INTERESTING ROAD MEETING.

Calloway Citizens are Taking Active Interest in the "Jefferson Davis Way."

The mass meeting called for last Saturday at the court house was well attended by representative citizens of the county. The object of the meeting was to discuss the most feasible route for the construction of the "Jefferson Davis Way" through this county. After the meeting was convened and its object stated Judge Patterson was elected to preside and W. O. Wear was made the secretary.

A general discussion was had and after the proposed routes were suggested committees were appointed to solicit funds from different sections of the county and through which the road will pass. It is generally agreed that the citizens along the different routes proposed will secure the great highway. The two routes from Murray to the river are via Eggner's Ferry and Calloway town, and from Murray to the Graves county line via Calloway and Brown's Grove-Linn Grove. The committees appointed are as follows:

Calloway town: R. B. Lassiter, Chairman; Frank Rayburn, J. K. Rodgers, J. R. Hale, Frank Seram, J. I. Smith, W. J. Guerin. Eggner's Ferry: Joe Clark, Chairman; A. W. McDaniel, Kelsie Holland, Mr. Seaford, Mr. Williams. Coldwater: Mat Potts, Chairman; W. H. Finney, S. J. Story, T. J. Nix, John Carlton, A. H. Waldrop, Whit Paschall, Will Kirkland.

Brown's Grove-Linn Grove: Lee Clark, Chairman; Mart Rogers, Frank Beaman, Will Sparkman, Dr. C. N. Crawford, J. B. Swan, L. D. Miller, T. A. Beaman, I. T. Crawford.

Sold by Dale & Stubblefield.

KICKING OVER SHEEP CLAIMS.

Rockcastle County Dogs Kill Only Fine Sheep According to Fiscal Court.

The Fiscal Court of Rockcastle county has made an order that no claim for an amount greater than $5 shall be allowed for a sheep killed by dogs. The county is not noted for blooded strains of sheep, but the Fiscal Court finds that none of the claims filed is for a smaller sum than $7.50 a sheep and some are even higher. At the same time the court finds that some of the same sheep owners who are filing claims, ranging from $7.50 to $10 a head for sheep killed are listing their herds for taxation at the modest figure of $1 to $1.50 per head.

These things look inconsistent to the Fiscal Court of Rockcastle and hereafter that body will refuse to pay fancy prices for sheep killed by dogs. The law taxing dogs provides that any surplus of the tax collected, left over after the payment of sheep claims, shall go to the public schools. The price of sheep, however, appears to have advanced in many sections of the Commonwealth or the dogs are showing rare discrimination in the selection of their victims. If the dog law is to remain on the statute books it might be well for the Legislature to amend it and put an upset price on sheep.

Then it might be possible for the schools to receive some benefit from the tax law as was the original intention of the act.

If sheep which are assessed for taxation at $1 and $1.50 may be "sold" to the Fiscal Courts at from $7.50 to $10 a head the sheep owner who is not scrupulous about such matters can very well afford to keep a few dogs for killing purposes, or at least can afford to be a little careless about his herd. It seems to be up to the Legislature to see that the sheep-killing industry is not fostered and in the meantime the Fiscal Courts would do well to draw a line on exorbitant claims as has been done in Rockcastle county. — Courier-Journal.

KIRKSEY NEWS OF PAST WEEK.

New Methodist Pastor Delivers His First Sermon to Appreciative Audience.

As Christmas is nearing on and perhaps Santa Claus may come around and distribute bundles of goods and make merry and glad many sad hearts, as the old year gives way for the new one, I will give your many readers a few items from this quiet little village.

Rev. James, the new pastor of the Methodist church filled his regular appointment Sunday at 11 o'clock. He is a fine preacher and a pleasant fellow in his discourse, but he hews to the line and lets the chips fall where they may.

Thursday, Thanksgiving day, business was splendid and all went to church to offer up thanks both Methodist and Baptist brethren.

Wesley Shelton has completed his new house and by the way it is one of the nicest dwellings in this part of the county.

wards, and Miss Gracie Cunningham were married Sunday morning. Also Raymon Smith, son of James Smith, and Miss Gracie Wrather, daughter of Will Wrather, were married Sunday morning. Rev. Monroe Edwards officiating. Their many friends wish them a long and happy life.

Prof. Chunn gave a nice spelling match Thanksgiving night which all seemed to enjoy. Hog killing seems to be the order of the day.

Some tobacco selling at $8 to $10, lugs $4 to $5.

Wonder what has become of Cedar Lane, correspondent. Guess he's gone dead.

FAMOUS FEUDS TO FURNISH SUBJECT

C. W. BELL AND C. S. NUTZEN-BERG WRITING BOOK ON KENTUCKY.

INSURANCE COMMISSIONER BELL

Is An Author As Well As Good Official, Having Written the Famous Book "Kentucky's Good Old Days."

Frankfort, Ky.—Commissioner C. W. Bell, author of "The Good Old Days," the little book which has made such a hit with the people of this state, and even foreign countries, is now engaged in writing another book in collaboration with Chas. G. Mutenberg, of Frankfort, who is also known as a writer of ability, as the popularity of his Pen Sketches of Switzerland, published in the Frankfort News, shows.

Mr. Bell accidentally came across manuscript of Kentucky's Feudal Days, prepared for years by Mr.
Mutenberg, and was at once struck with the value of the material for a fine story in book form. The two are now working on the volume, which will soon be published by one of the largest publishing houses in the east.

Squabble Checked By No Election.

Henry Youtsey, of Newport, serving a life sentence here for complicity in the murder of Gov. William Goebel, was shown the door of the Penitentiary Christian Endeavor society, and the annual election for this office has been declared off.

The rival candidates this year for this place are Youtsey, for re-election, and Curtis Jett, of Jackson, who is serving a life sentence for the murder of James P. Marcum and James Cockrell. The feeling among the convicts over the rivalry of Youtsey and Jett has been so keen that at times they have almost come to blows.

Gov. Wilton, for the third time during his administration, refused to grant Youtsey a parole. The petition was presented by Chaplain Walter Vreeland.

Judge Black Passes Away.

Judge W. H. Black, of Harboursville, one of the best known jurists in East Kentucky, died at St. Joseph's hospital, at Louisville, following an operation. Judge Black was 45 years old and was a native of Laurel county.
He was appointed circuit judge to the 34th judicial district by Gov. Wilson, being the first judge of the new district. His term expired on Saturday, when Judge F. D. Sampson, who was elected in the recent election, received his commission from the governor. He is survived by his widow.
The body was sent to Richmond, Ky.

Bad Accident At Old Crow.

While repairing the roof on one of the buildings—the Old Crow distillery Mr. W. H. White slipped and in trying to keep from falling off the building fell into a pot of boiling tar; his hands and arms being very badly burned. The doctor says he will be laid up for several weeks, but he is convinced that "himself" that he escaped with his life and that he has an accident policy.

Boys Get Diplomas For Corn.

M. C. Rankin, commissioner of agriculture, has awarded corn growing diplomas to six boys in Knox county who each grew over 50 bushels of corn to the acre. The largest yield was 77 bushels, which is much better than the average yield of the state.
The boys belonged to corn growing clubs and competed for prizes offered for the largest amount of corn grown.

Former Resident Coming Back.

A former Frankfort boy, who now lives in Alabama, and who is a millionaire, is coming to the inauguration to greet his old friends and march with the McCreary Guards, one of the 1894 companies of which was a popular member. His name is Chas.
Thomasson, and he was born and reared near Ellettsville, in this county.

Bell To Decide Important Case.

C. W. Bell, insurance commissioner, announced that he would give out an opinion in the matter of the investigation of fire insurance rates in Louisville. He would give no intimation as to what his decision would be, but said that his opinion would be the most important that he has given since he went into office.

To Oppose Test.

The Fayette County Daymen's association in convention at Lexington, decided by unanimous vote to employ attorneys and fight the order of the state, county and city boards of health to enforce the tuberculin test.

Edward H. Watson, of Lexington, Ky., a warm personal friend of Henry M. Bosworth, Democratic auditorelect, it is asserted, is practically certain to receive the appointment as state insurance commissioner to succeed Charles W. Bell. From other sources it was announced that V. O.
Gilbert, of Bowling Green, had been tendered the appointment as chief assistant to Rankin, and that he had elected superintendent of public instruction. E. R. Jones, of Frankfort, also is slated for a position in Mr.
Harriet's office.

Everyone Invited To Inauguration.

The Citizens' Executive committee, in charge of the preparations for the inauguration has decided not to issue any individual invitations, but regarding the occasion as one of general public interest has issued a general invitation to all Kentuckians as follows:

INAUGURATION INVITATION.

The inauguration of James B.
McCreary as governor, and Frankfort J. McCreary as lieutenant governor will take place at the capitol, Frankfort, at noon on Tuesday, December 14, 1911.

All Kentuckians, regardless of party affiliation, are most cordially invited to attend the ceremonies incident to the inauguration.

Clubs and other bodies that wish to participate should notify the executive committee as soon as possible, in order that they may be assigned positions in the parade.

S. FRENCH HOGGE, Chairman,
ELWOOD HAMILTON,
PERCY HALY,
JOHN W. MILAM,
H. G. WILLIAMS,
Citizens' Executive Committee of Frankfort.

sued the following articles of incorporation:

county; increasing capital from $50, 000 to $75,000.

Stallings.

ter, John H. Leathings, L. M. Davis and Final Orders In Holt Case.

The final orders in the Holt will compromise were entered in the Franklin circuit court and the checks for the money agreed to be paid under the compromise were given to the attorneys and litigants.

The final order of judgment states that the will of James A. Holt, made in 1883, and the first codicil of September, 1904, were made when the testator was of sound mind and testamentary capacity. That the time of the second codicil in 1906, he did not have a sound mind and testamentary capacity and therefore the second codicil is void and not a part of said will. The judgment further states that the Plaidrie Trust, the executor of the will, is authorized to sell certain real estate of the Holt estate.
Each side in the suit to break the will is to pay its own costs.

By the compromise the lawyers for the plaintiffs received $45,000 and the two plaintiffs themselves, George Alvay and his sister, Mrs. Hosley will receive $22,500 each. S. S. Deshon and wife get the Holt farm in this county to use as they please as long as they or either of them live, and W. H. Clark gets $15,000 in cash in lieu of his wife's interest in the farm.
This ends the long contest over the will.

Tobin Lands Good Job.

It is unofficially but authoritatively announced that Richard Tobin, Sr., of Frankfort, is to be the next secretary of the State Railroad Commission.
The commission will meet in January and organize for the next four years by electing a chairman, secretary, rate clerk and stenographer. It is already known that Lawrence Finn, the commissioner from the First district, will be the chairman, and he has announced that Norris Gordon, of Madisonville, will be the stenographer.
The rate clerk will be named as soon as Commissioner Klair returns from West Baden, it is announced. There is a rumor that W. H. Newman, Jr., of Louisville, will be the man named Mr. Tobin, who is to be the secretary was formerly mayor of Frankfort and has been prominent in politics in the Capital City for many years.

Bell Standed Pat.

Firm in his opinion that he has a right to order an investigation of the fire insurance rates charged in Louisville, C. W. Bell, state insurance commissioner, is standing pat on his appointment of Robert Shingler as special investigator. Mr. Bell says the insurance laws of Kentucky gave him the right to make an investigation, and the records of the books and records of any insurance company, whether domestic or foreign, admitted to business in the state or applying for such admission. He says, he can investigate the records of any Kentucky fire insurance company and as the board of fire underwriters in Louisville are agents for companies he can investigate them.

MARVEL OF SUCCESS

Christian Endeavor Society Girdles the World.

Greatest Religious Organization In History, With Over 1,000,000 Members—Rev. Francis E. Clark Its Founder.

Portland, Me.—Founded in 1881, by
Rev. Francis Edward Clark in Whiston Congregational church, Portland, the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor has increased from one society to over 72,000 societies that thrive in every corner of the earth. Its roll of membership has grown from a list of 57 to an enrollment of over 3,500, 000. Twenty-nine years ago it was known as an innovation in a parish of Portland.

Mr. Clark for years had faced the demand of the age for religious youth.
He had studied the problem from every side and had sought information from all known sources concerning the various plans that had matured from time to time in Christian history for developing the religious life and activity of young people. He grew dependent of ever producing anything new and effective, but yet in all humble simplicity he made an attempt and it proved to be the most successful in the history of Christendom. Its success is due to the sincerity and abilities of its founder, and the defini-tess of its purpose. Mr. Clark, although unconscious of it at the time, is a man chosen by Providence for a life career, an apostle in a movement which is essentially progressive and destined to pass on through history an active and far reaching force in the affairs of the Christian world.

In Dr. Clark we are brought face to face with a man who is a revelation as far as executive ability and versatility are concerned. He has been many things to many men. He has been a pastor and leader, an organizer and a diplomat, an advocate and defender of young people, a gentleman and a Christian. His gentleness has made him great and his humility has saved him from the dangers to which pride and honor are ever exposed. As an editor and author he has been voluntarily and he has made copy not only for his own official paper and publishers, but for numerous editors and magazines. He has written for his readers wherever he has traveled in this and other lands. In his connection with Christian Endeavor he believes that Providence has opened a way before him and bidden him to walk in divinely-chosen paths. This has given him courage and zeal.

Remarkable as has been his success, twice so has been his spirit of generosity and self-sacrifice. "Quitting a Portland, he pastored, has never received compensation in any form from the United Society which he founded and of which he is head and to which he has given more than a quarter century of service. He has supported himself by his literary work and even times when traveling over the world, which he has done as have few other men, he has paid his own expenses by writing for the magazines and other similar work.

Lately because of Dr. Clark's personal efforts, made during tours in the various parts of the world, the Christian Endeavor movement has become world wide. Dr. Clark is a quiet, self-contained man. He is not a great speaker, and his leadership of young people depends upon personality rather than upon voice and manner.
He has administrative ability to a marked degree, and has been able because of it to surround himself in his work with other men who became prime favorites with the young people, although Dr. Clark has always been their ideal. Dr. Clark is a native of Aylmer, Quebec, is 59 years old and has traveled around the world four times in the interest of the Christian Endeavor movement.

The society has taken its place among the permanent organizations and institutions of religion. It has taken hold of the problem of training the youth as no society in the history of Christendom has ever done before.
It has rolled through a few years and now has reached a stage in its history where it has nothing to do but grow and expand unhindered and free. Dr.
Clark is still at his head and the great work which he is accomplishing is remarkable.

Rev. Francis Clark.

Tom—Do you believe in keeping the friendship of a dog?
Dick—Sure. Especially if he is motive into the smallest duty and the most infinite comfort to the smallest trouble.—Heber.

WORKS WITHOUT FAITH
Faith Came After the Works Had Laid the Foundation.

A Bay State belle talks thus about coffee:
"While a coffee drinker I was a sufferer from indigestion and intensely painful nervous headaches, from childhood.

"Seven years ago my health gave out entirely. I grew so weak that the exertion of walking, if only a few feet, made it necessary for me to lie down. My friends thought I was marked for consumption—weak, thin and pale.

"I realized the danger I was in and tried faithfully to get relief from medicines, till, at last, after having employed all kinds of drugs, the doctor acknowledged that he did not believe it was in his power to cure me."

"While in this condition a friend induced me to quit coffee and try Postum, and I did so without the least hope that it would do me any good. I did not like it at first, but when it was properly made I found it was a most delicious and refreshing beverage. I was especially fond of it served at dinner—ice-cold, with cream.

"In a month's time I began to improve, and in a few weeks my indigestion ceased to trouble me, and my headache stopped entirely. I am so perfectly well now that I do not look like the same person, and I have so gained weight ever before.

interest."

THE MURRAY LEDGER,

O. J. JENNINGS, EDITOR.

Entered at the postoffice at Murray, Kentucky, for transmission through the mails as second class matter.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1911.

State Treasurer Farley is preparing to call in over a million dollars worth of outstanding interest-bearing warrants. The call will go out as of December 4, and will include all warrants issued between July 1 and October 13, 1911.

As the first of a number of similar requests that are expected to represent every section of the state, a petition has been sent to President Taft from Hopkinsville asking him to appoint Judge E. C. O'Rear as the successor of the late Justice Harlan on the United States Supreme Court Bench. The petition was signed by every member of the Hopkinsville bar with one exception and he was not in town. A leading Democrat headed the list and party lines were forgotten in making the request.

Judge J. E. Robbins is being strongly urged to become a candidate for Congress to succeed Congressman James in this district. He is giving the solicitation of his friends some consideration, and in due time he will probably announce himself for the place. He is well known and has many strong admirers in all of the counties of the district, and if he should become a candidate for Congress, he will have a strong following for that place. Mayfield Messenger.

The skunk season is open. Woodham cor. to St. Marys Argus, St. Marys, Ontario.

The Woodham correspondent to the Argus evidently understands that in his neck of the woods that the skunk season is limited to certain months, while down here in the United States the skunks run at large all months in the year. We do not quite understand the above news item, but are taking for granted that at certain seasons skunks may be killed. We respectfully invite the above individual to come down this way, hunting is fine and game is plentiful of his kind.

Mrs. Chas. Solomon, of Marshall county, was here the past week the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Brandon. Mrs. Geo. White, of Palma, is here this week the guest of the same family.

George Cook's is that we are making his shortcoming to get married less when we published last week that he had married. It was Walter Cook who was married to Miss Hurt and not Gordon. We hasten to make the correction for Gordon can hold out to him that it is not long until leap year, and we hope by that time he will be as successful in his undertaking as was Walter.

CHAS. V. FARMER RECOMMENDED.

As evidence that Charley V. Farmer, who will prize tobacco this year in Murray for the association in the Diuguid brick just west of the railroad, is in every way competent to prize tobacco to the satisfaction of every grower we publish following a letter from to former chairmen and a former inspector regarding the work he did at Fulton. Mr. Farmer is a son of the late Rev. Brooks Farmer, is a native Calloway boy and is deserving of the patronage of all the people:

"We take pleasure in recommending Mr. C. V. Farmer, who was engaged at Fulton, Ky., for three years as prize for the association, and do not hesitate to say that the work he did here for the association was as good as that done by any other prize within our knowledge. We consider him as competent to handle tobacco as any man of our knowledge and consider it a pleasure to recommend his application to any body of association men in any county in the entire district. His grades as a prize for each of the three years he was here were First, and in every instance his work was satisfactory to the people and to every association official.

Yours truly,

W. H. PEWITT, Inspector.

It was growing dark, the outside world, now consisting of level plains, fading into darkness, with a few great stars burning overhead. Trainmen lit the few smoking oil lamps screwed against the sides of the cars, and the new moon shone a little more than dim shadows. All by this time were fatigued into silence, and several were asleep, finding such small comfort as was possible on the cramped seats. Hope glanced at the clock. It was a quarter of eight. The girl nearest her rested with unconscious head pillowed upon the shoulder of her man friend, and both were sleeping. How haggard and ghastly the woman looked! Her eyes were closed, her light just above it, and all semblance of joy gone. It was as though a darkness had been taken off. Out in the main dome the engine whistled sharply and then came to a bumping stop at scene of the accident. The front door of the window a few lanterns could be seen flickering about, and there arose the sound of gruff voices speaking. The sleepers inside, aroused by the sharp stop, rolled over and stared, seeing nothing but a blackness. The front door opened, and slammed shut, and a new passenger entered. He came down the aisle, glancing carelessly at the upturned faces, and finally sank into the seat directly opposite Hope. He was a young couple, man and his coat buttoned to the throat, with strong face showing clearly beneath the broad hat brim and lighted up with pair of shrewd, kindly eyes. The conversation proceeded in a moderate tone, and passed on. Hope thought he must be some official of the road, and ventured to break the prolonged silence with a question:

"Could you tell me how long it will be before we are overhauled?"

She had partially pushed aside her veil in order to speak more clearly, and the man, turning at sound of her voice, took off his hat, his searching eyes quizzical.

"Well, I can't, madam," he said, the words coming with a jerk. "For I'm not at all sure we'll keep the track. Ought to make it an hour, however, if everything goes right. Live in Sher-

She shook her head, uncertain how frankly to answer.

"You know—your worst place to live is on earth—no exceptions—4 know—been there myself three months—go friends there likely?"

"I hardly know," she acknowledged doubtfully. "I think so, but I shall have to ask some of my friends."

"You might," he said. "You might stay tonight. Can you tell me of some—some respectable hotel, or boarding-house?"

The man wheeled about, until he could look at her mere clearly.

"That's a pretty hard commission, Miss," he returned uneasily. "There may be such a place in Sheridan, but I have never found it. Old Mother keeps a few roomers, but she won't have a woman in the house. I reckon you'll have to try it at the hotel—I'll get you in there if I have to mesmerize the clerk—you'll find a room there."

"Oh, I thank you so much. I dominated the noise, so it is respectable."

He laughed, good humoredly.

"Well, I don't propose to touch for the property, but I ain't out the rest for his health—but, I reckon, you won't have no serious trouble—the boys mostly know a good woman when they see one—think best of old Mother. They're liable to be deceived enough as long as I vouch for her."

"But you know nothing of it?"

"They need to—your face is enough." He set you the room all right.

"I'm quite interested," she said.

"Are you—are you connected with the railroad?"

his charge to the cinders below. Bending before her, and butting his great shoulders into the surging crowd, he succeeded in pushing a passage through, thus forcing his way to the north end of the edge of the street.

"Hey, there," he said shortly, grabbing a shirt-sleeved individual by the arm. "Where's Charlie?"

The fellow looked at him wonderingly.

"Charlie?" Oh, you mean the Kid? Well, he ain't here to-night; had a wedding, an' is totin' the bridal couple round."

Fairlain swore discreetly under his breath, and cast an uncertain glance at the slender figure shrinking beside him. The streets of Sheridan were now overgrown with night.

"Only back in town is somewhere else, Miss," he explained briefly. "I reckon you and I will have to hoof it." He felt the grip of her fingers on his sleeve.

"The boys are a little noisy, but it's just their way—don't mean anything," she said, and he saw her eyes as she hung on to me, an' keep the veil down—we'll be there in the shake of a dog's tail."

He helped her over the muddy crossing, and as they reached a stretch of board walk, began expatiating on the beauties of the city, the way, the town, the country.

"That's the Mammoth over there—dangle hail back of it—biggest thing west of the Missouri—three men killed men play! All right, just thought I'd ask you—it's early anyhow, and things wouldn't be going' very lively yet. Say, there, you red head, what are you trying to do?"

The fellow had lurched out of the crowd in such a manner as to brush partially aside the girl's veil, permitting the glare of "Sheeny Mike's" lights to fall full upon her revealed face. It was accomplished so openly that she could not but see that before he could reel away again, Fairlain struck out, and the man went down. With an oath he was on his feet, and Hope covered back against her protector.

Each man had weapons drawn, the crowd scurrying madly to keep out of the way. But before the two men of new figure stepped quietly in between them. Straight as an arrow, broad shouldered, yet small waisted as a woman, his hair hanging low over his coat-collar, his face smooth shaven except for a long moustache, an emotionless, stern expression on his broad face, he simply looked at the two, and then struck the revolver out of the drunken man's hand. It fell harmless to the ground.

"And don't you pick it up until I tell you, Scott," he said quietly. "If you do you've got to fight me." The other man, who had been giving the fellow another thought, he wheeled and faced the others.

"Oh, it's you, is it, Doctor?" The

A black and white illustration of a man and a woman standing together, possibly at a train station. The man is wearing a light-colored suit, a dark tie, and a wide-brimmed hat. He has a mustache and is holding a large suitcase in his left hand. The woman is wearing a long, light-colored dress and a hat with a veil. She is holding a smaller suitcase or bag. They are both looking towards the left. In the background, other people are visible, including a man in a hat and a woman in a long dress. The scene is set outdoors with a building in the background.

"To the hotel, Bill."

"I'll walk along with you. I reckon the boys will give us plenty of room." He glided through the crowd, and then more directly at Scott.

"Pick up your gun," the brief words snapping out. "This is the second time I've caught you hunting trouble. The next time you are going to find it. I don't want to see you in this lady's—what do you do it for?"

"I only wanted to see who she was, Bill."

"You needn't call me Bill. I don't trot in your class. My name is Haddock to you. Was it any of your affair who she was?"

"I reckoned I know'd her, and I did."

The marshal turned his eyes toward Hope, and on back upon Scott, evidently slightly interested.

"So? Recognized an old friend, I suppose?"

The slight sneer in "Wild Bill's" soft voice caused Scott to flame up in sudden passion.

"I didn't; but I called the turn just the same—she's Christie Maclair."

The marshal smiled.

"All right, little boy," he said soberly. "Now you trot straight along to bed. Don't let me catch you on the street again tonight, and I'll advise you not to pull another gun—you're too slow on the trigger for this town. Come along, Doctor, and we'll get Miss Maclair out of the hotel."

CHAPTER XXI.

The Marshal of Sheridan.

It was called a department through courtesy, consisting of a layer of clouds, scattered promiscuously so as to partially conceal the underlying mud, and a dismantled box car, in which presided ticket agent and telegrapher, a hundred and fifty soldiers in pig shack where the railroad officials lodged. Across the tracks blazed invitingly the "First Chance" saloon. All intervening space was crowded with a hundred and fifty soldiers in the glare of locomotive head-light, and greeting the alighting passengers with free and easy badinage. Stranger or acquaintance made no difference, the welcome to the soldier was the same. The lively rough play and hoarse laughter characterized the mass.

Hoppe paused on the step, even as Dr. Fairbank grasped her hand, dimmed by the medley of discordant sounds and confused by the vociferous jargon of humanity. A band came tooting down the street in a hack, a fellow, with a voice like a fog horn, howling on the front seat. The fellows at the side of the hack raised a hubbub, and Fairbank, taking quick advantage of the confusion thus presented, came here last week—what for? Oh, they got too fresh—that the 'Casino,' and the one beyond is Henry Joe's Place—cut his leg off on a girl. Ain't there no fight over a girl. Ain't there no stores—sure, they're farther back than you see the saloons got in first—that's Shoney Mike's gambling joint over looking at—like to go over and see

He Made an Army.

A noteworthy example of patience in small things is to be seen in the recent acquisition of the invalids of some eight thousand little soldiers made of cardboard and mounted on little wooden stands, here in London. It is the work of M. Paul Schmidt, a Strasburger, and represents the troops stationed in the famous cathedral city in 1848. Infantry, cavalry, artillery, voltigeurs, zouaves and barracks firemen are represented, and these had taken part in the conquest of Algiers. For the most part at any rate as far as the officers are concerned, the faces are true portraits cut at the back of each figure the name and rank of the party is to be found.

dark green, the dialect forms in black. These such unfamiliar forms appear as Taetsui for Tak-how, Pupe for Hupai, Pulan for Hulan, Hoking for Hukien, Schutchen for Szechow, etc. Other features which make the map valuable are the thoroughness with which it treats Mongolia and the Koonor country north of Szachuan-regions. The maps are larger than more or less blank spaces.

Ants Plague English District.

An extraordinary plague of ants is causing alarm in the Durham, England, colliery village of Hyhope. On hundred and twenty miners' houses are infested with millions of the pest which swarms in the living rooms, causing serious discomfort and damage. The ants spread rapidly, and swarm about the cupboards and under the floors in the houses. They are of a foreign species, and were brought to the village in consignments of Egyptian hampers to exterminate the vermin. The colliery owners have engaged experts to examine the houses and to see that the ants being done out in colonies are their nests destroyed.

Companions in Affliction.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Wilson, to see this splendid field of potatoes so seriously diseased," said a sympathizing neighbor. "Ah! well, it's a great pity," replied the farmer, "but there's nothing to be done." —High Tams'o's is a bit better!
