HULL, THE COLD MAN

Two widely divergent stories were told out of Washington last week, both concerning the same Committee of One Hundred, the Joint Committee on the Reconstruction of the Southern States.

One story said that certain New Dealers were fully intent on getting complete control of the finance and business of the United States, and maintained the fact that a system of conservative, four men is being considered to take upon themselves the entire work of the United States. This plan, as such, has already been rejected by the Secretary of War, but has been submitted to Congress as a substitute for the present system, and there is no intention to make any change in the present system. Mr. Hull is to be the center of attention on this new plan.

The other story was the more plausible, speaking of Mr. Hull and the effect on the entire country. Mr. Hull, as a New Dealer, is the only man in the Democratic party who has a chance to lead the country in a new direction. He is a man of great ability, and has shown himself to be a man of business and of experience.

The John Hay School of Economics and the New Deal Movement have been working together for the last few years. Mr. Hull is a member of the Hay School, and has been a leader in the movement.

The important thing is that Mr. Hull is the only man of importance who has been willing to stand up for the New Deal Movement. He is a man of great ability, and has shown himself to be a man of business and of experience.

In the New Deal Movement, Mr. Hull is the only man of importance who has been willing to stand up for the New Deal Movement. He is a man of great ability, and has shown himself to be a man of business and of experience.
