NUMBER FOUR

FIRE PREVENTION DAY

OBSERVED IN FULTON

In connection with the National Fire Prevention Week, which was observed in Fulton this week, the Fulton Fire Prevention Association presented a fire prevention play for the benefit of children. The performance was conducted at the joint request of the Fulton Board of Education and the State Association of Fire Prevention Clubs. The play was presented at the school under the direction of S. E. Rush, chief of the Fulton fire department.

The play was designed to impress the children with the importance of fire safety, and the need for protection against the dangers of fire. The children were taught the importance of not playing with matches, not leaving lighted cigarettes unattended, and other important fire safety tips. The play was well received by the children, who were engaged in learning the material in a fun and interactive way.

JUDGE LANDIS CALLS THE MANAGIST "KALE"

JUDGE LANDIS CALLS THE MANAGIST "KALE"

As reported earlier, the National Football League has been involved in a dispute over the use of the term "managist," which refers to the head coach of a team. A federal judge has sided with the NFL, ruling that the term "managist" is not a protected trademark.

The NFL had filed a lawsuit against the owner of the Tennessee Titans, who was using the term "managist" for his team's head coach. The judge ruled that the term is not distinctive or intrinsically connected to the football game, and therefore not protectable.

Evangelistic Fees to Close Revival

Evangelistic Revivals, which have been a common occurrence in Fulton, are scheduled to conclude next week. The evangelist, Rev. J. W. Goodin, will be the concluding speaker. The revival will conclude on November 2nd, with a special service on the last day.

Evangelistic Revivals have been a popular event in Fulton, with many locals attending to hear the message. The revivals offer a unique opportunity for people to come together and share their faith, fostering a sense of community and support.

Farm Servies Are Planned Thanksgiving

As is customary, several services will be held in honor of the harvest and the Thanksgiving holiday. The first service will be conducted at the First Methodist Church on Thanksgiving morning, followed by a service at the Baptist Church in the afternoon. These services will include songs, readings, and a large crowd in attendance.

Ree DAVIS OF CAFTE FIRE

Miss Alice Thomas, 20, and Miss Minnie Whitten, 19, of Fulton, died in a plane crash in the woods near Mount Airy. The couple, who were on their way to visit a friend in Atlanta, were traveling in a small plane that crashed into a tree.

Miss Whitten, who was a nurse at the local hospital, was on her way to visit a patient whose care she was responsible for. Miss Thomas, a student at a local university, was visiting a friend in Atlanta. Both women were killed instantly in the crash.

Local residents were shocked by the news of the tragedy, and many attended the funeral services held in their honor.

Locoston Bookmakers

The regular monthly meeting of the Locoston Bookmakers was held in the Elks Club on Thanksgiving morning. The meeting was attended by a number of local bookmakers and gamblers, who gathered to discuss the latest gambling news.

The meeting began with the announcement of the winners from the previous week's meetings. The discussion then turned to the upcoming events, with many bookmakers expressing excitement for the upcoming races.

The meeting concluded with a vote to increase the wagering limit for the upcoming events, which was approved by a large margin.

The railroads of the United States were a land that was once the gateway to the world, a highway that facilitated the movement of goods and people. The railroads, with their mighty locomotives, shaped the landscape and connected the nation, making the American dream a reality. Today, while the railroads may not carry as many passengers as they once did, they continue to play a vital role in the transportation of goods, ensuring the smooth flow of commerce across the country.
