State to look at retirement plans at MSU

By KRISTIN TAYLOR
Staff Writer

For much of the past decade, Murray State's faculty and staff have been glad to have options for their retirement plan. But lately that option has come at a cost.

Of the total 13.84 percent that more than two-thirds of the university's faculty and staff see coming out of their paychecks for the optional retirement program (ORP), only 4.41 percent is going into their retirement plan while the other 9.43 percent is going to Kentucky Teachers Retirement System — a program in which they aren't even enrolled.

Faculty Regent-elect Jay Morgan, an associate agricultural science professor, was appointed this summer to the Kentucky Teachers Retirement System board as the first university representative in the group that oversees the $14.1 billion in assets for all the state's teachers, regional university employees and other Kentucky Department of Education personnel. Since July, he's spent much time thinking and talking about the retirement plans, focusing on finding a solution that doesn't harm KTRS yet helps those choosing the optional retirement plan.

First Morgan had to digest the history.

Until the late 1990s, the retirement plans for Murray State employees and those at the other regional universities were lumped in with K-12 teachers through Kentucky Teacher Retirement System. Then the General Assembly set up an optional retirement program.

The ORP is a defined contribution plan while KTRS is structured as a defined benefit. The ORP provided an option for university employees at a 5.5 percent rate to be paid to KTRS for the right to enter the commonwealth. The rate was left floating so the General Assembly could adjust it as necessary.

Since it was implemented, the ORP rate has varied from 3 percent to the current 9.43 percent, according to information Morgan provided MSU's Faculty Senate. At 5.25 percent, the average as been close to the initial rate. But then in 2004 the rate jumped to 6.61 percent and then quickly increased to 8.81 percent in 2005.

Now having a steady rate closer to the original 5.5 percent is the goal. In other words, Morgan and others are hoping the state will reconstruct the unfunded liability, worth about $115 million, comparing it to re-financing a mortgage.

"If we bring them a proposal that's win-win, I don't know why they wouldn't go for it," Morgan said of a solution that is based on financial models and actuary studies. He says there's no financial harm for KTRS. "Anytime you're moving $115 million around, people want to make sure it's a viable solution. I feel confident this restructuring is financially stable."

The proposed solution sets a 5.1 percent rate that would be constant until it sunsets in 2048. Not all surrounding states have a sunset provision. A KTRS committee is drafting a proposal for the full board to consider at its Dec. 18 meeting. But any changes still require legislators approval.

"The bottom line is this puts us close to what other states do," Morgan said. "This puts us back in the ball park."

A bill is expected to be filed with legislators convene in Frankfort in January. Should a bill pass the General Assembly, any changes would be effective July 1.

Sen. Ken Winters, R-Murray, who chairs the Senate education committee, and Rep. Frank Rasche, D-Paducah, chairman of the House education committee, also became involved in conversations on the subject.

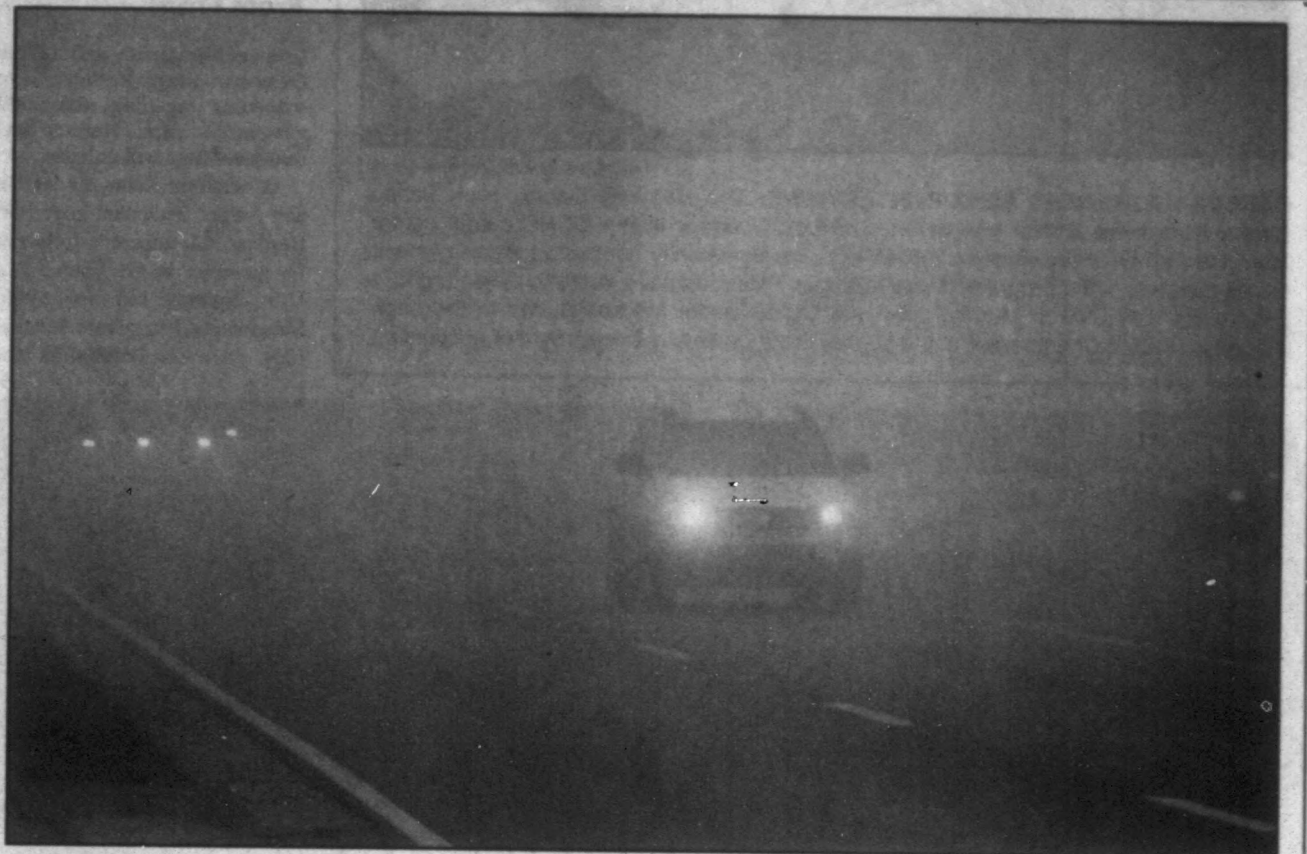

Winters said he's met with KTRS officials, as well as Murray State and Western Kentucky representatives, and doesn't expect any opposition from the different parties.

"It would seem to me that this is a pretty good proposal and I would think something likely that would be implemented," said Winters, who plans on discussing the issue with colleagues when the caucus meets later this week. "It would appear there is no opposition to what's being proposed."

At MSU, the unfunded portion of the program totals about $20 million. Of the 709 people eligible, 435 (61 percent) are enrolled in the standard KTRS program while 274 (39 percent) opted for ORP, according to the information Morgan provided.

Morgan said Morehead State and Eastern Kentucky universities have similar percentage break downs as Murray State, totaling $18.5 million and $35 million, respectively. Meanwhile, Western Kentucky has more people opting for the ORP with unfunded liability worth $31 million.

In 2005, universities had 2,774 employees enrolled in KTRS, which has a total of 119,000 participants, most of whom are K-12 teachers and administrators.

FOGGY FIGURES: It's not Halloween. It's Christmas! But there seemed to be a lot of ghostly images around Murray this morning as the entire city was cloaked in a shroud of dense fog limiting visibility and slowing traffic through the city during the morning rush hour along North 12th Street ... at least a little anyway.

'Probable cause' found for inquiry into Mongiardo

By JOE BIESK
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A state ethics panel found "probable cause" Tuesday to continue an investigation into state Sen. Daniel Mongiardo's relationship with a political action committee formed after his unsuccessful U.S. Senate bid.

Mongiardo claims he was a distant adviser to a political action committee, called DAN-PAC or Democrat Activist Network PAC, and did nothing wrong. But the state Republican Party filed a complaint with the Kentucky Legislative Ethics Commission, claiming there was an improper connection between the PAC and Mongiardo.

"This is just an attack, and it's the same old politics that Republican Party leadership runs every year," Mongiardo said after meeting with the panel.

The Kentucky Legislative Ethics Commission met privately on the matter with Mongiardo and Spencer Noe, the state Republican Party's general counsel.

State law prohibits legislators from organizing political action committees in their name. Penalties from the commission range anywhere from a public private reprimand to fines, chairman George Troutman said. A finding of probable cause is not a final decision on the matter, but a move to continue with the inquiry.

The ethics hearing came less than a week before a news con-

Manning: DRA funds to aid local economy

By TOM BERRY
Staff Writer

The Murray-Calloway County Economic Development Corporation is the recipient of a $250,000 grant by the Delta Regional Authority that will be used to upgrade a railroad spur of the Hardin Southern railroad serving Murray Industrial Park.

EDC President Mark

Manning acknowledged Tuesday the allocation of the state-federal grant announced by Gov. Ernie Fletcher Monday saying total funds approved on the project through grant programs now total $750,000. The EDC was previously allocated $500,000 in state funds approved earlier this year for the purchase of the railroad and land in the area.

Manning said the investment is intended to bring new industry and jobs to Murray and Calloway County.

"That's new money and what it will do is allow us to do some additional improvements in the vicinity of the industrial park," he said. "It will also help us should we have another major client come in or at some point have the opportunity to expand the industrial park."

Manning said the EDC has invested about $2 million to ensure railroad services are maintained in the county.

"We've been very successful on that and we believe that rail services will be here well into ■ Mongiardo ...

From Front

ference Mongiardo and fellow Democrat Steve Beshear have scheduled regarding the 2007 governor's race. Neither has said what they will announce.

A western Kentucky native and former lieutenant governor, Beshear, 62, unsuccessfully ran for governor in 1987 and lost a U.S. Senate bid in 1996. Meanwhile, Mongiardo lost his only statewide campaign for higher office to Bunning.

Mongiardo said the GOP's complaint was politically motivated. "Of course it's political," he said. "You know, why would they have filed this just a few weeks before the Democratic primary heats up?"

Noe, however, said the complaint was not politically motivated, but that Mongiardo lent his name to the PAC to keep it circulating after his defeat to U.S. Sen. Jim Bunning in 2004.

"This has nothing to do with his anticipated rumors that he might be running for future office," Noe said. "This was done long before that was thought of."

Mongiardo said he reluctantly agreed to serve as an adviser to the PAC after his loss to Bunning.

As of Sept. 30, the PAC raised about $9,500 in federal contributions, according to the Federal Election Commission. State records filed with the Kentucky registry of Election Finance show the PAC raised $2,750, but had no money on hand as of June 30.

It was set up by Ryen Greer, of South Carolina, Mongiardo said. Greer, who did not return a call seeking comment, was listed as the pack's chairman, according to documents. Over about six months, he had about 20-minutes worth of conversations as an adviser to the PAC, Mongiardo said.

"I regret not having investigated it further," Mongiardo said of his association with the PAC.

the future," he said.

The EDC purchased the rail spur from Hardin Southern after Webasto Roof Systems Inc. committed to locating a new facility in area. The company was reportedly unable to spend the funds necessary to make the track usable. The spur will serve the existing industrial park and any possible expansion north of Murray.

Delta Regional Authority funds are allocated to help economically-distressed communities leverage other federal, state and local dollars for community development projects that focus on infrastructure development, business development, entrepreneurship and job training services.

CourtDocket

Calloway Circuit Court

• Jody Glen Beber, 32, of Finley Road in Dexter, was indicted Monday for trafficking in marijuana (less than 8 ounces), second-offense possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of marijuana. The charges stem from an Oct. 17 incident. All of the charges are enhanced because he had several firearms in his possession.

• Charles L. Caldwell, 43, of Vine Street in Murray, was indicted Monday for fourth-degree assault and two counts each of first-degree wanton endangerment and terroristic threatening for waving a knife at his juvenile son and a woman on Nov. 20. He also threatened Murray Police Department Sgt. Scott Purcell and officer John Cooper.

• James Leon Curtis Jr., 30, of North 12th St. Apt. 2 in Murray, was indicted Monday for first-degree possession of a controlled substance. He was arrested Oct. 18 for having three large pieces of crack cocaine and a substantial amount of cash.

• Verl Scott Daniels, 35, of Seth Lane in Murray, was indicted Monday for theft by unlawful taking more than $300 for taking a tractor, bush hog, plow, John Deere lawn mower, propane tank, air compressor, kitchen dining room set, wind mill, weed eater, generator, dinner bell and grader blade as well as dishes, cooking ware and linens in August.

• Mitchell Darnell, of Reiman Drive in Murray, was indicted for first-offense driving under the influence, second-offense possession of drug paraphernalia, first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine), possession of an open alcoholic beverage container and license plate not illuminated violation. Those charges stem from an Aug. 12 incident. In a separate case, Darnell also was indicted for theft by deception more than $300 for using a check he knew would not be honored to make a $600 child support payment.

• Steven Durr, 19, of Almo Shiloh Road in Murray, was indicted Monday for attempted first-degree robbery, third-degree burglary, disregarding a stop sign and failure to display registration. He is accused of attempted to commit a theft at East Y Grocery by threatening physical force and having a gun on Oct. 29.

• Paul Ray Erwin, 46, of Clear Lane in Hazel, was indicted Monday for first-degree rape. He is charged in an Oct. 22 incident.

• Kenneth J. Harazak, 54, of Cottage Grove, Tenn., was indicted Monday for receiving stolen property for keeping a car he knew had been stolen in August.

• Alden Haydel II, 21, of Riviera Courts in Murray, was indicted Monday for trafficking in a controlled substance (marijuana) within 1,000 yards of a school and first-offense possession of drug paraphernalia. He was charged for selling drugs near Apple Tree School and It Takes a Village Daycare on Oct. 25.

• Russell Johnson, of Bells, Tenn., was indicted Monday for operating on a suspended/revoked license, first-offense driving under the influence, possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, first-degree fleeing/evading, first-degree possession of a controlled substance (cocaine), second-degree fleeing/evading, resisting arrest and three counts of first-degree wanton endangerment. The charges stem from a Nov. 4 incident in which he attempted to evade Murray Police Department officers Brandon Stice and John Cooper as well as Calloway County Sheriff's Department Sgt. Brandon Gallimore.

• James Kemmerzell, 41, of New Concord, had his probation revoked Monday because he was arrested Dec. 5 for trafficking in a controlled substance, speeding more than 14 mph over the limit and possession of drug paraphernalia. His five-year prison sentence from an earlier case was reinstated.

• James A. Kendall, 40, of Spruce Street in Murray, pleaded guilty Monday to first-degree trafficking in cocaine when he appeared in court with public defender Scott West. The plea agreement with the commonwealth attorney's office recommends a pre-trial diversion that would defer a five-year prison sentence for five years as long as a Kendall meets all the court conditions. He officially will be sentenced on Jan. 22 in the case that stems from his arrest as part of a March drug roundup.

• Elvis Lee, 32, of Puryear, Tenn., was indicted Monday for first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine) and second-degree persistent felony offender. He was arrested Oct. 25 during a drug roundup.

• Kenneth Thomas Long, 38, of Neale Trail in Murray, was indicted Monday on four drug charges — first-degree possession of a controlled substance (cocaine), second-offense possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of marijuana and illegal possession of a legend drug (Brutal Bital Tylenol) — for an Oct. 11 incident. Long also was indicted in a separate case for theft by unlawful taking more than $300 for stealing four aluminum wheels on Oct. 13.

• Eric D. McCarty, 30, of Kenwood Drive in Murray, was indicted Monday for first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (methamphetamine), trafficking in marijuana (between 8 ounces and 5 pounds) and second-degree persistent felony offender. The charges stem from a Sept. 26 incident and are enhanced because he had several firearms in his possession. In another case from Nov. 16, McCarty also was indicted for first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine), possession of marijuana and second-offense possession of drug paraphernalia.

• Carl E. Mohler, 51, and Tena Marie Mohler, no age given, both of the same Kelly Road residence in Almo, as well as Joshua E. Mohler, 26, of Elm Grove Road in Almo, were indicted Monday for possession of drug paraphernalia and first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine) for a Nov. 21 incident. In addition to the meth, they had scales, pipes and rolling papers in their possession. Carl Mohler faces an addition charge of possession of a firearm by a convicted felon for having a .22-caliber rifle.

• Tammy L. Myers, 45, of Karen Faye Lane in Hardin, was indicted Monday for prescription forgery for altering a prescription for Lortab on June 13 to get a higher dose of the drug.

• Bradley Perrin, 19, of Salem, Ky., was indicted Monday for trafficking in a controlled substance within 1,000 yards of school, second-degree possession of a controlled substance, third-degree possession of a controlled substance and second-offense possession of drug paraphernalia. He is charged for having four bags of marijuana for sale near Murray State as well as possessing Lortab, Xanax and scales.

• Chasity Ross, 26, of Aurora Highway in Hardin, was indicted Monday for first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine) and second-degree persistent felony offender. She was arrested Oct. 25 during a drug roundup.

• Ronnie Harold Sharp, 32, of Myers Road in Hazel, was indicted Monday in a November incident on charges of manufacturing methamphetamine, first-degree possession of a controlled substance (cocaine), possession of anhydrous ammonia in an unapproved container with the intent to manufacture meth, possession of marijuana, second-offense possession of drug paraphernalia and first-degree persistent felony offender. The drug charges are enhanced because he had firearms in his possession. The co-defendant in Sharp's case, Dwayne Martin, 48, of Calloway Street in Hazel, was indicted on charges of manufacturing meth, first-degree possession of a controlled substance (cocaine), possession of anhydrous ammonia in an unapproved container with the intent to manufacture meth, possession of marijuana and second-offense possession of drug paraphernalia.

• Gary L. Sims, 43, of Chestnut St. in Murray, was indicted Monday in two separate cases. He is charged with receiving stolen property more than $300 and first-degree persistent felony offender for having a laptop computer from May through December knowing it had been stolen. The co-defendant in that case is Zach Qswalt, 21, of 1310 Tiffany Lane Apt. E in Murray, who was indicted for second-degree burglary for entering another apartment on Oct. 15. In another case, Sims was indicted for first-degree possession of a controlled substance (cocaine), tampering with physical evidence and first-degree persistent felony offender in an Oct. 18 incident.

• Bill Joe Stacey, 47, and Karen Ann Vaughn, 49, both of the same Kinney Drive residence in Murray, were indicted Monday for unlawful possession of a methamphetamine precursor and manufacturing meth. The pair were charged for having more than 9 grams of a pseudoephedrine product as well other chemicals and equipment used to make meth on Nov. 9.

• Rex Allen Stone, 47, of Walston Road, was indicted Monday for first-degree possession of a controlled substance (cocaine) and first-offense possession of drug paraphernalia. He was arrested Oct. 25 in a drug roundup.

• James D. Threadgill, 21, of Redhawk Drive in Murray, was indicted Monday for possession of a firearm by a convicted felon and second-degree persistent felony offender. He is charged for having a .20-gauge shotgun in his possession on Oct. 26.

• Mark S. Williams, 49, of Ky. 94 East in Murray, was indicted Monday for second-degree burglary for entering someone else's home on Nov. 6.

3-year-old killed in Trigg County car wreck Tuesday

Staff Report

CADIZ, Ky. — A 3-year-old boy died and another 4-year-old boy was rescued from a burning vehicle on Tuesday after the vehicle in which they were passengers was involved in a two-vehicle collision on U.S. 68.

Sabrina Austin, 23, of Cadiz, was driving a 1988 Ford eastbound on U.S. 68 when she ran off the right side of the road and overcorrected, causing her to lose control and strike a 2004 Lincoln driven by Shelia Holland, 54, of Cadiz, according to a Kentucky State Police report.

Police said Austin's vehicle then ran off an embankment at Tommy Thomas Road, overturned and came to a final rest upside down in a ditch, where it caught on fire.

When a motorist arrived on the scene, Austin and two of her three children were out of the vehicle. KSP said Cadiz resident Seth Hooks reached into the burning vehicle and removed 4-year-old Hunter Braxton Wiseman. Police said Hooks hands were burned. The boy sustained third-degree burns to his entire body and was later transferred to Vanderbilt Medical Center in Nashville, Tenn., according to the KSP report.

Sabrina Austin and another son 2-year-old John Wesley Austin sustained minor injuries, according to the KSP report; Trigg County Coroner John Vinson pronounced 3-year-old Braydon Dakota Austin dead at the Trigg County Hospital emergency room.

Because of the fire, investigators could not determine if Austin and her children were wearing their seat belts.

Holland was wearing her seat belt, according to KSP. She was treated at the hospital for minor injuries and later released.

Trooper Ray Burnam was assisted at the scene by accident reconstructionist Chris Anderson, Trigg County Sheriff's Department, Cadiz Police Department, Trigg County EMS and Cadiz Fire Department.

U.S. 68 was closed for about 1 1/2 hours. An investigation is continuing.

Reform suggestions

Just in case the incoming Democratic majority is serious about real ethics reform, here are a few ideas for its members to consider:

Ban spousal and family employment by campaign committees and PACs.

This is not a new phenomenon. Sen. Harry Truman hired his wife, Bess, to work on his public payroll at a $2,500 salary (this when senators were paid $10,000). Worried about media criticism, he urged her to "only just drop in and do some signing of letters. It helps all concerned." Truman was right to be concerned. It was wrong then and it's wrong now.

Morris Advisory
By Dick Morris
Syndicated Columnist

Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr. (D-Ill.) opened the floodgates to the latest version of this abuse when he secured a ruling from the FEC allowing him to hire his wife as a fundraiser on his campaign payroll. In his case, his wife was an experienced campaign aide. But now 30 members have employed their wives or other family members on their campaign or PAC payrolls.

Whether these people are competent or not is beside the point. Campaign contributions are not bribes because they are not personal income. But when the campaign money flows to a spouse, the contributions become income for the member. This thinly veiled way to launder campaign contributions so that they add to the family income should be banned. Hiring of other family members should also be prohibited.

Those who have hired spouses and family members include: Reps. Richard Pombo (R-Calif.), wife and two brothers; Zoe Lofgren (D-Calif.), husband's law firm; Bernie Sanders (I-Vt.), wife and step-daughter; John Doolittle (R-Calif.), wife; Ralph Hall (R-Texas), daughter-in-law; Pete Stark (D-Calif.), wife; Buck McKeon (R-Calif.), wife; Ron Lewis (R-Ky.), wife; Bart Stupak (D-Mich.), wife; Jim Costa (D-Calif.), cousin; Dana Rohrabacher (R-Calif.), wife; Dave Reichert (R-Wash.), nephew; Chris Cannon (R-Utah), three daughters; Lincoln Davis (D-Tenn.), sister-in-law and daughter; Louie Gohmert (R-Texas), wife; Tim Bishop (D-N.Y.), daughter; Bob Filner (D-Calif.), wife; J.D. Hayworth (R-Ariz.), wife; Bob Inglis (R-S.C.), wife; Elton Gallegly (R-Calif.), wife; Sherwood Boehlert (R-N.Y.), wife; John Sweeney (R-N.Y.), wife; Jeff Flake (R-Ariz.), wife; Ed Pastor (D-Ariz.), nephew; John Shadegg (R-Ariz.), son; and Howard Berman (D-Calif.), brother Michael's political consulting firm; Sens. Barbara Boxer (D-Calif.), son; and Joe Lieberman (D-Conn.), son and daughter during vice presidential race; and ex-Reps. Bob Ney (R-Ohio), wife; and Tom DeLay (R-Texas), wife and daughter.

Ban immediate family members of senators or congressmen from lobbying Congress.

An only slightly more removed form of family enrichment is the increasingly frequent hiring of the wives or children of congressmen or senators as lobbyists. House Speaker Dennis Hastert's (R-Ill.) son, for example, closed his music business in Illinois and moved to Washington where he was eventually hired to lobby for Google. Incoming Majority Leader Harry Reid's (D-Nev.) son and son-in-law are lobbyists. The wife of House Republican Whip Roy Blunt (R-Mo.) is a lobbyist who hawks for tobacco companies, one of the congressman's biggest contributors. While legislators piously maintain that family members do not lobby them and some even bar them from communicating with their offices, their status as family members of key legislators is well known to their colleagues, who cannot avoid feeling pressure to give them special advantage.

Restore presidential power to line-item veto earmarks in appropriations bills and reverse the anti-impoundment legislation passed during the Nixon administration.

It is only by letting the administration police appropriations bills that the massive conflicts of interest inherent in the earmarking-for-campaign-contributions scam can be stopped.

Proposals to require public reporting of who has inserted what earmark will not be effective since most members are quite proud of their earmarks and would not only not mind public disclosure, but would actually likely welcome it.

And finally:
- Require lobbyists to disclose the specific bills that they are lobbying for or against on the lobbying registration forms.

- Ban all privately paid travel by members, including use of corporate jets.

- Require electronic filing of all travel disclosures for private and government travel.

- Require both chambers to work a full week, instead of the two- to three-day schedule they've had for the past few years.

Don't hold your breath waiting for these reforms, but do they represent what Congress should do if it wants to come clean.

Distant Voices

The rhythms of the academic term end for me in a bittersweet spasm of relief and regret in the semester's last day of class.

The end of the semester inevitably brings with it thoughts of my mother and father, those two saints who watched with me—over me—through my own undergraduate and graduate travails and triumphs. The approach of Christmas certainly promises a time of joy with family and friends, but this Christmas will be the first since my mother's death.

Home and Away
By James Duane Bolin
Ledger & Times Columnist

I will reserve next week's column for remembrance of Christmases past with my mother and father, but for today I will tell you how I always reserve the last day of class in a semester to remember my parents and the home they made for me and my brother Stephen.

When my mother died last August my father had been gone for over twelve years. James Wesley Bolin died on June 6, 1994, the fiftieth anniversary of D-Day. My father served in the Pacific theatre during World War II, as a pharmacy mate on a troop transport ship. Of course, World War II was a watershed event in my father's life, having rarely left his home county in Tennessee before signing up for the navy before Pearl Harbor.

My father stayed on board that troop transport ship for two-and-a-half years, carrying U. S. troops to exotic places such as Tongataboo and Okinawa.

During that time, he only set foot on dry ground for shore leaves two times, once in Sydney, Australia and once in Wellington, New Zealand. In New Zealand, Dad wandered into an old used book shop and picked up a volume of the "Selected Verse" of the English poet, Alfred Noyes.

That small leather-bound book is now one of my most prized possessions, and it contains the poem "Distant Voices," a poem that my friend and fellow historian, Dr. Kenneth M. Start-up, read at my father's funeral. And this is the poem that I read to my students on the last day of class with each passing semester:

*Remember the house of thy father,
When the palaces open before thee,
And the music would make thee forget.*

When the cities are glittering around thee.

*Remember the lamp in the evening,
The loneliness and the peace.*

*When the deep things that cannot be spoken
Are drowned in a riot of laughter,
And the proud wine foams in thy cup;*

In the day when thy wealth is upon thee.

Remember the path through the pine-wood,

Remember the ways of thy peace.

*Remember - remember - remember -
When the cares of this world and its treasure
Have dulled the swift eyes of thy youth;*

When beauty and longing forsake thee,

And there is no hope in the dark- *ness,

And the soul is drowned in the flesh;*

Turn, then, to the house of thy boyhood,

To the sea and the hills that would heal thee,

To the voices of those thou hast lost.

The still small voices that loved thee,

*Whispering out of the silence,
Remember - remember - remember -*

*Remember the house of thy father,
Remember the paths of thy peace.*

I read the poem for my own sake, to help me remember the home and the life that my mother and father marked out for me. But I also read the poem for the sake of my students. During this week of final examinations, my students will remember many facts—dates, names, events—of History. They will ritually spit those facts back to me in their essays and other examination responses, and then they will forget them within a few days time. I know how it goes, from my own past experience.

If, however, my students could go away from my class with the understanding that remembering is important, that the act of remembering is crucial for their own well-being, for their own sakes; if my students will only come away from my class with that understanding, then these minutes that we spend together this last class of the semester will be worthwhile.

NTSB issues opinion on Ky. Comair crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airline pilots should be required to follow specific procedures to make sure their airplane takes off on the right runway, federal safety investigators said Tuesday.

The National Transportation Safety Board recommendation results from its investigation of the Aug. 27 plane crash at Lexington Blue Grass Airport in Kentucky.

In that accident, a Comair regional jet took off from a 3,500-foot runway instead of the 7,000-foot main runway where the aircraft was supposed to be. Forty-nine of the 50 people aboard died when the plane failed to get airborne.

Though many airlines require pilots to cross-check their airplane's heading before taking off, it is not a federal requirement.

The safety board said the Federal Aviation Administration should require airlines to "establish procedures requiring all crewmembers on the flight deck to positively confirm and cross-check the airplane's location at the assigned departure runway."

The recommendation indicates the NTSB is likely to find that the pilots' actions were a probable cause of the crash.

Attention has been focused on understaffing at the control tower as a possible contributing factor to the accident.

The FAA had staffed the tower with one controller, but it was supposed to have had a second controller at the time of the crash.

Controllers do catch pilots' mistakes. The second controller, though, would have been watching the radar scope and not the runway, the FAA has said.

Comair, a subsidiary of Delta Air Lines Inc. and based in Erlanger, Ky., operates 850 flights to 108 cities daily. Both airlines filed for bankruptcy protection last year.

The FAA will respond to the NTSB within 90 days, FAA spokeswoman Laura Brown said. The FAA implements 90 percent of all NTSB recommendations, she said.

National Guard soldier dies of heart attack in Iraq

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — An Army National Guard soldier from central Kentucky died of a heart attack before going on patrol in Iraq, military officials said.

Staff Sgt. Thomas W. Clemons, 37, had a heart attack Monday near Ad Diwanayah, Iraq, said Col. Phil Miller, a spokesman for the Guard, said in a statement. Health screenings before Clemons was sent overseas indicated there was no health condition that existed that prevented his deployment. Clemons was a member of the Kentucky Army National Guard since Aug. 2000 and was deployed in March 2006 to Iraq with Company B, 2nd Battalion, 123rd Armor.

A resident of Falls of Rough in Grayson County, Clemons is survived by his wife, Sheila; two children, Ryan and Anthony; his sister, Pamela Bowling; and his parents, William H. Clemons and Patricia Frank. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Clemons is the 13th Kentucky Army National Guard soldier to die in U.S. military operations since Sept. 11, 2001.

Pence: Pardon power of governor should be limited

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The governor's ability to issue pardons should be limited in the future so legal scrutiny can't be skirted, Lt. Gov. Steve Pence said.

"Clearly, the pardons that are pre-emptive — where you don't know the name of the person or the charges against that person — are very problematic," Pence told the Lexington Herald-Leader for a story Tuesday.

In August 2005, Gov. Ernie Fletcher pardoned everyone other than himself who could be charged in a state hiring investigation. A Franklin County special grand jury returned 29 indictments in the case, and Fletcher was charged with three misdemeanors that were later dropped in a deal with prosecutors. The grand jury's report released last month said Fletcher approved a "widespread and coordinated plan" that ignored hiring laws and put the governor's supporters into protected rank-and-file state jobs. Pence, a former federal prosecutor, withdrew from Fletcher's re-election efforts this summer, but did not say whether the move was because of the investigation. Pence told the newspaper Kentuckians should know who is being accused of a crime and why. The public might lose respect for the law if its government "hides the ball," Pence said. Still, Pence said he was not criticizing Fletcher.

"That's water under the bridge," Pence said. "This is about future governors."

Jim Deckard, Fletcher's general counsel, had no comment Monday. Attorney General Greg Stumbo, whose office prosecuted the case, said he also would like to address the issue.

Changes in governors' pardoning power would require a constitutional amendment.

FUN & FASHION
By D.K. Kelley

Christmas is less than two weeks away and shopping can be a stressful experience.

We want to make your shopping as pleasant as possible, we want you to feel like you are with old friends who are here to help you with suggestions, advice and free gift wrapping.

DK Kelley wants to make it easy to be good to yourself. Our clothes will make you feel fabulous and look great. With our incredible selection of jewelry, including sterling you'll be assured of your own special look.

I spend lots of time searching for new and different products as well as flattering and unusual clothing that you won't find in every store or mall.

Our French Dressing jeans are designed to flatter and hold your tummy in. The fabric stretches and is so comfortable.

Our Lauren Vidal pants are designed to make you look 10 lbs. thinner. Add a pair of Spanx and you really look thin. (We can all use all the help we can get through the holidays!!)

Some other gift suggestions are a beautiful full length black coat with European influence with soutache trim and faux fur. It will make you feel very special, whether you wear it to a cocktail party or over a pair of jeans.

For all the Brighton® lover's on your list we have a great selection of wallets, makeup bags, checkbook covers, key fobs, watches, bracelets (I love their bracelets - they look like old world sterling, but don't tarnish) bookmarks, and coin and jewelry holders.

There is something romantic and alluring about a shawl, and we have some magnificent ones with velvet and fur trims.

Don't forget for the younger set we have some wonderful t-shirts, hoodies and great fitting low-rise jeans from Lucky Brand. We also have crochet hats, scarves and handbags from Lucky.

Please join us Thursday evening from 4-7 p.m. for our "After Hours Open House." We'll have refreshments, door prizes and lots of unadvertised specials. It will be lots of fun! Don't miss it!

Congratulations to Brenda Brown who won the jewelry last week.

Little-known disease can destroy legs

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
AP Medical Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gangrene was eating away Frank D. Johnson's toes, the last stage of a little-known disease that slowly chokes off blood flow in millions of people's legs.

Dr. Richard Neville made a last-ditch attempt to avoid amputating his leg, implanting a special woven tube to replace a key clogged artery. The artificial blood vessel, coated with a blood-thinning drug to work better, is the latest treatment aimed at saving legs riddled with peripheral artery disease, or PAD.

Far better would be to stop this disease before patients' legs are in such jeopardy, not only to keep the people walking, but because having the leg condition increases sixfold the risk of a heart attack or stroke. If leg arteries are clogged, other blood vessels usually are, too.

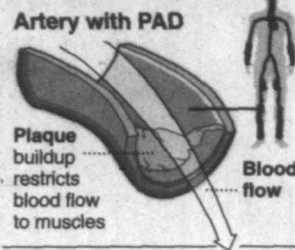

Now a major push is on to get more people checked for PAD — with the message that trouble walking isn't a normal part of aging — and to test just what early stage therapy is best at stemming the disease before it imperils a leg.

"PAD has been woefully underdiagnosed and underappreciated," says Neville, vascular surgery chief at Georgetown University Hospital. "Pain in your legs is not something you have to live with, not just a part of getting old."

PAD afflicts up to 12 million Americans as their leg arteries

Weakened flow

With peripheral artery disease, PAD, stiff, narrow arteries restrict blood flow to the leg muscles.

SOURCE: National Heart Lung and Blood Institute

stiffen and narrow. Eventually, the lack of blood flow to muscles causes an aching pain while walking, called claudication.

Worse, if arteries become completely blocked — an emergency called critical limb ischemia — ulcers, infection and gangrene can set in. That leads to 75,000 to 150,000 amputations a year. And when PAD patients lose a leg, their risk of premature death skyrockets as they become even more sedentary, sometimes bedridden.

Anyone can get PAD. But diabetics are particularly vulnerable; one in three over age 50 is likely to have it. So are black Americans, who have twice the risk of whites.

Just getting older increases the risk; about one of five Americans over age 70 has PAD. Other risks include high blood pressure or cholesterol, having ever been a smoker, or having heart disease.

A simple check — feeling the pulse at the ankle and comparing blood pressure in the ankles and arms — is enough to signal the possibility of PAD.

That easy foot check is probably just as important as listening to the heartbeat, says Dr. Alan Hirsch, vascular medicine chief at the Minneapolis Heart Institute. Yet it's not a part of most checkups even for people with obvious risk factors, something a new $2 million campaign by the National Institutes of Health and the PAD Coalition that Hirsch heads are working to change.

"We don't seem to take our legs very seriously," says Hirsch, who laments that between the 15-minute checkup and patient reluctance to complain, leg health — and thus a window into heart health — gets overlooked. "We hope the campaign will create a major paradigm shift."

Among the efforts: NIH-created radio ads that aim to correct the myth that trouble walking is normal as you get older, and efforts to ensure that once the legs are treated, doctors monitor PAD patients' heart health, too.

But how to treat PAD? This month, doctors around the country began recruiting 250 claudication patients for a first-of-its-kind study to determine the best strategy for earlier-stage disease: the drug Plental; special exercise therapy; artery-widening angioplasty; or some combination.

Some newer technologies, like a tiny razor that shaves clogged arteries and a laser to blast away the sludge, promise help, too.

But thousands of PAD sufferers are like Johnson, with severe disease hastened by high blood pressure and kidney failure at a young age. Last May, the Birmingham, Ala., man danced at his daughter's high school graduation. But by August, he had so little blood flow in his left leg that doctors performed bypass surgery to replace the clogged artery with one of his own clog-free veins.

It failed, and at 49 Johnson was facing amputation.

Cancel that operation, ordered his sister, who happened to work at Georgetown — and drove Johnson up for a second opinion with Neville, who was excited to try the newly approved artificial blood vessel.

Called Propaten, it's not the first manmade blood vessel, but previous ones re-clogged quickly, Neville says. Propaten is coated with the blood thinner heparin, and he cited data from Europe suggesting it may work better for certain hard-to-treat cases.

"My own bias is it's not as good as a vein, but it's the closest thing we've got," says Neville. "I think it will allow us to save legs that might have been lost."

Indeed, a few weeks after Johnson's implant, he's losing a few toes from the gangrene, but Neville expects him to walk again. "He's back to his fighting self," said his sister, Lucile Harvey.

Possible fingerprint of Alzheimer's may have been found in spinal fluid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists appear to have found a fingerprint of Alzheimer's disease lurking in patients' spinal fluid, a step toward a long-awaited test for the memory-robbing disease that today can be diagnosed definitively only at autopsy.

Researchers at New York's Weill Cornell Medical College discovered a pattern of 23 proteins floating in spinal fluid that, in very preliminary testing, seems to identify Alzheimer's — not perfectly, but with pretty good accuracy.

Far more research is needed before doctors could try spinal-tap tests in people worried they have Alzheimer's, specialists caution.

But the scientists already are preparing for larger studies to see if this potential "biomarker" of Alzheimer's, reported Tuesday in the journal Annals of Neurology, holds up.

"We're looking to an era in which the kinds of uncertainties that many patients and their families face about the diagnosis of Alzheimer's disease will no longer be a problem," predicts Dr. Norman Relkin, a neurologist and the study's senior researcher.

About 4.5 million Americans have Alzheimer's, a toll expected to more than triple by 2050 as the population grays. The creeping brain disease gradually robs sufferers of their memories and ability to care for themselves, eventually killing them. There is no known cure; today's drugs only temporarily alleviate symptoms.

Currently, doctors diagnose Alzheimer's mainly by symptoms. That makes early diagnosis particularly difficult, and even more advanced disease can be confused with other forms of dementia. Nor is there a good way to track the disease's progression, important both for decisions about patient care as well as in testing the effectiveness of new drugs.

Major research is under way to try to change that, including a $60 million study now under way to give brain scans to 800 older Americans and try to pin down the earliest brain changes associated with Alzheimer's.

At the same time, scientists also are hunting what they call biomarkers — signs of the disease in areas other than hard-to-test brain tissue.

"A valid biomarker for Alzheimer's disease is sorely needed," said Dr. Sam Gandy, a neuroscientist at Philadelphia's Thomas Jefferson University and spokesman for the Alzheimer's Association.

But the new protein pattern requires "rigorous validation" by other researchers to make sure it really is linked to Alzheimer's, he cautioned.

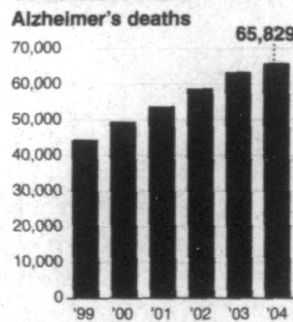

By hunting for one protein at a time, scientists have discovered a few other biomarker candidates in cerebrospinal fluid. But Relkin and colleagues at Cornell University expanded the hunt: Using a technology called proteomics, they simultaneously examined 2,000 proteins found in the spinal fluid of 34 people who died with autopsy-proven Alzheimer's, comparing it to the spinal fluid of 34 non-demented people.

What emerged were 23 proteins, many that by themselves had never been linked to Alzheimer's but that together formed a fingerprint of the disease.

Then the researchers looked for that protein pattern in the spinal fluid of 28 more people — some with symptoms of Alzheimer's or other dementia, some healthy. The test indicated Alzheimer's in nine of the 10 patients that doctors suspect have it, and incorrectly fingered three people.

What's next? That huge brain-scanning study is collecting spinal fluid samples from some participants, and Relkin has begun talks with those researchers about testing his results. At his own hospital, he's using the protein test in a study of an experimental Alzheimer's treatment to see if changes in the fingerprint may predict when the drug does or doesn't work.

Scientists believe that Alzheimer's begins its insidious brain attack years, even decades, before forgetfulness appears — and if so, there should be evidence of those changes in the spinal fluid, Relkin explained.

"The spinal tap gives people pause," he acknowledged, agreeing that a blood test would be easier. But, "in expert hands ... it's not much more traumatic than having blood taken."

Holiday e-cards look to boost blood donation

Special to the Ledger

The American Red Cross has launched an electronic e-card campaign in order to boost blood donations during the holiday season, a time when severe blood shortages often result in dangerously low levels of blood at hospitals nationwide.

During December and January, Calloway County Red Cross blood donors can log on to www.givelife.org and choose from a selection of fun, retro and holiday-themed e-cards to send, announcing they've given blood in the card-recipient's honor.

Every two seconds someone in America needs blood, and this need remains constant despite holiday travel and celebrations. Each day, the Tennessee Valley Blood Region needs about 800 points of blood to support patients at local hospitals and medical facilities. Blood donations are used to help accident victims, cancer and blood disorder patients, and people undergoing surgery.

To donate blood, one must be at least 17 years-old, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in general good health. Please call 1-800-GIVE-LIFE today or visit www.givelife.org to schedule an appointment to give blood.

"The need for blood doesn't take a holiday. So instead of buying 'just another present' for someone on your shopping list, why not honor them by giving the ultimate gift, the gift of life," said Tory Daugherty, executive director, Calloway County Chapter. "Just spend an hour at a Red Cross blood drive in Murray and Calloway County, then check off some names on your holiday shopping list by sending them e-cards at www.givelife.org."

Police: College student gives 100-plus tattoos in dorm room, some sick

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — As many as 100 Arkansas State University students have been tattooed by a 19-year-old student whom police say is unlicensed and is alleged to have left at least two students sick and seeking medical care.

University Police Chief Jim Chapman said he did not know whether the tattoo artist charged the students for his work. Chapman said some of the students were tattooed in the young man's dormitory room and, in other instances, he went to the room of the person getting the tattoo.

But police said the student did not have a state license, had not paid required state fees and had no means of properly disposing of blood and blood-borne pathogens, according to the report. Police say he also had failed to take a state-mandated examination in order to tattoo.

Authorities say the student has been tattooing people on campus since the spring.

Chapman declined to identify the tattooist on Tuesday, saying he didn't want to compromise his investigation. He said state law requires a tattooist to be licensed with the state, as well as work for six months under another tattooist who has been licensed for at least three years.

University police seized from the student's dormitory room several bottles of ink, notebooks containing tattoo drawings and other equipment used in tattooing according to a police report. Chapman described the equipment as professional-grade.

"There are indications he was studying under a tattoo agent not in the state of Arkansas," Chapman said. "He does have some experience."

However, police found no disinfectant supplies during their search.

Chapman said Arkansas requires children under 18 to have parental consent before receiving tattoos. Customers sometimes seek unlicensed tattooists because they cannot go to a licensed tattooist.

Vaccine may help hay fever sufferers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Could the sneezy, runny-eyed misery of hay fever one day be a thing of the past? Scientists are reporting encouraging results from early tests of a vaccine they hope will give long-lasting relief from this seasonal scourge.

The experimental vaccine has been tested on only a couple of dozen people so far, but it substantially relieved symptoms for those who received it in six weekly shots, and the benefit lasted for at least two years, doctors reported in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

The vaccine "holds great promise," said Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, which helped fund the study. "A short course of immunotherapy that reduces allergic symptoms over an extended period of time will significantly improve the quality of life for many people."

Up to 40 million Americans suffer from hay fever, caused by an allergy to ragweed pollen, which is most common in the Northeast, Midwest and the South, especially in late summer and early fall.

To relieve symptoms, many take antihistamines and other medications. But the only option for longer-lasting relief has been dozens of shots over three to five years to try to desensitize the immune system. This helps only about a third of patients, and many of them give up before the series of shots is complete.

Christmas Cheer

A Christmas poem by Thomas Tusser

Good husband and housewife, now chiefly be glad,
Things handsome to have, as they ought to be had.
They both do provide, against Christmas do come,
To welcome their neighbors, good cheer to have some.

Good bread and good drink, a good fire in the hall,
Brawn, pudding, and souse, and good mustard withal.
Beef, mutton, and pork, and good pies of the best,
Fig, veal, goose, and capon, and turkey well drest,
Cheese, apples and nuts, and good carols to hear,
As then in the country is counted good cheer.

What cost to good husband, is any of this?
Good household provision only it is.
Of other the like, I do leave out a many,
That costeth the husband never a penny.

CENTRAL BANK & TRUST CO. DEFENDANTS
By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale entered by the Calloway Circuit Court on November 13, 2006, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in the City of Murray, Calloway County, Kentucky, to the highest bidder, at public auction on Friday, December 22, 2006, at the hour of 10:00 a.m., local time, or thereabout, the leasehold interest and personal property more particularly described as follows:
Glendale Retirement Housing Association of Murray, Inc.'s ("GRHA") leasehold interest in and to a 4.8502 acre tract shown as Lot 2 on the Minor Subdivision Plat of record in Plat Book 19, Page 98, Slide 1810 in the Calloway County Court Clerk's office with the address of 905 Glendale Road, Murray, KY 42071 (hereinafter the "Leased Property" or sometimes the "Land"), the buildings constructed on and improvements made to the Leased Property and fixtures attached to the Leased Property (hereinafter collectively the "Leasehold Interest"); and GRHA's equipment, furnishings, machinery, furniture, appliances, apparatus, inventory and other personal property (hereinafter collectively the "Personal Property").
A copy of the Lease Agreement dated March 18, 1997 by and between Glendale Road Church of Christ, Inc. as Lessor and Glendale Retirement Housing Association of Murray, Inc. as Lessee, a summary of the Personal Property and photographs of the Personal Property may be reviewed in the Calloway Circuit Court Clerk's office, Calloway County Judicial Building, 312 N. 4th Street, Murray, KY 42071, in File No. 06-CI-00043.
The Land on which the Leasehold Interest and Personal Property are located is not being sold by the Master Commissioner and the purchaser of the Leasehold Interest will not acquire ownership of the Land, only GRHA's Leasehold Interest in and to the Land.
The Leasehold Interest (but not the Leased Property/Land) and Personal Property will be offered for sale separately and combined and sold to the highest bidder or bidders as the case may be. The various items of Personal Property will not be sold separately but instead, all Personal Property will be offered for sale collectively. The Leasehold Interest and Personal Property shall be sold on a cash or credit basis of thirty (30) days but if sold on a credit of thirty days, the purchaser shall deposit with the Commissioner ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, and execute bond for the remainder of said purchase price, with good and sufficient surety, said amount bearing interest at 12% per annum from the date of sale until paid, and fully due and payable in thirty (30) days. A lien shall be retained on the property as additional security. All delinquent taxes shall be ascertained and paid by the Commissioner, but the property shall be sold subject to 2006 ad valorem taxes.

BOARD OF REALTORS AWARDS: The Murray-Calloway County Board of Realtors held its annual banquet and awards presentation at the Murray Country Club on Dec. 1. Several Awards were presented: The "Hoyt Roberts Award," which is presented each year to a first-time member of the Murray-Calloway County Board of Realtors who has joined the Board within the last five years and exhibited an interest in the Board, was presented to Bonnie Byerly, at right, by 2005 winner John Paul Nix. The "Realtor of the Year" award, designed to recognize an active member of the Board who has provided outstanding service to his or her profession and community, was awarded to Mary Jane Roberson, above left, by Earleene Woods. Bill Kopperud, above right, was presented a pin and certificate in honor of 30 years of service to the Murray-Calloway County Board of Realtors.

Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Thursday, Dec. 14, 2006:
Often this year you attempt to steer clear of trouble, but it seems to head in your direction! Your perspective and innate idealism might be partially to blame. You can choose to see the world through rose-colored glasses but understand that there will be ramifications. Many surprising happenings reflect this lack of realism. People and groups carry unusual significance this year. Broaden your horizons. If you are single, you will enter a very social period in which life and enjoyment of people star. You could easily hook up during this period. If you are attached, you find discussions together inspirational, taking you down a new path. Together you might be an unbeatable duo. LIBRA helps you achieve your goals.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
***** You seem like an endless resource to many. As a result, others frequently seek you out. Let your imagination and intellect merge. Great ideas come through exchanges with those in your immediate circle. Willingly acknowledge another person for his or her fine ideas. Tonight: Ever playful.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
***** You come from a different position or perspective. A partner finds you mentally stimulating and will often try to create an exchange of ideas or a brainstorming session. Be flattered. Tonight: Happy heading toward home.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
***** Your discussions carry you in a new direction, whether you are ready or not. Creativity stems from your willingness to do different things and to handle life in a more progressive manner. Your ability to visualize comes forward. Tonight: Visit with a friend or two.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
***** You might want to approach a situation differently after a discussion that revolves around money and expectations. You work very hard; you also gain a lot. Consider your options when looking at ways to enhance your finances. Tonight: Pay bills, then decide.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
***** The Moon shines on you, making nearly anything possible. You might want to add more variety into your days. Use your imagination. A child or someone you consider creative adores your attention. Give more of that needed quality. Tonight: As you like.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
***** Your intuition works overtime as you try to see answers. An assumption might be off. Events that follow will point to this error in judgment. Learn rather than pout. Get past a problem by being willing to take a leap of faith. Tonight: Happy playing it low-key.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
***** You are able to make a substantial difference no matter what you do or what you touch. Consider your options more carefully. You might not realize how many doors are opening. Just choose the right one. Tonight: Where the crowds are.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
***** You might want to step up to the plate, and you probably will. Be aware that not everything appears as it should. Be careful with your finances. Money could be streaming out of your wallet unnecessarily. Tonight: Think positively.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
***** You might want to see life from a more vibrant or upbeat perspective. You could be overwhelmed with what is coming down your path. Pull back and take the high road. Much around you is changing rapidly. Tonight: Take in new vistas. Share with someone at a distance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
***** Work with others more directly. Hearsay or chain-of-command instructions do not flow. Your hands-on approach works when dealing with key people in your life. A partner shares much more of what is important to him or her. Tonight: Say yes. Let others reveal their true intentions.

Sister's deployment to Iraq fills her sibling with regret

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My older sister decided to join the Army before going to college. We didn't get along, and I was glad to see her go -- especially since it meant that I'd have a room of my own after always having had to share with her.

She was just sent to Iraq. Now I realize that I really love my sister, and I'm worried sick about her. I also feel really guilty about being happy about her leaving. Having my own room isn't all that great, and when I look at her side of the room and her empty bed, I wish we were still sharing a room and she was out of harm's way.

I want to write her and tell her how I feel and that I love her. But if I write her, I'm not sure how she'll react. I think about her and worry about her all the time. I tried to talk to my mom about how I feel, but she just blew me off and acted like she didn't believe me. Please tell me what I can do to deal with this. -- SAD SISTER IN SACRAMENTO

DEAR SAD SISTER: Your mother is dealing with her own anxieties right now. Do not let another day go by without sitting down and writing that letter to your sister. Tell her exactly what you have told me. I am positive that not only will she be happy to hear from you, she will also be impressed by how much you have matured in such a short time. It's the only way to deal with what's bothering you.

DEAR ABBY: I was driving down the road the other day and noticed a young girl by the side of the road trying to put the chain back on her bike. As I drove past her, I slowed my car and then stopped and backed up to ask if she needed help. She said she almost had it on, so I drove away.

Then it occurred to me later that maybe, in this day and age, I shouldn't have done what I did. I love kids and would never harm a child, and I would never want a child stranded by the side of the road. But at the same time, I question if stopping was safe to do -- with kidnapping and child molestation in the news so often.

Is it OK for a young man (I am 33) to stop and help a child who may need it without someone thinking I am up to no good, and with kids being taught not to go near strangers in cars? -- UNSURE IN SEVERANCE, COLO.

DEAR UNSURE: You are a caring person, forced to choose between idealism and sad reality. You did the right thing by stopping to offer help and, when it was refused, by continuing on your way. However, because you felt the need to do more, you should have called roadside emergency services to let them know there was a stranded cyclist by the side of the road, so they could check to see if further assistance was needed.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter recently gave birth to a baby boy. We would like to establish a college fund in his name, but we have a dilemma. Our son-in-law has two children by a prior marriage. We have an excellent relationship with all of them and do not want to hurt anyone's feelings. However, my wife and I are retired and are not in a position to fund three programs. What do you suggest? -- PROUD GRANDPA IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR PROUD GRANDPA: You are a loving grandparent. Please do not feel awkward because you cannot be as generous as you would like. Talk to your CPA or your attorney and ask for referrals to financial planners whom they trust. When you find the right adviser, discuss your entire situation and ask for recommendations.

Medication causes nasty cough

Dr. Gott

By Dr. Peter Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT: My grandson has a very hacky cough that is very noticeable when I talk to him on the phone. Our family is concerned that it could become a big problem as he grows older. He is 41, has never smoked and has a very high-stress job that requires him to have a physical each year. He is on high blood-pressure medicine, also. Could the medication or stress have an effect on him, causing this cough?

DEAR READER: A class of blood-pressure-lowering drugs, called ACE inhibitors, has the potential side effect of a dry, hacky cough. I advise your grandson to check with his physician. Perhaps a trial of another type of medication -- if he is currently taking an ACE inhibitor -- would be appropriate. Although such a side effect will not harm his health, it is an annoying inconvenience and should be addressed.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Hypertension." Other readers who would like a copy should send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $2 to Newsletter, PO Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I write today about a rather unusual problem, something I am reluctant to talk with my doctor about as it is rather personal. I am now in my 70s and basically a healthy person. I do take medications to control my blood pressure and some pills to keep my heart healthy, as I had two stents placed there in several years ago. Things have gone well, I get plenty of exercise on a small farm and also work inside when the weather does not allow me to work outside.

Here is my question. My wife and I still enjoy sexual relations on the average of a couple of times a week. In recent weeks there seems to be a major change in the amount of discharge with ejaculation; in fact, sometimes there does not seem to be any. Is this normal for someone my age? Is this the beginning of erectile dysfunction?

DEAR READER: In my practice, a significant number of men complain about progressive loss of semen. Some cases have an obvious answer. For example, one man complained of "dry runs" but then confessed that his wife was the one who measured the amount by noting the ejaculate in the toilet. This was not a scientific finding. However, other patients appear to have bona fide, age-related loss of volume that is consistent. Their exams were normal (by urologists).

I suggest that you ignore your "dry runs." As long as you are enjoying orgasm, disregard the lack of semen. And check with a urologist if the situation changes or you experience erectile problems.

By The Associated Press Today is Wednesday, Dec. 13, the 347th day of 2006. There are 18 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On Dec. 13, 1862, Union forces suffered a major defeat to the Confederates at the Battle of Fredricksburg.

On this date: In 1642, Dutch navigator Abel Tasman sighted present-day New Zealand.

In 1769, Dartmouth College, in New Hampshire, received its charter.

In 1835, Phillips Brooks, the American Episcopal bishop who wrote the words to "O Little Town of Bethlehem," was born in Boston.

In 1918, President Wilson arrived in France, becoming the first chief executive to visit Europe while in office.

In 1928, George Gershwin's musical work "An American in Paris" had its premiere, at Carnegie Hall in New York.

In 1944, during World War II, the U.S. cruiser Nashville was badly damaged in a Japanese kamikaze attack that claimed more than 130 lives.

In 1978, the Philadelphia Mint began stamping the Susan B. Anthony dollar, which went into circulation in July 1979.

In 1981, authorities in Poland imposed martial law in a crackdown on the Solidarity labor movement. (Martial law formally ended in 1983.)

The bidding: South West North East 1♣ Pass 1NT Dble 4♣

Opening lead — ten of clubs. Declarer's objective in most deals is to make the contract, and if — in attempting to reach this goal — he goes down an extra trick while trying to do so, it should not really bother him.

Take this case where South is in four spades and West leads a club. East cashes the A-K of clubs and shifts to the queen of hearts. Declarer ducks the queen but wins the next heart with the ace.

It is true that declarer risks going down an extra trick — 100 points — by finessing the spade seven. But it is also true that if the finesse succeeds and the diamonds are divided normally, he scores 620 points for winning the rubber game. Since the finesse can gain a lot and lose only a little, it is clearly the right play.

MURRAY STATE BASKETBALL

Lady Racers get spotlight after 2-0 start

UNDEFEATED CONFERENCE MARK BOOSTS CONFIDENCE

By SCOTT NANNEY
Sports Editor

Used to being overshadowed by their more highly publicized counterparts in the men's program, the Murray State Lady Racers are not taking a backseat to anyone in the early part of the 2006-07 season.

Following a 76-54 bashing of Morehead State last Saturday that gave them a sweep of the Cross

"Death Valley" road swing, the Lady Racers are a perfect 2-0 in Ohio Valley Conference play and looking every bit the part of a contender entering Sunday's 2 p.m. showdown with preseason league favorite Samford at the Regional Special Events Center.

Murray State (5-3) is in first place in the league standings — one-half game ahead of the Lady Bulldogs, who defeated Jacksonville State in their OVC opener last week.

While the fast start has everyone in the MSU camp upbeat about the team's prospects for the remainder of the season, Lady Racer assistant coach Rob Cross spoke with guarded optimism earlier this week.

"We're real excited right now with the way we've been playing," said Cross, who sat in as a substitute for an absent head coach Joi Felton during Monday's weekly media gathering at Roy Stewart Stadium. "We've had several Racer fans telling us how excited they are about how we're playing right now. But everybody needs to understand that we really haven't done anything yet.

"We understand that, and our players understand that. That's the biggest thing for us right now."

Leading the charge for the upstart Lady Racers is, of course, senior forward Joi Scott, who was voted the OVC Preseason Player of the Year after averaging 20.3 points per game last season after transferring to MSU from Northern Iowa.

Scott is up to her old tricks again, leading Murray in both scoring (17.3 ppg.) and rebounding (8.5 rpg.) through eight games.

It was the play of the 6-foot senior that was most instrumental in helping the Lady Racers earn a sweep of Eastern Kentucky and Morehead State. Scott torched the Lady Colonels for 27 points on 12-of-13 shooting in an 89-75 final at Richmond last Thursday before overcoming foul trouble against the Lady Eagles to toss in 11 on Saturday.

"Joi just went to work in (the EKU) game," Cross recalled. "She came out with something to prove, and I think she proved her point. ... She certainly wanted to prove something after sitting down for 18 minutes (vs. Morehead). It's a tough thing for any player — especially for a player of her ability — to have to sit there and watch your team, knowing you could be out there

LAKERS, PIRATES BATTLE OUT TO ANOTHER CLASSIC AT JEFFREY GYM

By MICHAEL DANN
Sports Writer

History can tell us that when Calloway County and Heath converge on the basketball court, there's usually more drama than an episode of MTV's Real World.

The two stayed true to form Tuesday night at Jeffrey Gymnasium as Calloway remained unbeaten on the season, winning 58-56 in boys action.

In this real world, the Lakers are now 5-0 and put four players in double figures. Wes Adams had team-highs with his 16 points and 10 rebounds as Calloway 6-of-12 from the line in the fourth quarter to hold off Heath.

Landon Lockhart and Wes Perry each added 13 points for the Lakers, while Eric Berberich tacked on 10.

"Every time we play them it's a dogfight," said Calloway head coach Terry Birdsong. "Hey, Heath has a good basketball team. Let's give credit where credit is due."

The Pirates (5-2) were led by Andrew Baer's game-high 21 points, including 13 in the third quarter as Heath blew a four-point lead with 2:57 to play in the final period. Heath's desperation full-court heave with 3.3 seconds to play was interrupted when the pass was picked off around midcourt by Jamey Gream, who finished with four points.

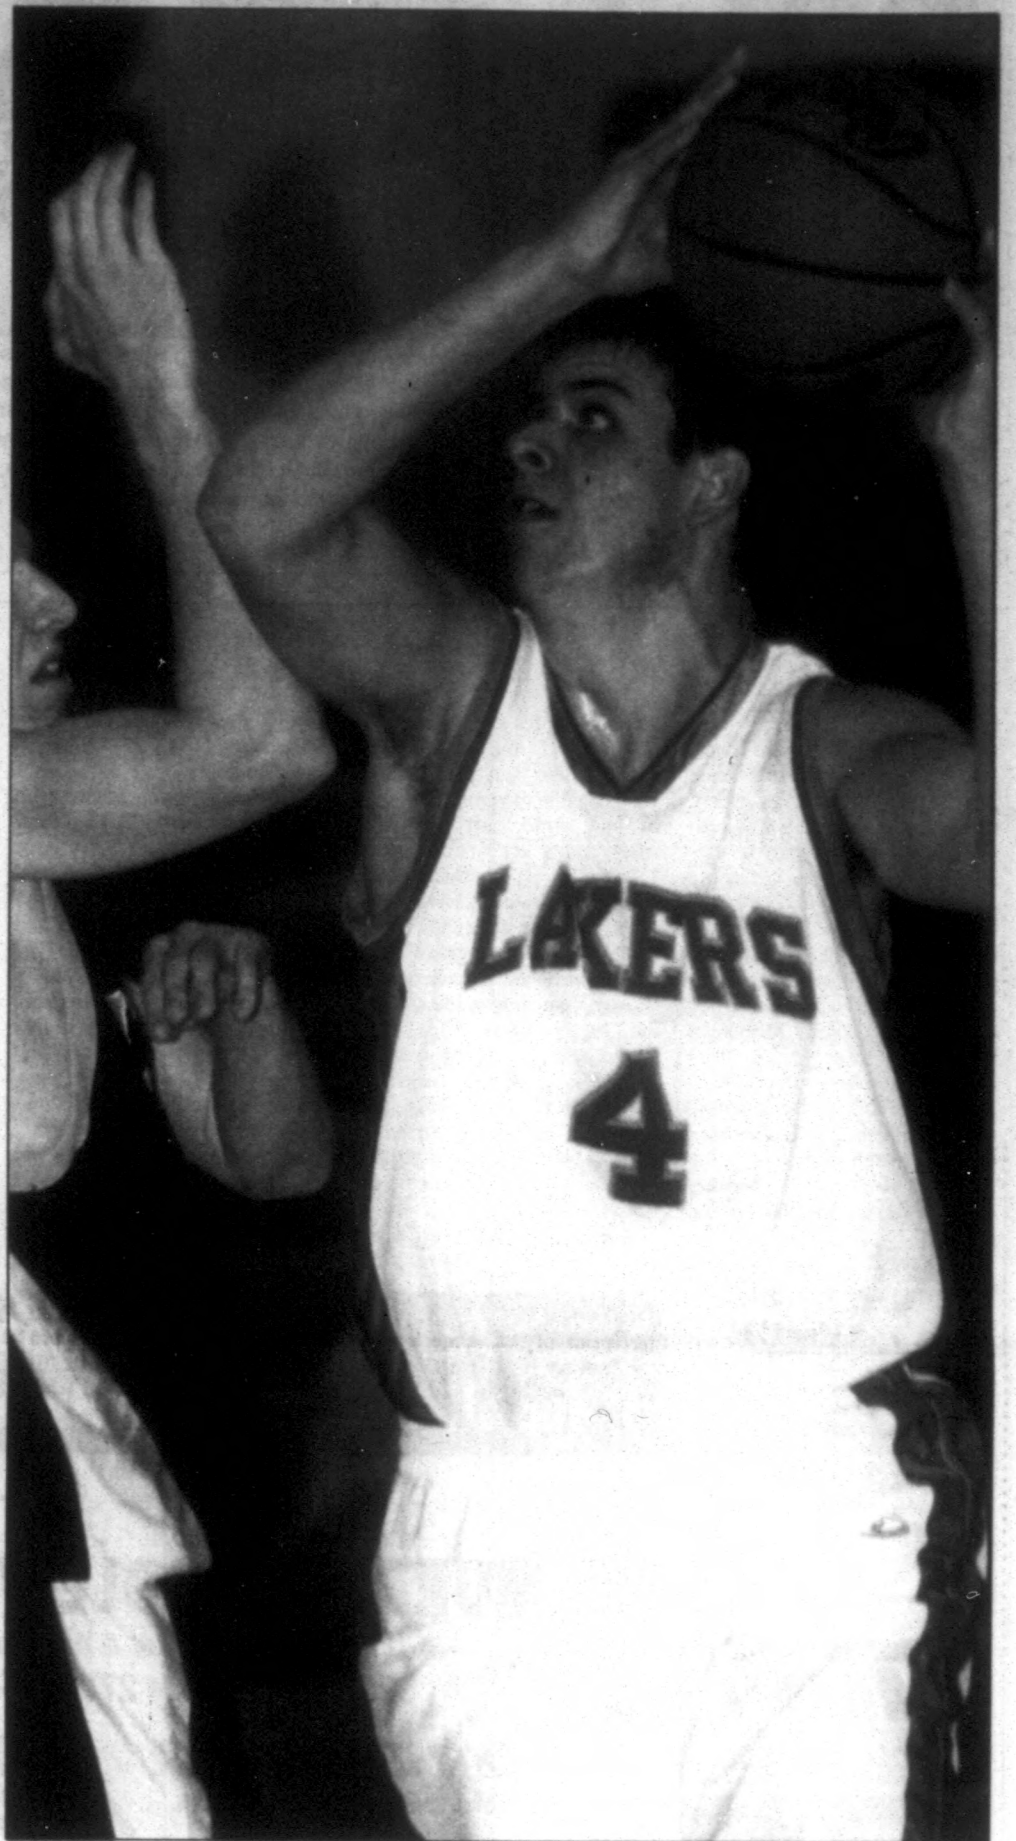

Birdsong was quick to point out that sometimes he has to give himself a friendly reminder of "what's not" from last year's team.

"I have to remind myself sometimes the amount of production we lost off last year's team. For these guys to come in here right now and be 5-0 ... after losing four of our top six guys minute-wise last year, I think is a compliment to them," Birdsong said. "They're confident and they have a swagger about them. I love this team and they are capable of striking at any time."

There were 18 lead changes and 10 ties in the game, but no shift in momentum was as crucial as when the Lakers trailed by four with less than 3 minutes left and went to a quick-strike mentality.

Having already missed its first four shots — all 3-pointers — of the quarter Berberich knocked down a trey that pulled Calloway to within one, 49-48, with 2:40 to play. On the ensuing possession, Perry spotted up at the top of the key to drill the second of back-to-back 3-pointers for the Lakers, giving them a 51-49 lead with 2:09 to play.

play, Perry forced Heath into a turnover and converted the steal into a foul. He went 1-of-2 at the line to give Calloway a three-point, 52-49 lead.

But Heath would tie the game two more times, once at 52 and again at 54. A free throw by Berberich, a bucket by Perry and a free throw by Lockhart with 3.7 to play helped Calloway notch the win.

Following the game, Birdsong pointed out a couple of disappointments. The telling of the two were the fact that the head coach said his team played like it practiced this week.

"It's been very uninspired and I thought we stood around a lot tonight," he said.

The other was giving up a four-point lead with less than 40 seconds to go in the third quarter as Heath knotted the game at 44.

"We made enough mistakes tonight to get beat, but we hung in there," Birdsong said. "You had 10 or 12 guys out there tonight who at the end of the

Lady Tigers lose heartbreaker at Heath

DIELEMAN LEADS MHS WITH TEAM-HIGH 17 POINTS

Staff Report

WEST PADUCAH, Ky. — Three Lady Tigers finished in double digits in the narrow loss Tuesday night to Heath.

Murray fell to 1-4 on the season after Heath (5-1) won 59-54.

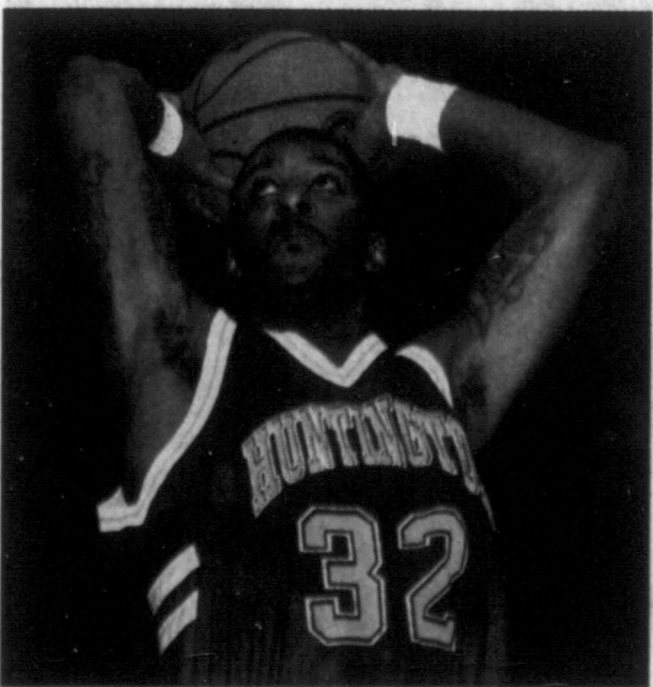

Tish Tate finished with 17 points and 10 rebounds for Heath on 8-for-10 shooting while teammate Daria Kingsley had 16 points.

Leah Dieleman led Murray with 17 points while Stacy McClure and Haley Armstrong each had 15. Emily Benson added five points and Erin Sanders had two to round out the Lady Tiger scoring.

Murray was 18-of-62 (29 percent) from the field while its opponent shot 21-of-44 (48 percent). Heath also outrebounded Murray 33-15.

A close first quarter ended with a 17-16 Heath advantage before the Lady Pirates took a 26-19 lead into halftime. The Lady Tigers stayed close, being down only two at the end of the third period.

Huntington's O.J. Mayo dunks Tuesday during a high school basketball game in Charleston, W.Va.

A little extra Mayo please

O.J. MAYO DEBUTS FOR HUNTINGTON

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The small gym was packed early and the noise level was earsplitting Tuesday night for a high school season opener perhaps like few others ever in West Virginia — prep star O.J. Mayo's debut at Huntington High.

Mayo, ranked by several prep publications as the nation's top senior, turned two-time defending Class AAA state champion Huntington into an instant national contender when he transferred to his hometown in September from Cincinnati North College Hill, where he twice was named The Associated Press Mr. Basketball for Ohio.

He may have changed teams, but his game remains the same.

The 6-foot-5 guard hit a 3-pointer from the corner seven seconds into Huntington's season opener with Nitro High at the University of Charleston's gym and the onslaught never stopped.

"It was a whole lot of fun," Mayo said.

In a span of a little over a minute, he dunked, sank a 3-pointer and scored on a finger roll in the lane. He finished with 31 points and had nine assists in the Highlanders' 94-46 win.

That's the impact Mayo is expected to have, not only on his team, but on a state that rarely produces great high school talent.

"I thought he played very unselfish, blended in well with the team and played good defense," Huntington coach Lloyd McGuffin said.

Adding Mayo, who led North College Hill to two state championships and last month signed a national letter-of-intent to play at Southern California, was a huge bonus. But McGuffin said his other players weren't letting the hype go to their heads.

There will be many bigger games as the season goes on, including against national powers Dematha, Md., on Jan. 6 and St.

Patrick, N.J., on Feb. 22, both scheduled to be played in Huntington.

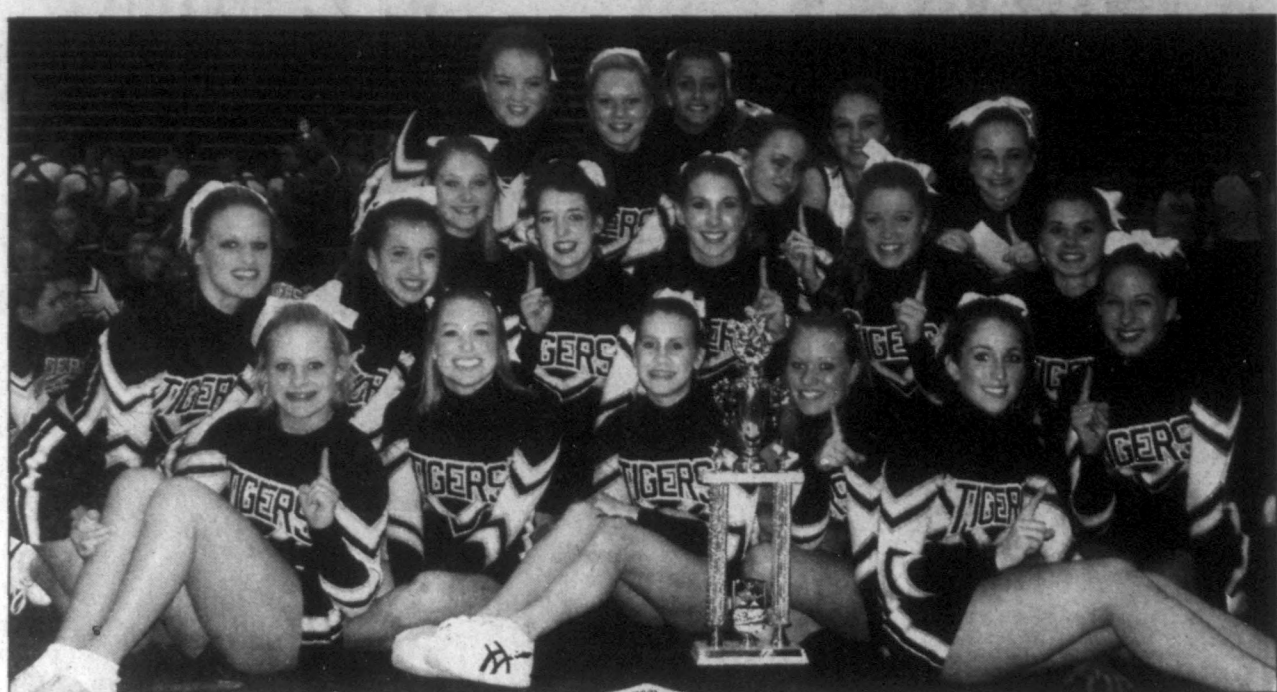

"Those guys are used to getting a lot of attention and they've done a good job of handling it," McGuffin said. "They've already played under a lot of pressure games before. It's not anything new for them."

That includes Mayo, who has been getting attention ever since he was recruited as a seventh-grader to play high school basketball at a private school in nearby Ashland, Ky.

"I'm just as impressed with his demeanor at a young age to handle all of the publicity locally and nationally that he's gotten over the course of his high school career and still maintain his sense of humility and a sense of childhood," said Dave Leitao, head coach at the University of Virginia.

Huntington's starting five also includes center Patrick Patterson, the returning state player of the year; and fellow seniors Chris Early, Jamaal Williams and Mike Taylor. All five played in the AAU national champihelping them." The uprising of the Lady Racers, however, hasn't been just about the play of Scott. Others have stepped up to provide an assist — namely sophomore wing Ashley Nichole Hayes.

Hayes, who is third on the team in scoring (12.6 ppg.) and ranks second only to Scott in rebounding (6.9 rpg.), stepped up her play against Morehead State when Scott got into foul trouble, scoring a season-high 23 points on 11-of-14 shooting while completing a double-double with 13 rebounds.

The 5-10 Hayes is shooting 48 percent from the floor for the season.

"(Morehead) paid so much attention to Joi that Ashley was able to go to the boards," said Cross. "She is a player that's very capable of doing that night in and night out, especially when teams are so focused on keeping Joi off the boards."

Murray is also having some success on the perimeter, where sophomore reserve guard Paige Guffey leads the team in 3-point shooting percentage (52.6), having hit 10-of-19 tries from behind the arc. Her twin sister, starting guard Amber, ranks second on the team in scoring (14.1 ppg.) and has connected on 49 percent of her shot attempts, including 44 percent from beyond the arc.

Freshman Jenny Petrie has also shown the ability to score from long range, knocking down 45 percent (10-of-22) of her 3-point attempts.

"We have some answers on the perimeter," Cross said. "Amber and Paige Guffey have just shot the ball lights-out, and they'll continue to do that. Jenny Petrie can shoot the ball, and Shaleea Petty can shoot it. And Alaina Lee can knock down enough 3-pointers that you have to respect her. With her quickness, she can go by people and get into that 12 to 15-foot range. Those are things that I don't think are going to change."

Including a Dec. 4 home win over Lipscomb, the Lady Racers have now won three straight games after a three-game losing streak that included losses on the road at Southern Illinois, Western Kentucky and Cincinnati.

While the losses presented a setback for MSU, Cross and all involved feel the defeats had a positive impact on the program.

"We're at SIU, and we lose a tough game there. Everybody was mad," he noted. "But the Cincinnati game and the Western Kentucky game really brought it home to us. That was especially so at Cincinnati, because in the past we've had teams that would have just been happy to hang with them for three-fourths of the game. But everybody was real angry after that game. ... We realize we can play with some of the top teams in the country."

Lady Laker 7th graders win to remain unbeaten

Staff Report

The seventh-grade girls' basketball team at Calloway County Middle School remained undefeated on the season with a 50-20 blowout win over North Marshall on Monday night.

The Lady Lakers, now 14-0, jumped on North Marshall with an 18-8 scoring advantage in the first quarter and led 28-15 at the halftime break before opening a 42-16 cushion entering the final eight minutes of play.

Calloway was led by Karlee Wilson, who pumped in 15 points. Lauren Benson followed with eight, while Neely Gallimore had seven and Allison Rogers six. Taylor Futrell and Alyssa Cunningham tossed in five apiece, while Ashley Gullixson and Cheyenne Maddox had two each.

In this photo provided by Paramount Pictures, Wilbur develops a friendship with the most unlikely of creatures — a spider named Charlotte — and their bond inspires the animals around them to come together as a family in "Charlotte's Web."

'Charlotte's Web' charming heart-tugger for all ages

By CHRISTY LEMIRE
AP Movie Critic

Gary Winick would seem an unlikely choice to direct a live-action, computer-animated adaptation of "Charlotte's Web," with an A-list cast providing the voices of the classic children's book's talking animals.

(Julia Roberts as Charlotte! With Oprah Winfrey as Gussy the goose! And Robert Redford as Ike the horse!)

Winick co-founded the production company Indigent, known for stripped-down movies shot on digital video like "Chelsea Walls," "Pieces of April" and Winick's own "Tadpole," in which a 15-year-old boy falls in love with his stepmother.

But he also directed "13 Going on 30," the charming Jennifer Garner comedy that struck just the right balance of childlike enthusiasm and grown-up insight. And he's done the same here.

Working from a script by Susannah Grant (the Oscar-nominated "Erin Brockovich" writer) and Karey Kirkpatrick (who wrote the delightful "Chicken Run"), Winick stays mostly faithful to E.B. White's beloved book. Couple of minor changes here and there — nothing catastrophic.

More importantly, he gets the meaning behind the message right — one of friendship, kindness and loyalty — though "Charlotte's Web" as a whole could get smothered in the shadow of the film it resembles most. We're not referring to any of the myriad animated, talking-animal movies that have come out this year (and at this point, there have been too many to count) but rather a movie from 1995: "Babe," which employed the same techniques used here and earned a visual-effects Oscar in the process. It really does look like the pig and the rat and the geese are talking; cute, slightly creepy, but effective.

Then again, maybe "Babe" resembled "Charlotte's Web" from a storytelling perspective when it first came out, with that endearing, well-meaning pig surrounded by all those farm animals who were either cranky or nosy or both. Maybe it's a chicken-and-egg thing (if you'll pardon the barnyard pun).

Either way, "Charlotte's Web" is worth seeing on its own merits (even if you don't have the excuse of a child to bring along with you) simply because it is so enduring after more than 50 years.

Dakota Fanning stars as the tomboyish Fern, who urges her father (Kevin Anderson) not to take his ax to the runt of the litter when the family pig gives birth. Instead she adopts him, names him Wilbur and nurtures him as if he were a child, and not a pet. (Fanning, by the way, is perfect for the role; she's always been preternaturally wise beyond her years, yet with a purity and exuberance of youth. And as she gets older — she's all of 12 now — she gets prettier, and has begun to resemble Goldie Hawn.)

While Fern is at school all day, Wilbur hangs out in the barn with the other animals. The tiny pig (voiced movingly by 10-year-old Dominic Scott Kay) naturally feels lonely and wants to make friends; the other animals grudgingly indulge him.

There's the aforementioned Winfrey as the goose, with Cedric the Entertainer as Golly the Gander; Redford as the curmudgeonly horse; John Cleese as Samuel the uppity sheep; Kathy Bates and Reba McEntire as the chatty cows, Bitsy and Betsy; and an ideally chosen Steve Buscemi as Templeton, the self-aggrandizing rat. Also flying around outside are the clueless crows, Brooks and Elwyn, voiced with great comic timing by Thomas Haden Church and Andre Benjamin.

And of course there is Roberts as the spider, Charlotte, her wise, assured voice warmly blanketing everything, promising this idealistic spring pig that she'll find a way to make sure he sees his first winter snow.

Roberts and Kay are so believable you actually forget that you're watching protracted conversations between a pig and a spider, and get drawn into the bond they've formed as friends. And every web she spins with the hope of saving him is more touching than the last.

Corny? Overly simplistic? Perhaps. But those were grown-ups snuffling and wiping away tears at a recent screening — not kids — as the story reaches its heart-tugging conclusion. And there's no shame in that.

"Charlotte's Web," a Paramount Pictures release, is rated G. Running time: 90 minutes. Three stars out of four.

Red Cross offers holiday ideas for 12 Days of Safety

Special to the Ledger

During this time of year, everyone is so busy enjoying the holiday season — shopping, baking, attending parties, celebrating with family. Yet, no one thinks about this being the beginning of fire season and all the dangers associated with the season.

The Capital Area Chapter of the American Red Cross has put together simple ideas related to the Twelve Days of Christmas to help each of us prepare our families and our homes for all disasters, especially fires. The Calloway County Chapter would like to share this with the community and hope you will consider these ideas for your home to ensure a happy and safe holiday season.

Most people believe that on the First Day of Christmas the appropriate gift to give is a partridge in a pear tree. Well, the American Red Cross believes in building Disaster Resistant Neighborhoods during the Holiday Season as well during the hurricane season.

To help you in purchasing stocking stuffers and Christmas gifts designed to make individuals, families and the homes they live in as safe as possible, the American Red Cross has put together the following recommendations for gifts for the Twelve Days Of Christmas.

On the first day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends you purchase a smoke alarm. Smoke alarms should be installed on every level of a home, outside bedrooms on the ceiling or high on the wall, at the top of open stairways or at the bottom of enclosed stairs and near (but not in) the kitchen. It is important to check your smoke alarms every month and replace their batteries when daylight savings time begins in the spring and ends in the fall.

On the second day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends you purchase a carbon monoxide alarm. Carbon monoxide alarms should be placed in hallways throughout a home. They should also be placed in recreational vehicles and on boats.

On the third day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends you purchase a fire extinguisher. Install A-B-C type fire extinguishers in the home and teach all household members how to use them.

On the fourth day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends you purchase a fire escape ladder. Homes with more than one floor should have at least one fire escape ladder stored on all floors, other than ground level. These ladders should be stored where they are easily accessible.

On the fifth day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends you purchase a family disaster supplies kit. A family will cope best by preparing for a disaster before it strikes. One way to prepare is by assembling a family disaster supplies kit.

On the sixth day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends you assemble a pet disaster supplies kit. Pets enrich the lives of individuals and families in more ways than you can count. In turn they depend on people for their safety and well-being. Having a pet disaster supplies kit is one of the best ways to care for pets when disaster strikes.

On the seventh day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends you purchase a weather radio. As the voice of the National Weather Service, a weather radio provides continuous broadcasts of the latest weather information directly from a National Weather Services Forecast office. During severe weather routine broadcasting is interrupted and special watch and warning messages are issued.

On the eighth day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends you purchase a first aid kit. Because the first five minutes of a medical emergency are critical every individual and family should have a first aid kit in their home and vehicle and on their boat.

On the ninth day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends you attend first aid and CPR training. For more than a century the American Red Cross has been saving lives with health and safety services education programs. A unique idea for a Christmas stocking would be a gift certificate for a first aid and CPR training course.

On the 10th day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends you purchase house numbers. Each home should have its number posted clearly on the front door, over the doorway, or elsewhere on the front so emergency responders can easily locate it. Lives and property can be saved simply by adequate house numbers where emergency workers can find them.

On the 11th day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends that you purchase a flashlight. As simple as a flashlight is, it can become a very important tool during and after disaster strikes. Every family disaster supplies kit should contain a flashlight and spare batteries.

On the 12th day of Christmas the American Red Cross recommends that you create an emergency phone numbers list. Each home should have a list of emergency phone numbers posted near the phone or in the front of a phone book.

'Tis the season for giving! Want to help someone else give a gift that gives back? Make a charitable donation on behalf of another. Each year the Red Cross and its local chapters respond to more than 70,000 disasters. Making a tax deductible donation will help assist the Red Cross deliver disaster relief and lifesaving training to those who need it in the year to come.

Contact the Calloway County Chapter at 753-1421 to find out how you can donate or to find out how you can purchase the items listed in the Twelve Days of Christmas.

The American Red Cross would like to wish everyone a safe and happy holiday season!

WINDOW WINNERS: Head 2 Toe, Penique's and The Cake Lady have been named the first, second and third place winners of the Fourth Annual Pella Window Decorating Contest that took place among businesses located on Calloway County Courthouse square, according to Deana Wright of Murray Main Street. Kaylee Ligon, a nursing student at Murray State University who is trying to break into the window dressing business, top, got off to a good start by taking first place in the contest for her unique and colorful design of two window displays at Head 2 Toe on Fourth Street. Second place goes to Judy Downey and Penny Bogard, middle, for their classic seasonal Christmas tree display that can be seen at Penique's on Main Street. Third place was taken by Marla Thomason, owner-manager of The Cake Lady, at her Fourth Street business, right, with its unique Christmas tree decorated with baking utensils. Thomason got some help from her daughter, April, not pictured.
