EXPLOSIONS OFTEN DO THE WORST DAMAGE.

AN ACCOUNT of the kind has recently been published in April, 1872, by the New York Times, which is devoted to the subject of house-explosions and their effects.

The Times gives an account of a case in which a house containing 25,000 dollars worth of property was destroyed by fire.

The house was located on the corner of 42nd Street and 6th Avenue, and was occupied by a firm of dressmakers. The fire started in the attic, and spread to the lower floors, where it was extinguished by the arrival of the fire department.

The Times states that the house was built of brick, and contained a large number of rooms and apartments.

The house was known as "The Dressmaker's House," and was occupied by a firm of dressmakers, who had been in business for many years.

The firm was well known, and had a large number of customers.

The firm had a large amount of stock on hand, which was destroyed by the fire.

The insurance company had paid a large amount of money to the firm, but the fire department was not able to prevent the loss.

The Times states that the fire was caused by a spark from a sparkler, which had fallen from a window and ignited the woodwork.

The fire was reported by a witness, who saw the spark fall from the window and ignite the woodwork.
