REVIVAL SERVICES ARE WELL ATTENDED

Interest and attendance continue to increase in the revival services now in progress at the First Baptist Church of this city. Wednesday night a well filled auditorium and balcony greeted Mr. Edgar A. Patterson, Tulsa, Okla., in the gospel song service he is so ably directing from service to service, and Rev. Woodrow Fuller, pastor of the local church, brought one of the most fundamental messages thus far in the series of messages.

The honor guests for Thursday night were members and friends of the Fulton Baptist church.

The service Monday night will be designated as "Railroad Night", all railroad employees being honor guests, and Rev. Fuller will use as his subject: "Life's Railway to Heaven."

Don't forget the morning services at seven o'clock, which are so well attended and such spiritual feasts. Thursday morning the message was centered around this question, "Is Jesus Christ the Son of God," the answers being found in the Word of God.

Wednesday night in discussing "Some of the Fundamental Things of God and God's Book," Rev. Fuller used the 13th verse of the 22nd chapter of Second Kings: "Go ye and inquire of the Lord concerning the words of this Book . . ." and First Corinthians 4:6, "Not to go beyond that which is written . . ." to comprise the boundaries for his message, and Judges 7:21 the place where we are to stand—every man in his place. He said in part: "It doesn't matter what is said unless we speak in harmony and right relation with God's Word. We want to consider some of the fundamental things in the Bible we need to emphasize in the preaching service, in the teaching of our Sunday school, and in the prayer meeting services."

We need to emphasize the fact of God. It is a tragedy to come to a

Then in the second quarter, Harry Bougen, the Tornado's fleet end, took a 77-yard pass by Tunstall and scored standing up. The Paducah coach inserted several second, third and fourth string players as the score began to pile upward.

Play-Off Unfinished In Kitty League Finals

The final play-off of the Kitty League has been called off due to cold weather and lack of interest. The Jackson Generals lead the Hopkinsville Hoppers, winning two of the three games played. Due to the Jackson club leading, the members of the team are threatening to sue H. G. Gilliam, Jackson owner and President, seeking collection of $750 the players alleged is due them as a bonus for winning the play-off.

Manager Dutch Welch, of the team taken from the receipts of every game played next season and put into a fund to go to the players of the pennant winning team. Shelby Peace, Hopkinsville, Kitty vice-president, also likes the idea and said he would work to such an end at the winter meeting to club officials. President Hannephin, said there will be no winter meeting of the club officials until they "settle down." He stated that he was waiting for the various clubs to hold their own meetings, and elect officers for the new season before he calls a league meeting.

Hannephin's reference to settling down came when Umpires Speck, Throgmorton, Beggs and Slivers allegedly criticized conduct of players, both of Hopkinsville and Jackson during the series. It was stated that one player was denied admission to one of the three games because he was drunk. Then one of the umpires go himself called in the Hopkinsville police court as a witness because he allegedly drank beer at a Hopkinsville cafe, which was allegedly violating the law by selling beer after midnight. The Hopkinsville paper said they were informed by police that Speck, Melvin Merkle, Jackson first baseman, and others were drinking beer in the place where police made their visit to cite the proprietor to court.

A number of the club officials have indicated they are "tired" of their jobs and are anxious to be succeeded.

According to the Howe News Bureau of Chicago, Hopkinsville led in team batting with Fulton classing seventh. Lexington set the fielding pace with .956 mark with Fulton and Jackson close behind with a mark .982. Fulton made the most double plays with a total of 145 to Owensboro's 127. Schmitz of Hopkinsville lead the pitchers while Augie Bergamo, Paducah's star outfielder was the batting champion.

DANGEROUS DRIVING DAYS

Dangerous days are ahead for the motorist and pedestrian. Snow, ice, rain, fog, long nights and low visibility combine to make fall, winter and spring and to increase the hazards of traffic. From October until May one is safer in the security of his own home.

Timely warning was given by the American Automobile Association to the operator of a motor vehicle and to the pedestrian as the days become shorter and driving conditions become adverse. The warning will go unheeded by most but it will save some lives and prevent a great deal of anguish.

Those who are resigned to the thought that no amount of education, propaganda, control or regulation can materially reduce the number of traffic accidents will find refutation in the history of the school patrol. Although the number of school children and the number of motor vehicles have both increased tremendously since the school patrols were organized the accident rate among children going to and from school has diminished from year to year. Adequate control is the best accident preventive. The automobile and truck have bested King Winter to become mediums of transportation in all seasons but the driver who overlooks the fact that rubber finds its best traction on a clean, dry highway and that the eye sees best thru a clean windshield in clear weather is likely to find the next several months dangerous months.

FOR LABOR PEACE

The outstanding point of the report of the President's committee to investigate labor legislation and relations in England is that labor and capital have learned to settle their differences peacefully with a minimum of legislative or administrative interference by Government.

They have been working for more than 100 years in England on the problems of trade unionism. Before America had begun to emerge from its primitive condition of a predominantly agricultural state, England had developed into an industrial nation. In this country the industrial labor situation has only recently become a subject of major public concern, and our efforts to handle it have had no such experience to guide them as England has.

America is not England, and it is not suggested that the English system can be transplanted bodily to this country. Methods and details of any labor policy must be adapted to conditions as they exist in any country. But the fundamental principles of mutual tolerance, confidence and fair play which have been developed in England must be the basis of any permanent solution in America. And the less political interference, the sooner industrial peace will come about.

Laughing Around the World

With IRVIN S. COBB

Special Advice

By IRVIN S. COBB

MR. FERGUSON was approached by his son, Edgar, aged eight, who said he wished to collect something. All the other boys of his group were collecting things—postage stamps or botanical specimens or birds' eggs or what-not, and by their examples his own ambitions had been fired.

"Well now," said Mr. Ferguson, "that's a bully idea, my son. It's great for a boy of your age to have a fad. In fact, it's great for everybody to have a fad. But if I were you I'd go in for something that would keep you outdoors and give you a love of nature. Who knows—you might grow up to be a naturalist!"

"Well, there's bird eggs," suggested Edgar. "Billy Erwin, he's collecting bird eggs."

"No, that's cruel," said his father. "We've almost wiped out some of our song birds. What you should do is to protect birds' nests, not rob them."

"Well, how about dried flowers and leaves and grass and stuff like that?"

"No, I don't believe I'd recommend that, either," said Mr. Ferguson. "Not that there's anything wrong with it, but botany always seemed to me to be a hobby better suited for little girls than for little boys. Let me see, now?—I've got it. Why don't you go in for butterflies and moths? They are pretty to look at—moths are—and there are ever so many different varieties of them and they produce noxious worms, most of them."

The notion appealed to his son. It would be a novelty anyhow; none of the other boys were going in for that sort of thing.

"But you want to go at it scientifically," counseled Mr. Ferguson, when this decision had been reached. "You'll need a cabinet and a lot of other supplies. And you'll also need to read up on the subject. Suppose you run down to the public library and ask Miss Jones, the librarian, to let you see the list of books devoted to natural history subjects and you pick out the right ones bring me the titles and I'll order them for you."

Fired with enthusiasm, Edgar marched away. In an hour he was back.

"Miss Jones wasn't there, father," he said. "Nobody was there except the janitor. But he knew you were a subscriber and he let me look at all the books on the shelves. But he didn't know where the 'special books about natural history' were. So I just looked for one place and then another. But I only found one book that might help me. I put the name of it down."

"Well, now, that shows sense," said Mr. Ferguson, admiringly. "You've made a beginning anyway. What is it called?"

Edgar produced a scrap of paper and from a glance at what written there refreshed his memory.

"It's called 'Advice to Young Mothers'."

JUST HUMANS

"I See Y'mutt's Comin' Around All Right."
"Yeah, I Thought a Little Air Would Do Him No Harm!"

OUR NATIONAL ANTHEM

There is a group of peace-minded people who are trying to get new words written to our national anthem because they think it is too war-like in its sentiments. Another group is offering a prize to composers for the rewriting of the tune, on the ground that the range is too great for most people's voices. When Congress in 1931 enacted the law making the "Star Spangled Banner" the official anthem of the United States, the lawmakers certainly overlooked a lot of more inspiring and definitely more American tunes, which are also easier to sing. The words of the "Star Spangled Banner" were written during the War of 1812 and set to the tune of "Anacreon in Heaven," an old English drinking song.

"Yankee Doodle" is a livelier air, with more "pep" to it, and dates from our pre-Revolutionary days. If someone would write a new set of verses to that old tune, it could become the real national patriotic song. Acts of Congress to the contrary notwithstanding.

A genuinely American tune which brings Americans crowds, North and South, to their feet cheering, is "Dixie." Written and composed by Dan Emmett for his Negro Minstrel troupe, it has become as securely American as "Yankee Doodle" and is more popular and just as easy to sing.

The words of "America" ring with real patriotic fervor, but the tune is the same as the British national anthem, "God Save the King." However, national anthems and patriotic songs are not written to order. Was "Over There" in the World War to capture the popular imagination. Someday some American will compose a song that breathes the spirit of America so fervently that the whole nation will sing it. That will be the real National Anthem.

PRESSING NEEDS

FOR SOUTHLAND

Regulation of freight rates, restoration of eroded farm land and provision for a more variegated agriculture are three of the most pressing needs of the South. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt holds in her monthly question and answer page in the September issue of The Democratic Digest publication of the Democratic National Committee.

The President's wife gives her opinion on the subject in answer to a question from Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, Jr., of Charlotte, North Carolina. Mrs. Tillett prefaces her question with a reference to the recently report of the National Emergency Council on Southern problems which was prepared by Southern leaders and then asks Mrs. Roosevelt what Southern problem in view of her "wide experience and observations in all parts of the country should receive first emphasis."

In reply Mrs. Roosevelt points out that a frequent accusation heard in connection with the South's economic situation is that freight rate differentials have forced the South to lower wages and poorer working conditions.

These lower wages, she declares, have been possible because of cheaper living and lower living standards.

"It seems to me, if this is so," Mrs. Roosevelt writes, "these facts should be brought out so strongly that the public demand will force the placing of the South on the same basis as the rest of the country so far as transportation is concerned."

"At the same time," she continues, "this should regulate labor conditions and wages so that no part of the country will be unfairly competing against any other in a way which makes a group of workers live on a lower standard. This automatically removes that low standard group's buying power and serves to make them a detriment to the prosperity of the country."

Mrs. Roosevelt feels that a satisfactory solution to the South's agricultural problem is equally important.

"There are two factors—the restoring of land which erosion has injured, and the bringing about of a more variegated agriculture. Where cotton has been grown for years as the only cash crop, for one reason or another it is no longer profitable to do so in competition with other parts of the nation or with other parts of the world. Too many people live on land which cannot adequately support them," she concludes.

The passage of the Child Labor Amendment is still a "vital issue," Mrs. Roosevelt declares in answer to a question regarding the efficacy of the child labor provisions of the Wage and Hour Bill.

"The Wage and Hour Bill only covers child labor where this labor is done in connection with goods shipped in interstate commerce, namely factories, mines, etc.," the President's wife writes. "The provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act did not apply to child labor which is performed within a state and which does not produce goods going across state lines. For instance if it is not against the state law, children may work in stores, garages, beauty parlors, laundries, restaurants and at home in production of goods which are not for shipment across state lines."

"The Child Labor Amendment would give Congress power to regulate all gainful employment of children regardless of whether or not their employers were engaged in interstate commerce. A recent study shows an increasing proportion of working children engaged in the intrastate industries, so that the Child Labor Amendment, which makes possible nation-wide regulation of the condition of their employment, still seems to me to be a vital issue."

The question on child labor was asked by Mrs. Ruth Dell of Washington, D. C.

DANISH BREWERY TO TRY CULTIVATION OF BARLEY AND HOPS

One of the larger breweries in Copenhagen, Denmark, recently purchased a farm in that country which will be utilized in the experimental cultivation of barley and hops, according to a report to the Louisville District Office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. The possibilities of profitable cultivation of hops by Danish farmers will be studied. It is hoped that Denmark will become self-sufficient in barley and hops. Danish breweries annually consume approximately 770,000 pounds of hops in the manufacture of beer.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Church of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, October 2.

This includes Christian Science Society, Fulton, Ky., which holds regular services Sunday at 11:00 a. m., and testimonial Meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. Reading Room at 211 Carr Street open Wednesday and Saturday from 2:00 to 4:00 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend these services and to visit the Reading Room where The Bible and authorized Christian Science literature may be read, borrowed or purchased.

UNITED STATES STRIVING FOR TAX RECORD

Americans often attempt to cheer themselves by arguing that our tax burden is not yet so heavy as that borne by the British people. But, as Harry Sherman points out in the New Republic, this is definitely a misconception.

Due to the tremendous increase in taxation that has taken place here in recent years, we have the unenviable distinction of having caught up with the English. In the last fiscal year, the English people paid $107 per person in taxes. And the American people paid precisely the same.

Furthermore, much of our emergency spending has been financed by deferring the taxing period—that is, by inflating the debt, and incurring gigantic obligations to be paid in the future. If we made our tax income equal our tax outgo, it would very possibly be discovered that we are the highest taxed nation in the world.

Righteousness Exalts a Nation

By RAYMOND FITCH

"Righteousness exalteth a nation." This is one of the oldest of proverbs; so old, in fact, that to many men today, whole nations seem to have forgotten it.

The nations seem to have forgotten, too, that comforting promise from the same font of wisdom:

"The work of righteousness shall be peace, and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance forever."

That, too, is a proved and ancient verity.

But these, of course, are modern times. The old, old knowledge is outmoded. Yet nations, as well as men, would do well to pause in the rush and whirl of present-day ambitions to ponder the ancient truths anew.

Nations, as well as men, would do well to consider again the recorded wisdom which has guided so many generations of our forebears.

Nations, as well as men, might measure again the power of truth against false and bombastic phrases, the value of directness and simplicity against shrewdness and evasion.

Nations, as well as men, might find in the deeper wisdom of the heart the solution of those problems which today seem so hopelessly to frustrate the mind.

In our own nation, great leaders have acknowledged their reliance on this ancient wisdom.

"My principle is to do whatever is right," was Thomas Jefferson's own summation of that guidance.

"With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right" was the expression of Lincoln's approach to one of the most serious internal problems in our history.

It is in this spirit that humanity hopes the leaders of the nations may today approach their problems—both within and without their borders.

Clad again in the "armor of righteousness" their strength should be great.

Blessed is every one that feareth the Lord; that walketh in his ways. For thou shalt eat the labour of thine hands; happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee.—Psalms 128.

KENTUCKY UTILITIES COMPANY SEEKS NEW STATE INDUSTRIES

To attract new industries to this state, Kentucky Utilities Company has published a full-page advertisement entitled "Advantages of Manufacturing in Kentucky", in the latest issue of "Manufacturers Record"—trade journal with wide circulation among the nation's industrial executives.

Headlining that half the country's population—some 65,000,000 people—lives in a 500-mile radius of Kentucky's center, the ad shows that products made in the Commonwealth can be quickly and cheaply distributed to all parts of this huge wealthy market.

Other benefits listed are: dependable low cost electric power; intelligent labor and no labor troubles; abundance of cheap high-grade coal; favorable tax laws; enormous wealth in natural resources; a mild, healthful climate.

The advertisement has been put in an interesting six-page three-color folder entitled, "Kentucky—Rich in Material Assets," which R. M. Watt, president of Kentucky Utilities Company, has sent to newspapers, public officials, business men's clubs and other interested groups.

Striking feature of the folder is a large Kentucky map showing, county-by-county, the natural resources, railroads, navigable rivers, etc. This is supplemented by a full description of what the state offers manufacturers desiring to move from crowded northern industrial centers to a region with unusually favorable conditions for industry.

Mr. Watt and his company merit the hearty support of all Kentucky interests in their industrial development efforts.

GAME IS VALUABLE TO FARMERS IN STATE

The only hunting grounds that could be made available to the general public without the wholehearted support of the farmer would entail the purchase of great tracts of land, to be managed by government officers at a great expense. This is a fantastic picture, even in this era, and most active sportsmen are more interested in gaining the cooperation of the farmer by insuring him real benefits from game.

Every farmer knows game is of value to him in various ways. He, better than anyone else, understands that every form of life is dependant upon many others. He can see the quail, dove and other birds busily devouring the grasshoppers, crickets, cutworms and beetles that would otherwise destroy his crops. He appreciates this to the extent that he can overlook an occasional raid on cultivated food.

As for those values that cannot be weighed in dollars and cents, rare is the farmer who can turn under a bird's nest with his plow; wildlife in its many forms lends to his existence a richness that makes his labor at least a little lighter. In another very personal way game and fish mean much to him. In the past three or four decades many a farmer has sadly taken leave of his boys just as they were coming into manhood. The city with its many attractions had lured them away. This is, of course, bound to continue to some extent and, if the farm loses any more of its appeal, it will be increasingly harder for the farmer to keep his sons around him. Every normal boy loves to hunt and fish. But if wildlife is allowed to be completely destroyed, this hold, too, on the boy will be lost, for what would farm life be without a chance to bag a few rabbits or catch a string of perch or bass during the occasional free hours.

There are, of course, many problems to be worked out, but where sportsmen and farmers have joined together in sincere cooperation, practicable game management plans satisfactory to both groups have almost invariably been devised. The Division of Game and Fish urges this cooperation between the sportsmen and the farmers and asks both parties concerned to put their shoulders to the wheel to make Kentucky one of the best hunting and fishing states in the Union.

WHY CHIROPRACTIC?

Poise and posture stand for health or disease. Indigestion, colds, tuberculosis, melancholia and many other diseases, according to latest authorities, may be traced to bad posture, both in sitting and standing. This leads to distortion of the spine.

Few people know how to sit. They sit on the end of their spinal column in a slouchy way instead of placing their weight on the fleshy part of their thighs. Sit, stand and walk erect to promote good health.

UNCLE JIM SAYS

One way to keep good tenants is to have good land.

Both landlords and tenants profit from a soil improvement program through increased crop yields. Early fall is an excellent time to apply lime. Farm work is usually slack, fields are dry, and rural roads are in good shape.

In 1937 more than 28,000 Tennessee farmers limed over a quarter of an million acres of land in an effort to combat soil acidity.

Land which is to be seeded in legumes or grass either this fall or next spring, whether seeded alone or with a cover crop, should be limed.

Treat wheat, oats, and barley for smut before seeding. Ethyl mercury phosphate, known to the trade as "New Improved Ceresan," is both inexpensive and effective in the dust form.

Fall sanitation in the home garden will do much to check pests next year. Dried up stems and stalks and leaves should be raked up and burned to kill all pests which they are harboring.

A Jersey cow should get one-half pound of grain for every pound of milk over 10 pounds that she produces daily and a Holstein should get four-tenths of a pound of grain for every pound of milk produced in excess of 16.

To get extra quality eggs that will command a premium price: (1) Produce infertile eggs (2) Gather three or more times a day in hot weather (3) Cool as rapidly as possible to below 70 degrees (4) Marked at least twice a week.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA-GERMAN SITUATION

Had anyone suggested a few years ago that England and France would seriously propose that Hitler be give his way in Czecho-slovakia without opposition, he would have been regarded as a candidate for a psychopath's ward. Now the incredible has come true. France and Britain are apparently ready to throw their treaties and obligations overboard in a desperate effort to avoid war—even though that effort means a tremendous step forward in prestige and power for the dictators.

However, the end to this chapter has not yet been written. The Czechs have been taking a firmer course, as their action in outlawing the Sudeten party and placing the Sudeten area under martial law shows. The Czech premier has stated that they will yield no further. And some experts believe that Prague has managed to obtain guarantees from Moscow that Russia will come to her aid if hostilities start.

No one can forecast what will happen if the Czechs refuse the Chamberlain-Daladier surrender plan an fight. A reliable news commentator in Prague announced over the radio that a high Czech official said to him, in effect, "We are not big enough to defeat Germany—we are big enough to start a European war if we have to." Many think that point of view is correct.

day when it is necessary for a minister to say 'we need today to re-emphasize the fundamental fact of God.' We need to emphasize the nature and being of God. Do you believe God really lives, is and will ever be? Is God the real one we worship? I believe God is really a person and a spirit—I believe God is all His Word presents.

We need a stronger belief in the holiness of God, to have a spiritual conception of the holiness of God. If we did I don't believe we would be so talkative when we come into God's house, but we would be quiet and reverent in God's house. We need an all consuming realization of the holiness of God. We need to emphasize the fundamental fact of God in his nature and holiness, and then we will worship in spirit and in truth.

We need a better understanding of God's creation. We need to have a conception of our God, what He is, and what He has done.

We need to have a conception of God's redemption. No sooner did man sin than God had a plan of redemption. Jesus Christ came and died on the cross to save us from our sins.

We need to emphasize the truth of sin. We don't hear much about it anymore, nevertheless it exists. Somebody has said we are narrow if we believe in the reality of sin. We are just as narrow as Jesus. Wages of sin is death, and spiritual death is eternal separation from God.

We need to emphasize Jesus Christ, the only savior. Baptism and other church ordinances cannot save you; only Jesus Christ can.

We also need to emphasize the fact of God's Word, for the devil defeats God by ignoring the Bible. We need to emphasize the doctrine of the Holy Spirit—God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit.

We need to emphasize the glorious doctrine Jesus Christ is coming again. He is coming to earth again, and I am so glad he is coming again. Are you ready for Jesus to come?

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual, National and International Problems from Local Welfare.

The President's "purge" of recalcitrants in the Democratic Party has been an almost complete failure. That fact is now admitted by friends as well as enemies of the New Deal.

Every important Senator against whom Mr. Roosevelt spoke in his recent sweep about the country has been renominated — and in every case by a handsome margin. The President was apparently especially eager to get rid of Senators George, Tydings and Smith, all of whom have opposed various White House sponsored measures, including the famous judicial reorganization bill. Senator Smith won with hardly a struggle. Senator George was renominated easily over a field of three — and the President's candidate, Lawrence Camp, ran a poor third. And Senator Tydings was given an overwhelming accolade by Maryland voters.

Some men close to the White House say that Mr. Roosevelt was not surprised — that he did not expect his purge would succeed, and did not especially care, and that he looks in it as being simply the opening gun in a long-pull struggle to rid his party of congressmen whom he feels are not liberal. This may or may not be true. What is of the purge has tremendously definitely true is that the failure weakened Mr. Roosevelt's political prestige and authority.

Had the purge been a success, Mr. Roosevelt would have completely dominated the next Democratic convention. Ninety out of a hundred delegates would have gone to it with but one thing in mind — to vote as the President wished. He could have had himself renominated for a third term or, had he not wished that, dictated the choice of his successor. Now, however, there seems to be at least an even chance that the next Democratic convention, while it will not be anti-Roosevelt, will not be controlled by the President. The unpurged senators will control large blocs of voters. They will have a strong following of men who are resentful of White House dictation. Furthermore, the fact that the purge has failed will undoubtedly encourage other congressmen, who have been sitting on the fence waiting to see how matters turned out, to bolt the traces.

In all probability, the next Congress will be far more independent than the last three. It knows that the voters are not willing to do whatever the President desires. It knows that opposition to White House measures is not necessarily a sure route to political oblivion. Thus, it seems certain that the country will shortly witness some dramatic and stirring battles between the Executive and Legislative branches of the government.

In the meantime, considerable speculation is going the rounds concerning possible results of the purge on the President's official family. It is known that Jim Farley was opposed to it from the begging — Mr. Farley is a practical politician of great gifts and wants order and peace with in the party. The fact that he left for Alaska and removed himself from the political front during the President's tour is considered extremely important in expert circles. Some say that the President will have to make a choice between keeping Mr. Farley or keeping his left wing advisors, such as the famed team of Cohen and Corcoran. Dispassionate observers tend to the view that Mr. Roosevelt will finally decide to keep Mr. Farley if matters come to ahead — he is far too valuable a political asset, to lose.

It now remains to be seen whether Mr. Roosevelt can regain the prestige he has lost. He has arisen from serious defeats before — but this is the most damaging blow he has yet received. And there seems to be little chance that he can regain his once iron-clad authority over the Congress.

WASHING BEHIND THE EARS

Dante pictured many phases of punishment in his INFERNO; I wonder whether his mother or big sister ever washed behind his ears on Sunday morning. If he had suffered some such torment, why did he not put some of his worst enemies in a pit in the hereafter where ear-washing was forever going on? Probably Dante himself was too humane to subject any one to this sort of misery all through eternity.

Society had decreed that a boy must be clean when he presented himself at Sunday School. If left to himself, he would have scrubbed a place on the front of his head but never where he could not see, just as he blacked the toes or even the sides of his shoes. But Mother or Big Sister came into the picture and did her part of keeping the family name and the family ears clean. Though it was a long time ago, I can still feel the agony of having a week's accumulation of dirt being removed by pressure. My sister got as a washrag the cuff of a sleeve or leg of winter underwear, rigid just to scrape skin and dirt off together. Somehow she always rubbed me the wrong way, both physically and mentally. I let out such squawks as I now bitterly condemn in my son when he is enduring a similar agony. But a few minutes later at Sunday School I would know the wisest man, the strongest man, who built the ark, and all the rest of the questions without a trace of the agony I had gone through. Probably the reason I always listened when the preacher told of the indefinite extension of pain in the hereafter was the experience I had just gone through. I certainly did not want to take any chances on having some such torment for a million years at a stretch.

Now washing one's feet was almost pure fun, at least in the way that I washed mine. I cannot recall having been small enough to have them washed by any one else. We had, as all good homes had in those days, a little wooden tub that seemed especially designed for foot-washing. It had been the container of mackerel, a strong sort of dish that my father and other men of the neighborhood liked. The tub fit our feet perfectly and held the requisite amount of water. I am afraid, looking back a third of a century at the whole thing, that we merely soaked our feet a few minutes and rubbed off some of the outer layers of dirt on a meal-sack towel. Anyway, we could do our own washing and could hop into bed without any further inspection.

To have washed one's feet gave a feeling of self-righteousness that I somehow never feel now; there were said to be bad boys who actually went to bed with dirty feet that had waded dust or mud all day. The only other agony that I can recall that somewhat approximated washing behind the ears was having the finger nails cut. Sister was the inquisitor in this agony, too. She seized a small pair of scissors that Father had used in his earlier days as a surgeon and had discarded; she pressed down the corners of the flesh and made me feel like St. Lawrence, I am sure. He was the saint who was flayed alive, I believe. I fully expected to die from nail-cutting and probably hoped I would and thus wring my sister's heart for her torture; but I escaped, as youngsters still escape, and wonder today why it was such an agony. Dirty claws and still dirtier ears were lots of fun when nobody interfered.
