YOUNG MEN'S CLUB HAS BUSY SESSION

The Young Business Men's Club met in regular business session on Tuesday night, with good attendance of membership and seven visitors from the Paducah Junior Chamber of Commerce as guests.

A report was given by the chairman of the Old Car Derby in which it was shown that good progress has been made for this novelty race to be held at the Fair Grounds here Sunday afternoon. The race has been advertised throughout West Kentucky and West Tennessee, and a capacity crowd is expected to attend. Many entries have already been made in the race and the committees are rushing preparations for the event.

"Efforts to get over to the people the proposed plan to obtain an $85,000 federal grant and $110,000 revenue bond issue for the purpose of securing T. V. A. power for Fulton are steadily being made by the T. V. A. committee of this club," Billy Blackstone stated.

Blackstone and Vernon Owen told the group that "the first step to obtain T. V. A. current in Fulton is to provide for a distribution system, composed of wire, poles, transformers, meters, etc.—not a plant, which the city officials have no intention of building."

The delegation from Paducah presented a proposal that the Fulton club join the state and national organization of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The proposal was taken under further consideration by the membership.

Two Fulton Players Hurt At Evansville

Charles Thomas and James Campbell, members of the Fulton High football team, were painfully injured during the game at Evansville last Saturday. Early in the game Campbell sustained an arm break, and in the last quarter Thomas received a shoulder injury.

Both players will be missed in the line-up, and have been performing nice work this season. Thomas will be able to return to the game soon, it is believed, for his injury is not considered serious.

Several Thousand Expected To Attend Old Car Derby At Fairground Park Sunday

Wrecks Over Week- End Were Numerous

Three automobile accidents over the past week end brought death to one, and injuries to four other persons. Two of the wrecks occurred on the Fulton-Hickman highway, and one on the Fulton-Mayfield route.

Bernie Mays, negro, employee of the Burnett Service Station on Fourth-st here, was fatally injured in a crash on the Fulton-Mayfield highway Sunday morning, near Pryorsburg. Buddy Bill, another colored youth, was with Mays at the time of the accident and suffered minor injuries.

J. R. Hodges, age 55, who resides in the Sassafras Ridge neighborhood near Hickman, while walking along the Fulton-Hickman highway Saturday night was struck by a hit-and-run driver. He was brought to the Fulton Hospital, where it was necessary to amputate his left arm.

Two cars crashed Saturday night at the curve near Lucia's Tourist Camp on the Fulton-Hickman highway. In one machine were Mr. and Mrs. Howell, who reside near Wolberton Store, and the other by Lubin Grissom of Fulton. Mrs. Howell was brought to the Fulton Hospital and treated for minor cuts and abrasions, and Grissom sustained severe head wounds.

Gilbertsville Dam Makes Progress

Approximately 11,000 acres have been purchased by the Land Acquisition Department of the TVA at a cost of approximately $700,000 with about $750,000 more in land under option in the Gilbertsville Dam territory.

About 2,500 graves in the Gilbertsville reservoir area will have to be moved to higher ground, the Knoxville office of the TVA announced. Cost to the TVA when its own employees do the work is approximately $29 per grave.

Constant activity, over the roads around the Gilbertsville Dam section has made dust an increasing menace the past week or two. Workmen this week were well under way with the construction of the third bunk house at Gilbertsville Dam site. Two of the three bunk houses stand finished except for the finishing touches. The main-tenance office is ready for use and workmen are busy laying pipe to the river for the sewage system. Work on the water treatment plant is progressing.

Fourteen Entries Expected As Starting Time Draws Near

THIS & THAT

Jack Frost Made His Debut Here

Jack Frost made his season's debut here Sunday night. It was the first visit of the year, and brought to local residents the first indication that winter is approaching.

15 Indicted By U. S. In Huge Liquor Ring

Forty four men and one woman were indicted by a federal grand jury Monday on charges of defrauding the government of at least $15,000,000 in taxes through illicit liquor ring operating in five United States cities and Canada.

New Wage and Hour Law Now In Effect

The new wage and hour law went into effect Monday, putting a floor under wages and a ceiling over the hours of an estimated 11,000,000 American working men. This regulation of virtually all persons in interstate commerce represented the broadest industrial legislation since the NRA. In some circles of thought it is believed that it will encourage employment, while others contend that it will often impair both employment and the earning power of workers. There, too, is some contentment that the law is unconstitutional like the NRA, which was so declared by the U. S. Supreme Court, but now with the court packed with members friendly to the New Deal it probably will stand up.

Congress May Vote On War Referendum

Several Senators expressed belief this week that the next Congress would have to vote on a war referendum proposal. Representative Ludlow, D-Ind., introduced a bill last year calling for a popular vote before Congress could declare war, unless the U. S. were invaded. It was sidetracked in the House.

British Fears of War Is Growing

Peace and feeling of security has not come with the capitulation of Britain and France to Adolph Hitler in the crisis over the breaking up of the Czechoslovakian republic nor assurance from the "no war between us" accord signed by Chamberlain and Hitler. There is greater uneasiness about the future than before the Munich "peace" and growing doubts as to the wisdom of Chamberlain's leadership.

Chiang Disappearance Believed Key To Peace

With the fall of Canton—said to be due to treason within the Chinese high command—and collapse of resistance before Hankow, influential diplomatic quarters this week predicted Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek would temporarily disappear into some unknown hideout, and peace would reign.

339-Year-Old Grave To Be Opened At London

This grave of Edmund Spenser, contemporary of Shakespeare, will be opened this week in effort to settle a 170-year-old controversy over the authorship of works ascribed to Shakespeare, but disputed by students of the Francis Bacon school of thought. When Spenser died in 1599, fellow poets attended the funeral and took with them elegies, which they tossed into the grave along with the pens with which they were written. In this rite, Shakespeare may have left the answer now sought.

Silence seldom does harm.

Judges and Officials Have Been Selected For Race

Interest and enthusiasm has been steadily growing in the Old Car Derby, a novelty 50-mile auto race, which will be held Sunday afternoon over the Fair Grounds race track at Fulton, under the auspices of the Young Business Men's Club. Prizes totaling $100.00 will be given the winners in the race.

Already several thousand advance tickets have been sold to this "gas buggy" event, with attendance expected to smash all records. Many old cars have been revamped and prepared for this big race. Others are expected to enter between now and Saturday night.

It is surprising how modernistic some of these old cars look now that they have been preened for the race ... with new paint and shiny metal parts. The grounds committee has been busy putting everything in readiness and the superintendent of track, Kellie Love, has had a tractor and grader working on the track for the past week. The track is now in excellent condition.

There will be six state highway patrolmen sent here to help handle the crowds, assisted by ten special police and deputy sheriffs.

Reserve box seats are now on sale at the Old Car Derby Headquarters on Lake St. extension, where those who so desire may secure choicest seats.

From reliable sources comes the information that an added attraction has been arranged for—a five mile motorcycle race. At press time final details were not completed by General Chairman W. K. Cummins advising that the plan looks feasible.

Entries of some of the cars where the final papers have been completed are as follows: Johnnie Owen, piloting a 1924 Buick sponsored by Highland Service Station; Lewis Bizzle driving a 1926 Model T Ford sponsored by the Fulton Theatre; William Abell driving a 1924 Lincoln, carrying the banner of the Whiteaway Service Station; Malcolm Brown with a 1923 Buick flying the colors of Jones Auto Parts Co.; Buck Bushart and Ike Read will be seen in the 1923 Packard, sponsored by Read Motor Co., Plymouth-Dodge dealer; Harold (Sleepy) Thompson will steer a 1926 Hudson for the Edwards Food Store; Doolin Atkins has a Star Car in excellent condition that will be in the race, but at present has no sponsor; Berry Bros. of Union City will be represented in the race with a Buick; and there are others.

Entry papers have been received from Dresden covering a Model T Ford but at press time the driver had not been designated. The Young Business Men's Club of Martin will have a car in the derby.

A parade will be held Saturday night, which should draw a large crowd of people downtown to see these old cars parade through the streets of Fulton, led by the Fulton High School band and the state motorcycle Patrolman Wallace Shankle. The city of Fulton will have their big fire truck in the parade as well as several local merchants are putting floats or trucks in the parade. Any firm wishing to enter the parade with truck or car should get in touch with the Old Car Derby headquarters, in order that the parade committee can arrange the position. M. L. Parker is chairman of the parade committee, assisted by Bob Binford and Malcolm Gilbert.

Grand stand tickets will be sold only at the fair grounds and will be first come, first served. The program is arranged for an afternoon of pleasure for old and young, where re-

EVERY TWO MINUTES

At the very moment you read this, fire engines are dashing with screaming sirens to someone's burning home. Every two minutes in America, this dramatic tragedy will be reenacted. So it goes twenty-four hours a day, 365 days a year. Every two minutes a home rattles fire.

Here's hoping your home isn't on that list. But hope isn't enough. No one can afford to leave fire prevention to chance. You can have a safe home if you want one, and if you are willing to put in a little time to make it safe. In other words, the safety of your home will be largely what you make it.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters has printed a vivid little leaflet, entitled "Two Minutes Tick By—Another Home Goes Up in Smoke," which should be read, kept and referred to by every homeowner. It is free for the asking—simply write to the Board at 85 John Street, New York. One page of the leaflet illustrates, by means of a cut-away drawing of a home, 31 distinct hazards—any one of which could cause a fire that would destroy the house. They range all the way from unprotected steam pipes to improper storage of inflammables and the use of wooden containers to hold hot ashes. And in practically every case these hazards can be quickly eliminated, at little or no cost.

Two-thirds of all our fire deaths occur in dwellings—and 30 per cent of these fatalities are children under ten. Mull that thought over in your mind. Then answer this question: "Is fire prevention worth while?"

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Confusion and contradiction have marked the drive for public ownership of the electric industry. Later, however, these elements have reached fantastic proportions.

The government builds flood control dams that are useless for flood control. It spends countless millions of dollars building dams to irrigate deserts, while simultaneously distributing more millions to farmers for crop control or reduction of crops on existing agricultural land. Of course the dams it has built are ostensibly for flood control or irrigation, but in reality they are for electric power generation. And such federally subsidized power developed as an "incident," is slowly but surely destroying the private utility industry.

Now the government has come along with an official "study" which undoubtedly cost the taxpayers plenty and which was to determine the possibility of a threatened shortage of private electric facilities. As might have been expected, the study has shown that by 1940 there may in fact be a power shortage. What the study does not show is why there may be a power shortage.

It does not show why private electric companies have not expanded normally. It does not reveal the fact that the public ownership drive of the government (socialism) has frightened investors because highly-taxed private enterprises cannot long exist with tax-exempt government competition. It does not show interconnection to private power; competition has impaired the value of hundreds of millions of dollars of utility investments. It does not show how deliberately planned, "death sentence" legislation for holding companies has prevented interconnection to private power facilities. It simply shows a little of the effect of our national power policy without revealing the cause. So the people are still blinded by confusion and contradiction and the insidious drive for socialism that is being made.

WAR DESTROYS WEALTH.

The United States is poorer today than it was thirty years ago, Dr. Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, stated in a recent address in New York, deserved much wider consideration than it received. He set forth the reasons as follows:

"The most significant fact about the economic situation in America today is that the real per capita income is less than it was thirty years ago. The annual output of goods and services has increased less than the population since 1909. This means that the country is essentially poorer than it was thirty years ago.

"The main reason for this is the World War and the political social and economic changes that grew out of it. For nearly a generation there has been an enormous wastage of human resources and capital, which have seriously impaired the productive power of the American people. This wastage has been greatly accelerated in the past five years, but it has been going on for a quarter of a century before, both here and in every country involved in the war.

"In fact since 1914, the whole world has been growing poorer. This is the inescapable consequence of all war. The same thing happened after the Civil War in this country and after the Napoleonic Wars in Europe, but the period of economic retrogression has been longer and its effects greater since 1914, because the World War was the most destructive in history.

"To provide a higher economic standard of living for our people and their children, we must have an enormous increase in our productive power—an increase much greater than took place in the generation before the World War, because we still have to make up for a large part of waste of that catastrophe.

"To do this we need not only a great increase in saving and investment; we must greatly increase the productive capacity of our labor. The growth of productive facilities in the United States in the past generation has not been sufficient to offset the decline in effective labor power. The most urgent demand in America today is for more productive workers and more effective working capacity in our labor force.

"Our unemployment problem is a passing economic illusion, produced by the inadequacy of capital, the inefficiency of labor and the incompetence of government. If we were to resume the rate of economic growth that prevailed before the war, we would face an acute shortage of workers in a few years.

"This is the great challenge of business enterprise to our educational system."

Clark Pioneer In Kentucky's Settlement

With the object of locating lands for land grants to settlers in Kentucky, George Rogers Clark first supported by Patrick Henry, governor of Virginia, and later Thomas Jefferson, Henry's successor, set out to gain possession of the Northwest, by means of a chain of fortified posts, of which one of the Mississippi, and one in the Illinois country, indicated a direction which must make Detroit the northern terminus.

This was indeed the plan which received the sanction of Jefferson's State policy, as well as of Clark's ambition and accordingly, in the spring of 1780 Clark set out from Louisville with 200 troops to accomplish the first part of the grand design. Going down the river to a point on the Mississippi, five miles below the mouth of the Ohio, near Columbus, he erected a stout stockade, which he called Fort Jefferson, in honor of the governor. Besides a small garrison left in the fort, a number of families, persuaded by the unusual inducements offered, located nearby and took forcible possession of a region where the Chickasaws had long held undisputed sway. This nation had been on friendly terms with the whites, and it was a grave oversight that their permission was not sought, before the fort was erected. As it was, however, this unprovoked invasion of their territory aroused their resentment and these hitherto peaceful tribes harried the western and southern boundaries of Kentucky.

After establishing Fort Jefferson went northward into the Illinois country in his campaign to take over the Northwest. Meanwhile, the Chickasaws, dissatisfied with the result of predatory attacks, determined by one overwhelming assault to abate this menacing fortress. A force of 1,200 warriors was assembled under the command of a Scotchman, named Colbert, whose half-breed descendants succeeded to the chieftancy of the nation. Small bands anticipated the approach of the main body, and ravaged the region about the post with fire-brand and tomahawk, until nothing was left upon which the occupants of the fort could draw for support. The garrison was in a perilous condition, sickness and absences had reduced the number of defenders to about thirty men of whom two-thirds were ill. Ammunition was scarce, and all supplies outside of the fort being destroyed the people were reduced to the verge of starvation. In this predicament, messengers were dispatched to Louisville for help, and preparations were made to hold out until assistance should come.

In their raids upon the fort, the Indians had captured one of its members, upon whose fears they had worked by threats of torture to draw from him a true account of the situation inside the fort. With these facts as a basis for a demand for an immediate surrender was made. A parley ensued in which Colbert declared that the weakness of the garrison was well known that the hope of success was in vain, as a large force had been sent to intercept its approach; that the whites could not hope to withstand the overwhelming force ready to be brought against them, and that he would protect the lives of the prisoners, save certain ones whom the savages had determined to butcher. Without discussing his statements, the whites only agreed that if the Indians would retire, they would soon abandon the fort and leave the country. This proposition Colbert agreed to submit to the chiefs, but when in the act of retiring from the conference he was fired upon and wounded by an occupant of the fort whose entire family had recently been murdered by the savage marauders.

This put an end to treaty making, and fierce attack was begun. For three days and nights the assailants exhausted every device to gain possession of the stockade. Fortunately, it was well armed with cannon, which, loaded with bullets and discharged at close range, made terrible havoc among the savages. Several attempts to surprise or fire the fort nearly succeeded, and several bold assaults were with difficulty repelled with the aid of the cannon. There was no food and even the water in the wells began to fail, when the welcome succor arrived. The band sent to waylay it had struck the river too high up, and thus the despairing garrison was permitted once more to hope. The whites, thus relieved and re-energized, easily repulsed their assailants, who were finally forced to retire with great loss. The garrison only suffered a few wounds but the isolated location of the fort made it difficult to support, and it was speedily abandoned, most of its occupants going to Kaskaskia, and forming some of the earliest American settlements in Illinois.

To the early pioneers West Kentucky was indeed a hunters' paradise. The prairie and timber were crowded with game of all kinds, and the streams with fish. Without this, it is doubtful if this region would have been settled for a score of years later. Far removed from the natural resources of the country alone which even with the abundance of game, provided but an indifferent support for the family. Deer were found in limited numbers, as were buffalo. The early settler had no trouble in killing more than the needs the family required, right at his own door. They were in the habit of carrying their guns on almost all occasions, and seldom returned from any expedition without an evidence of the abundance of these animals in the shape of a haunch, or ham of venison. Bears were also found, and it was a test of the hunter's skill to bring down one of these animals. Wild hogs served to vary the frontier fare. These were animals that had escaped from the settlements and had subsisted upon the nuts and roots of the woodland, and had gone wild in the course of nature. They were of a long-legged gaunt species and kept within the timber pretty closely.

Wild geese, cranes, herons, ducks and other water fowl were found by thousands. Wild bees and honey were so plentiful that man could climb many of the trees and drink mead from the first knot hole he reached. Although meat could be provided by hunting, vegetables and table delicacies were luxuries, and many family supplies were inaccessible and expensive when obtained from the more populated areas at great distance away. Salt was very expensive and difficult to procure at any price, and even meal, was practically unknown on the frontier. And even the variety of game the country afforded, soon failed to answer the purposes of beef and pork.

The system exposed to the ravages of disease, and subject to the trying experience of early farm their attention to hunting. The than fresh meat, nor could all give labor, demanded something other prime reason for the presence of most of the pioneers in this section was to build up homes and lay the foundation for future comfortable larger part of the community

A Potpourri Of Hollywood Hobbies

The favorite avocations and off-duty activities of screen stars afford many interesting sidelights on their personalities. Their oddly assorted hobbies often act as safety valves for tense nerves constantly steamed up for action in making Motion Pictures Your Best Entertainment.

Nelson Eddy loves nothing better than turning farmhand in between studio calls. On his valley ranch he pitches hay, drives his own teams and acts as general chore boy.

Myrna Loy also hurries to her ranch, the minute she completes each new picture. Her pet abstractions are her flowers and fruits. She is especially proud of the fact that this year she sold her first crop of limes at a substantial profit.

George Raft's pet hobby is collecting autographed boxing gloves. He likes to spend his leisure hours in the company of fighters, ballplayers and other athletes.

George Brent is mad about horses. But that means the kind you ride, not the kind you bet on! He is an excellent polo player.

Claudette Colbert is an enthusiastic and gifted amateur photographer. She has a dark room and photographic laboratory in her home and her candid camera shots of fellow Hollywood players often decorate the menu cards when she entertains the screen colony at luncheons or dinner parties.

The hobby to which Errol Flynn would love to devote all his time, if he could, is sailing. Not with a motor—that's for landlubbers—but with white canvas over-head. He would rather live on a boat and sail from port to port than to own the biggest estate in all California.

Gail Patrick collects unique strings of beads. She has at least one necklace from every country in the world. Surf-casting is another of her special interests.

Wallace Beery's ruling passion when away from the cameras is aviation. He is known as an "old-maid" at flying because he never stunts a plane, never makes a flight unless conditions are favorable, and believes in having his ship equipped with every safety device.

Bette Davis would rather swim than eat. She is the only woman who ever qualified as a lifeguard at the fashionable Ogunquit Beach.

Luise Rainer takes to the bow and arrow with great agility. She has won many of Hollywood's amateur archery tournaments and also adores tennis.

Andrea Leeds is an autograph fiend. Her albums contain the signatures of famous musicians, noted statesmen and distinguished authors—all of which may account for Andrea's gracious willingness to sign her own name for anybody's collection, anywhere, anytime.

Wayne Morris always carries a sketch book in his back pocket. He loves to draw quick studies of California landscapes and also turns out some clever caricatures.

Deanna Durbin is at an age when the urge to collect anything and everything occupies much of her free time. She saves airmail stamps, autographed party menus and match booklets. She has filled several scrap books with pictures of dogs, clipped from newspapers and magazines.

Jeanette MacDonald's hobby is collecting miniature reproductions of famous orchestras. She has several replicas of the recording orchestras that worked in her pictures.

Andy Devine has an obsession for accumulating very old or unusual phonograph records. He also gets a great kick out of horse trading.

Adolphe Menjou is one of Hollywood's most ardent philatelists. His important and complete stamp collections carry an unusually high valuation.

These are just a few of the ways the film stars have hit upon their private amusements, during the hours not devoted to tapping every resource—material and human—to make motion pictures for the entertainment of the 30,000,000 men, women and children who attend over 17,000 theatres in the United States weekly.

petence, and to accomplish this centered here had only their hands with which to accomplish their mission.

SPARKS OF WISDOM

A man of ill tongue is dangerous in his city.
Let reason go before every enterprise and counsel before every action.
Be not ungrateful to an old friend.
Power hath ordained nothing which Economy saw not needful.

Necessity is a hard nurse, but she raises strong children.
A good name is to be chosen rather than great riches.
The wise and prudent conquer difficulties by daring to attempt them.
When two quarrel both are in the wrong.
Revenge commonly hurts both the offerer and sufferer.

THREE times within the space of one week a vaudeville actor, well known socially on Broadway and better known professionally on the road, was escorted to the same police station and booked on charge of intoxication. On each of these occasions friends who had learned of his embarrassing position hailed him out. Late Saturday night he was brought in again, with a policeman supporting him upon either side. As they held him upright before the station house desk the offender fixed a wavering eye upon the face of the lieutenant who sat facing him. ### For Busy Farmers

TERRACING—Now is a good time to do some terracing before winter rains start. Terracing is being more widely adopted each year by farmers seriously interested in erosion control and soil conservation. The building of terraces also provides an excellent way to earn payments under the Agricultural program.

POULTRY—The poultry house should be repaired and cleaned up for the winter. Pullets should be in the laying house by the end of the month. Cull out weak and poorly developed birds. Inspect for lice. See that plenty of water vessels and nests are provided. Check ventilation. Clean up poultry yards.

LIVESTOCK—Save all lespedeza hay and other forage and hay crops possible. Provide one pound of hay and three pounds of silage for each 100 pounds liveweight for stocker cattle. In buying stocker cattle, do not buy too much flesh. Wide chests, large mouths and nostrils are indications of good feeders. Heifers for the breeding herd should be tested for Bang's Disease, and all animals bought should be vaccinated for blackleg.

MACHINERY—Get farm machinery under shelter. Clean and grease bright parts and paint wood parts. Remember more farm machinery rusts out than wear out on all too many farms.

PLOWING—Fall plowing of land not in winter cover crops and not sandy or too rolling is usually beneficial. Leave the soil in the rough so it will catch and absorb the winter rains. Fall plowing destroys many harmful insects and the soil warms up and dries out for earlier working in the spring.

SEED CORN—It has been said that time spent selecting seed corn in the field brings greater returns than most any other job that can be done on the farm. A few hours spent in the field selecting seed this fall may mean several more bushels of corn next year.

STICK HORSES

A few days ago I was sitting in a parked car on a fashionable street waiting for a friend. While I was pondering on how rapidly things have changed within the last few decades, two small children came riding by two stick horses. I was rudely shaken from my dream of old times, for those youngsters showed that things are not so different after all. Automobiles have become as common as farm wagons, used to be, aeroplanes pass overhead without causing us to look up from our work or our play, but the discredited horse, herald of the glory that was once his own, fingers on in play horses, a species of poetic justice that is rarely equaled.

In old Fidelity neighborhood we had stick horses galore. Tobacco click make the best ones, for they are usually hickory and can stand rough treatment. At one time the little girl who played with me decided that we should have a lively stable for our various horses. We took some lumber and converted a stump into a stable that any youngster might have been proud of. Each horse in our stable had to be taken out and put through his paces; each one had a decided personality. Dainty broomstick horses had gaits that suited their fine polish and bright colors. Tobacco-stick horses could jump and gallop and run, like half-tamed animals. Sometimes we were attached to a mere crooked limb that became for us a steed of many gaits. A little childish imagination was all that was necessary to transform a few unsightly sticks into a stock farm with prize-winners.

When we went to drive up the cows or to run other errands we rode our horses. We ran races down the paths or dusty roads; our nags shied at imaginary goblins and often threw us rather violently in the dust or grass. Even big boys sometimes joined us and helped us break in especially wild horses. Probably the best part of it all was to get two big boys to stage a horse race. It took an enormous amount of urging by "giddaps" and switches to get the winner across the line. Sometimes the jockey was so used up that his tongue would be fairly hanging out of his mouth when the race was over. As is too true in actual races attended by grown-up children, we sometimes had an infringement of the rules and a fight or stiff quarrel as a result.

Through the years we became quite attached to the sticks that we had endowed with life. We rode some of them so long that we ground off several inches of them against the sand and gravel. For whole weeks and months these inanimate sticks had all the elements of romance, a romance that somehow does not entirely disappear with the years.

Murray College Officials Visit Fulton Schools

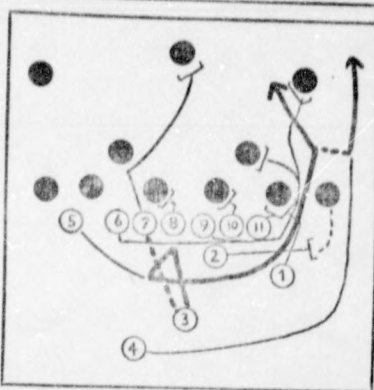

Murray, Ky.—That Fulton and South Fulton have progressive schools was the opinion of Prof. E. H. Smith and Prof. L. J. Horton, Murray College officials, who recently visited the school systems.

Supt. J. O. Lewis of Fulton's system reports an enrollment of 797 with 203 in the grades. Mr. Lewis has the A. B. and M. A. degrees from the University of Kentucky and the University of Chicago respectively. An application has been made for a PWA building, estimated to cost $75,000, for the elementary schools.

The enthusiastic support of the schools extended by the citizenry is the outstanding asset of the community, according to Mr. Lewis. "They will back anything for the

CORNELL... by
Carl G. Snively
Head Football Coach

This is the fifth in a series of six outstanding diagram plays by leading college coaches from Grantland Rice's new Cities Service Football Guide.

This is one of the plays on which Jerome Holland, Cornell's All-American end distinguished himself during the 1937 season. The fullback, No. 3, receives the ball from the center and crashes into the line with all the appearance of making a line back. He stops behind the guard, however, pivots, and hands the ball back to Holland who comes behind him to take the ball and to go off tackle as shown in the diagram. He may make a lateral pass to the tail back, No. 4. If the defensive half back gets a tackling position on him, or he may keep the ball if the blocking removes the opponents from his path.

In the Cornell-Colgate game, which was a much closer game than the score would indicate, Holland made two touchdowns by means of this play in rapid succession early in the fourth quarter and decided the issue in what, up to that point, had been anybody's game. In the Pennsylvania game, however, Holland's lateral pass on this play was intercepted by a Pennsylvania halfback and quickly converted into a touchdown.

good of the schools," he said. As an example of the support he pointed to the fact that the patrons voted 927 to 54 in favor of a project that would involve raising the tax rate.

His schools are stressing reading this year and a metronoscope has recently been purchased to help realize this objective.

Mr. Lewis is secretary of the West Kentucky Athletic Conference, chairman of the local chapter of the Red Cross, FDEA director, member of a special committee of the KEA to revise the code of ethics for teachers, and a director of the Fulton Chamber of Commerce.

Under his direction, Fulton has ranked at the top of schools in the Southern Association in scholastic achievements, as measured by failures in college.

South Fulton

Under the direction of J. B. Cox superintendent, South Fulton is making progress educationally, the Murray visitors learned. He has a registration of over 500 whites and 300 colored.

Beautification of the campus and grounds, painting and remodeling of the exterior and interior of the buildings, community cooperation—these are a few of the projects being carried out under the capable supervision of Mr. Cox.

The PTA and Community clubs are cooperating 100 per cent, Mr. Cox declared.

Mr. Cox has his B. S. degree from Murray and the M. A. from Peabody. He has served as critic teacher, rural school supervisor, and assistant director of extension for Murray State. From 1939 to 1935 he was city superintendent of schools in Clay, Ky.

The greatest need, he says, in South Fulton is an organized activity program. He is especially proud of the recently organized commercial department which has as many as 60 students enrolled in the typing alone.

The outstanding asset in the community, he explained, is the "community cooperation through the PTA and other organizations."

Basketball practice started last week under Leon Smith Murray grad. Debating, forensics, and other activities will be stressed this year, the school superintendent said.

UNCLE JIM SAYS

People in the city are dependent on farmers for their food supply.

Each farmer in America produces food and fiber for an average of 31-2 people in town.

It took 20 years of struggle before the farmers finally got a law in 1933 that was based on the principle of farm equality.

National allotments established by the Agricultural Conservation program are large enough to assure consumers a dependable supply of food.

Select next years breeding turkeys early, picking them for early maturity, full feathering, and full flesh over breast and drum sticks.

Teach the colt to eat hay and grain and you will have little difficulty in weaning it. Gains made during the winter affect the size of animal colts grows into.

Pruning stands of young pine trees will greatly improve the quality of lumber they produce. This should be done during fall or winter when trees are dormant.

"Hold what you've got" is good reasoning for those who have terraced. Fall is a good time to go back over terraced land with a critical eye, noting weak places, bad outlets, and undersized construction.

Cattle to be sold in mid-winter may be started on good fall pasture with a limited grain ration and about two pounds of cottonseed meal to the 1000 pounds of live-weight, and gradually brought up to full feed with a view of making them fat in a 70 to 100 days feeding period.

IOU—$43,000,000.00

A few years ago there was a tremendous amount of public concern over the fact that the national debt had passed the $25,000,000,000 point. Today it is forecast that the debt will shortly touch $43,000,000,000—yet public lethargy and indifference could hardly be greater. This gigantic mortgage against the earnings and property of all individuals and all business no longer makes the headlines.

Such indifference is one of the most dangerous phases of the whole problem of debt and taxation. We will never reduce the debt, even as we never will reduce or equalize taxation, without an awakened, aggressive public demand to compel a change. The politicians won't do it for us—they will simply inflate it to even higher levels. And that means more taxes and higher taxes, a steadily lessened national income that can be spent for productive purposes—and more hard times in the future.

Wake up to the fact that the public debt is your debt. It is inescapably related to your job, your savings, your opportunities, your security. When all of us know that, Washington and the state capitals will hear a concerted public demand for a drastic change in present suicidal fiscal policies of unbalanced budgets and wasteful, extravagant and uncalled for public expenditures.

READ and REMEMBER

In life there are four aces—honesty, affability, hard work and sincerity.

A smile will go farther to win friendship than all the presents you can bestow.

THE AWFUL PRICE YOU PAY FOR BEING NERVOUS

Quivering nerves can make you old and haggard looking, cranky and hard to live with—can keep you awake nights and rob you of good health, good times and jobs.

What you may need is a particularly good woman's tonic—and could you ask for anything whose benefits are better proved than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Let its wholesome herbs and roots help Nature build up more physical resistance and thus help calm your shivering nerves, give more energy and make life worth living again. More than a million women have reported benefit—why not let Pinkham's Compound help YOU, too, to go "smiling thru" trying times like it has other grateful women for the past 3 generations? IT MUST BE GOOD!

The chief business of the citizens of Fulton is the job of making it a better place in which to live.

The greatest oaks have been little acorns.

No one gets into trouble without his own help.

That which was bitter to endure may be sweet to remember.

Permanent and solid character is built up out of trivial actions. We hate delay, yet it makes us wise.

It may be hard to work, but it must be harder to want.

Without prayer no work is well begun.

A wicked man will rob thee of precious time, if he doth no more mischief.

Bronchial Coughs Need Creomulsion

Just a common cough, a chest cold, or a bronchial irritation of today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. They may be relieved now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medicinal combination designed to aid nature in soothing and healing infected mucous membranes by allaying irritation and inflammation and by aiding in loosening and expelling germ-laden phlegm. The Medical Profession has for generations recognized the beneficial effect of Beechwood Creosote in the treatment of coughs, chest colds, and bronchial irritations. A special process was worked out by a chemist, for blending Creosote with other ingredients so that now in Creomulsion you get a good dose of genuine Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and may be taken frequently by both adults and children. Creomulsion is one preparation that goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm. When coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles—due to common colds—hang on, get a bottle of Creomulsion from your druggist, use it as directed and if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained, the druggist is authorized to refund your money. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Ad.)

Box Car Figures!

There's a term that enriches the American language. It means big figures and derives its significance from the fact that the numbers* everybody sees on the sides of box and other freight cars run high.

It takes box car figures to measure the work our American railroads do. Last year they 1,735,000 freight cars carried 37,992,928 loads amounting to 1,015,586,028 tons of freight a total of 360,620,269,000 ton-miles (tons times miles).

That meant moving 8 tons of freight 350 miles for every man, woman and child in the United States. Or it meant moving 910 tons of freight 350 miles for every employee of the railroads.

Service like that requires many cars of many kinds.

Any way you look at it, our American railroads do a tremendous job of freight transportation, and they also do it mighty well.
