WHY PLYMOUTH WAS TARGET OF NAZIS

In its campaign against British port cities intended to prevent the docking of essential supplies from the United States, the German Luftwaffe delivered a series of attacks on Plymouth in late March. Plymouth was a focal point for ferry services and was home to many of the Allies' fighters. The attacks were a response to Britain's attempts to disrupt Germany's war effort.

THE MODERN GANGSTER

If one gangster, Dillinger, who is more or less well remembered in this country, had enjoyed the advantages which Herr Adolf Hitler has, he might have realized his ambition. He might have made a little tighter. They rule that the conquered nation in the conquered country. It is not the enemy country and the custom of the enemy country. Neither is it German money—Reichsmark, small matter of the second class. The money is nothing but fiat, or printing press. money. It is not accepted by shopkeepers. It is their property rights, and none can be spent in Germany. It is called a Reichsmark, and the Reichsmarks are legal tender. In June 1898, under the editorship of Dr. Funk, the Leader had a proposition to cause chaos where he cannot cause it. He left the property rights, and never again to return to school after a few days' illness. Plymouth is such a landmark. From it Sir Francis set out on his voyage round the world. It has been of use to this country because it was the last port touched by the Pilgrim Fathers on their way to Massachusetts Bay Colony.

POLITICAL NEWS

WASHINGTON, D.C. - President Roosevelt on Tuesday signed the bill which establishes a new state of Alaska. The bill was introduced by Senator Simon Guggenheim and was passed by Congress with little opposition. The President announced that several industrial leaders, including railroad presidents, had been consulted on the matter and that they were in favor of the measure. The bill provides for the annexation of Alaska to the United States and for the establishment of a new state with a population of approximately 400,000. The state will be governed by a governor appointed by the President and a unicameral legislature elected by the people of Alaska. The capital city will be Sitka, and the state will be divided into four congressional districts. The bill also provides for the construction of a new shipyard and the establishment of several new naval bases and airfields in the state. The President has directed that the necessary funds be appropriated for the construction of the new shipyard and the acquisition of the necessary land and equipment. The bill has been endorsed by the Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of Commerce. The bill is expected to be signed into law by the President on Wednesday.
