OUR SUGAR INDUSTRY

There was recently held in New Orleans a meeting of Louisiana sugar producers, at which it was proposed that efforts be made to increase the market for the state's sugar, and also to have its production quota enlarged.

David W. Pipes, a representative of the sugar cane league, said: "From the way brakes have been applied to the Louisiana sugar industry, one would believe that the Department of Agriculture's intention was to force the cane growers out of business."

A similar complaint was made by Clarence A. Bourg, vice-president of the league, who said that continental American sugar farmers should have a fairer share of the nation's consumer market.

It was announced that the agricultural department of Louisiana State University would make a survey of cane and sugar production in the state, with a view to giving its delegation in Congress information designed to lead to legislative action favorable to domestic sugar farmers.

In view of the fact that sugar cane is one of the few domestic food crops that is insufficient for the nation's needs, it is somewhat difficult for the layman to understand why its production within the United States should not be encouraged, instead of restricted.

AN AMERICAN BUILDER

The American skyscraper is one of the greatest of modern marvels, and the Empire State building in New York represents its highest development. An interesting story of its erection is told by Paul Starrett, the man who built it, in a recent book.

Five leading builders bid on the job and Starrett obtained the contract, agreeing to complete the tallest building in the world in 18 months. He did it in 11 months, in spite of a strike in plants supplying the steel girders during a part of the construction period. Four months were required to tear down the Waldorf-Astoria hotel which formerly occupied the site.

The Empire State is 102 stories high and rises 1,248 feet from the street level. It contains 67,000 tons of steel, and is total weight is 308,000 tons—so heavy that it did not have to be anchored to the ground, yet it sways only two and a half inches in a 100-mile an hour wind.

Mr. Starrett has built many of the country's large structures, including the Plaza, Commodore and Biltmore hotels and the Pennsylvania station in New York, the Blackstone hotel in Chicago, and the Lincoln Memorial in Washington. Now, at the age of 72, he is undertaking the largest housing contract ever let.

But the building of the Empire State, 200 feet higher than any other on earth, will remain his

POPULAR TOWN NAMES

If someone were to ask you what is the most popular name for towns in the United States, what would you guess? Unless you had checked up the names in the United States Postal Guide, it is safe to say that you would not hit upon the right names in a dozen guesses.

Of course Washington would suggest itself, also Springfield, possibly Paris. But neither of them is the leader, although Washington stands in the second rank.

The most popular town name in the United States is Clinton, of which there are 30 having post-offices.

Next comes Chester, Florence, and Washington with 23 towns of each name; then Clayton, Madison, Marion and Troy, 27; Glenwood, Kingsport, Newport and Salem, 28; Ashland and Centerville, 25.

There are 24 Clevelands and the same number of Springfields, several of them being important cities. Other names range from this number downward. There is only one New York, but two Chicagos, 6 Philadelphias and 8 Detroits.

The outstanding popularity of the name Clinton is somewhat difficult to understand, although two statesmen of that name were very prominent in the early days of the republic.

George Clinton was the first governor of the state of New York and was vice-president of the United States at the time of his death in 1812. His nephew, DeWitt Clinton, was also governor of New York and an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency, being defeated by Madison.

Whether it be through the fame of these statesmen or the euphony of the name itself, Clinton is the favorite name for towns in United States.

The Christmas Star

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

"And when they saw the Star, they rejoiced."

Since time immemorial men have looked to the stars for comfort and for hope.

In the beauty and the mystery of these pure, high fires, the ancient world sought augury and guidance. In the vague outlines of distant constellations, mythology sought immortality for its heroes. On the bright sentinels of the night, wanderers over trackless plains or uncharted seas relied for beacons that could show the way home.

Then, twenty centuries ago, those ancient hopes were justified.

Under the white light of a new and miraculous Star, men found the promise of peace and comfort which they had sought throughout the ages.

And at this time, in every land on which starlight falls, that discovery is celebrated in joy and reverence as the Christmas message sends a new flood of faith surging through the hearts of men.

Everywhere men remember again that, however dark the prospect, somewhere there is room for hope.

"There was no room for them at the inn," says the old story—but room was found when the manger at Bethlehem cradled a King.

"There is no room for peace," lament the faltering today—but peace can be cradled in surroundings no less humble and obscure.

Out of the lowly manger has come all that we know of altruism and mercy. Out of it have sprung great churches, great deeds of love and kindness.

Out of our humble gropings for peace and brotherhood can come results similarly great, similarly inspiring.

Always there is the Star, if we will see it; always there echoes the Angels' Song, if we will hear it.

And their message of peace and good-will will never change.

It is the message of Christmas.

New Model City To Be Shown at New York Fair

NEW YORK (Special)—A magic carpet ride through space two miles above "Democracy," the perfectly integrated garden city of tomorrow, will feature the central theme exhibit of the New York World's Fair which opens April 30, 1939.

The exhibit, created by Henry Dreyfuss, industrial designer, will be dramatic in form. It will reach a stirring climax when, out of the distant skies above the floating audience, will troupe marching legions of workers, symbolizing the interdependence of man in modern civilization.

Nearer and nearer they will tramp, until the whole arch of heaven is filled with towering figures, arms upraised, singing the song of tomorrow. As the final strains of this marching air die away, great streamers of colored light shoot forth from the zenith, drenching the sky from horizon to horizon in all the hues of the rainbow.

A Dramatic Show

This dramatic show will be housed in the eighteen-story Perisphere, companion structure to the 700-foot Trylon, which constitute the architectural focus of the fair.

An entirely new method of projection, utilizing slides instead of film, will be employed to throw the moving figures on the sky. New methods of fluorescent lighting will be used.

The garden city itself will be a model—one of the largest ever built and the first to portray a full-size metropolis catering to a million people and complete in every last detail. This city of tomorrow will serve 1,000,000 people, but no one will live in it. Homes will be in suburban developments. Factories also will be located in satellite towns, and broad green belt areas will circle both city and towns.

Model City Possible

City planners, engineers, architects, landscape architects, airport specialists and other experts collaborated on the design of "Democracy," and so accurate is the model that, according to Mr. Dreyfuss, it could be given concrete reality today were sufficient funds made available. Blueprint drawings have been made, not only of street layouts, harbors, airports, athletic fields and civic centers but of traffic and pedestrian over-passes, theatres, hospitals, shops, bridges, dams and apartments.

The entrance to the theme exhibit will be high up on the side of the Perisphere fifty feet above the ground. Access will be by means of the two longest moving stairways ever built in this country. Visitors will enter on two levels and step on to two magic carpets or revolving platforms placed one above the other and moving in opposite directions.

TIMELY TOPICS

When a Wisconsin general store was robbed recently, no fingerprints of the culprit were discovered, but toothprints in a half-eaten slice of cheese attracted the sheriff's attention. One John McMann was arrested on suspicion, and it was found that his teeth perfectly matched the imprint on the cheese. Then he confessed.

The late Senator Tom Watson of Georgia once declared that "the whole secret of success in politics is to remember that it is impossible to exaggerate the stupidity of the public." The bunk which certain politicians succeed in making the voters believe convinces us that old Tom was more than half right.

Dr. Krause of Kansas City advises that if every person who gets a cold would go to bed and stay there for two or three days his suffering would be shortened and spread of the disease would be less likely. Many of us have known that a long time, but few follow the advice given.

Those who deplore the cruelty of cock-fighting will see the poetic justice in an incident reported from Iloilo, in the Philippine Islands. A cock was struggling wildly in the pit, he gaffed a handler, Juan Martinez, in the jugular vein with a steel spur, killing him.

In London, a British sailor on shore leave sought to pass the time by taking a "mystery tour" on a sightseeing bus. Taking a nap on the way, he awoke as the bus stopped outside the Portsmouth dockyard, where he was taken with the rest of the party to look over his own ship.

James Rooney of Newark, who can not read, argued with a traffic cop who arrested him for having no automobile license plate. He showed the limb of the law a document which he said entitled him to drive his car. It was marked "back seat driver's license," and Rooney said he had paid a stranger $3 for it.

New House For Mamie

A brand new house for Mamie the Moo Cow has recently been developed by farm engineers. It corrects two of the prime weaknesses of most American citizens: their lack of fire protection and of weather resistance.

Fire is a hazard that costs American farmers $150,000,000 yearly. Every hour of every day a dairyman's building, equipment and livestock is partially or completely destroyed by fire.

Lack of weather protection is a serious menace to cattle health. Barns that are inadequately ventilated, are too cold in winter and too warm in summer measurably reduce milk production and impair the health of the cattle.

The new type barn has side walls and ceiling insulated with fireproof mineral wool, and both inside and outside walls consist of panels of asbestos-cement. The roof is covered with fire-resistant, mineral surfaced asphalt shingles.

Mamie will even have the benefits of partial "air conditioning," as the new barn is ventilated by way of thermostatically controlled electric fans maintaining a constant circulation of fresh air at all times. It is estimated that the slight additional cost of this type of construction is quickly paid for in increased milk yield and improved health.

THREE FACTORS TO HEALTH

A livable standard of winter comfort and health in the heated home comprises three factors: heating, insulation and ventilation. Adequate heating, supplemented by adequate insulation and sufficient ventilation by natural or mechanical means to remove rook, smoking and other odors will provide an interior atmosphere that is as near perfect as present-day knowledge and equipment can make it.

By adequate heating is meant a system that not only heats and cleans interior air, but also maintains a healthful inside humidity of about 20 per cent. Adequate insulation entails the use of at least four inches of a fire-resistant material such as mineral wool in side walls and second floor ceiling. Sufficient ventilation means replacing the entire volume of inside air from one to two times an hour.

Auto thefts in the United States total approximately $350,000 a year.

The average city of 100,000 has 12 homicides a year.

Ostrich eggs hatch in about 43 days.

The reeves pheasant can fly 80 miles an hour.

THE FORUM

By J. PAUL BUSHART, Editor

A column conducted for news, views and comments, in which readers of The News are invited to participate. Mail contributions care of THE FORUM, this newspaper.

Everybody is extending greetings to friends and acquaintances at this Christmastide. But one person was troubled this week about what to do. She wanted to know whether it was better to send a friend who is ill a special note at Christmas, or an engraved card such as are being sent out to many others. In such a case, it is our belief that a personal note would be much better and afford more pleasure to the recipient.

Fulton has done itself proud this holiday season. The town is more beautifully decorated than ever, and the merchants have taken a keener interest in decorating their stores and displaying their Christmas merchandise. Shoppers have noticed this, and it has been a great help in encouraging the real Christmas spirit of goodwill and good will toward all men.

Turkeys and cedar trees get it in the neck at Christmas time. We are familiar with the picture showing the turkey gobbler being chased by a man with an ax. But little thought is given to the waste of young evergreen trees by careless cutting for Christmas decoration. The national movement for conservation of our forest and soil has been endeavoring to bring the lesson home to the American people. But it's an uphill business. It is a simple matter for the average person to go out into the woods and cut down Christmas trees. It not only is against the law to trespass on private land and cut trees, but a bad practice if we expect to preserve a permanent supply. Where cedar trees grow in clusters it helps the growth of the others by properly cutting some of them. But where they stand alone, an attempt should be made to replace the tree by providing for a new tree to grow on the old stump. To do this, saw the tree on a slant above one of the strong lower branches. Just a thought for good Americans.

Perhaps the sanest of pension plans is that being worked out by the General Welfare Federation of America, which is certain to make itself felt in the next Congress. This organization's goal is "security for all at 60" by passage of a general welfare act. The GWA proposal is a 2 per cent gross income tax, with the proceeds to be pro-rated among all citizens past 60 who agreed to abstain from productive labor. Exemptions from the gross income tax would include the first $100 of monthly income of any person or firm, money paid out for wages or interest on loans, and income from goods produced for export. But what attitude will Congress take on the matter.

We in American should be thankful that we are not subject to the same strife, hatreds, discords and threats that exist today in Europe. There is talk of settlement of those disputes between foreign nations by diplomatic discussions in order to reach an understanding. Personally, we can see no end to the trouble, for it is our belief that there will be wars and rumors of wars as long as the world stands, simply because there shall always be strong and powerful men who will selfishly seek to push themselves into greater power. Dictators are springing up all over the world to the detriment of the common people. Italy has Mussolini, Germany has Hitler, Japan is waging a war with China and proving to be a thorn in the side of France, England and the United States. Communism, Nazism and other disturbing forms of aggression are being spread in our own country. Americans realize the danger, and are determined to stop the invasion of these destructive forms of mass thinking. These are indeed troublesome times for Democratic nations—and only the people can preserve that true American form of government "of the people, by the people and for the people." When those elected to served the best interests of all the people, prove false to the trust placed in them, the people should remove them from office by casting their votes that way at the polls.

Europe is in the throes of a dead-

Tidbits

FOLK FEARS

Some weeks ago as I was sitting in the outer office of a physician, I listened to the conversation going on around me. One elderly, rather garrulous person was asking various people in the office what ailed them. One sad-faced woman said she was suffering from rheumatism. The old gentleman who had asked her, within five minutes, while talking to some one else, in the same loud tone, said, "There ain't no cure for cancer and rheumatism." That reminded me of many of the folk fears that are still to be found. No wonder all sorts of folk remedies are applied, in a vain hope that something will turn the trick. The idea of cause and effect is not very obvious in many minds. Disease just comes, and some of it is incurable, just as a tree struck by lightning blights everything made of it, and a fire so started cannot be put out with water.

People who live in good houses and have a respectable income often forget how much a creature of fear their more humble brother may be. First of all, there is the law, which many a man fears worse than death. Some people are thrown into a positive panic when a legal request of some sort is presented them, just as many Negroes fear that there is some trick in a check. Fear of the dark I have already discussed in this column, but much else could be said for what it causes for what it causes people to think and do. One of the worst fears concerns itself with what is strange and new. The old-fashioned steam engines were such fearful things that some people are still afraid of anything that resembles an engine. I know plenty of people who are a bit excited and puzzled when they talk over a telephone.

The old gentleman in the doctor's office voiced a fear that is found everywhere. In spite of the great advances that have been recently made in the world of medicine, many a person still fears that the diseases that the educated know can be cured are hopeless. I can recall when tuberculosis was looked upon as a curse of the days of bad tonsils and infected teeth, held terrors for many people and still does. The idea of germs is gradually making itself understood, but the chemistry behind rheumatism puzzles most beyond words; hence the old man's assertion that it is incurable.

Fear of the weather and of storms does not seem so prevalent as formerly. I can remember when everybody disconnected his telephone when a storm came up, when people sat or lay on feather beds to avoid being struck by lightning, when anything made of metal was quickly laid aside during a storm. Even for the brave nothing is quite so puzzling as the freaks of storms, but a sort of curiosity in what is coming next often saves the day. People who have not prayed in years have been known to break forth rather fervently in a bad storm. Thus we are all of the folk when fear comes in some spectacular or unusual form.

Asserting that a mouse ran up his pants leg while he was watching a movie, I. V. Tosenman of Cleveland is suing a theatre for $250.

Isolation we see, is proving to be an expensive luxury of this country, which now discovers the need of men, ships and planes.

THE FORUM

By J. PAUL BUSHART, Editor

A column conducted for news, views and comments, in which readers of The News are invited to participate. Mail contributions care of THE FORUM, this newspaper.

Everybody is extending greetings to friends and acquaintances at this Christmastide. But one person was troubled this week about what to do. She wanted to know whether it was better to send a friend who is ill a special note at Christmas, or an engraved card such as are being sent out to many others. In such a case, it is our belief that a personal note would be much better and afford more pleasure to the recipient.

Fulton has done itself proud this holiday season. The town is more beautifully decorated than ever, and the merchants have taken a keener interest in decorating their stores and displaying their Christmas merchandise. Shoppers have noticed this, and it has been a great help in encouraging the real Christmas spirit of goodfellowship and good will toward all men.

Turkeys and cedar trees get it in the neck at Christmas time. We are familiar with the picture showing the turkey gobbler being chased by a man with an ax. But little thought is given to the waste of young evergreen trees by careless cutting for Christmas decoration. The national movement for conservation of our forest and soil has been endeavoring to bring the lesson home to the American people. But it's an uphill business. It is a simple matter for the average person to go out into the woods and cut down Christmas trees. It is not only against the law to trespass on private land and cut trees, but a bad practice if we expect to preserve a permanent supply. Where cedar trees grow in clusters it helps the growth of the others by properly cutting some of them. But where they stand alone, an attempt should be made to replace the tree by providing for a new tree to grow on the old stump. To do this, saw the tree on a slant above one of the strong lower branches. Just a thought for good Americans.

Perhaps the sanest of pension plans is that being worked out by the General Welfare Federation of America, which is certain to make itself felt in the next Congress. This organization's goal is "security for all at 60" by passage of a general welfare act. The GWA proposal is a 2 per cent gross income tax, with the proceeds to be pro-rated among all citizens past 60 who agreed to abstain from productive labor. Exemptions from the gross income tax would include the first $100 of monthly income of any person or firm, money paid out for wages or interest on loans, and income from goods produced for export. But what attitude will Congress take on the matter.

We in American should be thankful that we are not subject to the same strife, hatreds, discords and war threats that exist today in Europe. There is talk of settlement of those disputes between foreign nations by diplomatic discussions in order to reach an understanding. Personally, we can see no end to the trouble, for it is our belief that there will be wars and rumors of wars as long as the world stands, simply because there shall always be strong and powerful men who will selfishly seek to push themselves to greater power. Dictators are springing up all over the world to the detriment of the common people. Italy has Mussolini, Germany has Hitler, Japan is waging a war with China and proving to be a thorn in the side of France, England and the United States. Communism, Nazism and other disturbing forms aggression are being spread in our own country. Americans realize the danger, and are determined to stop the invasion of these destructive forms of mass thinking. These are indeed troublesome times for Democratic nations—and only the people can preserve that true American form of government "of the people, by the people and for the people." When those elected to served the best interests of all the people, prove false to the trust placed in them, the people should remove them from office by casting their votes that way at the polls.

Europe is in the throes of a dead-

Give Children plenty of butter. It contains Vitamin A, the protective vitamin so necessary to keep them in good health. Butter is selling at amazingly low prices just now.

Cows of America have been unusually generous in their yield of milk during this year and have made good butter not only plentiful but cheap. The Nation-Wide Sale starting December 8 makes good butter so low in price that you can afford to use it without skipping.

During cold months, children need extra quantities of butter which is rich in Vitamin A—the vitamin that protects against colds. Prices on good butter are exceptionally low during the December nation-wide sale at all stores.

The treasury department says it can't produce dimes and quarters fast enough to supply the demand. And it's the same way with a lot of fathers.

FOLK FEARS

Some weeks ago as I was sitting in the outer office of a physician, I listened to the conversation going on around me. One elderly, rather garrulous person was asking various people in the office what ailed them. One sad-faced woman said she was suffering from rheumatism. The old gentleman who had asked her, within five minutes, while talking to some one else, in the same loud tone, said, "There ain't no cure for cancer and rheumatism." That reminded me of many of the folk fears that are still to be found. No wonder all sorts of folk remedies are applied, in a vain hope that something will turn the trick. The idea of cause and effect is not very obvious in many minds. Disease just comes, and some of it is incurable, just as a tree struck by lightning blights everything made of it, and a fire so started cannot be put out with water.

People who live in good houses and have a respectable income often forget how much a creature of fear their more humble brother may be. First of all, there is the law, which many a man fears worse than death. Some people are thrown into a positive panic when a legal request of some sort is presented them, just as many Negroes fear that there is some trick in a check. Fear of the dark I have already discussed in this column, but much else could be said for what it causes for what it causes people to think and do. One of the worst fears concerns itself with what is strange and new. The old-fashioned steam engines were such fearful things that some people are still afraid of anything that resembles an engine. I know plenty of people who are a bit excited and puzzled when they talk over a telephone.

The old gentleman in the doctor's office voiced a fear that is found everywhere. In spite of the great advances that have been recently made in the world of medicine, many a person still fears that the diseases that the educated know can be cured are hopeless. I can recall when tuberculosis was looked upon as a curse of the days of bad tonsils and infected teeth, held terrors for many people and still does. The idea of germs is gradually making itself understood, but the chemistry behind rheumatism puzzles most beyond words; hence the old man's assertion that it is incurable.

Fear of the weather and of storms does not seem so prevalent as formerly. I can remember when everybody disconnected his telephone when a storm came up, when people sat or lay on feather beds to avoid being struck by lightning, when anything made of metal was quickly laid aside during a storm. Even for the brave nothing is quite so puzzling as the freaks of storms, but a sort of curiosity in what is coming next often saves the day. People who have not prayed in years have been known to break forth rather fervently in a bad storm. Thus we are all of the folk when fear comes in some spectacular or unusual form.

SCHOOL NEWS

FULTON HIGH

By JANE ALLEY

Christmas has many meanings but to the college folks it means home again and back in the old stomping ground. Fulton's college group is no exception. The last few days of school found many alumni of Fulton High on hand greeting old friends and former school mates. Among those who found the local institute of education the same as in yesteryear were Robt. Koelling, Bobby Snow, Bill Williams, Dane Lovelace, Ann Valentine, Peggy Williams, Harold Peeples, Martha Melton, Warren Thompson, Ray Hunter and Alice Cavender. They have provided the present student body with many insights of the life at the various colleges which they represent.

Most of the members of the student body and faculty are planning to spend the holidays at home, to enjoy the holiday activities. Miss Gayle will spend her vacation in Florida. Others may take short trips.

The student body is indebted to the school board for an extra day of vacation. The day set for the dismissal of school was formerly Thursday but the board saw fit to dismiss school a day earlier for which the students and faculty are very grateful.

In behalf of the student body I wish each and every one a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

SOUTH FULTON

Superintendent J. B. Cox and Coach Leon Smith attended the district meeting of basketball coaches and superintendents at Union City, Monday night. At this meeting the place where the district tournaments was chosen: Girls District at Union City, Boys District at Dresden.

The Freshmen Class had their Christmas Party at the home of Elaine Vaughn Saturday night. Miss Christine Johnston is sponsor of this class.

The Juniors had their Christmas entertainment at Stephen's cabin on the Mayfield highway Saturday night. They were chaperoned by their sponsor Miss Allie D. Williams.

The Seniors and Sophomores are planning their entertaining for this week.

Miss Christine Johnston and Mrs. Malcolm Smith entertained the faculty of South Fulton with a Chinese Checker Party Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Newt Bondurant.

The Fulton high school band directed by Uel Harrison gave a very enjoyable program before the student body Tuesday morning.

School was dismissed for the Christmas holidays Thursday afternoon following a program given by the students before the P. T. A. and the student body.

CASUAL INVENTIONS

Most inventions of the present are made by men of the highest mechanical and engineering skill, who devote themselves almost exclusively to the discovery and development of improved means for doing every conceivable mechanical job.

In earlier times, however, many epoch-making inventions were produced by casual inventors, most of whom had no special training whatever for such work.

Among these may be mentioned Robert Fulton, of steamboat fame, who was a portrait painter; Richard Arkwright, inventor of the loom, who was a barber; Edmond Cartwright, who produced the power loom, was a clergyman; S. B. F. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, was also a noted portrait painter; Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, was a teacher of deaf mutes, and so on through a list which might be almost indefinitely extended.

According to the United Press, a questionnaire recently sent to several thousand practical inventors elicited the opinion that even today originality of thought is more important for an inventor than mere mechanical ability; in fact, originality is considered ten times as important.

It seems that there is no fixed rule in the matter, but the weight of experience indicates that inventive genius will generally assert itself, with or without special training.

TURKEY HASH NO LONGER POPULAR

Turkey hash not wanted! So announce American housewives in registering their preference for small and medium-size holiday birds. Large birds leave too much left-over meat for hash.

E. Y. Smith, New York turkey expert, recently told a meeting of Kentucky turkey raisers about his experiences on eastern markets. Forty-three per cent of housewives prefer the medium-size turkey, that is, one weighing 11 to 14 pounds dressed, and 30 per cent of the women want small birds, those weighing 8 to 10 pounds.

Three-fourths of the housewives in some sections also want yellow-fleshed birds, according to Smith. Yellow meat comes from feeding yellow corn. Kentucky women, however, and women in most of the country, it is said, don't pay so much attention to the color of the meat as they do to the finish of the turkey. They want well-finished birds.

PECANS MAKE GOOD

HOLIDAY DESSERTS

In discussing holiday desserts, Miss Marie Barkley of the University of Kentucky home economics department says that pecan cakes are just as popular in Kentucky as fruit cakes. She has found the following recipe a successful one:

3 pounds seeded raisins, 2 1-2 pounds pecans, 1-2 pound candied orange peel, 1-4 pound candied cherries, 2 slices candied pineapple, 1 pound butter, 1 dozen eggs, 2 pounds sugar, 1 pound browned flour, 1 pound white flour, 2-3 cup molasses, 1 pint grapejuice, 4 teaspoons nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 3 teaspoons baking powder.

To the fruit and nuts add half of a pound of the white flour and mix thoroughly. Cream the butter and sugar, then add the yolks of the eggs beaten slightly. To this add the molasses, browned flour and half of the grapejuice, then the dry ingredients, the remainder of the grapejuice and the whites of the eggs beaten stiffly. The fruit and nuts are added last and thoroughly mixed. Place the batter in two six-pound molds which have been well greased and lined, both sides and bottom, with one layer of greased paper. Bake at 325 degrees for three hours.

Foest and brush fires swept more than 700,000 acres of land in California in 1936.

Approximately 15,000 homicides are committed in the United States each year.

The Illinois conservation department killed 150,000 crows last winter with dynamite bombs.

We are hoping that every one of you enjoys the happiness of Christmas and the holiday season. We wish to take this opportunity to express our thanks for patronage and hope that we may serve you in the year to come.

(The following editorial was written by C. P. J. Mooney and first appeared in The Commercial Appeal on Dec. 22, 1912.)

There is no other character in history like that of Jesus.

As a preacher, as a doer of things, and as a philosopher, no man ever had the sweep and vision of Jesus. A human analysis of the human actions of Jesus brings to view a rule of life that is amazing in its perfect detail.

The system of ethics Jesus taught during his earthly sojourn 2000 years ago was true then, has been true in every century since and will be true forever.

Plato was a great thinker and learned in his age, but his teachings did not stand the test of time. Is big things and in little things time and human experience have shown that he erred.

Marcus Aurelius touched the reflective mind of the world, but he was as cold and austere as brown marble.

The doctrine of Confucius gave a great nation moral and mental dry rot.

The teachings of Buddha resulted in mental and moral chaos that makes India derelict.

Mohammed offered a system of ethics which was adopted by millions of people. Now their children live in deserts where once there were cities, along dry rivers where once there was moisture, and in the shadows of gray, barren hills where once there was greenness.

Thomas Aquinas was a profound philosopher, but parts of his system have been abandoned.

Francis of Assisi was Christlike in his saintliness, but in some he was childish.

Thomas a Kempis' Imitation of Christ is a thing of rare beauty and sympathy, but it is, as its name indicates, only an imitation.

Sir Thomas More's Utopia is yet a dream that cannot be realized.

Lord Bacon writing on chemistry and medicine under the glasses of the man working in a twentieth century laboratory is futile.

The world's most learned doctors until a hundred and fifty years ago gave dragon's blood and the ground dried tails of lizards and shells of eggs for certain ailments. The great surgeons a hundred years ago bled a man if he were wounded.

Napoleon had the world at his feet for four years, and when he died the world was going on its way as if he had never lived.

Jesus taught little as to property because He knew there were things of more importance than property. He measured property and life, the body and soul, at their exact relative value. He taught much as to character, because character is of more importance than dollars.

Other men taught us to develop system of government. Jesus taught us to perfect the minds of men. Jesus looked to the soul, while other men dwelled on material things.

After the experience of 2000 years, no man can find a law in the governmental system as outlined by Jesus.

Czar and kaiser, president and socialist, give to its complete merit their admiration.

No man today, no matter whether he follows the doctrine of Mills, Marx or George as to property, can find a false principle in Jesus' theory of property.

In the duty of a man to his fellows, no socialist has ever approximated the perfection of the doctrine laid down by Jesus in His Sermon on the Mount.

Not all the investigations of chemists, not all the discoveries of explorers, not all the experiences of rulers, not all the historical facts that go to make up the sum of human knowledge on this day in 1912 are in contradiction to one word uttered or one principle laid down by Jesus.

The human experiences of 2000 years show that Jesus never made a mistake. Jesus never uttered a doctrine that was true at that time and then became obsolete.

Jesus spoke the truth: He lived the truth; and truth is eternal.

History has no record of any other man leading a perfect life or doing everything in logical order. Jesus is the only person whose every action and whose every utterance strike a true tone in the heart and mind of every man born of woman. He never said a foolish thing, never did a foolish act and never dissembled.

No poet, no dreamer, no philosopher loved humanity with the love that Jesus bore toward men. Who, then, was Jesus?

He could not have been merely a man, for there never was a man who had two consecutive thoughts absolute in truthful perfection.

Jesus must have been what Christendom proclaims Him to be—a Divine Being—or He could not have been what He was. No mind but an infinite mind could have left behind those things which Jesus gave to the world as a heritage.

Where Seventh World's Poultry Congress Activities Will Center

From July 28 to August 7, 1939, Cleveland's mammoth Public Auditorium will become the Hall of Meetings for the Seventh World's Poultry Congress and Exposition. At the center of the great group of buildings that will house the world's largest industrial exposition, this huge hall will accommodate the scientific and sectional meetings of the World's Poultry Science Association. These meetings, at which English, French, Spanish and German will be the official languages, will attract poultry scientists from every corner of the world. Here, too, official delegations from at least sixty overseas nations will have their headquarters. Here will be a continuous and interlocking schedule of meetings dealing with every phase of the poultry industry—meetings for the poultry raiser, dealing with poultry culture and marketing, meetings for the processor, the handler and marketer of poultry products—and meetings for the consumer with demonstrations illustrating new and economical ways of preparing poultry for consumption. For a busy eleven days this Hall of Meetings will be the center of interest for a host of a half million or more poultry folk and the "Mecca" toward which worldwide poultrydom will turn its eyes. By securing a membership ticket for $1.00 the public may attend for eleven days with no additional expense.

WHOA, MULE!

A poet—and, as Chaucer would say, "It am not I"—should write a rhapsody on the mule, the humble, ugly, stubborn critter that is associated in all our memories with the old-fashioned farm and is still one of the forces in our civilization. Race horses have many a champion; even the humbler horses can boast of a respectable literature in their favor. But the mule is at best a sort of scapegoat or a comic creature, humbly waiting for an immortality in verse.

It would not be fair to imagine that one's particular form of rearing is the one and only genuine; yet it is a bit hard to imagine a boy growing up from childhood to maturity without any contact with mules. Morally he needs to know mules, so that he can learn patience and long-suffering, from them; and from his own having to put up with them. Physically he can profit by contact with them, particularly if they are lazy and need frequent goading; muscles are thus developed without the expense of buying a punching-bag. One profits even mentally by putting his cocky human intelligence against whatever it is that a mule has, particularly a balky mule. Daily association for years with a mule hardens a boy to the kicks and gad-flies of life, so that he unconsciously acquires, quite unthinkingly, the philosophy that probably keeps a mule from committing suicide or from becoming cynical.

If one wants to moralize and to use the mule as a creature fore-ordained to be used as a figure of speech, it is easy enough to think how often this ugly brute does the hard work of the world and gets from his master nothing but more work. The old family nag, when worn out in her service to the family and her rearing of a numerous progeny, lovingly kept in her declining days, like some old retainers. Who ever heard of an old mule's being thus fed and cared for when it had got beyond the days of usefulness? The saddle horse is groomed until he shines; the buggy horse wears bright, good-smelling harness; but Old Beek knows only the plow gear and an apologetic scratching with a curry comb of her trace-chain-rubbed sides.

But it does not pay to be too tearful in this pleading for some poetic justice for Old Beek. Underneath all this outward humility lies the heart of a humorist, even of a mischievous one. How often I have watched a mule chasing and biting other stock, as if it were gifted with a sense of humor, a kind of bad-boy humor!

No eulogy of the mule would be complete without a reference to the Negro and the Mule. Side by side they have gone down through time, especially in America; my figure would be better if I implied that they had gone with the Negro behind the Mule. Outwardly we may think we, in our supercilious wisdom, understand them both; the wisest ones know that lurking within them is the same inscrutable mystery. No man knows how to appraise properly the mule unless it is the negro himself, who has following the humble beast of burden so many millions of miles across the tobacco and corn and cotton fields.

Some day probably a great poet will rise to give the mule his rightful place in a world of work, of misunderstanding, of mystery.

Rose Bowl Rivals

Of all post-season football games, that played in Pasadena's famous Rose Bowl annually holds chief interest for the nation's fans. The game to be played there on January 2 between Southern California and Duke will be no exception, as some unusual circumstances will lend interest to the contest.

In the first place, Howard Jones and Wallace Wade, head coaches of the respective teams, are both veteran Rose Bowl contenders, each having piloted teams there three times without a defeat, although Wade once played to a tie.

While head coach at Alabama, Wade defeated Washington in 1926, tied Stanford in 1927, and beat Washington State in 1931. Jones led Southern California to victory over Pittsburg in 1930, over Tulane in 1932, and over Pitt in 1933.

Duke goes to its first Rose Bowl contest with a remarkable record, being unbeaten, untied and unscored on by any opposing team during the entire 1938 season.

Southern California, although suffering two defeats early in the season, made such an impressive showing in later games as to be unanimously chosen to represent the West.

Other "bowl" games, with high-ranking teams as contestants, to be played on January 2 are the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, Orange Bowl at Miami, Sun Bowl at El Paso, and Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

STAMP CHANGED CANAL

An interesting story of how a postage stamp caused the United States to build the great ship canal at Panama instead of through Nicaragua is told in a Belgian magazine, but we do not guarantee its accuracy.

When the question of whether to select the Panama or the Nicaragua route was before the Senate, there was a lively debate, each route having its champions among the solons. Among the points discussed was that of danger from earthquakes.

Senator Wilburn argued against the Nicaragua route, say it was in highly dangerous volcanic territory. Senator Followery, who favored that route, declared that the president of Nicaragua had solemnly assured him that no volcanic eruptions had occurred in his country for centuries.

A young engineer, who was interested in the Panama project, then showed Senator Wilburn a Nicaragua postage stamp which depicted the Montombo volcano in eruption. Wilburn immediately obtained enough stamps to place one on the desk of each senator, with a note calling attention to his official admission of volcanic activity.

As a result Nicaragua was abandoned and the Panama Canal route was approved by a big majority of the Senate.

36-38 DEGREES GOOD BUTCHERING WEATHER

When temperature is 36 to 38 degrees it is a good time to butcher, says a Kentucky College of Agriculture circular called, "Killing, Cutting and Curing Pork."

Kind of hogs to kill: Well-finished, weighing 175 to 200 pounds. Heavier hogs have too much fat. Keep hogs off feed 24 hours before killing, but allow free access to water.

The circular describes butchering equipment, killing and dressing, cutting up the carcass, curing the meat, and making box bacon, sausage, head cheese, scrapple, lard and pickled pigs' feet.

Ask county or home agents for circular No. 261 or write to the College of Agriculture, Lexington.

A survey of women workers has shown they are less cooperative than men workers and therefore harder to organize into labor unions.

This country has 213 different recognized religious sects. A census of religious bodies is taken

In his mellow moments Anthony Comstock, the "father of censorship" in America, used to estimate the number of box cars it would take to hold the men he has sent to jail for selling "immoral" literature.

The fastest growing thing known is gossip. A little rumor can grow into a mountainous story overnight.

Childlikeness

JESUS said (Mark 10:14): "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God." The great Teacher knew the loveliness and purity of the child thought. How the unquestioning innocence of a child must have appealed to him who constantly faced the unbelief and distrust of a world ready to destroy him! He understood children, and they came to him as naturally as the dower turns to the light, for the sweet, clean thought of a child accepts readily the loveliness of Love, wherever it is expressed.

One may think that when he attains a certain age he will no longer express childlikeness; but this is not so, for childlikeness is the purity and innocence of thought which is untainted by the beliefs of the world. According to a modern dictionary, "childlike suggests those qualities of childhood which are worthy of respect or emulation;" while "childish" indicates "its less pleasing and admirable characteristics."

Paul said (1 Corinthians 13:11): "When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things." We can well afford to "put away childish things,"—the petty, trivial suggestions that come from mortal mind. In order not to be hampered by the "childish things" of material sense we must adopt the spiritual concept of existence.

Mortals sometimes pride themselves upon their skeptical outlook on life, failing to realize that Life, God, is expressed only in loveliness and spiritual beauty. We cannot afford to carry us day by day the burden that results from materiality. The egotism and conceit of mortal mind's claim to power tend to adulterate the confident and abiding sense of trust we should have in our Father-Mother God. Childlikeness includes joyousness, spontaneity, and a pure uplifted outlook on life. These are needed so much in a world darkened by its own self-importance, troubled by wars and rumors of wars, the fears of mad ambition, and the pride of place and power.

In "Miscellaneous Writings" Mary Baker Eddy states (p. 110): "Beloved children, the world has need of you,—and more as children than as men and women; it needs your innocence, unselfishness, faithful affection, uncontaminated lives. You need also to watch, and pray that you preserve these virtues unstained, and lose them not through contact with the world."

Is it not probable that Jesus, in dealing with the self-assurance of the doctors of the law, the phariseism of the priests and rabbis, the continual unbelief of the carnal mind, felt relief when there appeared before him the sweet, loving, whole-some purity of the child thought? Children, doubtless, recognized his tenderness and purity, and felt at home with him. He, likewise, felt at home with them, because of their sweet thinking. It is possible for all to include this same sweetness in their thinking, regardless of what mortal mind argues about age.

Genuine childlikeness is a very desirable evidence of right thinking. When one manifests enough humility to be childlike and teachable, one is blessed with a serene trust in God, good. True childlikeness never strives for place and power, is never tainted with selfish ambition or greed, for it has within itself all the loveliness of good.

The great Master left this statement, which may well be pondered by everyone (Mark 10:15): "Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein."—The Christian Science Monitor.

Introducing a New President

After more than twelve years as president of the Illinois Central System I have taken over the duties of chairman of the board, and the duties of president have been assumed by J. L. Beven.

Mr. Beven is truly an Illinois Central man. He came from an Illinois Central family and started to work for the railroad at the age of twelve. He became a division officer before he was thirty, and he has now been on our general staff more than eighteen years. For the last eight years he has been senior vice-president.

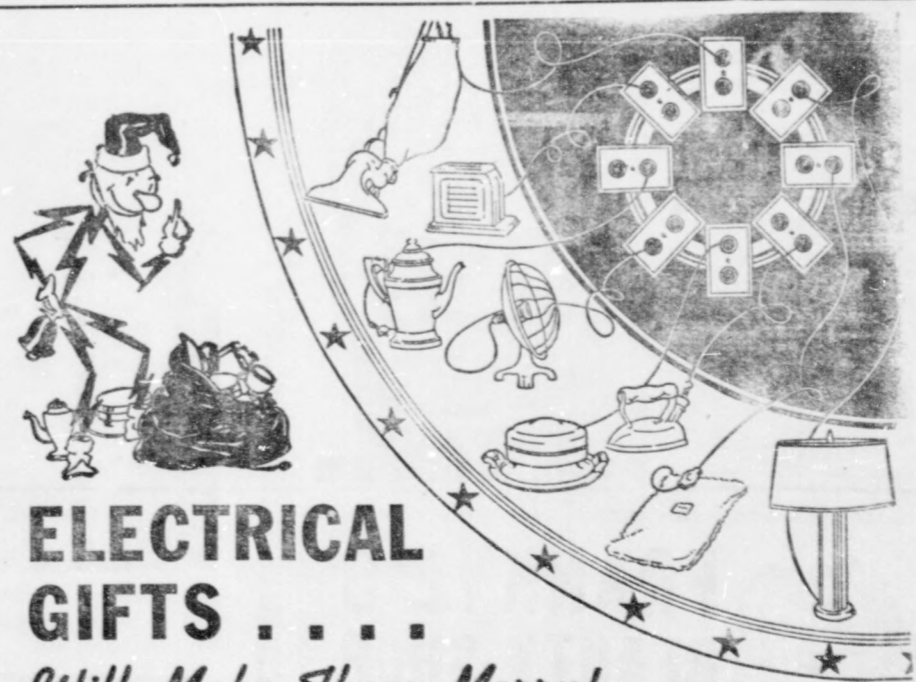

As president Mr. Beven will speak for the Illinois Central System and will carry on our relations with the public which I have so greatly enjoyed.

To those who have shown their friendship for the Illinois Central System in many different ways during my service as president I express my deepest gratitude.

And to all our friends and patrons everywhere I send the best wishes of all of us at the Illinois Central System for a most Merry Christmas.
