Candidates preparing for 2007 elections

Staff Report

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Although many Kentuckians may have thought that the election season ended with Tuesday's election, a new cycle officially began Wednesday.

Potential candidates for Kentucky's constitutional offices may now begin filing with the Office of the Secretary of State. Candidates will either appear on the May 22, 2007, primary or Nov. 6, 2007, general election ballots.

"This election cycle should be exciting in Kentucky coming on the heels of the largest election in Kentucky's history," Secretary of State Trey Grayson said in a release. "Hopefully, many citizens will give serious consideration to becoming candidates for one of our constitutional offices."

Primary candidates, including political party candidates, have until Jan. 30, 2007, to file for office. Independent candidates or political group candidates must file a statement of intent by April 2, but have until Aug. 14 to file their petitions.

Each date includes a 4 p.m. EST deadline.

Constitutional offices that file with the Secretary of State are: Governor/lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, auditor of public accounts, state treasurer and agriculture commissioner.

So far Murray's Robbie Rudolph has announced he's running with Republican Gov. Ernie Fletcher in his re-election bid while Paducah's Billy Harper, also a Republican, is planning his first public address in his gubernatorial campaign next week in the Capitol Rotunda. Dick Wilson makes up the other part of that ticket.

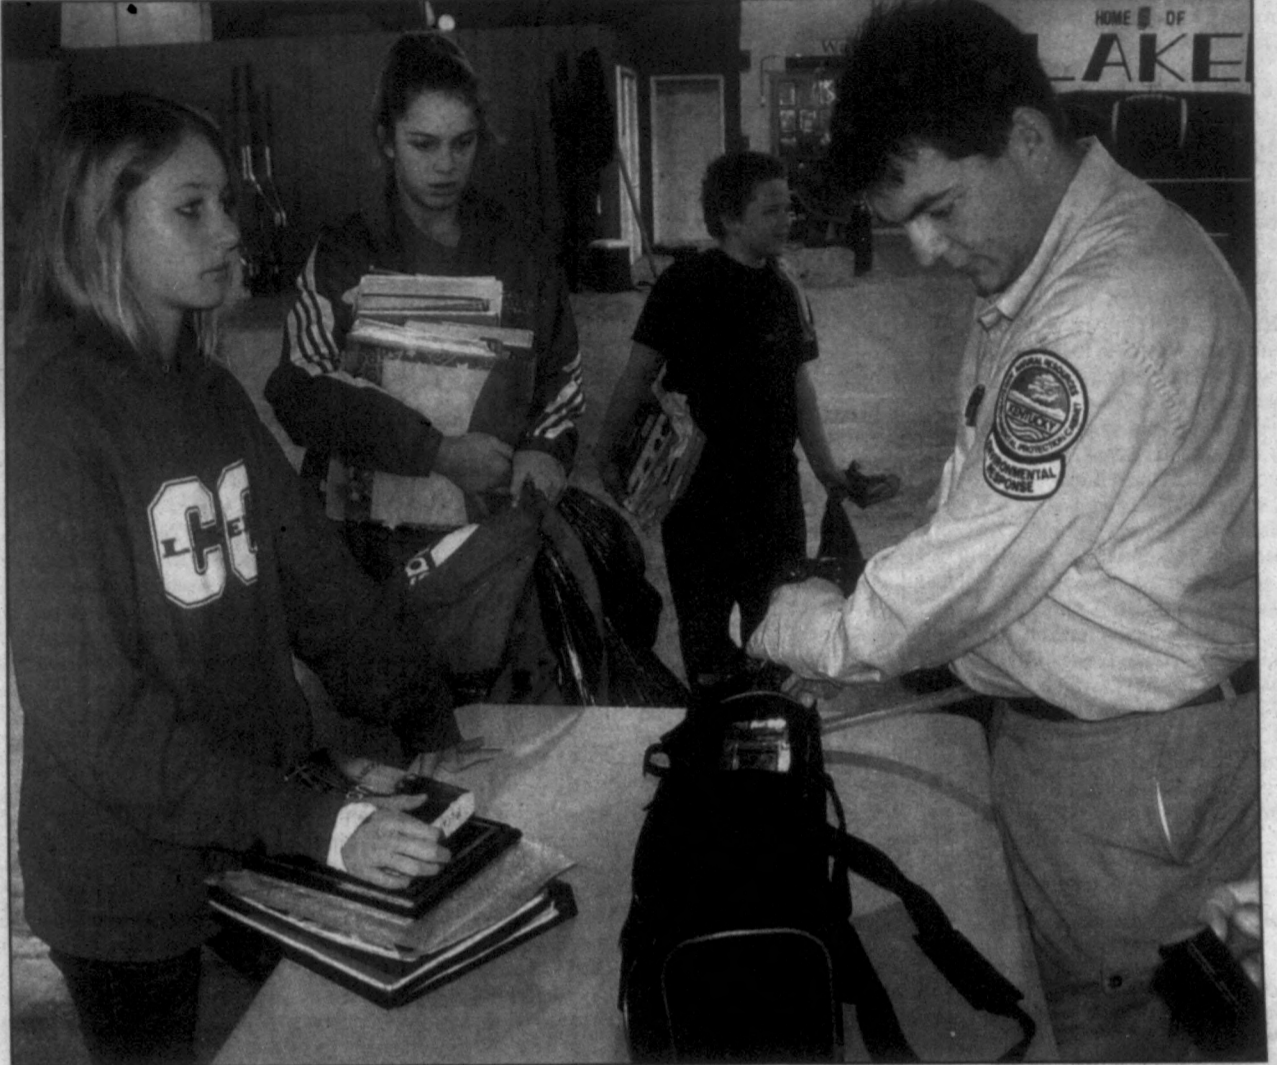

In order to help candidates seeking political office, the Office of the Secretary of State previously developed a ballot access procedural manual titled "Declaring Your Candidacy." This manual has been updated for this election cycle and provides Kentuckians with a quick guide to filing for political office.

Although the publication focuses primarily on candidate filing procedures, sample forms for attaining ballot access, and qualifications for each elective

BACK TO SCHOOL TODAY FOR CALLOWAY COUNTY: Calloway County Middle School students Ashley Gullixon and Alyssa Cunningham watch as Larry Tichenor, environmental control supervisor with the Kentucky Department for Environmental Protection, checks the students' items prior to re-entering the school this morning. The county system was out of school earlier this week after a small amount of mercury was discovered in the building over the weekend. An investigation revealed that the mercury may have been in the school for approximately a week to 10 days. "It's better when the kids are here. We feel really good about being safe," CCMS Principal Tawyna Hunter said. A crew of local state and federal emergency workers have been on site this week cleaning in order for students to return to school.

Law enforcement preparing for holidays

By KRISTIN TAYLOR
Staff Writer

With thefts and burglaries already escalating in the community, local law enforcement cautioned people preparing for the holidays.

During the monthly Murray-Calloway County CrimeStoppers, both the Murray Police Department and Calloway County Sheriff's Department talked about the rising number of thefts and burglaries.

Police encouraged people to put their holiday packages in their trunks out of plain sight while holiday shopping and be aware of what's going on around them. Residents should also have their neighbors keep their eyes on houses while people are out of town for the holidays.

Specifically, MPD Chief Ken Claud cited nearly 30 storage units that have been burglarized recently. One theft involved a suspect stealing guns. He again warned people to inventory their items and keep a list of serial numbers or other personal markings. Industrial-style locks also should be used because they are less likely to be cut open.

Meanwhile, Calloway County Sheriff Larry Roberts mentioned the Oct. 28 incident that involved two stolen vehicles and other items from Fastline Motors Carriers on Locust Grove Road. He said that theft seems to be connected to a Hazel drug case that is still under investigation.

With the holiday season putting people in tight financial binds, Roberts also said he expects more telephone and letter scams. He said any suspicious requests should be reported to law enforcement for investigation.

Calloway County Attorney David Harrington said his office has had several shoplifting complaints from local merchants. He expects more similar incidents as the holidays approach.

Rumsfeld resigns as secretary of defense

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON (AP) — After years of defending his secretary of defense, President Bush on Wednesday announced Donald H. Rumsfeld's resignation within hours of the Democrats' triumph in congressional elections. Bush reached back to his father's administration to tap a former CIA director to run the Pentagon.

The Iraq war was the central issue of Rumsfeld's nearly six-year tenure, and unhappiness with the war was a major element of voter dissatisfaction Tuesday — and the main impetus for his departure. Even some GOP lawmakers became critical of the war's management, and growing numbers of politicians were urging Bush to replace Rumsfeld.

Bush said Robert Gates, 63, who has served in a variety of national security jobs under six previous presidents, would be nominated to replace Rumsfeld.

President Bush, right, walks out of the Oval Office of the White House in Washington, Wednesday with outgoing Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld.

Gates, currently the president of Texas A&M University, is a Bush family friend and a member of an independent group studying the way ahead in Iraq. The White House hopes that replacing Rumsfeld with Gates can help refresh U.S. policy on the deeply unpopular war and perhaps establish a stronger rapport with the new Congress. Rumsfeld had a rocky relationship with many lawmakers.

"Secretary Rumsfeld and I agreed that sometimes it's necessary to have a fresh perspective," Bush said in the abrupt announcement during a postelection news conference.

In a later appearance at the White House with Rumsfeld and Gates at his side, Bush praised both men, thanked Rumsfeld for his service and predicted that Gates would bring fresh ideas.

"The secretary of defense must be a man of vision who can see threats still over the horizon and prepare our nation to meet them. Bob Gates is the right man to meet both of these critical challenges," Bush said.

Democrats gain Congress control

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a rout once considered almost inconceivable, Democrats won a 51st seat in the Senate and regained total control of Congress after 12 years of near-dominance by the Republican Party.

The shift dramatically alters the government's balance of power, leaving President Bush without GOP congressional control to drive his legislative agenda. Democrats hailed the results and issued calls for bipartisanship even as they vowed to investigate administration policies and decisions.

Democrats completed their sweep Wednesday evening by ousting Republican Sen. George Allen of Virginia, the last of six GOP incumbents to lose re-election bids in a midterm election marked by deep dissatisfaction with the president and the war in Iraq.

Democrats had 229 seats in the House, 11 more than the number necessary to hold the barest of majorities in the 435-member chamber.

"In Iraq and here at home, Americans have made clear they are tired of the failures of the last six years," said Sen. Harry Reid of Nevada, in line to become Senate Majority leader when Congress reconvenes in January.

As watershed elections go, this one rivaled the GOP's takeover in 1994, which made Newt Gingrich speaker of the House, the first Republican to run the House since the Eisenhower administration. This time the shift comes in the midst of an unpopular war, a Congress scarred by scandal and just two years from a wide-open presidential contest.

Allen lost to Democrat Jim Webb, a former Republican who served as Navy secretary in the Reagan administration. A count by The Associated Press showed Webb with 1,172,538 votes and Allen with 1,165,302, a difference of 7,236. Allen was awaiting the result statewide post-election canvass of votes and did not concede the race.

Democrats will have nine new senators on their side of the aisle as a result of Tuesday's balloting. Six of them defeated sitting Republican senators from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Missouri, Rhode Island, Montana and Virginia. The other three replaced retiring senators from Maryland, Minnesota and Vermont.

Their ideologies are as varied as their home states. Bernie Sanders, an independent who will replace Vermont Sen. Jim Jeffords, is a Socialist who has served in the House and voted with Democrats since 1990. Bob Casey Jr., who defeated Republican Sen. Rick Santorum in Pennsylvania, is an anti-abortion moderate. Webb once declared that the sight of President Clinton returning a Marine's salute infuriated him.

Besides the Webb-Allen race, the Montana Senate contest also was too tight to call early Wednesday. But by midday, Democrat Jon Tester outdistanced Republican Sen. Conrad Burns, who had to fight off campaign misuses as well as his ties to Jack Abramoff, the once super-lobbyist caught in an influence-peddling scheme.

In the House, 10 races remained too tight to call, with three of them leaning to the Democrats. Rep. Nancy Pelosi, who would become the first female speaker in history, called for harmony and said Democrats would not abuse their new status.

She said she would be "the speaker of the House, not the speaker of the Democrats." She said Democrats would aggressively conduct oversight of the administration, but said any talk of impeachment of President Bush "is off the table."

In the Senate, Sen. Charles Schumer of New York, the head of the Democrats' Senate campaign committee, said, "We had a tough and partisan election, but the American people and every Democratic senator — and I've spoken to just about all of them — want to work with the president in a bipartisan way."

Rumsfeld ...

From Front

But underscoring that he would not bow to those pushing for a quick U.S. withdrawal, Bush also said, "I'd like our troops to come home, too, but I want them to come home with victory."

In brief remarks, Rumsfeld described the Iraq conflict as a "little understood, unfamiliar war" that is "complex for people to comprehend." Upon his return to the Pentagon after appearing with Bush and Gates, Rumsfeld said it was a good time for him to leave.

"It will be a different Congress, a different environment, moving toward a presidential election and a lot of partisanship, and it struck me that this would be a good thing for everybody," Rumsfeld told reporters.

There was little outward reaction among officials at the Pentagon, beyond surprise at the abrupt announcement.

Asked whether Rumsfeld's departure signaled a new direction in a war that has claimed the lives of more than 2,800 U.S. troops and cost more than $300 billion, Bush said, "Well, there's certainly going to be new leadership at the Pentagon."

Voters appeared to be telling politicians that the sooner the war ends the better. Surveys at polling places showed that about six in 10 voters disapproved of the war and only a third believed it had improved long-term security in the United States.

Pentagon spokesman Bryan Whitman said Rumsfeld was not leaving immediately. Rumsfeld planned to deliver a speech on the global war on terrorism at Kansas State University on Thursday.

Just last week Bush told reporters that he expected Rumsfeld, 74, to remain until the end of the administration's term. And although Bush said Wednesday that his decision to replace Rumsfeld was not based on politics, the announcement of a Pentagon shake-up came on the heels of Tuesday's voting.

With his often-combative defense of the war in Iraq, Rumsfeld had been the administration's face of the conflict. He became more of a target — and more politically vulnerable — as the war grew increasingly unpopular at home amid rising violence and with no end in sight.

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said he hopes to hold Gates' confirmation hearings in time for the Senate to approve his nomination this year. But Senate Democratic leader Harry Reid of Nevada, whose party would control the Senate next year should it win the remaining undecided race in Virginia, said he had questions about Gates' ties to the Iran-Contra scandal of the Reagan administration.

Gates ran the CIA under the first President Bush during the first Gulf war. He retired from government in 1993.

He joined the CIA in 1966 and is the only agency employee to rise from an entry level job to become director. A native of Kansas, he made a name for himself as an analyst specializing in the former Soviet Union and he served in the intelligence community for more than a quarter century, under six presidents.

Numerous Democrats in Congress had been calling for Rumsfeld's resignation for many months, asserting that his management of the war and of the military had been a resounding failure. Critics also accused Rumsfeld of not fully considering the advice of his generals and of refusing to consider alternative courses of action.

Sen. Carl Levin of Michigan and Rep. Ike Skelton of Missouri — the top Democrats on the Armed Services committees — said the resignation would be a positive step only if accompanied by a change in policy.

"I think it is critical that this change be more than just a different face on the old policy," Skelton said.

Rumsfeld, 74, has served in the job longer than anyone except Robert McNamara, who became secretary of defense during the Kennedy administration and remained until 1968. Rumsfeld is the only person to have served in the job twice; his previous tour was during the Ford administration.

Rumsfeld had twice previously offered his resignation to Bush — once during the Abu Ghraib prisoner abuse scandal in spring 2004 and again shortly after that. Both times the president refused to let him leave.

Gates took over the CIA as acting director in 1987.

Cable choice expands in Hazel

By TOM BERRY
Staff Writer

HAZEL, Ky. — Hazel residents will soon have another choice from which to sign up for a cable-type video service following action by the Hazel City Commission.

During a meeting at city hall Monday night, Hazel commissioners Linda Harding, Lori Charlton and Nancy Mieure unanimously approved a proposal by West Kentucky Rural Telephone Cooperative of Mayfield to provide services in the city. Hazel residents are now served only by Galaxy Cablevision.

In a letter to Trevor Bonnsetter, chief executive officer of WKRTC, commissioners said a franchise agreement would not be required since the utility plans to offer the service to current customers using existing telephone lines.

"Likewise, if it is deemed at a later date that such a franchise agreement is required, West Kentucky Rural Telephone Cooperative will be able to continue to provide service while such franchise agreement is secured," the letter states.

Bonnsetter was not available for comment; however Kerry Watson, a spokesman for the company, said Wednesday that the service to be offered by WKRTC is not technically considered TV cable.

"It will include a programming line-up similar to cable TV," Watson said.

In other actions, Charlton proposed that the city take bids for proposals for the repair of the worst of several potholes that have accumulated on some of the city's streets while postponing paving work until spring.

"I think we need to do that before it gets too cold and we have a real problem," Charlton said. "We can wait until the spring to do the rest of it."

"I think what is going to happen is somebody is going to hit that (Third Street) pothole and blow a tire or something," added Mieure, who seconded the motion.

Also, the commission approved closing the Hazel Community Center and park area at "sundown" in an effort to put a stop to vandalism, noise and other public disturbances in the area.

The park has previously been scheduled to close at 9 p.m.; however reports from residents about noise from the area after dark prompted the move.

The community center will remain open and available to individuals or groups that reserve the building for activities.

Some discussion about the need for more law enforcement protection was also brought up in connection to the move with Mayor Harold Pittman suggesting the city might want to find a way to hire a full or part-time police officer in the future.

He said the city once had a police officer paid for by a federal COPS grant; however the grant ran out and the city contracted with the Calloway County Sheriff's Department for 20 extra hours per week in addition to standard patrols. However Sheriff Larry Roberts recently requested, and the commission complied, with an agreement to temporarily dissolve the arrangement because of a lack of deputies to fulfill the contract.

In other action, the commission approved Pittman's appointment of Hazel residents Rita Emery, Deane Frederick and Betty Kell to the commission's newly-formed ethics committee.

Formation of the committee was expedited recently following charges from Hazel businessman Ray Gough in October that the city had improperly donated $500 to the Save Hazel Committee in an effort to prevent the dissolution of the city's sixth-class city status.

The dissolution vote failed by a 138-21 margin in Tuesday's election.

Although city officials pointed out that the Kentucky League of Cities legal department has said the donation was not improper, a city ordinance does require the seating of an ethics committee to review similar matters and Pittman said he would take action on request immediately to ensure the commission does not violate the law.

Gough said previously that he would take any future complaints to members of the committee. Pittman said Emery, Frederick and Kell were chosen according to guideline included in an 18-page ordinance regulating the appointments which includes residency, mixed political parties, good moral standing and other requirements.

In other action, the commission:

— approved the allocation of about $30 to place a Christmas wreath on the front door of Hazel City Hall.

— heard a report from Pittman that city attorney Trevor Coleman would file court papers to collect more than $700 in delinquent taxes from an unnamed Hazel property owner.

Democrats undo some damage from 2004 House losses

By JOE BIESK
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Democrats regained some of the political ground they lost to the GOP two years ago, picking up five House seats in this week's election while Republicans maintained Senate control.

GOP candidates took two open House seats previously held by Democratic lawmakers. However, Democrats managed to win seven seats that were held by Republicans, increasing their House lead to 61-39.

Meanwhile, the GOP held its 21-16-1 advantage in the Senate.

"I'm going to bask in the glow of yesterday," House Speaker Jody Richards said Wednesday.

All 100 House seats and half of the Senate's 38 districts were up for election. Twenty House GOP incumbents had opposition, compared with 17

Democrats who were facing a challenge.

During the campaign, Democrats tried to capitalize on Gov. Ernie Fletcher's recent political troubles by linking some House Republican candidates to the governor. Democrats targeted at least nine districts in which they sent out literature labeling the local Republican candidates as "Fletcher Approved."

Fletcher's administration was under investigation for more than a year on allegations that protected state jobs were improperly being handed to the governor's political supporters. A special grand jury in Franklin County indicted the governor on misdemeanor charges related to the investigation. But Fletcher and prosecutors eventually agreed to a deal that dismissed the charges.

Three of the targeted state representatives — Milward

Dedman of Harrodsburg, Brad Montell of Shelbyville and Sheldon Baugh of Russellville — withstood the comparison.

Republican state Reps. Gerry Lynn of Brandenburg, James Carr of Hopkinsville and Mary Harper of Shepherdsville lost their races. Two targeted GOP candidates, Dana Seum Stephenson, of Louisville, and Kevin Locke, of Versailles, also lost.

Two Democrats who won in the House Tuesday fulfilled political comebacks. Former state Reps. Dottie Sims of Horse Cave and Larry Belcher of Shepherdsville were elected to areas they had previously represented in the House. Belcher unseated Harper, while Sims defeated Republican Rep. Terry Shelton of Magnolia.

Richards, D-Bowling Green, said Fletcher was a factor in House races.

"Most of them were running from him," Richards told reporters. "And I think he was a negative factor for the Republicans."

However, Republican Adam Koenig of Erlanger said he did not believe the governor was an issue. Koenig won an open House seat in northern Kentucky over Democrat Randy Blankenship, also of Erlanger.

Richards said officials were considering asking for a canvass of votes in Koenig's district, along with close races in Boyle and Hazard counties.

Koenig said he was "very confident" in his victory.

House Minority Floor Leader Jeff Hoover, R-Jamestown, said even a count of 39 GOP members would give the GOP its second largest number of representatives in about 60 years. Hoover said he was optimistic about the GOP's showing, noting that there were seven freshman Republicans up for re-election.

Under the current political climate, to lose only five seats, we feel pretty good about that actually," Hoover said.

Senate President David Williams, R-Burkesville, agreed.

"It would appear to me that if there was ever going to be a huge pickup of seats, last night would have been the night," Williams said.

Meanwhile, Williams and Richards each said the state may consider some change in the voting machines used on Election Day.

Richards said the voting machines were "horrible" and caused delays that could discourage people from casting their ballots. Williams said he thought the time it took local election officials to tabulate the numbers was too slow.

"There ought to be something that we can do to make sure that the votes get tabulated more quickly than they were last night," Williams said.

Inside players rise to Senate leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leaders in a new Senate filled with big egos and presidential wannabes are inside players whose best work is done behind closed doors rather than in front of television cameras.

Whether the majority leader will be Democrat Harry Reid of Nevada or Republican Mitch McConnell of Kentucky hinged on one uncalled race in Virginia, where Democrats clung to a narrow lead.

Both Reid and McConnell have a shrewd knowledge of the Senate. Neither, however, has designs on the White House, in contrast to retiring Majority Leader Bill Frist, R-Tenn.

Reid would become majority leader if Democrats oust incumbent Republican Sen. George Allen in Virginia. If Allen wins, Reid and McConnell would have to work out a power-sharing agreement in a 50-50 Senate, where Vice President Dick Cheney would hold the tiebreaker vote on many party-line issues.

A sometimes dour Mormon and former boxer, Reid is soft-spoken but has a tough hide. "I always would rather dance than fight," he likes to say. "But I know how to fight."

He opposes abortion and some gun control laws, putting him to the right of many in his caucus. But he wins praise from liberals.

"He really does develop consensus before he makes decisions," said Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif. "He's a very self-effacing individual. There's a certain naivete to Harry that's refreshing. He's not rehearsed."

Reid, 66, grew up in a hardscrabble mining town in the Mojave Desert, and worked his way through college, then law school in Washington as a Capitol Hill cop. He served five years as chairman of the Nevada Gaming Commission in the late 1970s, and later was lieutenant governor and a House member before winning election to the Senate. He became minority leader following South Dakota Sen. Tom Daschle's defeat in 2004.

McConnell, 64, is unopposed in his bid to succeed Frist as Republican leader. Unlike Frist, who was catapulted into the majority leader's post with no leadership experience, McConnell has held several key posts since his election to the Senate in 1984.

He chaired the committee that sets the chamber's rules and led the fundraising committee that recruits and helps finance the GOP's Senate candidates. He's been GOP whip for two years and was a trusted lieutenant to former Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss.

McConnell is best known for his fierce opposition to restrictions on raising and spending money in political campaigns.

Utah Republican Sen. Robert Bennett, a close McConnell friend, said the Kentucky Republican has the best political instincts of anyone in the Senate leadership, citing the groundwork he methodically laid for succeeding Frist.

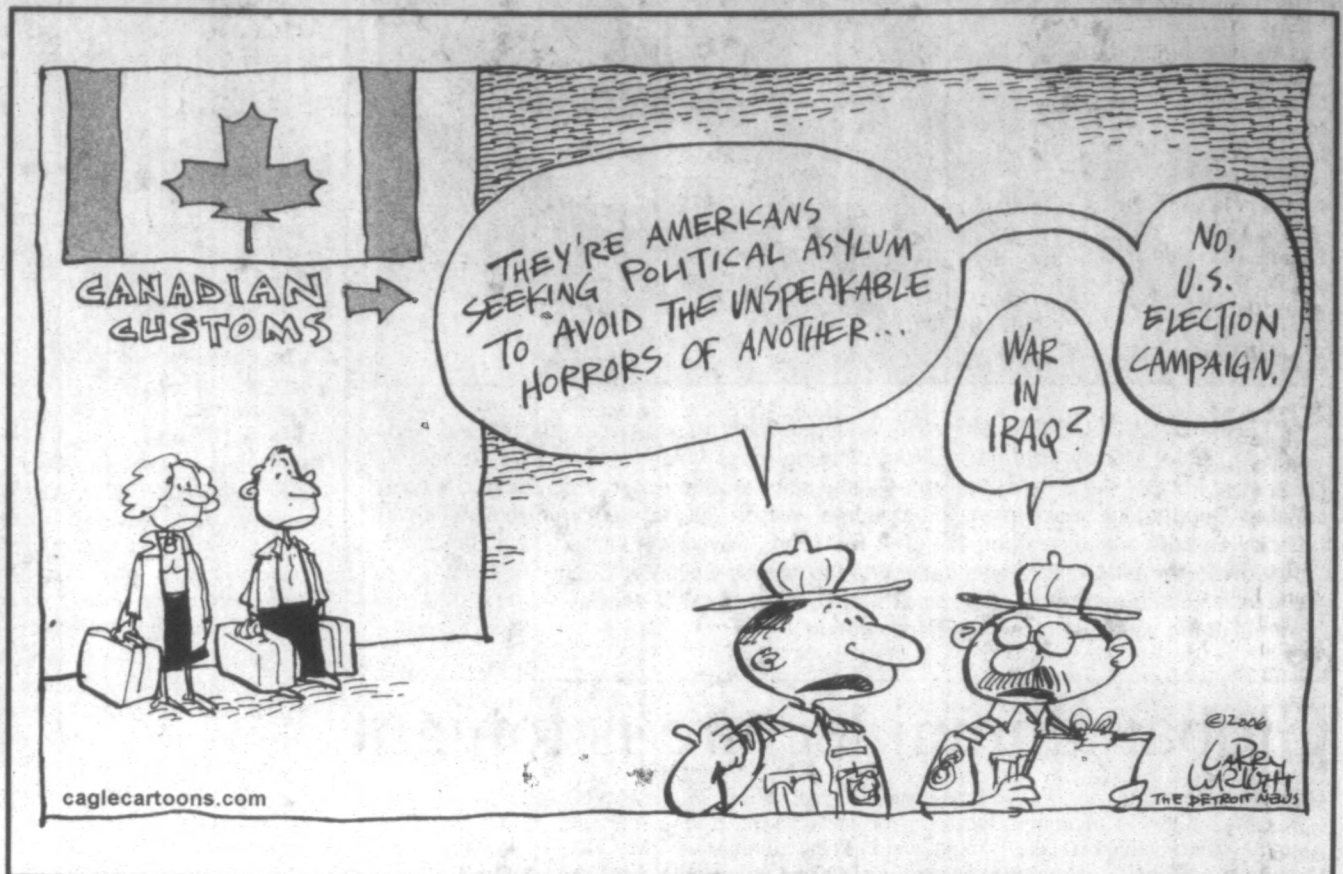

"Brick by brick, he built a firewall. So whenever somebody decided they wanted to run, all we had to do was sit down and say to them, 'This is what you're going to have to deal with,'" Bennett said. "One by one, potential opponents said, 'Wait a minute, I don't want to run and lose.'"

Vermont Sen. Patrick Leahy, the top Democrat on an appropriations subcommittee chaired by McConnell, called the Kentucky Republican a tough opponent, but a trustworthy consensus builder.

"We're both very much old school in that if you give your word on something, that's all it takes," Leahy said.

McConnell is half of a Washington power couple. His wife is Labor Secretary Elaine Chao.

Associated Press writers Nancy Zuckerbrod and Erica Werner contributed to this report.

Democratic Counterrevolution

In the end, the Republican "revolution" ran out of gas and out of vision. Too many congressional Republicans appeared to care more about maintaining power than using power to implement an agenda, which they also abandoned.

Cal's Thoughts
By Cal Thomas
Syndicated Columnist

Republicans revert to fear tactics about Democrats raising taxes and "cutting and running" from Iraq. Democrats probably will try to raise taxes (they call it "pay as you go") and introduce resolutions to withdraw from Iraq under cover of a "plan" that has little to do with victory. Investigations of the administration will be labeled "oversight," and headed by the most liberal members of the House.

Sen. John McCain (R-AZ), a probable 2008 GOP presidential candidate, said on NBC Tuesday night that too many congressional Republicans had not been "careful stewards of taxpayer dollars," nor had they "adhered to conservative principles." He specifically mentioned such spending boondoggles as Alaska's "bridge to nowhere," numerous earmarks, pork barrel spending and scandals.

When Republicans behave like Democrats, they lose. Why should people settle for counterfeits when they can have the genuine article?

Republicans can take some solace that President Bush might veto much of the Democrats' stealth agenda, which they hope he will do. Their objective is to win the White House in 2008 and they will turn the tables on the president if he vetoes their agenda, calling him an "obstructionist," a label he has tried to pin on them. The president would be wise to build relationships, at least with the conservative and more moderate Democrats, in hopes of isolating the liberals.

Republicans lost a significant part of their base in this election. Exit polls revealed nearly one-third of white evangelical Christians voted for Democrats, mostly because of perceived corruption in the GOP. They will continue to exercise influence within the Republican Party, but their days of veto power over policy and candidates may be over.

Democratic National Committee Chairman Howard Dean said he wants to cooperate with Republicans and search for common ground. Voters, who have been sickened (again) by corrosive and negative campaign ads, would appreciate that. But Dean has called Republicans "evil," "corrupt" and "brain-dead." That's not the kind of language that is likely to produce conciliation and comity.

One top House Democrat, who asked to remain anonymous until he sees whether his strategy will work, told me he will ask John Boehner, the current Republican majority leader, for permission to address the GOP caucus. The purpose, he says, would be to build a new relationship and reduce inter-party acrimony. Most people would probably wish him well if it results in progress that would benefit the country.

There are serious issues that must be addressed and resolved. Nice talk won't replace important philosophical differences and differing objectives. Most Americans may be tired of the Iraq war, but our enemies are not tired of it. If the United States pulls out of Iraq before Iraqis are trained and equipped to stand on their own against the insurgent terrorists, the terrorists will inherit a base and export terror around the world, including to the United States.

Democrats pledge to do nothing about Social Security, but this is irresponsible because Social Security cannot be sustained without huge tax increases and/or a sharp reduction in benefits. That is a fact that is beyond debate.

The problem for Republicans is their loss of revolutionary zeal. When Newt Gingrich was forced out as speaker, Republicans lost the best idea man they'd had in years. Speaker Dennis Hastert was rarely seen in public (until the Mark Foley scandal) and he has been more of a cautious manager than a bold leader. The retiring Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist has been uninspiring. What happened to eloquent Republicans?

Democrats recruited more moderate and even some conservative candidates to blur their left-wing socialist image. But their party leadership is overwhelmingly liberal. They include Howard Dean, Nancy Pelosi and Harry Reid, the latter a self-described "pro-lifer," who voted against the nominations of John Roberts and Samuel Alito, both presumably pro-life, to the Supreme Court.

Will liberal Democrats, despite all their talk of fiscal conservatism, ethical reform and seeking common ground with Republicans, be able to resist the temptations that come with power and privilege around the world, including to the United States. Washington and its lobbyists have a way of repaving the road of good intentions for a new majority, as they did with the previous one. But that road can still lead to the same destination.

Good luck, Democrats. You'll need it. You have power now and can't blame Republicans (though you'll try) if you fail.

11 million acetaminophen bottles recalled, suspected metal fragments

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major manufacturer of store-brand acetaminophen recalled 11 million bottles of the pain-relieving pills today after discovering some were contaminated with metal fragments.

There were no immediate reports of injuries or illness.

Perrigo Co. said it discovered the metal bits during quality-control checks. The company passed 70 million pills through a metal detector and discovered the metal in about 200 caplets, according to the Food and Drug Administration. The fragments ranged in size from "microdots" to portions of wire one-third of an inch long.

The recall affects bottles containing various amounts of 500-milligram caplets.

Perrigo bills itself as the world's largest manufacturer of store-brand nonprescription drugs. The Allegan, Mich., company did not disclose the chains for which it manufactures the store-brand acetaminophen. A list of batch numbers and store brands affected by the recall was forthcoming, the FDA said.

Wal-Mart Stores Inc., CVS Corp., Walgreen Co. and Costco Wholesale Corp. are among the companies Perrigo supplies with health care products, according to company Securities and Exchange Commission filings.

Perrigo said the pills contained raw material purchased from a third-party supplier and affected 383 batches.

Acetaminophen is best known as the drug in products sold under the Tylenol brand, but is widely available in generic versions. The recall does not affect Tylenol. The recall should not cause a shortage of acetaminophen, the FDA said.

The voluntary recall is considered a Class II recall since it covers products that might cause a temporary health problem or pose only a slight threat of a serious nature, according to the FDA.

Consumers with questions can call Perrigo toll free at (877) 546-0454.

Consumers who swallow any of the contaminated pills could suffer minor stomach discomfort or possible cuts to the mouth and throat, the FDA said, adding that the risk of serious injury was remote. Anyone who suspects they have been injured should contact their doctor, the agency said.

The FDA said Perrigo began investigating after realizing the equipment it uses to make pills was wearing down prematurely.

Couple accused of killing social worker face grand jury

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) — A western Kentucky couple accused of killing a western Kentucky social worker will face a grand jury next week, a judge said.

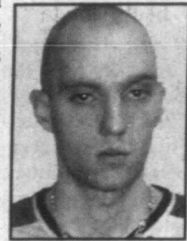

The cases of Renee Terrell, 33, and Christopher Luttrell, 23, will go before grand jurors on Nov. 14 in Henderson County, District Judge Rob Wiederstein said Wednesday. Wiederstein found probable cause that the two killed 67-year-old Boni Frederick, a social service aide from Morganfield, on Oct. 16.

Police said Terrell and Luttrell then took Terrell's 9-month-old son, Saige, and Frederick's car, cash and jewelry before fleeing and being caught in southern Illinois. The baby's disappearance set off an Amber Alert.

The state had custody of Saige, and Frederick had taken the infant to Terrell's home in Henderson for a two-hour scheduled visit the day she was killed.

During a preliminary hearing Tuesday, Henderson Police Detective Heath Cox said both Terrell and Luttrell admitted beating Frederick in the head with an iron skillet.

Soybean crop on track

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's soybean crop is on track for its best year ever, and the corn crop is expected to be the second best, the Agriculture Department said today.

Prices are continuing to rise, according to the monthly crop report. The soybean price forecast rose 50 cents from last month, to $5.40 to $6.40 a bushel, and the corn price forecast rose 40 cents to $2.80 to $3.20 a bushel. That's good news for grain farmers, but for chicken and dairy farmers, rising prices are making feed more expensive and reducing production of milk and chicken meat.

Production of meat and poultry dropped slightly, from an expected 91.4 billion pounds last month to just under 91.2 billion pounds.

The outlook for soybean production improved slightly from last month, while the forecast for corn production dropped 1 percent in the monthly crop report.

French art song concert to be at MSU Sunday

The Voice Faculty at Murray State University will join together for a concert of French art song on Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in the performing arts hall of Price Doyle fine arts building on the MSU campus.

The faculty has sung together in the recent past for a scholarship fundraiser of musical theater selections, but this is the first time in years they have presented a classical concert. The group chose the focus of French literature not only because the music is so rich with variety, but also for the attention to text declamation shown by French composers.

Poetry represented includes that of Vervain, Ronsard and Apollinaire among others.

The program begins with Dr. Pamela Wurgler singing selections from Berlioz's "Les-Nuits d'Été." Berlioz was the first composer to use the term Mélodie, or French art song, thus elevating the level of the genre beyond the folk or cabaret song.

Dr. Randall Black will then present selections by Henri Duparc. Duparc's song compositions number fewer than 20, but remain standard literature today.

The program continues with two song cycles — Dr. Sonya Baker's presentation of one of Debussy's earliest masterworks, "Ariettes Oubliées," followed by newcomer Bret Smithey's interpretation of Ibert's "Chansons de Don Quichotte."

Elizabeth Johnson will offer four songs from "Banalités" by Francis Poulenc before the entire group concludes with "La Vie en Rose," made famous by chanteuse Edith Piaf.

Joining the voice faculty on piano are Prof. A. Matthew Mazzoni and Prof. Emeritus Marie Taylor

The public is invited to attend and there is no admission charge.

WKMS to air Geerdes Vietnam War memories

This Saturday marks Veteran's Day — a time to honor all the brave men and women that serve our country during times of war. Kentucky native and Vietnam Veteran Tom Geerdes of Ledbetter is no stranger to war, and took a rare opportunity last fall to record his war and post-war experience. You can hear Mr. Geerdes' story on WKMS this Friday, November 10 between 7-7:30 a.m., during the StoryCorps segment of Morning Edition.

On a fall afternoon last September, StoryCorps' Airstream trailer pulled into the Court Square in Murray — marking the one and only Kentucky stop in StoryCorps' cross-country tour. It was during this unprecedented visit that Mr. Geerdes shared with his daughter, Hannah Campbell, his experience as a soldier during the Vietnam War, and the difficulties of returning to the States following the war. WKMS is proud to alert the Four Rivers region to tune in to Mr. Geerdes' recorded personal account on the eve of Veteran's Day.

StoryCorps, a project created by Dave Isay MacArthur, founder of the award-winning radio documentary house, Sound Portraits Productions is a nationwide initiative to instruct and inspire citizens to record each other's stories in high-quality audio. Participants receive a CD of their recorded interviews while a copy goes to the Library of Congress for a national oral history archive. StoryCorps' flagship booth was launched at Grand Central Station in October 2003. Since 2003, thousands have taken part in the project, describing their lives and history.

StoryCorps segments air each Friday during Morning Edition, between 7-7:30 a.m. on WKMS.

For more information about WKMS, the listener supported public radio service of Murray State University, call 800-599-4737 or www.wkms.org. With translators 92.1 in Paducah, 99.5 in Paris, Tennessee and 105.1 in Madisonville, WKMS broadcasts to 27 counties in southernmost Illinois, western Kentucky and north-west Tennessee.

Writer's Potpourri

Writer's Potpourri will be Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at the Calloway County Public Library. All interested writers are invited.

Charlie York, director, has released some of the poems written by participants as follows:

Out of the Dark

By Margaret Davis

The road was as deep as it was dark where pain and sorrow filled my heart the booze and drugs took me far away

where pain and sorrow could no longer touch my heart thru the keep dark haze I could see blood stained hands stretched out to me come follow me I heard Him say

Oh, how I did laugh and begin to shout at the one that called me out where were you when I cried out?

Right beside you His words came out

When you hung from that tall oak tree
it was I that loosened that rope and make you breath

When you took those pills and went to sleep
it was I that work you from that grave

When you were beaten and left to die
it was I that found you laying there

When you were in prison and had no friends
it was I that came to visit

you there
When you were lonely and blue

It was I that sent your husband to you

When you fell upon your knees and began to cry
it was then I hung on the cross for you

Now do you see where I was when you suffered with me

Now I sit at my Father's side with out stretched hands
I cry, come follow me for I am the only one that can set you free

With tear filled eyes I took His hand and know one day
I will live with Him in God's Holy Land.

Faith
By Wilma J. Sanders

The faith of a mustard seed
God said in His word
It can move mountains
Have you not heard?
So I rest in God's promise

Welcome to Turkey Dinner

By Dayville Clark Hi, in Turkey I see the vegetables have made I And I see they have brought A new pie with them What is your name? "My name is Poor Man's Pecan" I'm not made with pecan nuts I'm made with oats Oh well, let's say the blessing And get this meal underway.

Behind Closed Doors

By Margaret R. Elkins Who are we behind closed doors? What do we see in the mirror When our image stares back at us? How do we feel when we're alone? Do we possess hearts that heal, Or have our hearts turned to stone? What do we really think In our cloistered privacy? Do we teeter on the brink Of self-destructive piracy? What do we hide Behind closed doors That we dare not take outside, But keep locked up In the deepest core Of our solitary being? What do we fear Behind closed doors That we shudder to share With our fellow peers? What do we find behind closed doors In the silence of our minds? Behind closed doors we are ourselves, but when we step out of the door, We store the remnants of our self On life's vacant dusty shelf.

Gas Wars

By Dorothy Locke Inman The gas wars begin. The price goes down. You join that long line, to get the cheapest in town. The kids start fighting, there isn't anything about waiting that's very exciting. You'll use more gas, just sitting in line, than you would save, paying that extra dime. People get irritable, what a crying shame. The gasoline prices so high, we often join in that game.

The Ads

By Michael J. Inman Mr. Elbow Macaroni was sitting at home, watching his TV. by Sony. When on came an ad, hosted by a tiger named Tony. So he called Miss Ravioli, and asked if he could come over to eat fried balon-ga. Oh forget that bologna, it's all phony, let's go to the island and get a foot-long coney.

Boat Wait

By LaShell Jones There once was a man who lived in a boat. His name was Boat Bait. He stunk like a pickle. One day he went to his house to get his fishing rod and bait. And when he went out to the river, he stepped too close to the edge. So he fell into the water and didn't get out until the next morning.

Fireflies Butterflies and Clover

By Lenda Easley When we were small girls June Carol Becky Mary Zandra S. Carol and myself We would get us a jar And catch fireflies (lightning bugs) See who could catch the most Then some days, we all would catch butterflies. I couldn't kill them, so I would find dead ones Maybe if I got lucky on the front of the car

Clover, oh we had so much fun Making chains to see who could make the longest and then be the one who found the lucky 4 leaf clover Then we would get rose petals and make our lips look as if we had lipstick on By then, it would be lunch We would go home Then later on, into the day it was freeze tag and kick the can, under the street lights Why can't it be so simple now?

The Mystery

By Stephanie Cunningham There is a person, Who is a controller To her older sibling. She will yell him What to do Or where to go On a day or night Of the week. The sibling will go When and where She wants to go. It seems to me She controls And depends on him too much! What will happen to her,

When he is gone? Without him, Who will she control? This is the Mystery!

Charlie's Proverbs

By Charlie York My strength comes when I submit my life to God's will. Rewards come when I Do It! You can preach and teach Till you're old and gray, But not many listen to What you have to say. It is no disgrace to be poor, But to wallow in poverty for a lifetime is!!! If you are in tune with God and your audience. You can feel their approval or disapproval. Not to see God in 'His creation Is like not seeing your image in a mirror.

While Out Walking This October Day

By Linda M. Siebold Springing from the field to my left, A large doe, in flight. I stop and she lands in front of me Barely touching the road So quick is she and graceful. Another spring and bound. Another and another, another, 'until she enters woods, And is lost to my sight. I listen but all is quiet. Next day I hear sounds of gunfire: Target practice? Or Hunter? I hope the deer is safe. Then I think of Lyme disease. Of my neighbor, of my brother, And others. But deer mean us no harm And are beautiful to see; Thrilling for me to see.

RACERS' 2ND TRIP TO WEST COAST NOT UNLIKE THE LAST

By SCOTT NANNEY
Sports Editor

Even though the cast of characters has changed, the story remains the same for the Murray State men's basketball team.

For the second time in three seasons, the Racers will take a young and inexperienced team to Moraga, Calif., for an early-season tournament.

Entering Friday night's tip-off of the Shamrock Invitational at St. Mary's College, new MSU head coach Billy Kennedy will have as many questions about his first Racer squad as his predecessor — Mick Cronin — did with a practically brand new roster in 2004-05.

The only difference is that Cronin's second Murray team already had seven games under its belt when it headed west to take on California-Davis and host St. Mary's.

Kennedy, on the other hand, will have much less knowledge of his ball club when the Racers open their 2006-07 season against San Diego State at 7 p.m. CST.

That contest will kick off a series of three games in three days. Murray State will also face Division II powerhouse Seattle Pacific on Saturday (7 p.m.) before concluding its tournament stay versus St. Mary's on Sunday (9 p.m.).

Kennedy preferred to begin his MSU tenure much closer to home and against lesser competition, given the inexperience of his youthful team.

Nevertheless, the former Centenary and Southeastern Louisiana head coach is anxious to see how his squad responds to its first challenge after the Racers' one and only dress rehearsal — a 69-47 exhibition romp over Canada's York University last Saturday.

"I don't think we're ready to go just yet, but we've got to get ready," Kennedy said on Tuesday. "We're trying to get some of our younger guys ready to play at a more consistent level."

"We're trying to make these guys understand that this is not just a trip to California; it's a trip to win games," he added.

Winning games in the season-opening event may be easier said than done, considering the Racers' current state and their competition.

San Diego State returns four starters from last year's 24-win campaign, including Mountain West Conference Player of the Year and AP All-American Honorable Mention selection Brandon Heath.

The Aztecs, who lost to Indiana in the first round of the NCAA Tournament last March, are led by former Michigan coach Steve Fisher, who begins

Senior forward Dwayne Paul will be one of three senior Racers assured of a spot in the starting lineup for Friday night's season opener against San Diego State in the Shamrock Invitational at Moraga, Calif., according to MSU head coach Billy Kennedy. Staff Report

The Murray State men's basketball team announced the signing of two players on Wednesday, the first day of the November early signing period for college basketball programs.

Making up the Racers' 2007 recruiting class are a pair of guards — Caldwell County's Matt Fraliex and Jackson (Tenn.) Liberty Tech's Jewuan Long.

The 6-foot-4 Fraliex, who averaged 26.2 points per game (fifth-best in the state) during his junior season of 2005-06, is just the third player in Caldwell County history to top the 2,000-point mark.

"Matt comes from a good basketball family," said first-year Murray State head coach Billy Kennedy. "He's a big guard who can really shoot the ball, and he has a good feel for the game."

"Matt has great character and work ethic. Those qualities will help him become a great player in the Ohio Valley Conference," he added.

Frailix was an all-state honorable mention selection last season, ranking fourth in the state in free throw percentage at 87 while shooting 55 percent from the field, including 46 percent from 3-point range. He was also selected to the Kentucky New Era team, a first-team selection to the All-Second Region team and an All-Academic District 7 team pick.

Goode, Holloway add size to UofL

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Rick Pitino learned during Louisville's first season in the Big East last year that the Cardinals needed to get bigger if they wanted to compete in one of the nation's most physical conferences.

Pitino hopes the Cardinals found the help they needed on Wednesday after 6-foot-8 forward George Goode and 7-1 center Clarence Holloway signed letters of intent to play for Louisville beginning in the 2007-08 season.

Goode averaged 18.0 points, 12.0 rebounds and 5.0 blocks last season for Raytown (Mo.) South High. Pitino said Goode's combination of range and size should make it easy for him to be effective in the Cardinals' up-tempo attack.

Holloway has shed 50 pounds off his frame in recent months. He'll spend this year at the Chicago Boys to Men Math and English Academy, the latest in a nomadic journey since his senior year at Harlan High in Chicago two years ago. He averaged 15.0 points and 10.0 rebounds at Harlan in 2004-05 before going to IMG Academy in Bradenton, Fla.

Holloway stayed at IMG one year, then entered the 2006 NBA Draft but removed his name for consideration before eventually enrolling in the Chicago prep school.

Goode and Holloway will likely be the only two signees this year for Louisville, which opens the season on Nov. 18 against Northwestern State.

Rutgers bracing for historic game with Cardinals

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — Students camping out. Temporary bleachers to accommodate the overflow crowd. Tickets that usually sell for $28, going for $200 on eBay.

Rutgers football sure has come a long way in a short time.

Not long ago it was hard to give away tickets to a Scarlet Knights game. Now, seats for Thursday night's battle of unbeaten between the No. 15 Scarlet Knights and No. 3 Louisville are so scarce that even Gov. Jon S. Corzine appealed to athletics director Robert Mulcahy for an extra pair.

"He said, 'I'm sending a check,'" Mulcahy said.

The game is being billed as the biggest ever played by the school that was part of the first college football game in 1869.

"I think it's a reaction that's in many ways almost an overreaction," Mulcahy said. "They wanted this for so long, the minute they could taste something, it was, 'Boom.'"

It is an understatement to say even the most ardent Rutgers followers probably could not have envisioned this level of hysteria when head coach Greg Schiano took over in 2001 and proceeded to lose 34 of 46 games, including 17 consecutive in Big East play.

The former University of Miami defensive coordinator gradually built a winner out of a program with only three above .500 seasons since 1984. In 2005, Rutgers went to a bowl for the first time since 1978 and this year crashed the Top 25 for the first time in 30 years.

"When I would sit up here and start talking about how we're going to win this and we're going to build this, I'm sure people would think, 'What's this guy smoking today?'" Schiano said this week. "But the alternative is to sit there and say, 'Well, I don't know, we'll see.' So I think that kind of thinking is what carries you through the tough times, and it gives you a consistency that in the athletics world is hugely important."

Thursday's game will be the second in consecutive weeks that pits two undefeated Big East teams, after Louisville's 44-34 defeat of then-No. 3 West Virginia last Thursday. The win vaulted Louisville to third-place in the Bowl Championship Series standings, but detractors still question the conference's strength.

"What we feel is that we went out on the field and played great football," Louisville coach Bobby Petrino said. "We've played everybody we went up against and did a nice job. Our players here listen and are certainly motivated. We probably need to get (ESPN analyst) Lee Corso to keep talking about us."

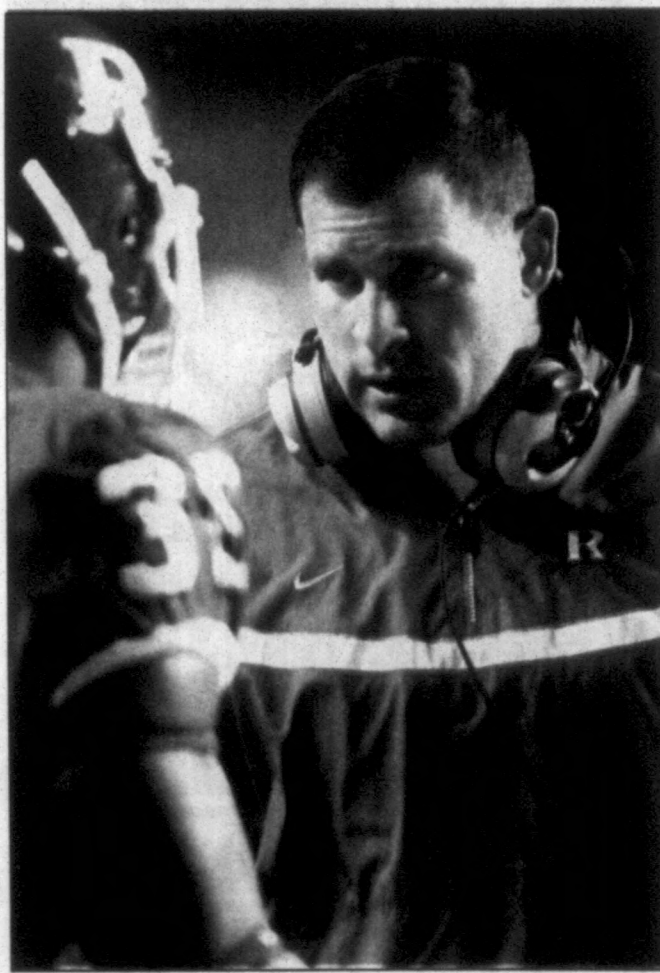

Louisville (8-0) has already entered uncharted territory with its highest ranking and spot in the thick of the national title race.

A win by Rutgers (8-0) would dash Louisville's title hopes and move the Scarlet Knights into the national championship discussion.

While Louisville's win over West Virginia is viewed as a defining moment in the program's history, Rutgers is coming into the game off one of its worst performances of the season. The Scarlet Knights beat Connecticut 24-13 two Sundays ago with only one offensive touchdown.

Rutgers is 4-1 against

Rutgers head coach Greg Schiano talks with defensive end William Beckford during a game against Connecticut earlier this season. Not long ago, it was hard to give away tickets to a Scarlet Knights game. Louisville, but the last meeting was humiliating for the Knights.

The Cardinals won 56-5 in Louisville last year and held the Scarlet Knights to nine first downs.

"You pretty much use it as a positive," Rutgers defensive tackle Ramel Meekins said. "It's in the past and it happened. You take it and you run with it. You take the good and the bad, and you turn the bad into good and make the good even better."

The Louisville offense, averaging 492 yards and 39 points per game, will be the toughest test of the season for a Rutgers defense ranked No. 2 in the country and allowing nine points per game.

Louisville quarterback Brian Brohm has recovered from a thumb injury this season to lead the Big East in passing and total offense. Schiano put him among the best he has coached against, a group that includes Michael Vick and Kerry Collins.

Rutgers counters with a rushing attack led by sophomore running back Ray Rice, the nation's third-leading rusher with 1,203 yards who is recovered from an ankle sprain suffered against UConn.

Masthay helps UK kicking game

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Tim Masthay and Lones Seiber aren't the first college athletes to parlay success kicking a soccer ball into success kicking a football, but their transition has been far swifter than most.

Masthay, a sophomore, didn't take up punting, and Seiber, a freshman, didn't take up place kicking until late in high school. Now the two aren't just starting for a major Division I program but are leading a special teams unit that gets much of the credit for the Wildcats sitting one win away from bowl eligibility.

"I don't think just anybody can pick it up," said Seiber, whose clutch 48-yard field goal Saturday helped Kentucky knock off Georgia for the first time in a decade. "It's something you're born with. It's mostly in your mind."

Seiber, whose father is in the U.S. Air Force, was born in Japan and spent part of his high school career in Germany. Neither place is exactly a bastion of American football, but it is for soccer, and that's where Seiber first put his strong leg to work.

Masthay, far more athletic than your average punter, excelled at soccer too and dominated the baseball diamond as a pitcher. Although he kicks with his right foot, he throws with his left arm and writes with his

ALABAMA PREVIEW

Crimson Tide has high expectations

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — When tickets for February's Alabama-Kentucky game went on sale at the Crimson Tide ticket office, they were all snapped up in about an hour.

And that's not merely thanks to rabid Wildcat fans either.

Alabama faithful have reason for excitement about a team that has not only become an NCAA tournament regular but also returns most of the key players for a change.

"We've got some enthusiasm around the program," Tide coach Mark Gottfried said. "Hopefully we can keep it up."

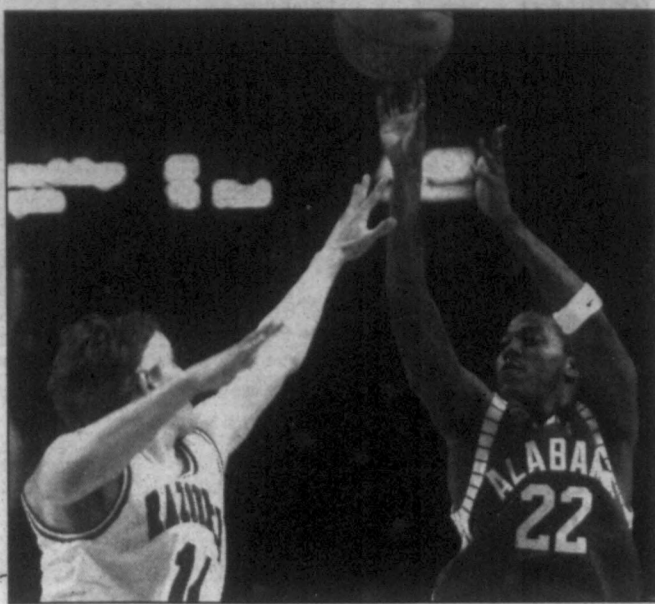

No. 11 Alabama opens the season Friday against Jackson State with its highest preseason ranking since opening the 2002-03 season at No. 8.

Those are pretty high expectations for a team that finished last season 18-13 and out of the Top 25.

"It's nice publicity for the program," sophomore forward Richard Hendrix said.

"We have high expectations for ourselves and we really don't pay attention" to preseason projections.

Much of the enthusiasm centers around the return of All-

All-America guard Ronald Steele will fuel the Crimson Tide attack at the point for former Murray State head coach Mark Gottfried, who enters his ninth season as the head man at Alabama.

Southeastern Conference point guard Ronald Steele and forward Jermareo Davidson.

Behind them, though, the team doesn't have a scholarship player with more than one year of college experience.

That's somewhat mitigated by the fact that sophomores Hendrix, Alonzo Gee and Brandon Hollinger all played significant roles last season.

Alabama has made five consecutive NCAA tournaments, but is 1-2 the past two seasons.

The Tide fell 62-59 to eventual runner-up UCLA in the second round last season when Steele missed a potential game-tying shot.

That shot by a player who made a number of clutch plays last season is not among the team's regrets.

"We would let Ron take that shot every time," Davidson said. "But who else will take the outside shots this season?"

The Tide lost shooting guard Jean Felix, who led the team in 3-pointers made and was often assigned to guard the opposing team's top perimeter scorer.

The 5-foot-11 Hollinger started 18 games last season, helping Steele with the ball-handling duties.

Steele still played more minutes than anybody else in the SEC, averaging 40.3 in league games (including OT games).

Steele says he worked in the weight room five days a week during the offseason trying to improve his strength for that heavy toll.

"A lot of times I kind of wore down at the end of the game," he said. Gottfried is hoping Hollinger and freshman Mikhail Torrance could give him a few more breathers this season.

"He probably is the best-conditioned athlete on the team," Gottfried said. "At the same time, I think we can be a better team if somebody else emerges that can spell him a little bit here and there."

Mykal Riley, a 6-foot-6 junior college transfer, and 6-3 freshman Verice Cloyd also will vie for playing time.

There are fewer question marks in the post, where Hendrix was forced to play a bigger role when leading scorer Chuck Davis sustained a season-ending knee injury early in the SEC schedule.

The physical Hendrix and the slashing Gee combined for 18 points and 11 rebounds as freshmen.

UK fined for incident

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The Southeastern Conference has fined the University of Kentucky $5,000 because fans stormed the field at Commonwealth Stadium and removed a goal post Saturday after the Wildcats defeated Georgia.

Under SEC policy, spectators aren't allowed to enter a "competition area" before, during or after the game. Subsequent violations before 2009 could result in fines of $25,000 or $50,000.

Recruits

"He shoots it better than anyone I've seen. I expect it to go in most of the time," said Caldwell head coach Michael Fralex of his star guard. "He worked hard in the weight room over the summer and has gotten a lot stronger."

Long, a 6-1 senior, earned state tournament MVP honors while leading Liberty Tech to the Tennessee Class 2A state championship last season. He was also a Class 2A all-state team selection in the Volunteer state.

"We recruited Jewuan to come in and play the point guard position," Kennedy explained.

"His toughness and ability to make his team better will be a great asset to our team here at Murray State."

Long averaged 12 points and hauled in five rebounds per game while averaging four assists per outing for a Liberty squad that finished 34-3 under the guidance of head coach Dexter Williams.

"The boy is a winner. That's all he knows," Williams said of Long. "He's a slashing type player. He can attack the basket and is a very good defender. We always have him guard the opponent's best player. ... He has started every game here since he was a freshman. His improvement has been dramatic every year."

The two signings leave the Racers with one scholarship to offer during the spring signing period. Kennedy said earlier this week that the Murray coaching staff is currently recruiting two players, with the Racers expected to chose a frontcourt player.

right. He can't explain why.

"We're just used to kicking objects," he says, explaining why punting came so naturally. "Lots of time people grow up kicking their whole life. That isn't the way I did it."

But coach Rich Brooks says he still doesn't understand how players so accustomed to kicking a round ball can transition so quickly to kicking an oblong one — and one that has to be placed more precisely, with as many as 11 defenders trying to block it.

"It's such a mental thing to understand you just get one chance," Brooks said. "Soccer players, time after time, get chances to kick on goal. If you miss one, you miss one. You always get another one. In football, it's almost a finality. You have to be able to understand the mental pressure of that."

Seiber was highly recruited. During his senior season at Central High School in Knoxville, Tenn. — the fourth high school he attended in three different countries — Seiber nailed 10 of 15 punts. Three of the misses were blocked, and the other two were attempts topping 55 yards.

But he was forced to have surgery on a torn right hip in June, and missed most of Kentucky's training camp. There was serious talk about redshirting him.

In SEC play, he has nailed 10 of 12 field goals and not missed an extra point attempt in 20 attempts, ranking him seventh in the conference in scoring.

"He has unlimited potential,"

Brooks said. "He has a very strong leg, and his accuracy has improved dramatically the last six weeks."

Masthay, who says he was always more natural as a kicker than punter, has had a good season too, although it has been mired by inconsistency at times, as illustrated by two punts against Georgia.

One dribbled down to the 1-yard line and was downed, setting up a Kentucky interception. But another scooted just into the end zone for a touchback. It just goes to prove that football is a game of inches, especially for a punter, he said.

"I wasn't trying to spiral it, and I kind of spiraled it right into the wind," Masthay said. "It just went too far on me."

Racers

is eighth season at SDSU after spending eight full seasons at the helm of the Wolverines — a team he led to three NCAA championship games and the 1989 national title.

"San Diego State and our lack of experience are the biggest concerns," Kennedy claimed. "(SDSU) is a tournament team. They've got three starters back who are very good players."

The Racers would figure to get a break on Saturday night against a lower-division opponent. However, despite its D-II status, Seattle Pacific will be no pushover.

In 2005-06, the Falcons culminated a stellar 26-6 season with a trip to the Division II national semifinals, where they fell to Virginia Union.

Seattle Pacific will be led by All-Region selection Dustin Bremerman, who is one of three returning starters. Coached by Jeff Hironaka, who is 76-39 entering his fifth season at Pacific, the Falcons were picked to finish second in a Great Northwest Atlantic preseason poll.

On Sunday, the Racers will face a St. Mary's squad that defeated them 75-62 two years ago.

The Gaels lost all-time leading scorer Daniel Kickert to graduation, but return four starters — including 75 percent of their rebounding — from last season's 17-12 finish.

"It will be a big challenge for us, because we will be playing three good teams," said Kennedy. "I think after the first game, we'll have a better feel for things. ... I think we'll know a lot more about our freshmen and our new players and what they can do."

Murray played 12 players from its 15-man roster against York. The only players who didn't see action against the Lions last weekend were injured point guard Kevin Thomas, returning junior post Rob Kennedy and walk-on guard Forrest Smallwood.

Thomas — who has been out of action since before the start of preseason practice while recovering from a torn meniscus in one knee and is not expected back before Dec. 1 — is the only Racer assured of not seeing the floor this weekend.

However, Kennedy is likely to not play as many players as he did in the exhibition outing, saying that only returning starter Shawn Witherspoon and Birmingham Southern transfers Ed Horton and Dwayne Paul are assured starting spots at this point.

"Those three have been the most consistent so far. The other two positions could change," said Kennedy, noting that sophomore guard Tyler Holloway, redshirt freshman forward Tony Easley and junior transfer forward Curtis Parker could possibly earn starting nods. "We could very easily change the

by Jacqueline Bigar

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Nov. 10, 2006:

Your year could be spectacular and quite different. Reflect more often on what works for you. Sometimes your sixth sense will go against facts. Though you might test which way to go or what could be best for you, your instincts are excellent, even if they defy logic. You know what you are doing. Sometimes you could be overwhelmed by news or activities. If you are single, sometimes opportunities appear. A person could be most different and be the right choice. If you are attached, you will find that the two of you benefit from planning a very special trip. LEO pushes you to the forefront.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:

5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 You might want to rethink a decision or attitude. Act much more positively. Think in terms of understanding others. Add a touch of creativity into the mix, and you could be delighted by what heads down your path. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)  You say what is needed, and others make an effort to offer much more. Sometimes you feel all alone, but not anymore. Let more optimism and joy into your life. Anchor in and know what must be done. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Money makes your world go round even more. You have a way of doing everything you need and more. Do not accept the word "no." Find ways to make what you want a reality. Your efforts pay off. CANCER (June 21-July 22)  You are in a whirlwind of activity. If you let go of methodical and go for ingenuity, you'll land on your feet. You might be amazed by what you can accomplish. Don't lose sight of an admirer, or could this be a secret admirer? LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  If you kick back, you'll get the results you want. Fight now, do your research and check out alternatives. What you see might surprise you. Relax and think. No one says you need to be "on" every single second.

VIRO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 Use the daylight hours to zoom in on what you desire. Emphasize groups, meetings and the special people in your life. Happiness can become a sidekick if you allow yourself to relax and enjoy others. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  You understand timing. Right now, the Force is with you. Use it accordingly, for your sake. Others will go along with your ideas, adding to your success. Listen more carefully to someone who often is a source of good advice. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  Taking an overview appears to be your specialty right now. You find that attitude honestly works if you are open to processing new information. Remember, at times, even today, you need to take strong action. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  Work with others directly. You might want to rethink a situation. How you deal with someone could change greatly as the result of a one-on-one conversation. Listen to what others are saying. Your instincts are right-on. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)  You might not be able to see the whole picture or all the details, but with some effort, you will get there. Realize more of what you need to make your life work. Understanding takes you to a whole new level. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  Clear up your errands, getting done what you must. Be understanding and direct when dealing with someone you care about. Opportunity will strike if you manifest follow-through and diligence. You might need to rethink a decision. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  You might want to try something different or approach life from a more creative bent. Take in as much information as you can, but also listen to your intuition. You know much more than you realize.

Man's mania for mothballs could put household at risk

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have reached an impasse about -- of all things -- mothballs. We were remodeling our house last spring, and tiny moths showed up in the bottom story. "Arnold" (my husband) went to the store and brought back mothballs for his closet, which is on the second floor. I told him they smelled horrid, but understood he was trying to protect his clothing. The moths never went to the upper level, and no one in our family had moths in his or her closet.

The moths are long gone, but the mothballs remain. Every time Arnold opens his closet, the smell makes me sick to my stomach. There are times when he forgets and leaves his closet door open; our bedroom reeks of mothballs and I wind up feeling dizzy.

When I ask Arnold why he still has them, he says he wants to "freshen" his clothes. I can't imagine how anyone can find that smell "fresh." I have requested that he replace them with cedar blocks or baking soda. He refuses to consider it.

I have begun to think it has become a power struggle, and it's probably not about the mothballs to him at all -- although to me it is. Marriage counseling is not an option. I've suggested it before when we've had problems, and he refuses to go.

Do you know anything about the safety of mothballs with children in the home (we have four, ranging in age from 12 months to 12 years). Maybe if he sees something in print, he will reconsider for the sake of the children. -- WORRIED IN COLUMBIA, MD.

DEAR WORRIED: As a matter of fact, I do happen to know something about the subject because it was addressed in my column a year and a half ago. A woman in New Jersey was worried about her grandmother, who stored her winter clothes in a basement closet filled with mothballs, and the odor had saturated her house and everything in it.

A woman from California responded to that letter, sharing that her mother's home had also been filled with mothballs, and her clothes reeked of the odor, too. Her mother had complained about the same nausea and dizziness that you say you have. The mother's doctor chalked it up to "vertigo."

A couple of years later, the writer visited her mother and mentioned it to her doctor, she was told she had been poisoned by the mothballs! And after the mother was eventually moved to a convalescent home, her "vertigo" disappeared within months.

There are warnings on the container about the toxicity of mothballs and the danger of too much exposure to the vapors. The main component of mothballs, I was informed, is naphthalene, an aromatic hydrocarbon, which can cause neurological problems, as well as hemolytic anemia, kidney and liver damage, and cataracts. This is a poison that is meant to kill insects, and humans and other mammals are not immune to its effects.

If your husband's clothes need "freshening," they should be laundered or sent to the cleaners. And if he still refuses to listen to reason and get rid of the mothballs, he could be guilty of child endangerment. This is one "power struggle" it's vital that you win.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTS TO SLUG HIM" IN LOUISVILLE: I would strongly discourage your use of corporal punishment on your son. The late Red Buttons said it best: "Never raise your hands to your kids. It leaves your groin unprotected."

Are doctors quacks?

DEAR DR. GOTT: You doctors are brainwashed by the drug companies. All you ever do is prescribe medications, which only suppress symptoms, not cure disease. There are cures for diseases if you would tell people to go seek alternative medicine. All major diseases can be absolutely cured by homeopathic remedies. Drugs kill people every day; they make people sick. The more drugs you take, the sicker you become. Drugs are all garbage. Go study alternative remedies. You will be surprised what you might learn. People need to become aware of alternative medicine and the health care industry. Drugs are the sick care industry. Your column is a joke.

Dr. Gott

By Dr. Peter Gott

DEAR READER: Maybe. But I'm not as hilarious as discipline" is so funny that patients are dying from it!

Let's take your points one by one.

1. I don't agree that doctors are "brainwashed by the drug companies." Judging from the TV ads, I would say that the U.S. public is being brainwashed.

Doctors are not content merely to suppress symptoms. Instead, our training teaches us to establish a diagnosis first. So, if someone has a headache from high blood pressure, it's more appropriate to provide medicine to lower the blood pressure rather than simply treat the headache.

2. All major diseases cannot be cured by homeopathy. This statement is a glaring untruth. Cancer, diabetes, heart disease and other serious ailments must be approached aggressively, usually with medicine and sometimes with lifestyle changes, to save lives.

3. Alternative remedies are, for the most part, understudied. Their production is not supervised by responsible government agencies. Some alternative drugs appear to show promise, but if you are willing to be honest, drugs are drugs. What is the difference between an herbal remedy and a prescription drug? Is it not likely that if "drugs are all garbage," then this false generalization also applies to alternative therapy?

When I said I'd take your points one by one, I did not realize how unrealistic that position was, so I modified it. I was not surprised that your letter contained no name, address or e-mail. This is exactly what I would expect from an ignorant and insecure alternative therapist.

When you're willing to have an honest exchange of ideas, let me know -- but include your name and address.

Contract Bridge

SOUTH: J, 9, 7, A, Q, J, 8, 2, 10, 4, A, J, 8. The bidding: South West North East: 1 Pass 4 All Pass. Opening lead - queen of diamonds.

There are usually two sides to any story, and this is certainly true in bridge, where things can be viewed from both an offensive and defensive perspective. Consider the present case where South is in four hearts and West leads the queen of diamonds, which holds. West continues with the three of diamonds to East's king, and East leads the diamond ace, ruffed by declarer. If South is familiar with elimination plays, he knows at this point that he'll make the contract regardless of where the K-Q of clubs are located. Accordingly, he leads a spade to the ace, a trump to the queen, ruffs a spade, leads a trump to the ace and ruffs his last spade. He then leads a low club to his eight, ensuring the contract. West wins with the queen but must yield the game-going trick whatever he returns. But that's only one side of the story. Now let's go back to trick three when East played the ace of diamonds. At that point, he was in position to know, from West's fourth-best diamond lead at trick two, that declarer had no more diamonds. East should therefore have shifted to a club at trick three, hoping to find partner with either the A-Q, A-J-X, K-Q-X or K-J-X of the suit, in which case declarer would lose two club tricks sooner or later and go down one.

It is true that from force of habit many players holding the East hand would continue with the ace of diamonds at trick three, and live to regret it. But situations like this -- where a defender mechanically follows the line of least resistance and does the wrong thing -- arise all the time. That is why it is so often said that defense is by far the hardest part of the game.

Lee Edwards is no different than any other high school football coach.

He sat in his office in early August, knowing full well that his Tigers would be playing Mayfield in the second round of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association Class A playoffs.

He didn't, however, envision the twists and turns that would come with the 2006 season. Nevertheless, the second-year Tiger coach's realization will come to fruition when the two rivals take the field at 7:30 p.m. Friday night at Mayfield's War Memorial Stadium.

Edwards said Monday at Murray High School that the Tigers started the season with high expectations, and then "things happened."

Murray started 0-5 out of the gate, which included being outscored 194-20 in losses to Dyer County, Tenn., Lone Oak, Calloway County, Hopkins County Central and Marshall County.

During that time, the Tigers suffered season-ending injuries to all-purpose back Jon Jon Wilson and lineman Jordan Belcher, along with prolonged injuries to Will Kemp and Tyler Glynn. But Edwards — who refers to that 0-5 stretch as the "Dark Ages" — is a firm believer in what doesn't kill you, makes you stronger.

"That is where we really learned who we were and what we were made of. That is what formed us, finalized the forging process of us becoming a team," Edwards said. "Now that's not to say it was easy, because that's where you had some soul searching. But, just like in life, when you do some soul searching and you come out of it, that's where you know you've got something. You know that you have a family, and I think that's what happened with us."

Like a magician pulling a rabbit out of a hat, Edwards and the Tigers closed out the season winning three of their last five games.

Although, Murray lost 28-14 to Fulton City, the Tigers were awarded the win because of a forfeit, bringing their record to 5-6. Of course, that other loss came against Mayfield, which claimed a 24-0 victory over Murray on Oct. 13.

The Tigers haven't played the Cardinals in the playoffs since 2001 and haven't beaten Mayfield (9-2) since 1997, when the lone score came off a game-opening kickoff.

Mayfield came into the season off a 42-7 loss in the state title game last year. The Cardinals graduated 12 seniors, leaving coach Joe Morris to ponder what kind of team would take the field the following season.

"We had our struggles early on," Morris said Wednesday in a telephone interview.

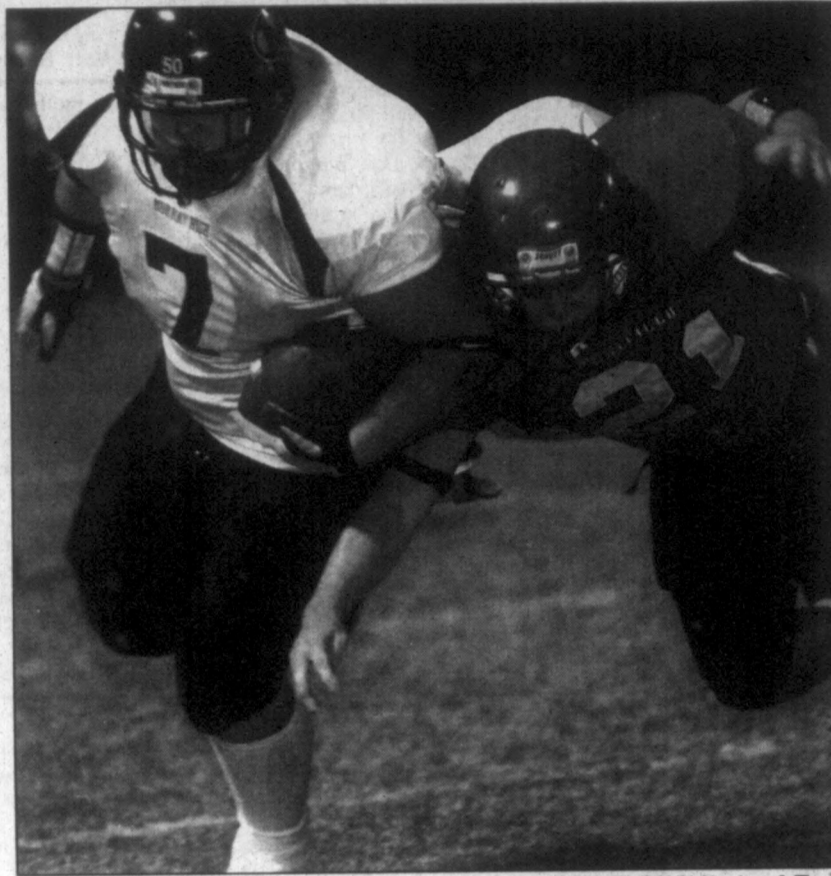

The Cardinals lost to Marshall County and Graves County early in the season. But since a 28-0 loss to Graves on Sept. 8, Mayfield has rattled off seven straight wins.

"This team has come along way," Morris added. "We've been playing really good ball and playing it at the right time, including the playoffs, when it matters the most."

The Oct. 13 game was a measuring stick that gave Edwards hope for a second showdown.

"We played well, played hard," Edwards said. "The defense played one of their better games of the year. That was sort of the beginning of some of those young guys really maturing — like (John) Carpenter and (Jonathon) Hammonds. That was the night I felt like they went from being sophomores to varsity football players."

Murray held Mayfield to just seven first-half points in the earlier matchup, but gave up 17 in the final 24 minutes.

The Tigers also forced the Cardinals into three turnovers on their first four possessions, recovering two while intercepting Mayfield QB Adam Shelton once. But to the Tigers' dismay, they were unable to turn any of those turnovers into points.

"We know what we have to do to beat those guys. You have to just play good, sound fundamental football. You're not going to trick them. You're not going to slip a formation in on them. You're not going to slip a blitz in on them," Edwards said. "You just have to play. You have to block and tackle. Hearing everyone talk around here about the few times that Murray has beat Mayfield, that's what happened. There's not trickery, just football."
