Quadruplets Are Born To State Post

Three Girls And Boy Added To Family Of Eight Children

Leitchfield, Ky. — When Porter Lasley, 81, returned from church Sunday morning with his children, there was a new baby at the center of attention. After a week of care, Porter and his wife, Lula, welcomed a boy, the third of their family to be born in the last three months.

The quadruplets, weighing a total of 16 lbs. 7 oz., spent their first day in the nurse's room at the hospital, where they were given food and care. They were among an estimated six infants born in the last three months at Leitchfield.

The Lasleys have eight other children, ranging in age from 3 to 15 years. They were among the first of the family to arrive at the hospital, where Porter and Lula were among the first to see their new baby.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Myrick, west of town was destroyed by fire recently.

Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Buchanan, suffered a broken arm Sunday while playing on Fifth street.

Cornelia, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Foster Edwards is reported on the sick list at their home in Rhineland.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Winston have returned from their bridal trip which extended to New Orleans and Jackson, Mississippi.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Kemp and little daughter, Norma Margaret, have returned from a visit to relatives in Carterville, Illinois.

L. E. Chaboski is in New Orleans attending Mardi Gras.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Boas left last night for New Orleans to attend Fat Tuesday.

Mrs. E. Parsons has returned from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Odean Williams in St. Louis.

The question is no longer whether the Naco can win a bloody victory over Greece by the mere threat of marching through Bulgaria, as in 1916, but whether Turkey will fight in defense of its ally and friend that Britain had supported, such as a stand with ships, planes, tanks and men.

The great enigma in the kaleidoscopic changes that are taking place in the oil and poker fields is the President of Turkey, Gen. Ismet Inonu. Behind him is the enigmatic personality of Gen. Mustafa Kemal, the foxy commander-in-chief of the Republic. In the face of the West, Gen. Archibald Wavell has dispatched an expeditionary force to Saloniki.

To decide the momentous question whether to rush a British expediatory force to Greece, Minister of War, Anthony Eden, and Chief of the Imperial General Staff, Sir John Dill, are now in Cairo. They must also determine whether the Greeks will make a stand against the Panzer divisions and whether the Turks will back them up.

The Turks have blown hot and cold. They have declared that if they would fulfill their obligations under the mutual assistance pact with Greece and under their alliance with Britain and then they signed the recent non-aggression treaty with Bulgaria, ostensibly allowing the Nazi legions to march through the little Balkan kingdom. Now they assert that that treaty does not favor the Germans and that they will be counted on to aid Greece and to live up to their obligations.

This wavering! Has Stalin given both the stop and go signals? The ruler of the Kremlin suddenly changed his attitude toward Nazi penetration in the Balkans? It is not unique. The cynical and opportunistic Stalin not infrequently plays both ends against the middle, and it is probable that he has heard about the Lend-Lease Bill, and it is not as certain now about a Hitler victory.

Whatever the situation, the British leaders in Cairo will make certain of it before they decide on the best ways of combusting Hitler and his ally Mussolini—Curtis-Journal.
