THE MURRAY LEDGER.

VOL. 33, NO. 36

MURRAY, KENTUCKY THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1911.

$1.00 PER YEAR.

FOR BENEFIT OF FARMERS.

Congressman Cantrill Drafts Bill For Submission to the Next General Assembly.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 23.—Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill, of this district, has mailed a letter to Governor-elect James B. McCreary, inclosing a bill which he stated he will have introduced in the next Legislature.

This bill is described in its title as "An Act Creating the Office of Tobacco Commissioner of Kentucky and Prescribing the Duties Thereof." The Commissioner shall be appointed by the governor for a term of four years, and shall be paid $2,500 a year. He shall be a farmer and grower of tobacco. The tobacco commissioner, in his discretion, is expected to call for a statement at any time of the types and pounds of tobacco owned or held or contracted for by any person, agent or corporation or partnership buying leaf tobacco in Kentucky. Any person, agent or corporation or partnership failing within twenty days to comply with the demand of the tobacco commissioner, as set out in this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, imprisoned for not less than thirty days nor more than six months, in the discretion of the court. The records of the commissioner's office shall be open to inspection, and he shall make a public report every month. The bill has an emergency clause and becomes effective on its passage. In his letter Congressman Cantrill states that the object of the bill is to secure and furnish to the tobacco growers correct figures on the stock of tobacco in the hands of dealers and manufacturers. The bill is similar to the one introduced by Mr. Cantrill in the National House of Representatives.

It Started the World. When the astounding claims were first made for Buckley's Arnica Salve, but forty years of wonderful cures have proved them true, and everywhere it is now known as the best salve on earth for burns, boils, scalds, sores, cuts, bruises, sprains, swellings, eczema, chapped hands, fever sores and piles. Only 25c at Dale & Stubblefield.

Hinkle-Enoch Marriage at Kevil.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the Baptist parsonage, at Kevil, the Rev. Wallace Wear united in marriage Mr. Fred Hinkle and Miss Eva Enoch. The nearest relatives of the young couple had not the slightest idea of their intentions. When the marriage became generally known, Mr. and Mrs. Hinkle were recipients of showers of congratulations and good wishes.

Both young people are favorites in society. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Basil Enoch, one of the most respected citizens of Graves county. For several years Mrs. Hinkle has resided with her sister, Mrs. G. R. Haley, principal of the Kevil high school. At the time of her marriage she was assistant cashier in the Bank of Kevil. Mr. Hinkle is the youngest son of the late Dr. Charles Hinkle, of Hinkleville, and is a nephew of Robert L. Reeves of Paducah. He is an estimable and popular man. Paducah Sun.

Cheap Imitations. Owing to the immense sale and popularity of Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey there are many cheap imitations on the market under similar sounding names, but you can always get the genuine by looking for the bell on the bottle.

A Conference Incident.

When the name of the Rev. S. B. Love, of the Paducah district was called, Mr. Love explained that his charge had not been able to progress as satisfactorily as he would like to report. Afflictions had come upon him, he said. His wife had died, and then a daughter. Another daughter was now in a sanitarium and her life was despaired of. In addition to this there was a deficit of $300 in his salary and his debts were very burdensome. He had been in the conference forty years.

"Mr. Secretary, will you lend me $5?" said the Rev. T. J. Gill, of Martin, one of the oldest men of the conference, as he stepped over to the secretary's desk. "I entered the conference with Bro. Love in 1873; we are all that is left of that class. I want to help him."

"Mr. President," said John R. Pepper. "I've known Mr. Love a long time; I've always loved him. I'll give $100." In a moment the conference moved. From a dozen seats contributions went to the secretary's desk. And in a little while

"Scatter Seeds of Kindness" was sung, and men wept. The secretary reported a collection of $352.

Well, this is a gracious hour when we have blessed and have been blessed," said the bishop. Commercial-Appeal.

New Officers Chosen.

At a meeting of the new city council held Wednesday night of this week city officials were agreed upon as follows: A. S. Brooks, chief police; Dick Langston, deputy; A. D. Thompson, city attorney; M. D. Holton, clerk. A treasurer will not be selected until the first meeting of the new council in January.

"I am pleased to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as the best thing I know of and safest remedy for coughs, colds and bronchial trouble," writes Mrs. L. B. Arnold of Denver, Colo. "We have used it repeatedly and it has never failed to give relief. For sale by Dale & Stubblefield."

Clarksville Tobacco.

Clarksville, Tenn., Nov. 23.—The tobacco market is a standstill at the present, the crop of 1910 having all been disposed of, and the market on the 1911 crop not having been opened. It is true that a few loads of loose tobacco have been brought here from Stewart county, but it was sold for just what they could get, the average price having been about $4.00 for hogs. It seems now that very little will be done before the holidays, as there is a big split in what the crop is worth. All recognize it as of much better quality than last year, but the buyers are not inclined to pay as much, so those outside of the association are, so to speak, "up a tree," while the association people are not at all disturbed, as they do not expect to sell until spring, and they will, they know, be ready for the market. The association is in better condition than ever before and would no doubt have many additions to the ranks if they would open the books for signers, but this they refuse to do.

Every Body Needs a good salve and Dr. Bell's Anti-Septic Salve is the best. It is a creama snow white ointment. Guaranteed for all skin diseases. 25c sold every where.

In Bankruptcy Court.

In the bankruptcy case of the Meloan Brothers Publishing company, of Murray, an order was made by E. W. Bagby, referee, directing the trustee, D. L. Redden, to sell the property including the printing establishment and all notes and accounts. The sale will be held in Murray Dec. 9.—News-Democrat.

McCreary's Majority.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 34.—The official majorities in the recent State election follow: McCreary $1,335; McDermott, 39,644; McCreary received 226,770 votes.

Calloway Young Man.

Hafford E. Hay, a bright young man of Murray, was examined for license to practice law Monday afternoon in circuit court and successfully passed the examination. The examiners were Attorneys W. P. Lee, H. J. Moorman and Judge Bagg. Mayfield Messenger.

FUTRELL NOW A FREE MAN.

Passes Through Paducah on Way to Home of His Father With Whom He Was Charged.

Paducah, Ky., Nov. 28.—Louis Futrell, the seventeen-year-old lad, who at the November (1910) criminal term of circuit court, was sentenced to the state penitentiary at Eddyville, for two years, after he had been convicted for manslaughter, arrived in the city Friday afternoon, following his pardon Friday morning by Governor A. E. Willson. Futrell will return to his home near Model, Tenn., today.

Several years ago Futrell, with his father, stopped at the Osborne boarding house on Kentucky avenue between Third and Fourth streets. They are said to have become boisterous and Osborne attempted to oust them. According to evidence given at the trial, Futrell shot Osborne in protecting his father, upon whom young Futrell said Osborne had directed his attack.

Futrell's father was acquitted of any complicity in the crime, while the son was convicted of manslaughter. Immediately after his imprisonment at Eddyville, Futrell, through friends, applied for a pardon, which the governor after due consideration granted.

Ben Johnson and family will move to Murray to reside in a few days.—Herald News.

J. J. McNAMARA TO ASSAIL McMANICAL

SECRETARY WILL TESTIFY HE SUSPECTED INFORMER WAS DETECTIVE.

TO TELL THRILLING STORY

Renewed Activity of Guards and Increased Number of Men Watching Prisoners Causes Discussion.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 27.—John J. McNamara against Orville McManical. That will be the real lineup in the McNamara trial when the attorneys get down to business within the next fortnight.

All evidence introduced will be preliminary to paving the way for McNamara's thrilling story on which the state depends to place a halter about J. J. McNamara's neck. Everything will be presented so that the calling of McNamara very near the end of the prosecution's case will be the first clincher and rounding up of what District Attorney Fredericks and his associates declare is "the most complete case ever made against a murderer in the history of this country."

To refute this the defense will depend not on the man on trial here, but on his brother, his stalwart protector.

Suspected McManical.

The secretary-treasurer of the Structural Iron Workers' union will swear it is learned that for a year he suspected McManical was a private detective. He will cite incidents, names and dates which bore this view home to him, and on his ability to demonstrate this fact to the satisfaction of the jury depends whether J. J. McNamara shall go to the gallows.

With eight permanent jurors, the actual trial is expected to begin within a fortnight. The court has decided that two reserve jurors shall be drawn, despite the contention of the defense this is absolutely constitutional.

Attorney Darrow insisted that if either of the two men is substituted for a regular juror, for any reason, it will furnish grounds for an appeal to the supreme court of the United States.

Renewed activity of the guards and the increased number of men watching the prisoner are causing much discussion. This caused Attorney Darrow to attack Burns in connection with Burns' statement to the bankers' convention in New Orleans defending a $1,000,000 McNamara defense fund.

The stretch is between Winona and Richmond, Minn., where the channel has been made deep enough to float the largest boats projected for the upper river. The work is being done under the government appropriation of $2,000,000 running over a period of twelve years.

TRAPPED BY SHOW GIRLS

MILLIONAIRE HOTEL MAN IS STAR WITNESS AGAINST PAIR.

Wife of Wealthy Man Hears Him Relate How He Was Threatened.

New York, Nov. 27.—Testimony in the case of W. B. Stokes, multimillionaire hotel owner, against Miss Lillian Graham and Miss Ethel Conrad, until recently show girls, held on a charge of shooting Stokes with intent to kill, was continued Saturday.

Stokes was the principal witness, and told of his thrilling experience in the girls' apartments at the Varuna, where he said he had gone to get letters written by him to the girls. In one of them he referred to himself as a "cross, crabled old cove."

Wife Is in Court.

Mrs. Stokes was an interested witness and heard her husband tell how he paid the bills for the show girls. "I came to the Varuna to get my letters," testified Mr. Stokes. "We walked to the parlor, Miss Conrad laughing and chatting. After I was in the parlor, I saw Miss Graham coming down the hall, and she held a revolver, pointed toward me. She was crouched down; her revolver pointed this way."

Stokes crouched in the witness chair, his right arm crooked and his index finger bent over an imaginary revolver.

"She said, 'Now I've got you. I'll teach you that you can't slander the name of my dead mother and my sister,'" said Mr. Stokes. "I turned to Miss Conrad and said, 'You told me this afternoon that Miss Graham had gone abroad. I had perfect confidence and trusted you. What kind of a game is this?'"

Three Men Present.

"All the time Miss Graham was pointing the revolver at me. Then one of them said, 'We are two witnesses. We have got three more in there,' pointing to rear room, who can see everything that goes on and hear what is said. We have made arrangements to get rid of your body."

Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad, charged with having shot him after a party, sat calmly and comforted each other during the hearing.

The liner was held up between Cephalonia and Zante November 20, by the warships, showing the keen scrutiny by the Italian naval forces.

Several Italian cruisers sailed around the Martha Washington, examining her closely, before she was allowed to proceed.

MAN CONVICTED BY SISTER

She Is Widow of Her Brother's Victim—He Is Sentenced to Twenty Years.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Convicted on the testimony of his sister, the widow of his victim, Arthur Corwell, a 29-year-old printer, who killed his brother-in-law, James Courtney, here last June, was found guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary. The trial lasted three days.

Corwell shot Courtney after a trivial quarrel, and his attorneys sought to mitigate the sentence chiefly by dwelling upon the testimony that he was intoxicated. Two of the prisoner's sisters testified for the prosecution, Courtney's widow being an eye witness to the crime.

Dietz Fights for New Trial.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 27.—What promises to be a bitter fight for a new trial for John F. Dietz commenced here when counsel for the state and the convicted Cameron Dunn defender appeared before Judge Reid to argue on a bill of exceptions the defense will file with the supreme court. MRS. PATTERSON GRILLED

SLAYER SUBJECTED TO MOST SEVERE CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Prosecutor Shows She Addressed Husband Endearingly and He Points to a Past.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 27.—The terrific grilling to which Gertrude Gibson Patterson has been subjected by Prosecutor Benson, on cross-examination, regarding her life previous to the time she slew her husband here, was continued Saturday when she resumed the stand in her trial on the charge of murder.

Despite the predictions of friends of the woman that the state would not dare press her hard, for fear of stirring the pity of the jury, Benson evidently is determined not to spare her feelings. So fiercely has he questioned her, and so numerous have been the conflicting statements made by her on cross-examination, that she already has broken down twice—once utterly collapsing.

In an effort to prove that there is nothing startling to find a soul of evil wearing a mask of virtue, and thus to discredit Mrs. Patterson's vivid portrayal of her husband's brutality, which she said, drove her to kill him in self-defense, Benson asked that she admit having written to Patterson when he lay sick in various hospitals.

Produces Woman's Letters.

The prosecutor, leading the defense on from month to month of her life, drew from her in detail the cruel ties which, she alleged, were inflicted by Patterson in each month from her marriage, in September, 1908, to July, 1910. After he had her tell about a visit to her lawyer in Chicago in July, 1910, regarding divorce proceedings, the prosecutor suddenly changed his line of questioning and produced a packet of letters.

The witness identified them as having been written by herself to her husband about the time she had said she was applying for a divorce and her husband was inflicting the most revolting cruelties upon her.

They were full of endearing terms and promises of happiness, and she called the man she addressed "Dear Little Pat," "Little Sweetheart," "My Darling," and the messages of love. They declared to Patterson that they were "never going to separate again—not for a moment, not for a day, not for a year, not for a lifetime."

The jury, immediately after retiring, rejected the defense's plea of insanity, and halted only on the issue of guilt, finally deciding to send Spencer to the electric chair.

Spencer feared the verdict with a wonderful display of nerve, in which he did not show signs of nervousness, his attitude being in marked contrast with his nervousness throughout the trial.

His wife and sister, who declined to accompany him to the court room to hear the verdict, rushed in after Spencer had learned his fate. Both embraced and she kissed him.

"It had to be," said Spencer. "Kiss me, mother, for I shall never see you again."

The mother had collapsed during the night, and had to be taken from the courtroom.

Spencer's crime is punishable by death in the electric chair, but he probably will not be sentenced for at least six months, as sixty exceptions are filed by his attorneys, which must be heard in the supreme court, which does not convene until April.

JURY CONVICTS 2 IN TARRING CASE

SCHMIDT AND CLARK FOUND GUILTY BY GRAND JURY AND A. N. SIMMS ACQUITTED.

HOW JURY VOTED ON CASE

Mary Chamberlain Says She Will Make Her Home in Beverly—Refuses Offer to Go on the Sage.

Lincoln Center, Kas., Nov. 27.—Mary Chamberlain, the Beverly school teacher, announced, following the conviction of two of the three men charged with tarring her, that she had declined an offer to go on the vaudeville stage and rehearse story of the Kansas outrage. Miss Chamberlain declared that she intended to stay at her home in Beverly. The vaudeville offer was made by a Chicago theatrical manager.

John Schmidt and Sheriff Clark, two of the defendants in the assault and battery case growing out of the tarring of Miss Chamberlain, were found guilty by a jury, but A. N. Simms, the third defendant, was acquitted. The verdict was rendered Friday night after the jury had been out since 11:30 a. m. Thursday. E. B. Dillon, foreman of the jury, declared that there was such a mass of evidence in the case that it took the jury 24 hours to go over it all, before it was ready to begin balloting on the guilt or innocence of the defendants.

On the first ballot the jury voted unanimously to find Schmidt guilty. The jury stood ten to two for conviction of Clark on the first ballot. The two dissenting jurors later voted for conviction. On the first ballot the jury stood eight to four for acquittal of Simms.

Verdict Was Not Expected.
The jury was out so long that a verdict was not expected. Only a few spectators were in the room when the verdict was returned. Schmidt and Clark took their convictions very calmly. Simms was elated over his acquittal. Schmidt and Clark are both out on bonds, and will be given time to put their business affairs in order before they are sent to jail.

The maximum penalty for assault and battery under the Kansas law is one year in jail, the punishment voted out by the court to Everett C. Clark, Jay Fitzwater, Watson Scranton and Edward Ricord, who confessed that they participated in the plot to tar Miss Chamberlain.

It is thought Judge Grover will fix a similar punishment for Sheriff Clark and John Schmidt. In addition to the jail sentence the court held in the case of the four confessed men that they would have to pay the costs of the prosecution.

"I am delighted that two of the three men who made the assault on me, or conspired with others to do it, were found guilty by the jury," said Miss Chamberlain. "I am sorry that all the defendants were not found guilty."

Will Stay in Beverly.
"I intend to say right here in Beverly, regardless of a tempting offer to go on the stage. I have employed an attorney to advise me whether I would have grounds for civil action against the men who perpetrated the crime upon me. I shall abide by his decision."

"My sincere wish now is that the tarring incident may be forgotten, and that I may be permitted to rest in peace in my home in Beverly."

Ed Ricord, the barber, who lured Miss Chamberlain to the country roadside where she was attacked by the other members of the tar party, is already in jail. He was in jail for 77 days before he was sentenced. The court gave Fitzwater, Everett Clark and Scranton a reasonable time to prepare for jail. Scranton said that he was ready to begin serving his sentence, but Clark declared that he would have to have some time to arrange his business affairs.

Hit U. S. Transport Gambling.
San Francisco, Nov. 27.—A campaign against whisks smuggling and gambling on army transports is being conducted by the investigating board of army officers, who have dismissed seven employees of the steamer, and partitioned the transport Logan. Selling contraband liquor at $3 a bottle and robbing the soldiers at "shell" games, the operators, it is charged, also had a habit of making pies out of the government's larders. These would be sold to the soldiers during the long voyage between this port and Manila.

Mexico City, Nov. 27.—Pablo Escandon, son of the former governor of the federal district, was shot fatally by Manuel de Asunsolo, former Montero leader, at the Jockey club, in the presence of a society crowd. A woman was the cause of the shooting.

Girl's Dentist Captor Convicted.
San Francisco, Nov. 27.—Dr. Arthur McDavitt, tried on a statutory offense of seduction with the imprisonment of "strong" McDavitt for sixteen months in a room in his office, was found guilty by the jury. The maximum penalty is a year in jail.

THE MURRAY LEDGER,

OUR INDIFFERENCE.

Now, some of you get bad. Just about what you are going to do, but, regardless, we have a preacher's statement behind us and we are only using his remarks as a text for a very short sermon, but we want to make it to the point and very pointed. In calling attention to the union Thanksgiving service to be held at the Christian church the night of the 30th Rev. South Hawkins says:

"Owing to the general apathy with which a general closing idea was treated, and the utter and absolute disregard of any true conception of the real worth and purpose of the day, by business men of the town; it was deemed wise to have the service at the evening hour. This is a religious service and we should so treat it. As the Lord in His mercy and love has so richly blessed us all during the past year, let us show our appreciation of this Divine mercy by attending this service."

What is Christianity in Murray? Doesn't it appear to be to get a dollar and hoard 99 cents of it? There is a bunch of tight-wads here who occupy the amen corner of God's sanctuary for about 35 minutes one day in the week and split the rafters with their "Jesus died that I might live" song and then spend the balance of the week skinning their fellow man. Why, Bro. Hawkins, you talk about closing a store to worship God in Murray, you are evidently a stranger here, sir. If you would have a union service pull down your cross of Christ and in its stead erect a cross of gold and every shop will close and scores will fall on benediction knees at the shrine and worship. Next fourth Monday is the day the Christian world observes as the natal day of the babe of Galilee; Christ came into the world upon that day to save the human family from sin, shame and eternal destruction. He came to set up his church and to point men to higher and nobler things; he came with the mission of "peace on earth, good will toward all men," an holy day when Mary laid the infant conceived of God in the manger of the stable and the wise men of the east journeyed that they might pay tribute and acknowledge his divinity, but if there is any evidence here next forth Monday that Christ was ever born call our attention to it and we'll buy the cigars. We are going to show our appreciation of "His mercy, love and blessings of the past year" by getting another dollar if possible but never by closing shop to worship the giver of all good gifts.

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS
BY RANDALL DARRISH
WHEN WILDERNESS WAS KING
ILLUSTRATIONS BY DEARBORN MELVILLE
Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1914

SYNOPSIS

Jack Keith, a Virginian, now a border-plainsman, is looking for a woman named Hope. He is a man of action, a man of the frontier, a man who has seen the best and the worst of the old west. He is a man who has seen the best and the worst of the old west. He is a man who has seen the best and the worst of the old west.

CHAPTER XIX. (Continued.)

The dead silence which ensued was broken only by heavy breathing. Then he swore, bringing his fist down with a crash on the washstand. "But rather stumps yer, don't it, Bart?" Well, it don't me. "I tell yer it's just as I said from the first. It was Keith an' that nigger what jumped yer in the cabin. They was hid'n there when we rode in. He just sat there pumped the gal, an' how he was treatin' yer. Blame it all, it makes me laugh."

CHAPTER XX

Hope goes to Sheridan. The discovery of the letter which had fallen from Keith's neck made it impossible for Hope to remain quietly in the hotel at Port Larned. She was a woman of action, a woman of the frontier, a woman who had seen the best and the worst of the old west. She was a woman who had seen the best and the worst of the old west.

"It's My Notion That Hawley's Got Hold of Them Papers an' Yer Father's."

"Shure, honey, it's not so bad the way they tell it now," she explained, consolingly. "Nobody believes now it was yer father that got hit. It was two fellers what stole his outfit, clothes an' all, an' was drivin' off wid 'em into the sand hills. Divil a wan does know who kilt 'em, but there's some ugly stories 'round about some boys 'n' a nigger, an' a Black Bart an' his dirty outfit, they swear it was Keith. O' me got me own notion. An' now, there's 'bout three hundred dollars some mites, an' a lot o' valuable papers mislaid."

CHAPTER XXI

She was a woman of action, a woman of the frontier, a woman who had seen the best and the worst of the old west. She was a woman who had seen the best and the worst of the old west.

Aunt Serena's Supper Party

By TEMPLE BAILEY

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

"What in the world are you doing?" I asked.

Aunt Serena laughed. She was standing by her mahogany dresser, putting into a shabby bag a well-filled purse, her diamond earrings, a coral pin, and two rings.

"My dear," she said solemnly, "I have always been afraid of burglars. It always seemed to me that if I should wake up some night and find a man in my room I should die. So, in order to avoid it, I always put my valuables in this old black bag and hid them on the hall rack with a note addressed to any chance burglar, telling him that there is nothing worth stealing in the house, asking him to take these and go away as quickly as possible."

I stared at her in amazement. "Why Aunt Serena, I cried, 'you are practically giving your things away; you might be able to hide them so they couldn't be found.'"

"I have never lost anything," she said lightly, "and I have lived here alone for twenty years."

It gave me a creepy feeling to go to bed after that talk about burglars. I was a city dweller, and the still country night, the dense darkness, got on my nerves. At last I slipped into Aunt Serena's room. She was propped up among the pillows, reading; a candle stood on a little table beside her bed and cast a faint flame into the surrounding darkness. I sat on the foot of the bed and talked to her. It had been ten years since my last visit, and I wanted to hear the news.

"Are all the neighbors just the same?" I asked. "And who is the little boy who used to wade with me in the stream and play Indians in the woods?"

Aunt Serena smiled. "He came home from college yesterday," she said, "and he asked about you."

"He was a nice little boy," I remarked, reflectively.

"He is a nice young man," Aunt Serena replied. "He comes over very often and cheers me up when I am lonely."

I went to bed presently; but not to sleep. Old memories crowded upon me. I could hear the frog croaking in the pond where years ago, Bruce Burns and I had floated paper boats and built our windmills. He was a nice boy, I thought, as I drifted away in dreams, and his smile was— I sat up suddenly. I had heard the creak of a twig; it seemed to me that there was a stealthy step on the walk!

There are times when I am brave. I thought of poor Aunt Serena's black bag on the hall rack. It contained her most precious belongings, and I was not inclined to let some tramp carry off the treasures.

I slipped on my kimono and went to the head of the stairs; the burglar was in the kitchen. "If I made a rush for it I could undoubtedly get the bag and gain the safety of my own room before he discovered me. With my heart beating furiously, I made the descent, grasped the bag and stood still, as a light flared up from the dining room I caught sight of the burglar."

"Hello," he said, easily, and came toward me.

I came forward into the light. I must have made a rather fantastic figure in my flowing gown, my hair tumbling about my shoulders. But I did not think of my appearance.

"Aren't you ashamed of yourself?" I demanded sharply. "To enter a house where there are only two defenseless women? If you must steal teaspoons, why don't you go to some place where you won't frighten a dear old lady to death?"

He stood perfectly still looking down at me. There was something in his expression that I could not fathom. "So you thought I came to steal the teaspoons?"

I nodded. "What else could I think?" I asked, and pointed to the drawer. It stood wide open, and the spoons lay revealed in a shining row.

"It seems dreadful," I said, "that a young man of your appearance should be brought to this."

"It is," he agreed. "And I am going to ask a favor of you. I am very hungry. I will leave teaspoons and everything else if you will find something for me to eat."

His impudence took my breath away, but a second thought told me that it would not be well to make him angry. "There is chocolate cake in the pantry," I said, "and bread in the bread box. You will find cold ham and butter in the refrigerator."

I helped him get the things and set them on the table. He ate with the manners of a gentleman, glancing at me now and then with an expression I could not understand. When he had sliced the ham he refused haughtily, but weakened at his offer of chocolate cake. I have always loved sweets.

As I took it, however, I felt that the time had come to tell him what I thought of him, and I did it in plain terms.

"My dear lady," he said, when I had finished, and it seemed to me that his eyes twinkled, "shall I tell you who brought me to this and end?"

"When I was a small boy," he continued, "I was contented to play with innocent things to dig in my garden, to fly my kite, to whistle boats out of bits of wood and to sail them on the pond. But one day there came from the city a little girl with dark eyes and hair. She was not a pretty little girl, but there was promise in her of beautiful womanhood." He glanced at me and went on. "A promise which has been I think fulfilled. After she came I found that I had known nothing of the romance of life. She spurned my simple plays and taught me new ones. The game she liked most was one which was what we called the 'pirate game.' The little ships we sailed on the pond were pursued by a sinister craft with a flag made from black paper, and which sported a skull and crossbones. How we scuttled those ships and made the dolls which formed the small crew walk the plank! Then we grabbed the booty and sailed away with our gains to shore."

I sat up suddenly and looked at him. "Why, I used to play those games. Are you—are you, Bruce Burns?"

He nodded, but before he could say another word we heard a voice from above. "Bruce dear," it murmured, "can you find anything to eat?"

I flitted to the foot of the stairway. "Aunt Serena," I asked severely, "did you know he was coming over?"

"My dear," she asked, in astonishment, "are you down there?"

"Yes, I thought it was a burglar," I said. "I help keep away the burglars," Bruce said, but there was a wicked smile in his eye. "And now and then I am taken for one."

"Naturally," my voice was icy, "and now that I have discovered the name of the intruder, I will say good-night."

I made my retreat in a dignified fashion, but when I was once more in bed I thought of the charm of his smile.

It was a year later that I married Bruce Burns. For a wedding present he gave me a chest of silver. On the chest was carved a skull and crossbones. Beneath the lock was a silver plate and on it was engraved, "To a Dear Pirate from Her Burglar."

Aunt Serena gave me her diamond pin. "It will make one thing less to worry about," she protested.

But she is no longer afraid of burglars, for Bruce and I live with her, or rather she lives with us, in a house protected by electric alarms and safety devices from all

BABY'S ECZEMA AND BOILS

"My son was about three weeks old when I noticed a breaking out on his cheeks, from which a watery substance oozed. A short time after, his arms, shoulders and breast broke out also, and in a few days became a solid scab. I became alarmed, and called our family physician who at once pronounced the disease eczema. The little fellow was under treatment for about three months. By the end of that time, he seemed no better. I became discouraged. I dropped the doctor's treatment, and commenced the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days noticed a marked change. The eruption on his cheeks was almost healed, and his shoulders, arms and breast were decidedly better. When he was about seven months old, all trace of the eczema was gone."

"During his teething period, his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely he must have been a great sufferer. During the time of teething and from the time I dropped the doctor's treatment, I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. His complexion was soft and beautiful, and his head a mass of silky curls. I had been afraid that he would never be well, and I feel that I owe a great deal to the Cuticura Remedies."

(Signed) Mrs. Mary W. Ramsey, 224 E. Jackson St., Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 24, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 5 L, Boston.

DWARFING THE GIANT TREE

Professor Brewer's Story of the Unnamed Woman in the California Redwood Forest.

Allegory of woman's inability to forget the last word, the late Prof. William H. Brewer of Yale was wont to tell an incident which occurred in California several years ago.

"The wonder of the immense dimensions of the redwood trees always appealed to him, and he was ever delighted to show these forest giants to his friends. The trees do not look so enormous when one is riding among them, and Mrs. X was not properly awe-struck by their stupendous proportions."

"Really, professor," she argued, "they are not so very large, after all."

"They were riding along in single file, and the professor halted."

"My horse's head is just at the edge of this tree, isn't it?"

"She nodded."

"And your horse is behind mine?"

"Again she nodded."

"Following you in Professor X, and behind him, Mr. Z, whose horse's tail is at the farther side of the tree. That means that the diameter of this tree is the length of four horses standing head to tail in a straight line."

Mrs. X turned in her saddle and viewed the trees and the horses. For several seconds she said nothing; then her face lighted up, and she smiled at him as she exclaimed:

"Oh, but professor, these are very small horses!"

"Mule was a Dead Shot. A southern farmer was trying to sell a mule to a negro who two weeks before had been kicked on the head by the animal, says the Popular Magazine."

"Of course," said the farmer, "this mule kicks, but—"

"I don't want him," objected the colored man, emphatically.

"Just because he kicks?" asked the farmer with an air of contempt.

"Humph!" grunted the negro. "Dat mule don't kick. He shoos."

"Nothing More Dangerous Than a neglected cough," is what Dr. J. F. Hammond, professor in the Eclectic Medical College, says, "and as a preventive remedy and a curative agent, I cheerfully recommend Sayre's Chloroform Remedy of Sweet-Tin and Mullen, for colds, Whooping Cough, Consumption, etc."

Age of an Egg. In a glass of water the fresh egg will assume a horizontal position. The egg of three to five days makes with the horizon an angle of 30 degrees. The angle increases to 45 degrees for an egg eight days old, to 75 for one of three weeks, and at 30 days the egg rests on its point.

Love Note. People may sneer all they please at what is called puppy love; but anybody who has ever had a puppy, and noted the wag of its tail and the look in its eye as it wriggles forth its protestations of undying affection, can hardly deny its actual sincerity.—Judge's Library.

DOES YOUR BACK ACHE?

Backache is usually kidney ache. There is only one way to remove the pain. You must reach the cause—the kidneys. No better kidney remedy exists than Doan's Kidney Pills. Mrs. John A. Link, 122 E. Terry St., Bucyrus, O., says: "I was so terribly afflicted with kidney complaint, I could not leave my bed. I was attended by several doctors but they all failed to help me. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief after I had given up all hope and soon cured me. I have had no kidney trouble in three years."

What Brought Him. Governor Fox of Massachusetts tells of a clergyman who was visiting a state prison, when he came across a prisoner, whose features were familiar to him. "What brought you here, my poor fellow?" he asked.

"You married me to a new woman a little while ago, sir," the prisoner replied, with a sigh. "Ah! I see," said the parson; "and she was domineering and extravagant, and she drove you to desperate courses, eh?"

"No," said the prisoner, "my girl woman turned up."

CHILDREN INJURED

Ordinary Cathartics and Pills and Harsh Physic Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given, except in emergency cases. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are apt to do more harm than good. They may cause griping, nausea and other distressing after-effects that are frequently health-destroying.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy, which we know, for constipation and associated bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies commonly completely relieve constipation, except of course when of a surgical character. They also tend to overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents, and 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Murray only at our store—The Rexall Store, Dale & Stubblefield.

MUST BELIEVE IT

When Well-Known Murray People Can Tell It So Plainly.

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen of Murray the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every headache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading.

Mrs. H. B. Miller, Murray, Ky., says: "I had severe pains in my back that I could not stoop and whenever I lifted, sharp twinges darted through my loins. My back ached at night and in the morning when I arose, I was very lame. I became tired easily and occasionally suffered from nervous spells and headaches. The kidney secretions were unnatural and greatly annoyed me. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at Dale & Stubblefield's Drug Store and began their use. In a short time I felt better and I was soon cured. I think highly of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-McBarn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

Saved Child From Death

"After our child had suffered from severe bronchial trouble for a year," wrote G. I. Richardson of Richardson's Mills, Ala., "we feared it had consumption. It had a bad cough all the time. We tried many remedies without avail, and doctor's medicine seemed as useless. Finally we tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and are pleased to say that one bottle effected a complete cure, and our child is again strong and healthy." For coughs, colds, hoarseness, croup, asthma, crup, and sore lungs, it is the most infallible remedy that is made. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Dale & Stubblefield.
