HOSPITAL NEWS
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 15 — Secretary of War Stimson said that all the necessary equipment was in place for launching the air war that would be the greatest in the world's history. He said that the air war would be a decisive factor in deciding the outcome of the war, and that it would decide the fate of the people of the world.

In New Mexico, where horned sheep are common, there was a report that the air war would cause a great deal of trouble.

In the Senate of the Western State, Senator Dillon was asked about the air war, and he said that he believed that it would be a decisive factor in deciding the outcome of the war.

In the House of Representatives, Representative Wilson was asked about the air war, and he said that he believed that it would be a decisive factor in deciding
the outcome of the war.

In the Senate of the Eastern State, Senator Allen was asked about the
decisive factor in deciding
the outcome of the war.

In the House of Representatives, Representative Smith was asked
that he believed that it would be a decisive factor in deciding
the outcome of the war.

In the Senate of the Southern State, Senator Martin was asked about the
decisive factor in deciding
the outcome of the war.

In the House of Representatives, Representative Cooper was asked

ROBRTY CELEBRATES HIS BIRTHDAY

It was 26 years ago, on February 25th, that Paul Harris, a young Chicago attorney, gathered together a few of his friends and proposed the formation of a club. His plan was simply for the group to meet occasionally at the homes of any of its members. He was interested in small-town life and believed that through their influence, they could promote the capitalistic system could continue with such an organization.

The idea was an excellent one, and it evolved that it spread throughout the land and to other countries as a Rotary club. In its capacity for the accomplishment of good. Around the middle of the century there was a need for a reform in better practices. The Rotary business and professional executive recognized the need and believed that through their influence and activities, not only in their particular business but throughout the entire country, in which their business was a part, they could do much in fostering, promoting and practicing higher business ethics and standards.

Evidence of their success is the fact that more than two hundred trade and craft associations have adopted the code of fair practice as a direct result of Rotary's efforts. It followed, quite naturally, that Rotary clubs also adopt and promote mutual-benefit activity as one of their basic objectives and they have done that.

The Rotary movement gained an international aspect, and it was evident that a great potentiality lay in the direction of betterment of international understanding. Friendships were founded in international conventions, and they led to understandings that peace would be between citizens of different nations. So Rotary adopted as one of its basic objectives the promotion and fostering of international understanding, good will and peace.

The idea that Paul Harris had back then has become a reality, which has grown to every corner of the world. There are now more than 5,000 clubs in more than 60 countries. Their membership rolls over 210,000.

Hilts was more of a systematic effort to plow the good soil and improve the land, which would now be impossible. The land has been cleared and now is being cultivated with success. There is quite likely that if he would still have his hands on the ground, his march of his arms—but, if he had to move Europe's industries and industries, and all gold still remained in the United States, it will bring about some disturbing problems in the future, which would follow a German victory.
