by the name of Rick Helverson saw me sitting in the crowd and afterward he came over and talked to me and ask me if I wanted to compete. I told him I don't know how and he said 'Well, I'll teach you how.'"

Daun said his drive to Murray was nothing compared to what he has done in the past.

"Oh, this is just a short trip," he said. "Only about 7 1/2 to 8 hours."

The chips fly as Woody Berry, of Leola, Ark., slides his saw through a wooden beam during Kentucky Lumberjack Challenge in the amphitheatre at Murray-Calloway Central Park Saturday. The event drew a crowd of about 19 competitors and about 250 or more spectators.

to Murray, said her father's enthusiasm and dedication to the competition snared her interest. She was one of several women who competed during the event.

"It's not for everybody, but my dad has been competing for 20 years and I've kind of grown up in the sport," she said. "It's just something unique that really nobody else does."

Kentucky Lumberjack Challenge is now celebrating its seventh year in the Purchase area. Dan Duncan and his wife, Melissa, of Almo, who own and operate Dan Duncan Tree Works, came up with the idea of kicking off a lumberjack competition in Calloway County after spending a lot of time traveling to other areas to compete.

"I wouldn't say I was fully responsible because it takes a lot of people to put on a competition and get it all lined out to where everything kind of clicks," he said. "But we went to other shows here, there and around and we thought we'd see if we could put a show together. So we tried to put together enough prize money and started one of our own."

Melissa Duncan, who did some Internet research to organize the event, said part of the reason a competition was started in Murray was to save some travel time.

"We compete and we got tired of traveling so far so we thought if we could go see them then they could come see us," she said.

The couple's daughter, Emily, competed in the ax throwing competition and did very well.

Previously held in Aurora, Ky., the competition returned to Murray's Central Park Amphitheater this year and the Duncans plan to hold the event at the same site each year.

Karl Hanson, who operates a similar competition in Sheridan, Ark., said he was happy to visit Murray for the first time to take part in another competition where he could get together with friends and other competitors.

"We've been at it a long time and I see several of our competitors here," he said. "It's a lot of fun so we travel to various places around about. There's quite a range of competitors here."

Also included among the competitors were those from Alabama, West Virginia, Missouri and Tennessee, as well as college logging teams from Southern Illinois University and the University of Kentucky.

RE-ELECT MELVIN HENLEY STATE REPRESENTATIVE

- AS ELECTED OFFICIALS WE SPEND MOST OF OUR TIME THINKING ABOUT DAY TO DAY ISSUES AND WORKING TO SOLVE THE MOST PRESSING PROBLEMS WE HAVE AT THAT TIME. THREE YEARS AGO, OUR MOST PRESSING PROBLEM WAS JOBS. TODAY, WE HAVE SOLVED MUCH OF THAT PROBLEM, AT LEAST FOR THE SHORT TERM. BUT, IF WE ARE GOING TO BE THE BEST COMMUNITY IN KENTUCKY, WE HAVE TO ALWAYS THINK LONG TERM. WE HAVE TO HAVE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES THAT MAKE US BETTER WITH EACH PASSING DAY.
- IN TERMS OF JOBS AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT WE HAVE TO REALIZE THAT THE WORLD NEVER STANDS STILL. WE HAVE TO WORK HARD TO KEEP THE COMPANIES THAT WE HAVE WHILE AT THE SAME TIME DEVELOPING OPPORTUNITIES THAT WILL BRING AND GROW NEW COMPANIES WITH GOOD MANUFACTURING WAGES AND JOBS IN ACCOUNTING, ENGINEERING, RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT AND OTHER PROFESSIONAL FIELDS.
- IF WE ARE TO CONTINUE OUR RECORD OF SUCCESS WE SIMPLY MUST WORK WITH OTHER AREA LEADERS TO ENSURE THAT OUR HIGHWAY WORK RECEIVES THE ATTENTION THAT IT DESERVES. WHEN WE HAVE THE 68/80 CORRIDOR AND BRIDGES COMPLETE, IT WILL PROVIDE A HUGE ECONOMIC BOOST TO OUR AREA. WE ALSO HAVE TO WORK TO MAKE SURE OUR LOCAL AIRPORT HAS THE TOOLS IT NEEDS TO SERVICE AREA INDUSTRY WELL.
- OUR LOCAL SCHOOLS ARE EXCELLENT AND DO A TREMENDOUS JOB WITH LIMITED RESOURCES. IF WE ARE GOING TO REMAIN AN ATTRACTIVE AND EDUCATED COMMUNITY, THE LEGISLATURE HAS TO KEEP ADEQUATE FUNDING OF SCHOOLS AS A TOP PRIORITY. WE ALSO HAVE TO PROVIDE INCENTIVES FOR HIGH PERFORMING SCHOOLS.
- AGRICULTURE IS A HUGE PART OF WHO WE ARE. WE HAVE TO FIND WAYS TO CONTINUE TO DIVERSIFY OUR AGRICULTURAL ECONOMY AND KEEP THE FAMILY FARM ALIVE.

AT THE END OF THE DAY, WE HAVE A VERY SPECIAL PLACE TO LIVE, WORK, AND CALL HOME. WE HAVE MANAGED TO MAINTAIN OUR RURAL VALUES AND RELATIVELY CRIME FREE LIVES. I AM CONVINCED THAT WE CAN GROW AND MAINTAIN OUR SUPERB WAY OF LIFE.

Former congressman Hubbard, who served time in federal prison for his part in a congressional scandal, is banking on voters to look beyond his troubled past this fall as he attempts a political comeback against Leeper, an incumbent known for dramatic party switches.

Hubbard ...

From Front

subsequently spent more than two years in federal prison.

Hubbard asked former Gov. Paul Patton to reinstate his civil rights in 2000, at the time claiming he had "no intention of seeking public office again." Less than a month later, Patton gave Hubbard back his rights to vote and hold public office. The Kentucky Supreme Court reinstated Hubbard to legal practice the following year.

Patton, also a Democrat, said he restored Hubbard's voting rights because he believes people who completed their sentences should be allowed a chance to become responsible citizens.

"People know what Carroll Hubbard did," Patton said. "His record is pretty open and if they want to elect him to represent them again I think it would be perfectly appropriate."

Although somewhat rare, others have successfully maneuvered political rebirths similar to what Hubbard is attempting.

For instance, former Washington Mayor / Marion Barry, who the FBI videotaped smoking crack in a hotel room, was re-elected as mayor and to the city council after serving six months in prison for his drug conviction.

The late U.S. Rep. Gerry

Studds, a Massachusetts Democrat, withstood a scandal to complete a lengthy 24-year career in Congress. Studds was re-elected even after the House censured him in 1983 for having sex with a 17-year-old male page. Studds acknowledged he erred in judgment, but didn't apologize and stayed in Congress until his retirement in 1997.

Now, the 69-year-old Hubbard will try to tap any leftover congressional goodwill in his attempt to unseat Leeper and return to the body he was first elected to in 1968. Republicans currently have a 21-16-1 edge in the chamber.

"When I was congressman for 18 years my staff — 22 people and I — helped thousands of people in this area, and it's going to show up on November 7th," Hubbard said. "Many of them are senior citizens, but then there's people 26 to 35 whose parents I helped and they remember that."

Meanwhile, Leeper says his most recent party shift, which resulted over a dispute in a contested state Senate race, showed his constituents he's willing to stand up for what he believes in. Leeper says he did well enough in Frankfort during the past legislative session — after his switch to independent — to prove he's still capable of successfully representing his district in the state Capitol.

"People have said they've been frustrated with the way politics was going and they're re-energized and they're excited that somebody was able to stand up and just show their frustration," Leeper said.

Archer, a Paducah businessman and chairman of the McCracken County Board of Education, doesn't think either of his opponents are better suited for the job. But, Archer says the district does not get a proper return on its tax investment.

Archer said he entered the race so he could help boost the local economy and bring new jobs to the area — an idea both Leeper and Hubbard also tout.

"For the good of this community, we needed somebody with a lot less baggage than what both Senator Leeper and former congressman Hubbard were taking," Archer said.

With their name recognition, Leeper and Hubbard probably both have a certain number of supporters who will vote for them on Election Day, said Scott Lasley, assistant professor of political science at Western Kentucky University. Because it's a three-way race, however, voters will likely make political calculations when voting.

In some cases Republicans might prefer Archer, but vote for Leeper rather than risk a Hubbard victory, Lasley said.

While some voters might overlook Hubbard's time behind bars, others might be attracted to Leeper's party switch, Lasley said.

"People tend to have relatively low views of politicians anyway," Lasley said, adding that "people are also more concerned with their quality of representation."

Nevertheless, George Wiley, an 82-year-old Paducah real estate broker, said he doesn't agree with Hubbard and won't vote for him. Wiley said Hubbard was "a good working cat" based on his time in Congress, but that he was sticking with Leeper.

"I'm worried about his political savvy because he keeps switching back and forth, but he's a good boy," Wiley said of Leeper. "Independent is a good place for him."

Terry Beavers, a 49-year old former coal miner from Paducah, feels differently. Beavers said he met Hubbard at a recent picnic, thought he was "down to earth" and decided to vote for him.

"I don't care if he's got a felony or not. He did his time didn't he?" Beavers said. "He did his crime and paid his fine. It just shows he makes mistakes like everybody else does — he's human."

Emergency medical technician Tim Stone, right, checks the blood pressure of Mildred Schermerhorn, from Kendallville, Ind., Saturday on the riverfront in Henderson, Ky., before transporting her to the hospital. Several passengers on the Mississippi Queen riverboat cruise were still in a Kentucky hospital after developing flu-like symptoms while aboard the boat on the Ohio River.

Riverboat illness monitored

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — Federal and state health officials have been monitoring food and hygiene practices aboard the Mississippi Queen after at least 36 passengers complained of flu-like symptoms as the riverboat made its way along the Ohio River from Cincinnati to St. Louis.

Dr. William Hacker, commissioner for the Kentucky

Department of Public Health, said the non-life threatening illness appears similar to Norwalk virus, a contagious ailment common among cruises, nursing homes and schools.

Known as Norwalk virus, the illness has a quick incubation period, is contagious, causes mild to moderate gastrointestinal problems, including vomiting and diarrhea.

A recipe for future abuse

FRANKFORT — Attorney General Greg Stumbo undoubtedly had no idea of the historic legal precedents that would be established as a result of Stumbo's investigation of Gov. Ernie Fletcher and his administration's hiring practices.

Nor should it have been a factor in Stumbo's decision to move forward when he was presented with a whistleblower's documentation of alleged misuse of the state Merit System's protection of state employees from political retaliation.

But the result is court rulings that leave Fletcher and his successors with an unrestrained power to pardon criminal conduct as well as immunity from prosecution of their own criminal conduct while they are governor.

Agree Or Not
By Todd Duvall
Syndicated Columnist

How extraordinary is that? The special Franklin County grand jury that was impaneled in May of 2005 to receive evidence in the hiring investigation ended its long work last week by issuing a report of its findings — a report that, under high court order, was sealed until Fletcher and his attorneys can study it and offer objections to its contents.

That, in itself, must be unprecedented that the focus of a grand jury investigation has the right to object to what that grand jury determines. Presumably Franklin Circuit Judge Reed Rhorer will have a say in whether Fletcher's objections are valid, but Rhorer's decision is subject to appeal. It could be months, if not years, before the people of Kentucky learn what the special grand jury found and even that ultimately could be filtered through Fletcher and his attorneys.

What we are left with now is a state chief executive with the power to pardon anyone and everyone of a crime no one has been charged with. That was the effect of Fletcher's blanket pardon that covered not only officials in his administration who had been indicted by the grand jury, but also anyone else who might be indicted in the future.

Thus 14 grand jury indictments that were handed down after Fletcher's blanket pardon will never be revealed publicly. The pardon also covered 15 officials who had been named publicly in indictments previous to the pardon.

And the plea deal between Fletcher and Stumbo that dropped the charges against the governor was based in part on a prosecutor's probably correct belief that Fletcher would never go to trial because he would pardon himself before leaving office.

That's because of a special judge's ruling — not appealed — that a governor cannot be tried on criminal charges while in office.

A governor, of course, can be impeached and removed from office by the General Assembly. But Kentucky's General Assembly is only a sometime thing, and only the governor has the power to call it into special session.

Thus we have the prospect of any future governor in the last year of his term in office enjoying an eight-month period between the end of a regular session in mid-April and December with complete freedom to hire and fire at will, dole out contracts to political favorites, even steal from the Treasury, and simply pardon himself by 11:59 p.m. on his last day in office. The pardon also could extend to anyone and everyone who may have committed a crime in the administration.

The General Assembly is powerless to act. A grand jury is powerless to act.

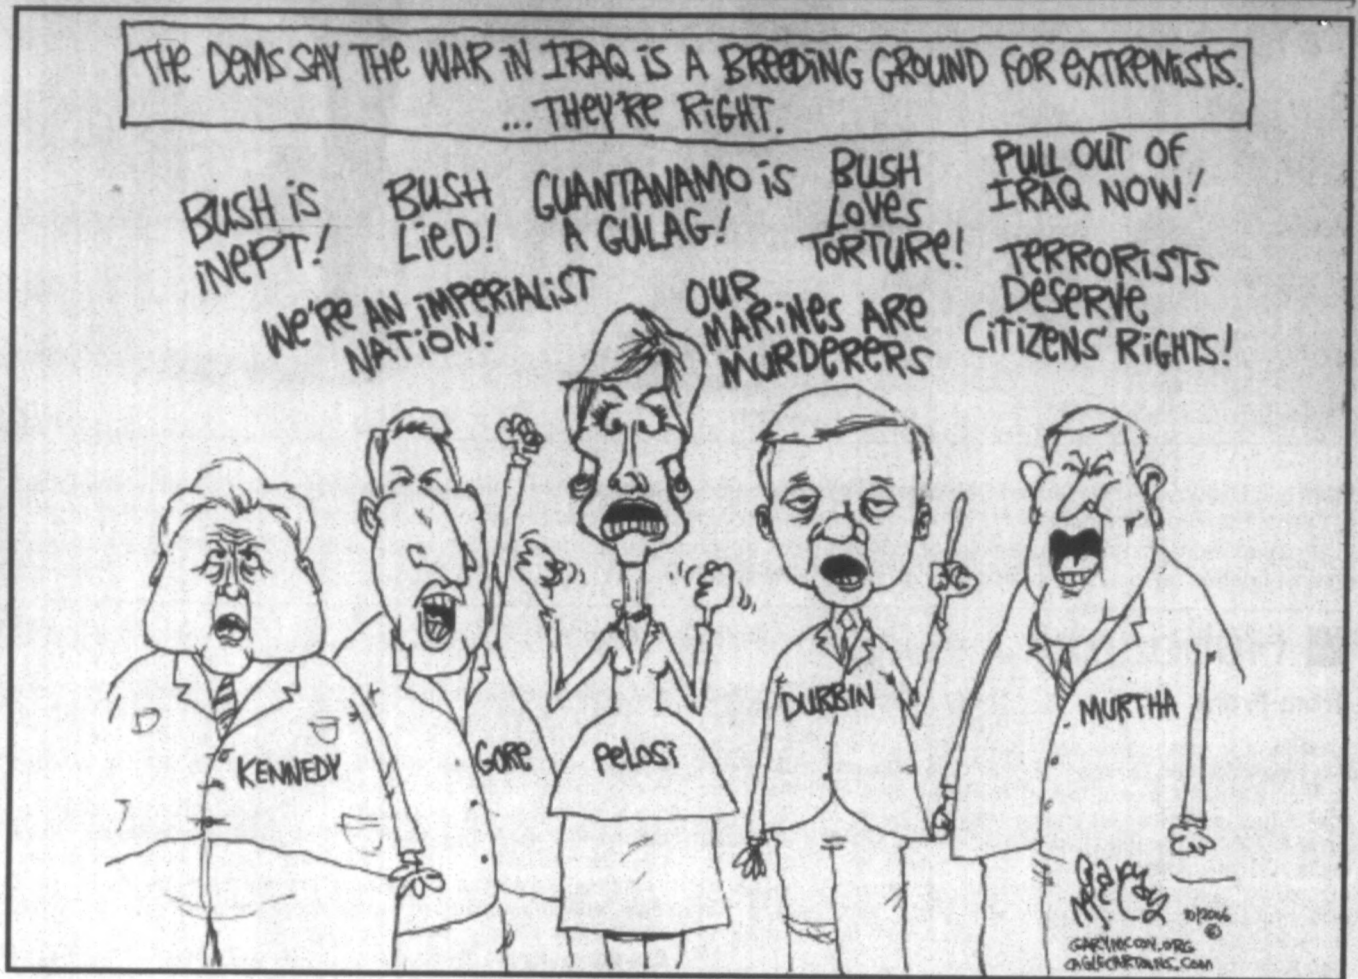

Kentucky's chief executives have long been considered among the most powerful in the nation, but this is ridiculous and a recipe for future abuse.

Gov. Paul Patton used his pardoning power to rid three top aides of grand jury charges of breaking campaign finance laws. Gov. Ernie Fletcher used his pardoning power to exonerate anyone and everyone who may have violated state personnel laws.

And the judiciary has enshrined this executive hegemony into law.

When the General Assembly meets here in January, the first order of business should be a constitutional amendment limiting a governor's power to pardon and spelling out that a governor cannot pardon himself and if charged with a crime, must stand before the bar of justice in a timely fashion like everyone else in Kentucky.

U.S. has little support among Iraqi youth

WASHINGTON TODAY
By Katherine Shrader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Majorities of Iraqi youth in Arab regions of the country believe security would improve and violence decrease if the U.S.-led forces left immediately, according to a State Department poll that provides a window into the grim warnings provided to policymakers.

The survey — unclassified, but marked "For Official U.S. Government Use Only" — also finds that Iraqi leaders may face particular difficulty recruiting young Sunni Arabs to join the stumbling security forces. Strong majorities of 15- to 29-year-olds in two Arab Sunni areas — Mosul and Tikrit-Baquba — would oppose joining the Iraqi army or police.

The poll has its shortcomings; regional samples are small and the results do not say how many people refused to respond to questions. The private polling firm hired by the State Department also was not able to interview residents of al-Anbar, a Sunni-dominated province and an insurgent stronghold.

But the findings of the summer survey — circulated to policymakers last month and obtained by The Associated Press last week — nevertheless provide a solemn reminder of the difficulty that the U.S.-backed Iraqi government faces as it tries to add ethnic diversity to its security institutions.

As Iraqi leaders try to diversify the ethnic and religious backgrounds of their security forces, the department's opinion analysis said that Arab Sunnis may be particularly hard to recruit.

In Arab Sunni areas, "confidence in the Iraqi army and police is low, and majorities oppose enlisting in either force," the analysis said. "Even recruitment in Arab Shia areas could present challenges as sizable numbers of local youth express support" for local militias, "thus clouding the issue of loyalty to national forces."

The analysis was headlined "Youth In Iraq's Arab Sunni Regions Not Eager to Enlist in National Army, Police" and highlighted views from those areas.

Yet in its assessment of the broader picture for Iraq, which includes Kurds and Arab Shiites, there were pieces of good news: A majority of young Iraqis would be willing to join the security forces or support a family member who did, the survey found.

On Thursday, Maj. Gen. William B. Caldwell, a U.S. military spokesman in Baghdad, said a two-month old U.S.-Iraqi bid to quell the violence in the Iraqi capital did "not meet our overall expectations." Attacks in Baghdad rose by 22 percent in the first three weeks of Ramadan.

"We are working very closely with the government of Iraq to determine how to best to refocus our efforts," he said.

The Bush administration quietly has released findings from previous surveys to highlight increases in political participation or other hopeful signs.

A State Department spokeswoman, Janelle Hironimus, said poll results are not for public release.

"Reliable and accurate assessments of international public opinion at any given point in time are important to the work of our embassies abroad and to policymakers in Washington," she said.

In this poll, nine out of 10 young Iraqi Arabs said they see the U.S. and allied forces in Iraq as an occupying force. The majority of Iraqi youth in Arab regions — half in Baghdad and Kirkuk — also believe the security situation and the violence levels would improve if the U.S. and its allies left immediately.

On the contrary, 70 percent of young Iraqi Kurds see the multinational forces as a liberating force.

This survey was circulated among government and congressional officials, part of a stream of near-daily updates from intelligence and defense agencies about the political and security situation in Iraq.

House Intelligence Chairman Peter Hoekstra, R-Mich., said he has been told repeatedly over the past 18 months that the situation in Iraq is difficult. But he is skeptical of polls in Iraq — positive or negative. "I don't know how you go into an environment like Iraq and do effective polling," he said.

Meanwhile, some Democrats say they are not getting enough information from the Bush administration about the situation in Iraq.

California Rep. Jane Harman, the top Democrat on the House Intelligence Committee, is pushing the administration to release what she has described as a bleak estimate on the situation there.

Harman continues to believe that the document is similar to the government's highest-level assessments, called National Intelligence Estimates, and wants it released. Administration officials have said such an estimate on Iraq began in August, and it could take months to complete.

Said Harman: "I think the intelligence on Iraq is dismal, and it is time for the White House to stop being an evidence-free zone."

Hickory Woods Retirement Center HAPPENINGS

A special thank you goes to Paglia's, Domino's, Pizza Hut and Mr. Gatti's for donating pizzas for our party last Friday night. We had planned a "Ladies Night Out" but we decided to have a "Ladies Night In" with a pizza party. (You know women have the right to change their minds) I think we had a better time just being home.

Thank you to Ethel for writing the column for me and to Linda who ran the office while my husband and I vacationed last week. The residents and staff did an extraordinary job in holding the fort down while I was gone. It's nice to travel but even better to get back home.

We had our very own "Dixie Stampede" this week. Our entertainment stood us up so we entertained ourselves. Our dining room was turned into a rodeo arena (except for sawdust and dirt on the floors). We were all decked out in our very best "Cowboy Outfits". Our residents from the North were in competition with the residents from the South. In the flag pass the residents from the North won over the South. Ms. Martha Farris and Juanita Lee rode Trigger (our Palmento stick horse) and Brenda Sirls and Viva Ellis rode Molly around the arena (which wasn't as easy as you'd think). Martha, Viva and Trigger were winners of that event. We had a messy time eating our ribs, biscuits, soup and potatoes with no silverware. I think we had more on the floor than in our stomachs. Sometimes you have more fun when you just "wing it" and we're good at that! Whatever we do we have a good time. Come out and visit us and we'll show you what we mean.

...Nothing else looks or feels like home but we come close

Coast Guard Auxiliary will offer course

America's Boating Course, a comprehensive eight-hour course for recreational power boaters will be offered Saturday, Nov. 4 in the fellowship hall of Glendale Road Church of Christ, 1101 Glendale Road, Murray.

Experienced, certified Coast Guard Auxiliary Instructors from the Kentucky Lake and Paris Landing Flotillas will conduct the class from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with a break for lunch.

The course is designed to help hunters, anglers, personal watercraft (Sea Doo, Jet Ski, Waverunner, etc) operators and other recreational boaters learn or refresh safe boating skills.

Class participants are encouraged to pre-register and receive study materials before the class date. The course is free. A fee of $20 will cover textbooks, exams and educational tools. If two persons share the same textbook, the fee is $25.

The course includes an introduction to types and uses of boats commonly encountered on the lakes and rivers; information on legal responsibilities of boat owners and operators; personal safety for helmsmen and passengers; plus other subjects to help boaters become more proficient on the water.

Weather observation, proper radio communication, handling of emergencies, chart reading, safety equipments, docking and mooring, knot-tying and steering techniques are among topics to be covered.

"The Auxiliary presents safe boating courses for the boating public, believing graduates of the courses will enjoy boating more and will be less likely to have serious accidents or problems on the water," says Kentucky Lake Flotilla Commander Donna Kramer. "Responsibility for safe boating does not end with winterization of boats. Off-season is a good time for preparing for the next season."

Many insurance companies offer discounts on boat insurance to individuals who successfully complete the course. The course meets Kentucky standards for young boaters (ages 12-17 years) who must acquire certification before soloing on personal watercraft and other boats.

To pre-register, contact Paris Landing Flotilla Commander Bill Husfield, 270-354-9966, cdpd01@mchsi.com or Kentucky Lake Flotilla Staff Officer Beale Canon, 270-753-4934, bscanon@newwavecomm.net

Sinus Problems

Dear Dr. Isbell,

I have severe sinus problems. I hear sinus surgery is painful, and recovery from surgery can take several weeks. Are there any other options?

Bob R.

Farmington

Dear Bob,

Millions of people suffer from chronic sinus problems every day. Sinuses that don't drain properly cause a lot of pain, misery, and illness. Fortunately, there is a new procedure to open the sinuses and help them drain. This procedure is called balloon sinuplasty.

This new procedure involves inserting a small balloon in the sinus opening to unblock it. This procedure is similar to balloon angioplasty heart doctors use to open blocked arteries, however, balloon sinuplasty requires no incisions as the balloon is inserted into the sinus via the nose. Feel free to call my office to see if balloon sinuplasty is right for you.

The Calloway County Senior Citizens Center was destroyed by fire in 2000. Judge Executive Larry Elkins pledged to build a center that would be better than the one we lost in that fire.

The county, city, churches, and community united in an unprecedented effort to develop short term solutions. Temporary locations were established and the seniors and other Weaks Center organizations continued to meet the needs of the community.

When the smoke cleared from the fire and the insurance money arrived, there were powerful special interests that wanted to build a small center and use most of the money on other projects.

Honoring his pledge, Judge Executive Larry Elkins supported by the Fiscal Court, Senior Center and Weaks Board used the insurance proceeds to rebuild a center the entire community appreciates.

Kentucky-based company scares up business at Halloween

By MIKE RUTLEDGE
The Kentucky Enquirer

OWENTON, Ky. (AP) — It's not surprising to find pumpkins growing in the fields of Owen County — but the county's second-largest pop-up Halloween retailer?

"There's one company larger than mine, and we're No. 2," said Curtis Sigretto, owner of 16-year-old Halloween Express, which has 135 stores, including franchises, in 36 states, with four in Greater Cincinnati and northern Kentucky.

"Our sales will be over $40 million this year," said Sigretto, 45, who said his Halloween Express is exceeded in stores only by New Jersey-based Spirit Halloween, owned by mall retailer Spencer Gifts.

The five-person Halloween Express headquarters is in Owenton. Of all 135 stores, about one-quarter are owned by Owen County residents — including farmers and attorneys.

"I have two in Louisville; one in Boise, Idaho; one in San Diego; one in Seattle; and one in Denver," said personal-injury lawyer Scott Cammack, who deploys local residents to manage those stores from Sept. 1 to Nov. 7.

"I spend a lot more time on the road traveling than I ever have in my life, but I enjoy it."

A side benefit is the stores' nice locations, said Cammack, 36.

"I can take off and go to Denver, which has the mountains, and San Diego, which is a beautiful city to travel to," he said. "Never thought I'd have occasion to go to Boise, Idaho, but frankly, Boise is my top store this year, and pretty likely will be one of the tops in the company."

Cammack's father-in-law, Sparta tobacco and cattle farmer Mike Howard, has three stores — in Kansas City; Wichita, Kan.; and north of Chicago.

Howard said the work is fun but can be stressful "because everything happens so fast. It's not like a permanent, year-round store."

His wife, Marcella, opened her store in Wichita on Sept. 1, and it will make half its yearly sales by Oct. 20, Howard said. The other half of sales will happen during a two-week crunch period that follows.

"You've got to get everything lined up and ready for those last two weeks, because it gets real serious," Howard said. "If you don't have your inventory there, and you don't have your help there, and if you don't have everything there, it can really hurt you."

Cammack was so busy last year, he didn't have time to wear a costume.

"Last year, I was so tired that I actually went as a Halloween-store guy," he said. "I just wore my black Halloween Express shirt."

But daughters Tori, 8, and Bella, 4, are in paradise.

"When your daddy owns a bunch of Halloween stores and a whole bunch of costumes, it changes almost daily what you're going to be," Cammack said.

Fully one-third of adults nationwide will be joining his daughters in the masquerade, a survey conducted recently for the National Retail Federation found. Young adults — ages 18-24 — are driving that trend, with 63 percent of them planning to dress up, said Ellen Davis, spokeswoman for the retail federation. Another 48 percent of those ages 25 to 34 will be costumed.

Americans will spend $4.96 billion on Halloween this year — including candy, costumes, decorations and greeting cards — up 51 percent from a year ago, the same survey found.

"I think it's the one time of year that people can be anyone or anything that they want to be," Cammack said. "You drive up and down the street, and you see more decorations in people's yards every year. People need a day to have fun, and that's what Halloween has become."

Not enough in the tank

RACERS LOOK IMPROVED, BUT NOT BETTER THAN EASTERN ILLINOIS

Staff Report

CHARLESTON, Ill. — Following a disappointing Homecoming loss to Samford, the Murray State Racers put together an improved effort at Ohio Valley Conference leader Eastern Illinois on Saturday.

Unfortunately for MSU, it wasn't enough, as the 16th-ranked Panthers (5-3, 4-0 OVC) used a powerful running game to overcome a 10-point halftime deficit for a 20-10 triumph over the Racers at O'Brien Stadium.

Stadium.

"Give them credit," said Murray head coach Matt Griffin of Eastern Illinois during a post-game interview on the Racer Radio Network. "They made some adjustments in their running game that gave them a spark in the second half. They came out with great intensity, and we didn't match it."

After three straight weeks of struggling mightily on offense, the Racers (1-7, 0-5) came out strong on Saturday, using 12 plays to drive 80 yards for the game's opening score.

Freshman tailback Charlie Jordan, who gained 94 yards on 20 carries as MSU's featured back, scored from 1-yard out to cap the drive with 8:51 left in the opening period.

The 5-foot-9, 185-pound Memphis, Tenn., native finished the first 15 minutes of play with 64 yards rushing on 10 attempts, helping the Racers amass 121-52 advantage in total yards after the first quarter of play.

"I really can't say enough about Charlie," said redshirt freshman quarterback Zach Barnard, who helped the Racers gain 296 total yards on the day by completing 29-of-39 passing attempts for 210 yards. "He's a true freshman, and he's playing like a senior."

"With Chad Cook out, you would expect the offense to take a big hit. And that's what we expected, too. But Charlie's stepped in nicely and has taken over our running game," he added.

RACER ROUNDUP

Soccer comes up short in must-win game

VOLLEYBALL FALLS AT TTU

By MSU Media Relations

The stakes couldn't have been higher for the Murray State soccer team.

A tie was no help. Only a win over Tennessee-Martin Saturday at Cutchin Field would be enough to keep the Racers alive for the final spot in the upcoming Ohio Valley Conference Tournament.

In the end, the match was a 0-0 tie after two halves and two 10-minute overtimes.

The OVC soccer scoring system awards three points to the winner, meaning the Racers — who were two points behind Jacksonville State — had to have a win to jump into the sixth and final playoff spot for the OVC Tournament.

The Racers, who lead the OVC in shots, again had a day in which they fired 16 times, five of which were on goal. Heather Jones was excellent in goal with five saves in 110 minutes of action.

The Racers have one more regular-season match left — next Saturday against Oklahoma State at Cutchin Field at 11 a.m. It will be MSU's first meeting with OSU and its second against a Big 12 Conference opponent. MSU played Nebraska in 2003, losing 2-0 in Lincoln.

NASCAR

Chase wide open after eventful day at Martinsville

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Four races from the end of the NASCAR season, this is what Brian France had in mind when he devised the Chase for the championship in 2004.

Seven drivers within 99 points of the lead, and many of them much closer. All 10 eligible drivers with a mathematical chance of still being champion. Lots of suspense.

The wild card short track in the last 10 races did what the drivers feared it would on Sunday, shuffling the field and setting up what is likely to be a dramatic finish.

"It's still pretty wide open," 2003 champion Matt Kenseth said after taking over the standings lead when Jeff Burton blew an engine after 217 laps of the Subway 500. "It's going to be pretty exciting, I think, coming down to the last race."

If they are all like this one, it will be gripping for sure.

Jimmie Johnson took the race lead from Bobby Labonte with 55 laps to go and held it through several restarts to win the crash-filled Nextel Cup race at Martinsville Speedway.

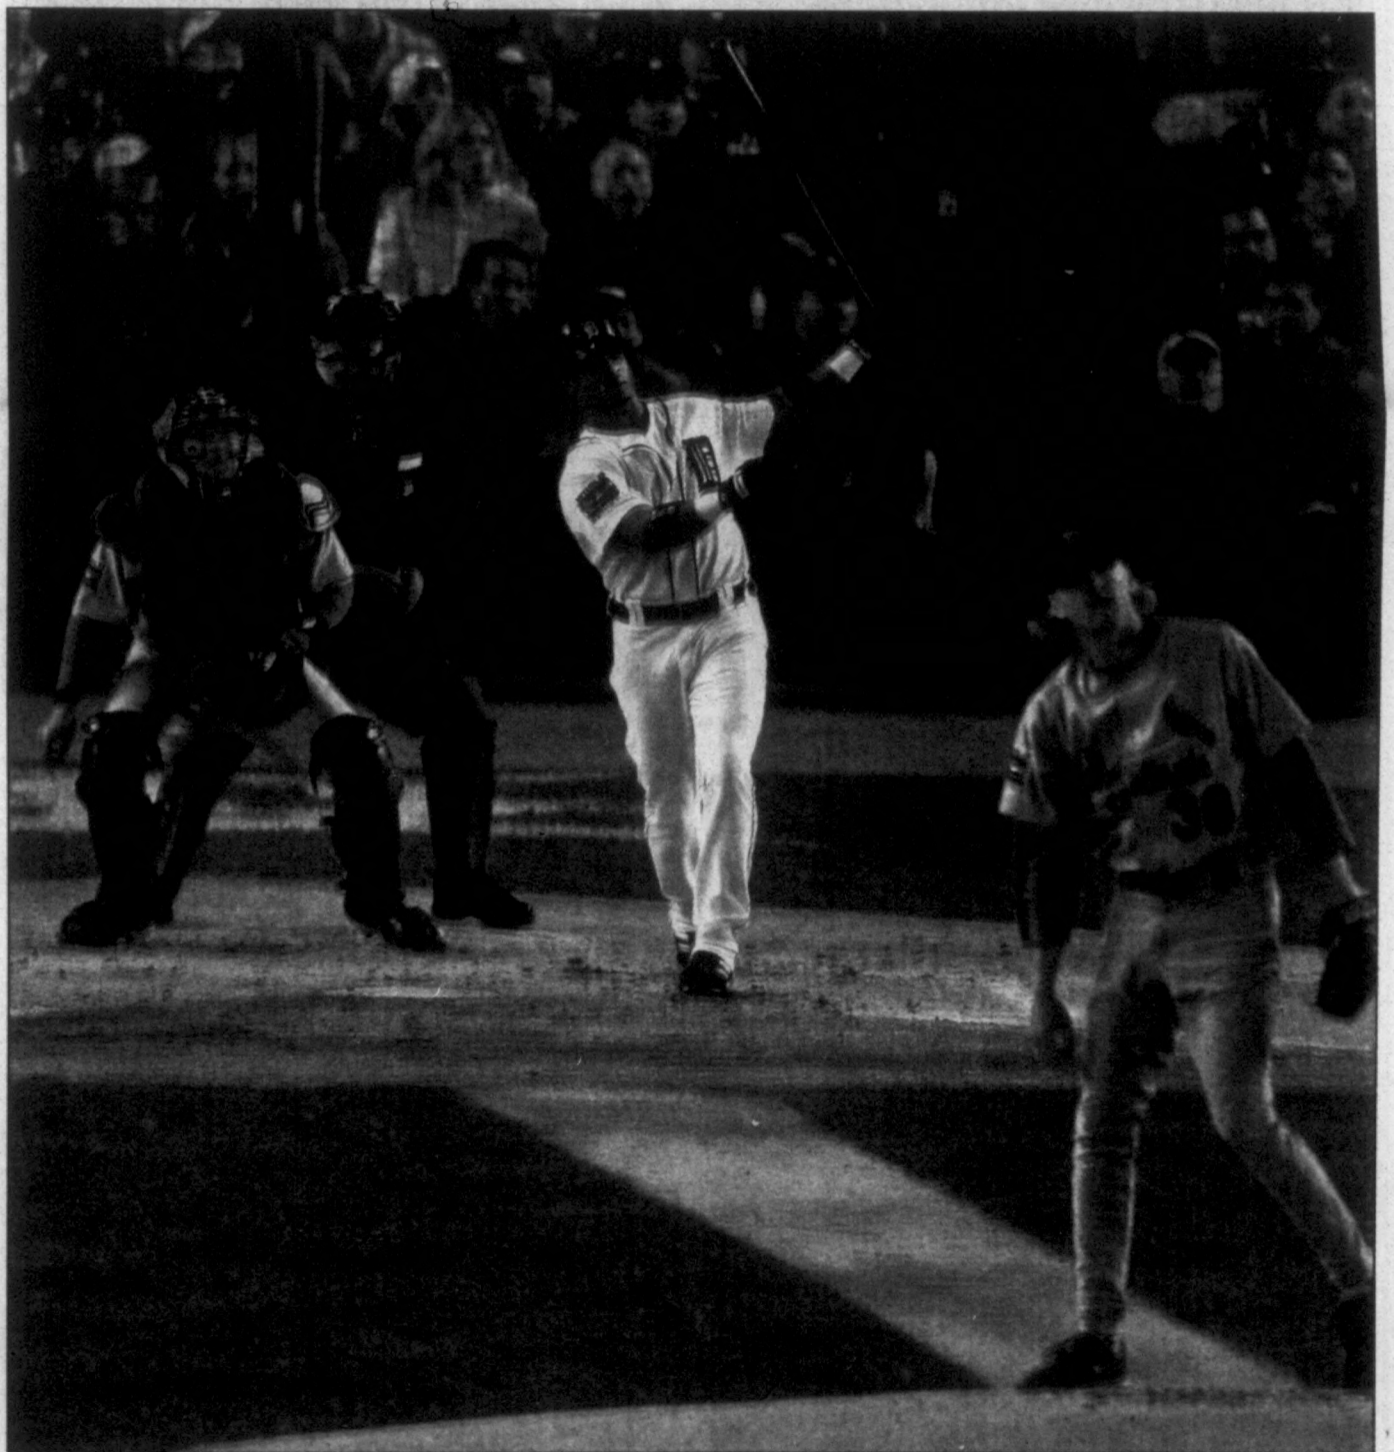

Johnson moved from seventh to third in the standings, and seems to be building significant momentum.

Dream Weaver's Magic Runs Out

WEAVER STRUGGLES FOR FIRST TIME IN POSTSEASON

DETROIT (AP) — Shades of the old Jeff Weaver returned at precisely the wrong time for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Squinting for signs all game but finding few answers, the stringbean righty who revived his career this postseason took a big step backward on a nippy Sunday night.

Weaver was lucky to leave Game 2 of the World Series after five innings trailing by only three runs. The Detroit Tigers, the team that gave him his start in 1999, went on to win 3-1 to even things at one game each.

"He pitched well enough to win," Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said.

Well, maybe not.

The Tigers had Weaver in trouble the whole time. He earned points for escaping dire situations, but his outing illustrated how close the Tigers came to turning it into a rout.

It certainly wasn't the same Weaver that the Cardinals had seen lately.

Weaver threw five scoreless innings against

San Diego in Game 2 of the first round of the playoffs, freezing the Padres with breaking balls.

In the opener of the NL championship series, he pitched well in losing 2-0 to the New York Mets. He then worked six strong innings to win Game 6 in New York.

But against the Tigers, Weaver struggled from the start. The second batter he faced, Craig Monroe, sent a fat fastball well over the left-field wall.

The problems were just beginning as he reverted to early-season form — he began the season 3-10 for the Angels this season and got traded away.

The Tigers had at least two baserunners in all five innings, getting nine hits and a walk against the right-hander. It added up to another bitter World Series memory for Weaver.

In 2003 when he was with the New York Yankees, he surrendered a 12th-inning home run

BCS STANDINGS

Michigan jumps USC for second in BCS standings

RALPH D. RUSSO
AP Sports Writer

Michigan slipped in front of Southern California into second-place in the Bowl Championship Standings on Sunday, but there's no reason for the Trojans to worry.

USC is still a solid No. 3 behind first-place Ohio State and Michigan. And with the Buckeyes and Wolverines slated to meet on Nov. 18 in Columbus, Ohio, the Trojans remained in good shape to secure a spot in the BCS championship game with an undefeated regular season.

The Buckeyes, who have been No. 1 in the polls all season by a wide margin, have a BCS average of .9764 out of a possible 1.000. The Wolverines' .9451 gives them a slight edge over the Trojans (.9430).

What is more important for the Trojans is their wide margin over fourth-place West Virginia. The unbeaten Mountaineers moved up a spot this week, switching places with Auburn. But West Virginia's .7551 average leaves it with loads of ground to make up on the top three.

The BCS title game will be played Jan. 8 in Glendale, Ariz.

Ohio State, USC and Michigan are in control of the national championship race. If two of those teams finish the regular season unbeaten, it probably won't matter what goes on with the teams behind them.

USC and Michigan are tied for the top spot in the computer ratings with Ohio State third. The Trojans are second in the coaches' poll and Michigan is a close third. In the Harris poll, the positions are reversed.

In the AP poll, Ohio State is No. 1 with Michigan second and USC No. 3.

The BCS average is determined by a team's standing in the coaches' poll and the Harris Interactive poll. Each poll counts for a third of a team's grade. The other third is determined by a compilation of six computer ratings.

West Virginia does not grade out well in the computers. The Mountaineers are fourth in both polls, but only the 14th-best team in the country according to the computers.

West Virginia's schedule is about to get much tougher and that should give its computer rating a boost over the final month of the season.

The Mountaineers next play unbeaten Big East rival Louisville on Nov. 2. The Cardinals are in eighth place in the BCS standings, Auburn, Florida and Texas. All of those teams have lost once.

Notre Dame is in ninth place. The Fighting Irish are guaranteed a spot in one of the five BCS games by finishing eighth in the final standings. California is in 10th place, followed by Tennessee and Clemson.

Unbeaten Boise State of the Western Athletic Conference remained in 15th place. The Broncos — or any other team playing in a conference without an automatic bid — need to reach the top 12 in the final standings to secure a bid to either the Rose, Fiesta, Sugar or Orange bowls.

Series

to Florida's Alex Gonzalez that evened the series at two games apiece. The Marlins went on to defeat the Yankees in six games.

A mitigating factor in that failure: Weaver had been pitching for the second straight game after a 28-day layoff.

When he faced the Tigers on Sunday night, he had been on a roll.

Weaver had been 2-1 with a 2.16 ERA in the postseason after going 8-14 with a 5.76 ERA for the Cardinals and Angels, who designated him for assignment in June to make room for kid brother Jered in their rotation.

A free agent after this season, his surge lately has led to thoughts he could fit in a reconstituted rotation next year.

Only one starter, ace Chris Carpenter, is under contract after the season. The Cardinals have long admired Weaver's live arm.

Weaver started the year with an $8 million contract after winning 14 games for the Dodgers in 2005. By the time the Angels gave up on him the price tag, a minor leaguer, was minuscule.

Once near the bottom, his stock had been on its way back up.

He was 3-0 in his last five starts, finally rounding into form and helping the Cardinals avoid a historic collapse in September. His name has been added to a succession of veteran success stories for pitching coach Dave Duncan, who's worked wonders with Dave Stewart, Woody Williams and Kent Bottefield.

Volleyball
COOKEVILLE, Tenn. — The Racers fell at Tennessee Tech 3-1 Saturday afternoon in Ohio Valley Conference play. Game scores were 30-20, 26-30, 30-26, 30-28.

Murray State (16-4, 8-2 OVC) trailed in Game 1 10-5, but fought back to get to within 13-12, then tied it at 16-16. The Tech offense surged, scoring the last nine points en route to the 30-20 win.

Murray State was led by Katie Kemezys, who had a match-high 21 kills and hit .302, with only five errors in 53 attacks. Kemezys also had a co-match-high four blocks. Senior Holly Jansen added 16 kills, while Alison Mugler had 13 kills and Tara DeMage had 10.

Sophomore Heather Norris repelled 33 digs and served up two aces for the Racers, while freshman Cassie Chesney handed out a match-high 61 assists. Mugler and DeMage had 18 digs each, while Chesney and sophomore Alyssa Groves had 16 apiece.

Most of the key provisions of the current contract will be continued with minor modifications, such as revenue sharing and the luxury tax. With the luxury tax set to expire on Dec. 19, there was pressure on management to make a deal to ensure that the 2007 season would be played with the tax in place.

"I think we're all for certainty and not going through a winter of wondering what's going to be going on," Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said. "I applaud the powers with the union and the MLB. Helps us go about our business."

Murray State added more points in the second quarter, when place-kicker Gary Crass connected on a 32-yard field goal try to cap a 10-play, 36-yard drive, putting the Racers up 10-0 entering the halftime break.

MSU controlled the first half by gaining 225 yards — including 91 from Jordan on the ground and 134 from Barnard through the air — as the two teams headed to their respective locker rooms.

But Eastern Illinois regrouped at the intermission and took control in the second half, needing 10 play on its opening drive of the third quarter to put its first points of the contest on the board.

Zach Yates booted a 29-yard field goal at the 10:15 mark to end the 52-yard march, which cut the Racer edge to 10-3.

Later in the period, the Panthers tied the score when tailback Norris Smith rumbled into the end zone from 4-yard out to cap an 11-play, 65-yard drive with 3:30 showing on the clock.

EIU showed its dominant running game on the drive, keeping the ball on the ground for every play. The Panthers, who rolled up 335 of its 388 total yards on the ground, got 182 on 28 carries from senior tailback Vincent Webb and 154 more on 22 attempts from Norris.

Completing its run of 20 unanswered points, Eastern Illinois eventually took the lead on a 26-yard field goal by Yates with 8:43 remaining in the fourth quarter and then capped the scoring on another 4-yard scamper from Norris with just 4:25 left.

While the Panthers had little trouble moving the ball in the second half, the Racers struggled to gain much positive yardage, netting just 11 total yards in the third period.

"We just didn't get any great rhythm in the second half, and that hurt us," Griffin explained.

"Again, give them credit because they made the plays and the adjustments to win the game."

The Racers will now try to regroup for Saturday's home game against old rival Southeast Missouri State. Game time is set for 1 p.m. at Roy Stewart Stadium.

Players and owners reach tentative agreement on new labor contact

DETROIT (AP) — Following nearly a quarter century of labor wars, baseball players and owners will have 16 years of peace.

They set aside their long history of bitter negotiations to reach a tentative agreement on a five-year contract, the first time the sides have achieved labor peace before their current deal expires.

The agreement was struck during bargaining in New York on Friday night and Saturday, and is subject to the sides putting the deal in writing, a person with knowledge of the negotiations told The Associated Press on Sunday. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the agreement had not been finalized.

The current deal, set to expire Dec. 19, was agreed to on Aug. 30, 2002, just hours before players were set to strike. That contract was the first since 1970 achieved without a work stoppage, and this marks the first time the sides reached agreement before the expiration of the previous contract.

"Baseball is at an all-time high point right now," Detroit left fielder Craig Monroe said before Game 2 of the World Series. "You've got low-market teams doing well and different teams winning every year. Getting this done couldn't have come at a better time."

Lawyers were working on drafting language for the new deal Sunday, and hoped to put the finishing touches on it Monday or Tuesday. Once that happened, commissioner Bud Selig would announce it in St. Louis at the World Series.

"You've got a city like Detroit, you've got a city like St. Louis enjoying this, and it would be neat to get something finalized because it's good for the game," Chicago White Sox designated hitter Jim Thome said.

Bob DuPuy, baseball's chief operating officer, and union head Donald Fehr declined comment.

While baseball had eight work stoppages from 1972-95, the new deal guarantees labor peace through the 2011 season.

"Everybody's pretty happy with the industry. In baseball, everybody's making out pretty well," Cardinals reliever Jason Isringhausen said.

Since baseball's first labor contract in 1968, there have been strikes in 1972, 1980, 1981, 1985 and 1994-95, and management lockouts in 1973, 1976 and 1990. The last strike lasted 7 1/2 months and wiped out the World Series for the first time in 90 years, and it took years for many teams to rebuild attendance.

Most of the key provisions of the current contract will be continued with minor modifications, such as revenue sharing and the luxury tax. With the luxury tax set to expire on Dec. 19, there was pressure on management to make a deal to ensure that the 2007 season would be played with the tax in place.

"I think we're all for certainty and not going through a winter of wondering what's going to be going on," Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said. "I applaud the powers with the union and the MLB. Helps us go about our business."

NFL ROUNDUP

Just another manic Sunday

THREE GAMES WERE DECIDED ON THE FINAL PLAY BY FIELD GOAL KICKERS

By The Associated Press
It was a tough week for NFL quarterbacks. For long-range kickers and underdog teams, it couldn't have been any better.

The Atlanta Falcons knocked Pittsburgh quarterback Ben Roethlisberger unconscious, then finished off the favored Steelers 41-38. The Minnesota Vikings sidelined Seattle quarterback Matt Hasselbeck, then romped 31-13 on the Seahawks' home field.

And the Oakland Raiders lost Andrew Walter to a hamstring injury, but went on to win their first game of the season, 22-9 over the Arizona Cardinals.

In other upsets, Kansas City edged San Diego 30-27, Houston routed Jacksonville 27-7 and Tampa Bay nipped Philadelphia 23-21 on a last-second field goal by Matt Bryant that cleared the bar from a stunning 62 yards — the third-longest in NFL history.

Atlanta also needed a wild overtime finish to knock off the Super Bowl champion Steelers on Morten Andersen's 32-yard field goal 7 minutes into the extra period.

Elsewhere, it was the New York Jets 31, Detroit 24; Green Bay 34, Miami 24; New England 28, Buffalo 6; Cincinnati 17, Carolina 14; Denver 17, Cleveland 7; Oakland 22, Arizona 9, Indianapolis 36, Washington 22.

On Monday night, it's the New York Giants at Dallas.

Chiefs 30, Chargers 27
Lawrence Tynes hit a career-long 53-yard field goal with 6 seconds left, atoning for a first-quarter miss and getting the win for host Kansas City (3-3).

The Chiefs forced turnovers on three of San Diego's first four possessions and converted two of them into touchdown passes by Damon Huard.

Buccaneers 23, Eagles 21
Matt Bryant nailed a 62-yard field goal — the third-longest in NFL history — to give Tampa Bay (2-4) an improbable last-second victory.

The kick ruined a gallant comeback engineered by Donovan McNabb after the Bucs built a 17-0 lead over the visiting Eagles (4-3), mostly on the strength of two interceptions that Ronde Barber returned for touchdowns.

Texans 27, Jaguars 7
Houston (2-4) put up its biggest point total of the season, and did it against the only defense in the NFL with two shutouts.

Rookie Wali Lundy rushed for 93 yards and his first career touchdown and became the first Houston running back to score this season when he ran in from the 2 in the fourth to extend the host Texans' lead to 17-7.

Packers 34, Dolphins 24
Ranked last in the NFL in pass defense, visiting Green Bay (2-4) intercepted Joey Harrington three times and Brett Favre threw two touchdown passes, including the clincher to David Martin with 6 minutes left.

Packers running back Ahman Green also scored on a 70-yard run.

Bengals 17, Panthers 14
With the minutes ticking away, Carson Palmer finally mastered the wind and led a fourth-quarter drive that culminated in his 1-yard throw to T.J. Houshmandzadeh to lift host Cincinnati (4-2).

Delhomme then drove the Panthers (4-3) to the Cincinnati 10. On third-and-goal, he tried to loft the ball through the wind to Keyshawn Johnson at the back of the end zone. Instead, the ball floated to safety Kevin Kaesviharn, whose interception essentially ended it with 3:50 to go.

Jets 31, Lions 24
Leon Washington rushed for 129 yards on 20 carries and scored the first two touchdowns of his career, and New York (4-3) held on win consecutive home games for the first time since 2004.

The Lions (1-6) put a scare into the Jets, who led the entire game, by getting within a touchdown with 2:22 left when an outstretched Mike Furrey caught the ball in the back right-corner of the end zone. But New York got the ball back on the ensuing kickoff and ran out the clock to escape with a victory.

Patriots 28, Bills 6
Corey Dillon's two touchdowns rushing in the first half and New England (5-1) went on to rout Buffalo (2-5).

Recharged after their bye week, the Patriots controlled the game from the start, getting contributions from their defense and special teams to seal the team's fifth straight road victory. Asante Samuel had an interception and Mike Vrabel forced a fumble, ending two Bills drives in New England territory in the first half.

Broncos 17, Browns 7

At Cleveland, the NFL's stingiest defense held its fifth straight opponent to single digits and Jake Plummer did enough to keep Denver's offense moving.

The Broncos (5-1) were less than 12 minutes from their first road shutout in 14 years when Plummer's interception led to a short Cleveland touchdown pass — only the second TD allowed by Denver this season.

Colts 36, Redskins 22
Two-time MVP Peyton Manning threw four TD passes, including three in the third quarter, for host Indianapolis.

Indy remained the AFC's only unbeaten team and became the ninth team in league history to start 6-0 in back-to-back seasons. Washington (2-5) lost its third straight.

Vikings 31, Seahawks 13
Chester Taylor ran for a career-high 169 yards on 26 carries — including a pivotal, 95-yard touchdown — as Minnesota ended Seattle's franchise-record 12-game home winning streak. Already without league MVP Shaun Alexander, Seattle (4-2) lost Hasselbeck to a right knee strain on the third play of the second half.

Raiders 22, Cardinals 9
Andrew Walter threw a 32-yard touchdown pass to Randy Moss, ReShard Lee ran for a 1-yard score in the first quarter and host Oakland (1-5) overcame five turnovers for its first win of the season.

Despite getting two interceptions and recovering three

Raiders fumbles, the Cardinals (1-6) lost their sixth straight game.

Moss had his biggest game of the season, with seven receptions for 129 yards to help Oakland end an 11-game losing streak.

Rookie Matt Leinart was 13-for-32 for 203 yards and two interceptions to lose his third career start, Edgerrin James ran for 34 yards on 13 carries and Arizona only managed three field goals from Neil Rackers.

Horoscope by Jacqueline Bigar

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, Oct. 24, 2006:
This year you reflect what you believe, becoming more authentic. The person you evolve into and the direction in which you go will directly reflect how you define reality. You have energy, charisma and intent all working simultaneously. If you decide you want something to happen, you can and will make it so. In order to really grow and spread your influence, work on being sensitive to those who come across your path in life. If you enlist supporters and create good will, you will become close to unstoppable this year. After the holidays, your finances will become stronger, though you might spend too much. Think "savings." If you are single, your life flows, and you become more content and centered. Someone special could easily enter your life. If you are attached, your bond becomes stronger. Give up selfishness or being self-involved. SCORPIO understands you.

intended, you could be a bit pushed by personal responsibilities, family and a real estate matter. Do you know when to toss your hands in the air and say enough? You get a chance to practice. Tonight: Live it up! VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  Easily, you could be overwhelmed by others' expectations. You might need to do this and that for others; though you might long for a retreat, and are likely to take one. Listen to what others think, even if you want to put your hands over your ears! Tonight: Nestle in. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  Use extreme caution with your finances. You could be tired and more withdrawn than usual. Understand just how much someone really cares before you make a call or say something you might regret. Use your famed diplomacy. Tonight: At a favorite spot. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  You might want to make waves and change gears. Work on being more helpful and content. Sometimes your extremely assertive and energetic style is misread. For better or worse, you don't care right now. Tonight: Treat yourself! SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  Think before you leap into action. In fact, the morning encourages you to take a long, hard look at what is going on. Honor more of what you want and need. Think positively. Tonight: As you want - right now! CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)  Consider reversing gears or heading in a different direction. How you see someone or what you might or might not do could throw you off. A new friendship or a renewed one could be in the offing. Tonight: Take some time off. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  You of all signs will be called on the carpet today. Others hold you responsible for events that you might not think you have anything to do with. Look at where you might have needed to assume a stronger role. Tonight: That's right - leader of the gang. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  Take the high road and don't get involved in complications that you would prefer not to. Detachment might give you a stronger sense of direction. Be positive. Tonight: Others notice you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Events and a willingness to work with others encourage an overview. New beginnings are possible, if you like. Handling others and relating on a deeper level bring forth opportunity and new beginnings. Tonight: You have a strong way of stating your case.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Remember the old expression "keep your friends close and your enemies closer"? You might want to put this proverb into action, or at least be more observant of friend and foe. You'll gain useful information. Tonight: Yes, someone could be caustic. Distance yourself if need be.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 You can accomplish a lot. To some you might appear as a whirling dervish, close to unstoppable. Let others reveal their true colors by listening and not always acting. You might be surprised. Tonight: Pick through your invitations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Listen to others and make the necessary decisions that surround a child or loved one. You find that when faced with a problem, answers evolve. Trust your abilities more completely, and you'll get results. Tonight: Find a favorite, comforting spot and relax.

Grandpa who won't respect boundaries needs fencing in

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are in our early 30s, with a 2-year-old daughter and a baby on the way. Both of our parents live eight to 10 hours away by car, so there is limited exposure to both sets of grandparents.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

The problem is my father. Dad is very physically affectionate, even against the will of our daughter. For example, if she walks past him, he'll grab her and kiss her while she struggles to break free.

My father imposes the same behavior on me, coming up behind me and forcibly hugging me while I cook, wash dishes or some other task. When I say this makes me uncomfortable, he either acts offended or makes fun of me.

my parents make light of the situation. In fact, my mother said on her last visit, "Your daughter HAS no boundaries!"

What can we do to protect ourselves and our kids from my father's aggression without hurting his feelings or starting a fight? -- ANXIOUS DAD IN OHIO

DEAR ANXIOUS DAD: Perhaps back in the day when your parents were raising you, children didn't have boundaries, but times and circumstances have changed. Today, parents teach children to assert themselves if someone's touch makes them uncomfortable so they will be less submissive if an adult tries to take advantage of them.

There may not be a way to protect yourself and your children from your father without "hurting his feelings" or "starting an argument." People as insensitive to the feelings of others as he appears to be are usually hypersensitive when it comes to their own.

Because your father (and mother) refuse to accept YOUR boundaries when you ask him to let your daughter go, recognize that his time with your children should be severely curtailed until they're old enough to fight him off.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a general contractor and recently did some work for a couple I'll call Bob and Jane, who have grown fond of him, as well as we have them.

Today when my husband went to tie up some loose ends at their home, he found out that Bob's father is dying of cancer and they are just waiting for the call to go to the hospital when he passes.

We want to do something nice for Bob and Jane to let them know we are thinking about them, but is it "tacky" to send flowers with a note saying they are in our thoughts, or can you offer us any other suggestions? Thanks in advance. -- MINDY IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR MINDY: There is nothing "tacky" about sending flowers and a note to Bob and Jane, offering moral support. After Bob's father passes away, making a donation to the American Cancer Society in his memory would be a thoughtful gesture.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips.

Husband ignores diabetes, risks health

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband is 46 years old. During a physical through his job, he was diagnosed with type 2 diabetes. He is taking medication for this, and his doctor told him about changing his diet, exercising and not drinking as much.

Dr. Gott

By Dr. Peter Gott

Needless to say, he is not doing his part in the recommendations given to him. As an example, during a barbecue, he had more than a 12-pack of beer and didn't really eat a lot, but later he ate six mini doughnuts.

DEAR READER: I wouldn't term this activity tattling, because if your husband ignores the consequences of his diabetes, he is a perfect set-up for serious health problems in the future, such as neuropathy, blindness, heart disease, stroke and others.

call to his doctor could very well be what your husband needs most -- before the quality of his life becomes severely compromised.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Living with Diabetes Mellitus."

DEAR DR. GOTT: Do you know the long-term effects of an allergen on the lungs if symptoms go untreated? Example: Someone who is allergic to cats but lives with one and takes no medication to reduce symptoms (asthma, wheezing, coughing, stuffed-up nose).

DEAR READER: The consequences of continuing exposure to allergens can vary tremendously. Acute allergic reactions can be fatal. Inhaled allergens can lead to chronic asthma (cough, wheezing, difficulty breathing, etc.) and associated lung damage, such as chronic bronchitis, emphysema and others.

In most cases, patients allergic to animal dander have chosen to place their pets in other families.

The use of antihistamines and appropriate therapy for asthma will often improve the quality of life for older allergic adults.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Allergies." Other readers who would like a copy should send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $2 to Newsletter, PO Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. Be sure to mention the title.

Today in History

Today is Monday, Oct. 23, the 296th day of 2006. There are 69 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
Fifty years ago, on Oct. 23, 1956, a spontaneous, student-sparked revolt against Hungary's Communist rule began in Budapest; as the revolution spread, Soviet forces started entering the country, and the uprising was put down within weeks.

In 1864, forces led by Union Gen. Samuel R. Curtis repelled Confederate Gen. Sterling Price's army in the Civil War Battle of Westport, Mo.

In 1915, 25,000 women marched in New York City, demanding the right to vote.

In 1925, talk show host Johnny Carson was born in Corning, Iowa.

In 1942, during World War II, Britain launched a major offensive against Axis forces at El Alamein in Egypt.

In 1944, the World War II Battle of Leyte Gulf began.

In 1946, the United Nations General Assembly convened in New York for the first time, at an auditorium in Flushing Meadow in Queens.

In 1973, President Nixon agreed to turn over White House tape recordings requested by the Watergate special prosecutor to Judge John J. Sirica.

Soybean cyst nematodes again affecting Ky. crops

By LAURA SKILLMAN

PRINCETON, Ky. — Many Kentucky producers are seeing losses in their soybean fields as a result of a pest they thought they had under control.

Soybean cyst nematode, SCN, a microscopic roundworm that feeds on soybean roots and robs the plants of nutrients, is again being found in large numbers in many fields where varieties thought to be resistant to the pest were planted. This phenomenon is happening in a number of other soybean-producing states as well.

Data collected thus far in Kentucky fields shows a troubling trend and indicates that many farmers who think they are successfully managing SCN are, in fact, not, said Don Hershman, plant pathologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"I was afraid this was the case, and now we have some data to back this up," he said. "Similar data have been collected from Missouri, Illinois and Indiana. Populations are apparently shifting due to the overuse of resistant varieties which have the same source of SCN resistance in their background."

Simply looking at a stand of soybeans will not indicate there is a problem with nematodes. Serious yield loss caused by the pest rarely is associated with obvious disease symptoms in Kentucky. This results in yield loss often being blamed on other causes, especially if farmers are using resistant varieties. Producers may never notice consistent, moderate damage since they may obtain adequate yields.

"I've been working on cyst nematode my entire career, and because this disease doesn't usually cause symptoms you've got to wait for a teachable moment," Hershman said. "In this case, the teachable moment is that these other states are finding out that all is not well. My particular interest is that Kentucky farmers require and should have their own information. So we are doing the testing to confirm that we've got the same thing that they've got going on in Missouri, Illinois and other states in our region."

The Kentucky Soybean Promotion Board is funding a free SCN sampling program for 2006-2007. As part of this program, 45 soil samples were collected from seven counties this spring. Twenty-one samples had SCN populations above the damage threshold, Hershman said.

"This is noteworthy because most of these fields are in a corn/soybean rotation and were in corn during 2005," he said. "We have data that shows how corn rotation can lower SCN in a field."

Eleven populations from Ballard, Carlisle, Lyon and Hopkins counties were sent to the University of Missouri Nematode Lab for HG testing (formerly called race tests). There were three different races found but none were Race 3, which historically has been the predominant race in Kentucky. All 11 SCN populations were successfully able to reproduce on the primary source of SCN resistance used in Kentucky and the Midwest, Hershman said.

Hershman, with the help of county Extension agents, will be sampling fields again this fall. The samples will come from fields where soybeans were grown in 2005 and where corn was grown in 2006.

"We are generating data to prove there is a problem," he said. "Farmers have a false sense of security in that they look at the seed tag; it says resistant to SCN and they move on because they've got a ton of other things to worry about, but that's not good enough."

In Kentucky, most available varieties contain resistance races 3 and 14, said Chad Lee, UK Extension grain crops specialist. However, there are very few varieties available in Kentucky with resistance to the races found in the latest round of testing. Resistance information usually is printed on the tag attached to each seed bag.

Within a few years, Kentucky farmers likely will have more resistance options available to them, but for now the best option to combat the problem is crop rotation, Lee said. Information garnered through UK and other universities will help seed companies in their variety development.

Hershman said growing another crop besides soybeans in a field may need to be done for more than a single year to significantly lower SCN levels in problem fields.

Farmers who want to have their field checked, can contact their county Extension office.

Firm recalling possibly contaminated egg salad

WAYNE, W.Va. (AP) - Ballard's Farm Sausage Inc. said Saturday it is recalling its egg salad in 17 states because of possible contamination.

The company said tests showed mixed results for Listeria monocytogenes. The bacterium can cause serious or fatal infections in young children or elderly people. It also can cause miscarriages and stillbirths in pregnant women.

Ballard's President David Ballard said the company has temporarily suspended producing egg salad while it investigates the contamination. Consumers can return the 12-ounce containers of egg salad for a refund.

The company did not say where the containers were sold.

The states involved in the recall are Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, New York, New Jersey, North and South Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.
