C. of C. Banquet February 11th

Notwithstanding the inclement weather Tuesday evening, a large crowd attended the Chamber of Commerce meeting. President Nugent was in the chair and there was not a dull minute during the two hour session. After Secretary Davis read the minutes of last meeting he briefly reviewed what had been accomplished during 1929 and outlined some of the work contemplated for 1930.

A pleasing part of the session was the reports of the various committees, all showing good work had been done and much accomplished for the betterment of the community. The audited financial report of the Chamber read by J. E. Fall, showed more than $5,000.00 had been expended during the fiscal year closing with a bank balance of more than $300.00 on January 1, 1930.

Tuesday, February 11, was the date set for the annual banquet, when directors will be elected to serve for the ensuing year. A membership campaign drive will be voted and it was unanimously voted Tuesday night that the Chamber continue to function and every loyal citizen do his utmost to make Fulton the best city on the map.

A number of important projects were discussed by various members and visitors. Among the outstanding topics being roads, hospital and farm development.

W. C. Curran, of Hickman, was present, and briefly outlined the advantages of a hospital to a community.

Dr. Seldon Cohn's talk on the contemplated hospital for Fulton was fine. R. H. Wade also had something to say regarding the hospital and closed his remarks by saying he was ready to do his share by subscribing for stock or donating to such an institution.

The report of Joe Browder on Harris Fork Creek was well received especially by those menaced by this little stream when on a rampage. Some hard work has been done to keep the creek cleaned out.

The new county agent, Mr. Brown, was introduced to the assembly and made a brief talk also did Mr. Kilpatrick, state agricultural agent.

A. C. Butts, the well known dairyman, made a talk on the Duketown road, a lively subject in which several took part.

Mr. Burns, of Swift and Company, made an interesting talk and highly complimented the activities of the Chamber of Commerce.

Taking it as a whole, Tuesday night's meeting was one of the best held in a long time and all in attendance was glad he was there.

Just before adjournment, Fire Chief Lee Roberts served refreshments and Chancellor cigars.

CHAIN STORE

TAX PLANNED

Senator Young Would Raise $2,000,000 Through Bill

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 20. — Before the Senate Appropriations Committee of which he is a member, Senator Allie W. Young announced today that he is preparing a retail store tax bill aimed at the chain systems that should produce $2,000,000 a year revenue. The bill, he said, will provide that half the revenue be applied against the State's floating indebtedness, now about $10,000,000, and the other half to the general purpose fund, to be appropriated as the General Assembly sees fit.

Under the bill, single stores would pay $25 a year license tax into the State Treasury, the tax on chain systems would be graduated upward. The fortieth store, for example, would pay $525.

Senator Young said that his constituents felt that the chain stores were menacing local business, and that he was sure that they would not object to a tax on retail stores if they said that the chain store systems were the more heavily taxed. He said that under the revenue bill he was now drafting that with the single stores as a basis, the large organizations would pay more per store as the number of stores operated increased.

In his message to the General Assembly last Tuesday, Governor Sampson commented on the growth of chain stores and suggested the desirability of legislative action to curb them. Senator Young did not refer to this recommendation in explaining his bill.

Senator Perry B. Gaines, who called the meeting of the committee, said that the general desire is to curb expenditures as much as possible to make possible some reduction in the floating debt. He expressed the opinion that a number of budget commission recommendations could be practically reduced.

AUSTIN SPRINGS FARMER FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH

Ben Cantrell, 36, Dies in Snow Storm While Driving on Palmersville Road

Mayfield, Ky., Jan. 20. — Ben Cantrell, 36, well known farmer of the Austin Springs community across the line in Tennessee, was found on the Palmersville road Saturday afternoon frozen to death.

Cantrell was driving on the road during the snow storm late Friday afternoon when his car overturned and landed in a ditch. It is thought that he freed himself from the wreckage and in a dazed condition fell into a puddle of water, where his body was found about 4 o'clock the next afternoon.

Funeral services were held yesterday with burial at the Workman cemetery.

Mr. Cantrell is survived by his widow, five children and several brothers. One brother, Dutch Cantrell, resides in Mayfield.

CIRCLE NO. 5 MEETS WITH MRS. WILLIAMS

Mrs. R. S. Williams was the charming hostess to Circle No. 5 of the First Baptist church on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Mrs. Newt Bondurant, our new president, presided graciously over the business session of the body and gave the devotional. Plans for the new year were discussed after which a very unusual and entertaining program was given with Mrs. Earle Taylor as leader. Her topic was "Be Ye Steadfast."

Mrs. C. F. Jackson gave an article entitled "What missions are doing in the United States and what they could do." The circle was very happy to have Mrs. Russell Rudd and Mrs. W. O. Shankle for guests.

The hostess served a dainty salad course to twelve members during the social hours.

whack at 'em and I will have at least ten poultry raisers there and they will be chicken raisers too, for when the boys and girls of Sylvan Shade set their heads to do anything they make it a go, and I expect to see some good chickens at the fair this next fall from that precinct.

This afternoon we will go out to Lodgston precinct and organize that school. While this is not a large school, still we expect to get some good poultry raisers from there. The size of the club or school does not necessarily control the grade of stock shown. I remember one year at the Chicago National show we had a Rhode Island Red meet, and there were reds from all over the United States, some breeders bringing as many as 75 or 100 birds, but there was one man entered one hen, and this was the only chicken he had in the show but he won first prize hen over the Owen Farms, Mahood and several other Big breeders.

Mr. Brown has organized 16 members of this bunch there will be about five or six poultry raisers. He also organized Hickman high school with 20 member and ten of them will go in for poultry.

This makes 41 poultry raisers from six of the schools visited and organized. It looks very much as if we will have 75 members of the 4-H club starting to make Fulton county the best poultry county in the state. Come on, 4-H members. Let us show the old folks up. Let us make poultry pay better than any other commodity on the farm.

Now I don't want you growing up to think we are not going to have anything in this county but 4-H club members. We want everybody who can to raise chickens and join the poultry association. If we can have about 200 entries at the show this fall, I will be tickled almost to death. That will mean about 1,000 chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys in the Fulton show and we will top every show in the state. Louisville state show this year had a few over 900. We should have at least 100 bonafide poultry raisers belonging to the poultry association and exhibiting poultry at the fair. Won't every poultry raiser in the county come in and join us and help us put on the best poultry show in the Mississippi Valley?

The dues are only $1.00 per year and each one who joins helps us more than you imagine. We want you. We need you. Don't put it off. Do it now.

SAME OLD FRAUD

We note in an exchange, a warning out of Washington to the effect that smooth individuals are believed to be preparing to flood the country with offers of oil stocks of a doubtful nature, believing that they can unload a lot of fraudulent stuff on that part of the public still susceptible to honeyed words and alluring literature. We are passing the word along in the hope that the Fulton man with a desire to speculate will look before he leaps. Unless you know positively what you are buying, oil and gold mine stocks are the most dangerous kind in the world to monkey with. Bankers are always glad to advise you as to the genuineness of such offerings. If they are in doubt, then you had better let the offer alone no matter how tempting it may be. "This is apt to be a fat year for fake stock salesmen," says the Washington dispatch. Is there any reason why you should help to make it so by biting at their schemes?

Much Suffering In Flooded Territory

(By J. T. Watkins)

FLOOD SITUATION REPORTED WORSE

As zero carved its name upon the snow-covered chest of middle America, and falling streams froze to alleviate flood dangers, the run-off of snows and rains filled southern streams until, raging torrents, they broke through levees and spread out over fertile farm lands.

More than 180,000 acres in Arkansas lay under from 2 to 3 feet of water the first of the week as engineers fought to prevent further breaking of levees weakened by battering flood waters for the past week.

Big Lake, in Mississippi county, crashed through one of its major levees, flooding 170,000 acres. In northwest Arkansas the St. Francis river poured over a levee and flooded 10,000 acres. Lowlands in other parts of the state were flooded.

Crevasse 300 Feet Wide

The break on Big Lake opened a crevasse 300 feet wide and rushing dirty waters soon flowed three feet deep through the smaller villages in the county. Hundreds of workmen labored through the night to top dikes and back levees as higher water was expected.

Cold that swept out of the Rockies descended upon virtually all of the central and northwest part of the country. Snow drifted high along ice-covered highways that shone as sheets of glass and untold suffering was prevalent among people who had been driven from their homes by floods.

In southwestern Indiana the flood condition was still serious and unchecked by the zero wave. At Vincennes a crisis was awaited as the raging Wabash was expected to reach its crest.

Red Cross at Work

The mid-west branch of the American Red Cross Monday night was notified that between 100 and 150 families were marooned by the flood waters of the St. Francis river in the Big Lake district of Arkansas. They were without means of rescue, the Red Cross was told.

The Red Cross made arrangements for construction of six flat bottom boats at Blytheville, Ark., to bring the families out and shipped outboard motors from St. Louis to power them.

The situation is steadily growing worse and the water is up to the eaves of some houses.

CITY NATIONAL BANK RE-ELECTS OLD OFFICERS

The annual election of directors and officers of the City National Bank of Fulton for the year of 1930 was held at its office last week with no changes made in the personnel of either the board of directors, officers or employees.

Directors elected were W. W. Morris, Joe Browder, T. N. Fields, W. A. Terry, Enoch Crowder, Sam T. Butler, N. G. Crook, W. P. Murrell, E. F. Karmire, L. F. Burke, C. P. Williams.

Officers were W. W. Morris, president; W. A. Terry, vice-president; N. G. Cooke, active vice-president; Clyde P. Williams, cashier; E. J. Pigue, assistant cashier. Bookkeepers, Madge Taylor and Hattie Mae Godfrey.

A statement of the condition of the City National Bank, as of January 16, 1930, appears in this issue of the Advertiser, showing total resources of more than one million dollars. No wonder "That Strong Bank" member of Federal Reserve System, under United States Government supervision, can report a successful and outstanding career in banking circles.

MRS. LUCY ADYLOTT IS BURIED IN CLINTON

Clinton, Ky. —Mrs. Lucy Adylott died in St. Louis following a lengthy illness. The body was brought to Clinton where the funeral took place at the home of Mrs. Adylott's niece, Mrs. John B. Day. Burial was in Mt. Moriah cemetery.

OIL STOVE CAUSES CREMATION OF FOWLS

Fire destroyed the building housing the 280 blooded Leghorn hens at the M. C. Walts chicken farm east of Hickman. An overheated oil stove was supposed to have started the blaze. The loss is estimated at about $800.

BURY MOTHER AND SON

Mayfield, Ky., Jan. 18. — Mrs. G. W. Ligon, 63, and her son, George S. Ligon, 29, victims of pneumonia, were buried in the same grave in Maplewood cemetery Saturday. Funeral services were held at the First Baptist church with the pastor, the Rev. W. H. Horton, in charge. Mrs. Ligon's husband is one of the operators and the young man died 12 hours later.

STARTING EARLY CHICKS

By Prof. H. D. Munroe
Of all the phases of poultry management, raising chicks is the most important. To many people the care of young chicks may seem a comparatively simple matter, yet poorly grown chickens have been the cause of as many, or perhaps more, failures in poultry keeping than any other cause.

Buying strong, healthy chicks is the first step in successful brooding. Cheap chicks are often the most expensive. The first cost is not important. The real cost of chicks should be based on the number alive at the end of three weeks rather than on the price paid when hatched.

In preparing for the early brood, scrape the brooder house floor, scrub the floor and walls with lye water, and thoroughly clean out all corners. Spray the house, mash boxes, drink-in fountains, brooder stove, roosts and all tools with Liquor Creosolis Compound U. S. P., or some other disinfectant.

Start the heater three days before the chicks arrive and test the heater, the thermostat and the thermometer. Regulate the stove so that it will hold a temperature of 90 to 95 degrees at the edge of the hover one inch from the floor.

Spread litter of shavings, cut straw or peat moss about one inch deep over the entire floor. Keep the litter covered with paper, or feed sacks, the first two days after the chicks are put out.

Arrange a wire, cardboard or roofing paper circle fence 12 inches high around the stove two feet from the hover. In cold, windy weather cover the wire circle with paper or feed sacks to prevent floor drafts.

When the chicks arrive they are usually ready to put under the brooder. Give them luke warm water. Feed mash when they are forty-eight hours old. Be sure that there are no floor drafts and kill all weak, sickly or deformed chicks.

Don't crowd chicks. A ten foot by twelve foot house is large enough for from 250 to 300 chicks.

Firemen Rescue Man Twice as Home Burns

Boston.—Firemen did more than their share of rescue work in an East Boston apartment house fire. First, they carried the palama-ead Francis Bell down an extension ladder from the third floor. Next came Bell's St. Bernard dog and his two cats. Then the chill air penetrated Bell's pajamas. He returned to his apartment for more clothing and fire men rescued him again.

SHEEP DOG SAVES FLOCK IN BLAZE

Is Hero of Forest Fire in Washington.

Stevenson, Wash.—This is the story of Laddie, a nervous little shepherd dog.

During the recent forest fire which destroyed the town of Greenleaf, Wash., located 15 miles west of here on the Columbia river, and which threatened destruction to Stevenson, Laddie became the hero of the day.

Fires were raging along the slopes of Hamilton mountain and along Woodward creek. Between the two walls of flames a flock of sheep was grazing peacefully. C. H. Craig, Harry Patrick and Mrs. Craig were tending the flock with their two dogs, Laddie and Cap.

The sheep became panic stricken as the flames raced on toward them. Efforts to get them out of the place were made by the herders. After hours of tireless efforts in which a bell goat, Billie, was drafted in, the herders gave up the task and left the sheep to the fate of the demon. But Laddie stood by.

Attempts were made by the herders to reach their sheep and Laddie again, but the flames had jumped the road, cutting them off.

The next day the fire had subsided temporarily and passage to the grazing ground was made. Upon their arrival they found no sheep, not even a piece of fleece.

They searched the adjacent vicinity and soon the thinking of a bell—the one worn by the goat—was heard. Then the flock came into view.

And there was Laddie, a nervous wreck, racing round and round the flock, keeping them together. Not a sheep was missing nor was a fleece scorched. All were brought to safety through the dog's efforts.

Maid Who Cut Baby's Throat Sent to Prison

New York.—Pauline Hutchins, a nineteen-year-old neccess, was sentenced to serve from four to eight years in Auburn prison for slashing the throat of three-year-old Florence Dorfman.

The Hutchins girl was hired last spring by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dorfman to look after their daughter. On the night of April 25 the parents went out, leaving the child in Pauline's care. When Mrs. Dorfman telephoned the house later in the evening the maid told her that the child was ill. Hurrying home, Mrs. Dorfman found the baby bleeding from a wound in the throat. Pauline was arrested and admitted that she had cut the child's throat with a hunting knife, but advanced no reason for her act. She had been at one time in an institute for the feeble-minded.

In sentencing the girl Judge Stockell warned parents not to hire irresponsible girls to care for children. "If parents showed the same care for their children that they do for their jewelry there would be so such crimes as this," he said.

Man Carrying Dynamite Hit; Fails to Go Boom

Cumberland, Md.—Gleason Spangule, thirty-nine, the first accident victim to be treated at the new Memorial hospital, was carrying 18 sticks of dynamite and a box of caps when struck late one afternoon by an automobile driven by Rev. J. B. Unberger, of Huntington, Pa.

Spangule sustained a fractured right shoulder and possible fracture of the skull. He was employed by the Cumberland Contracting company on national highway work near Flint Stone. He was knocked down, but the explosives remained intact. The clergyman driver was held blameless as he was traveling at moderate speed and Spangule stepped in front of the machine, witnesses said.

MINISTER LEADS "DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE" LIFE

Strange Story Is Revealed When Bank Robber Takes His Own Life.

Le Mars, Iowa.—When Rex Frolkey, an Evangelical minister, committed suicide after robbing the Sioux Center State bank, a story of a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" existence stranger than fiction was disclosed.

Frolkey had plenty of money which leaves the motive for the crime a mystery. Three officers of the Orange City National bank identified the minister as one of the bandits who held up that institution on July 5 and got away with $4,600.

Confesses Crime.

Officers of the Emmet County Savings bank, of Estherville, awaited a picture of the body, hoping to link the dead man with the robbery of $2,700 from that bank on August 29. Officials said they were investigating other bank robberies in Iowa and South Dakota to learn if Frolkey had a part in them.

Frolkey protested his innocence of the Sioux Center robbery, only to confess the crime a few minutes later to P. Dickman, tenant on a farm of his wealthy wife. Frolkey then shot himself.

Mrs. Frolkey lives in a bungalow here, one of the finest homes in Le Mars, with the two little boys born to Frolkey's first wife. A year ago she instituted divorce proceedings against the widower she married while he was working his way through college, but a reconciliation was effected.

"Rex had not been home for six weeks," she said. "He maintained an apartment in Sioux City because of business reasons, so I thought, and I did not see him until shortly before his death."

At Sioux City, it was said, the apartment was in a good neighborhood and Frolkey lived there alone.

Although he never held a ministerial charge, Frolkey substituted in numerous pulpits during the six or eight years he attended Western Union college. He also performed a few marriages.

G. P. Simeon, local newspaper man, for whom Frolkey promoted special college homecoming editions, said Frolkey's career also included activities as a football player at the college, amateur detective, radio operator, farm operator and lumber dealer.

Gotham Pants Burglar Outwits Police Dogs

New York.—Forty police dogs, 32 extra detectives and 100 extra policemen detailed to Staten Island to catch the "pants burglar" are going about that business with crest-fallen aspect because it has leaked out that while they were sniffing and peering for him, he had robbed the pants of Lewis Spaner, 172 Fairview avenue, Westchester.

Mr. Spaner went to sleep after folding his pants and leaving them on a chair, with $68 in a pocket. Not far away were 12 of the dogs, with a retinue of policemen, searching the neighborhood for Staten Island's star crook.

Mr. Spaner awakened just before dawn and slipped a mosquito. He rubbed his eyes and found the window screen had been removed. He looked for his pants. They were there, all nicely folded, but the $68 was not there. Nor was the "pants burglar" there; but he had been.

And over the gray walls of Staten Island broke the pitiless day.

Rattlesnake's Midnight Amble Across Bed Fatal

Porterville, Calif.—Waking to feel a large rattlesnake crawling over the blankets within a few inches of one's face is to much like a nightmare, according to Otto Tinnin, of West Texas, a visitor here.

Tinnin remained perfectly still until the snake had gone across the bed, then got up and killed it. Tinnin says Texas rattlesnakes are not as chummy as the California variety.

Meanest Man

Appleton, Wis.—The world's "meanest man," who frequently bores here and there, has made his appearance here. He robbed a cripple of sixty-five cents.

AN ORDEAL

A stage carpenter went to the theater manager one day and asked for an increase in his wages. The manager appeared surprised.

"Why," he exclaimed, "I really don't see my way to giving you a raise! You have nothing much to do. Half the time you are merely standing in the wings listening to the play."

"Yes, sir," replied the carpenter, grimly, "that's just it"—Ipswich Star.

The Birthday Party

Birthday anniversaries of the children are red-letter days in the family calendar. The arrival in the world of little Johnnie and little Mary were occasions for rejoicing and congratulations, deserving of annual commemoration. Another reason for birthday parties is the persistence of those who hope to be thus honored.

A birthday without temper or tears is ardently desired, but seldom realized. If there is to be no party, there are tears and if there is a party there are tears of the little guests to mingle with those of the little host. For though little Johnnie may have been a gift of the gods the fact cannot be disguised that contact with the world has made of him a very human being.

It would be entirely out of tune to punish little Johnnie on his birthday anniversary, all parents agree, and they start the day with determination to spare the rod and spoil the child. Unfortunately little Johnnie has more reasons for being naughty on his birthday than at other times. A great fuss is made over him. He receives presents that stimulate his sense of greed. If a party is given in his honor he has not yet awakened to the social requirement that his guest have a better time than he. Finally, nobody is quicker than he to discover that on this day of days the rules of discipline are to be temporarily waived.

If many adults cannot, how can a juvenile mind, especially on a birthday, distinguish between the meaning of liberty and license? Few grownups can realize that there is greater joy in being good because you will not be punished than in being bad because you will not be punished.

Most mothers plan a birthday party for their "little lamb" at least every other year, and just as many solemnly vow, as the last diminutive guest departs, that it will be the last. But time and nature mend shattered nerves and broken body in time for another party on the next birthday in the family.

Vanity of the Males

In a year $750,000,000 is spent in the barber shops of the United States. Less than two-thirds of that sum is spent for the essential shave and haircut. The remaining portion represents massages and hair tonics.

These statistics should dissuade some men from chiding the female of the species for her vanity. Men are rapidly becoming as much concerned as women with the care of the face. Beauty parlors are giving more attention to woman's hair, while the barber shop is diverting its attention to man's face.

There are several reasons for the prodigality with which men spend their time and money in the barber shop. Social customs requires that the hair be cut frequently and the face kept closely shaved. Prosperity and the feeling of relaxation afforded induces many to indulge in the facial massage, frequent shampoos and other tenuous luxuries. The necessity of making a good appearance in business and at work are influential agents. Greater social activity demands greater care with personal appearance. Rivalry between men and between sexes for youthful appearance and the appearance of culture is another explanation.

BLASE

Contrary to repeated reports the last horse and driver to be affrighted by one of the fruits of modern inventive and industrial genius have not departed from this globe. A man whose horse ran away upon first looking upon a steam roller described the engine as "an unsightly iron monster, with a boiler, cab and a fire and fuel chamber, mounted upon large heavy rollers and emitting loud and unseemly noises in its operation."

With a little editing this man's description would have served admirably as the description a country squire might have given 20 years ago of a "one lung" automobile which had raced by him in a cloud of dust at the terrific speed of eight miles an hour. Such incidents are provocative of much laughter and derision on the part of a generation which through constant association has learned to look upon the steam roller and the automobile as commonplace objects.

People who have been reared in the cities and towns of the United States amidst every engine and device known to this ultra-mechanical civilization, can no more sympathize with the excitement and amazement experienced by those who see them for the first time than the prehistoric could sympathize with the feeling of awe which would pass over the modern urbanite if he was to encounter a real flesh and blood Dinosauria.

The Store Clerk and You.

It makes quite a difference what kind of service you can get from the people who hand over goods to you in a retail store.

Do they just hand them over, naming the price and then turning away with a kind of indifferent look?

Or are they so anxious to sell to you, that they do not stop to consider what your wishes and needs are, but just try to put over on you whatever they think you will buy, and do it in the least possible time?

Those kinds of service you frequently see in stores when you go away from home, where the clerks never saw you before and never expect to see you again.

When you buy in Fulton you get personal attention, because the home store people know you, or at least wish to do so. They consider not merely selling you this time, but pleasing you so well that you will come again.

The ideal man, it seems, is always married to some other woman.

Things Missed

We cannot make bargain with blisses, Or catch them like fishes in nets; But sometimes the things that life misses, Help more than the things that it gets.

Birds of a Feather

Mr. Latitat—You sent a young man to me for a job as information clerk. Is he honest enough to work for me? Mr. Frankleigh—Just about that. But I wouldn't recommend him to anyone else.

Keeping Up to Date

His Wife—I do wish I had a new evening frock. Everyone will recognize this old one. Mr. Nickelpinch—Oh, just cut a little off each end and they'll think it's brand new.

A Receipt Needed

Jean—Have you heard that Donald's lost his memory altogether? Sandy—Well, well, how unfortunate! And to think I just gave him back the $5 I borrowed from him last week.

His Choice

Father—Which would you rather have, a little brother or a little sister? Little Jakey—If it's all the same to you, papa, I'd rather have a white rabbit with red eyes.

Claire, the Wallflower

By LEETE STONE

(Copyright.)

CLAIRE CONLEY was a wallflower. Ever since kindergarten days! Now, in her last year at a fashionable finishing school nestled in the Connecticut hills, she still lacked that indefinable quality that draws men.

Claire was psychologist enough to know that one convincing public proof of power to attract men would instantly include her in that sought-for inner circle that reached out successfully toward matters masculine. She was not unpopular; she played excellent tennis and bridge, and her frank personality won her admirers among the athletic contingent. But her constant wish was to be included in that elect group of girls, who got letters every day addressed in bold characters, and were invited to every Naval Academy dance.

Looking from her open window one June morning, with the scent of new-mown hay from the great meadow behind the dormitory meeting her nostrils fragrantly, Claire admitted that her desire to make a showing before the girls was camouflage. Deep in her heart she knew she wanted a man's companionship. She visualized a home with a sun-lit living room and a yellow china tea set—and a tall man who smoked a pipe, dropping ashes on the floor, and kissing her when she smiled.

She went to attend a talk on the "Art of Social Charm," by a respectable female in tweeds whose mind had long outrun her charm.

Claire observed the lecturer, pencil poised over her note book, with a slight sense of pity. Angular, flat-chested and masculine . . . how could this woman have captured the art of social charm? All at once she herself was captured by the woman's incisive logic. Trenchant lines wrote themselves mechanically on her note-book and unforgettably on her mind: "Eyelashes, lips and trim figures will catch a husband; but it needs brains to keep him caged in content."

and another, "It's the woman who acts immediately on the sudden, sometimes startling intuition of mind that conquers and keeps men, women and society at her feet."

That afternoon the tennis tournament finals were due. Claire was well in line for the tall silver cup. She had never felt more fit; more alert mentally and physically. Her service and net play were superb. At the stroke of four she slashed over the vicious, court-length lob that won her the cup.

Her friends trooped the court to congratulate. Even as she smilingly responded a wry reaction set in. Athletic honors! What did they matter?

The purr and whirr of the daily mail plane sounded overhead. As the group watched it, the even drone of the motor ceased and a sputtering series of coughs and racking explosions took place. At once the graceful man-made bird began circling and gently dropping down to the long flat meadow, ideal for landing.

In the stress of reaction a daring intuition swooped down, like the plane, to the flat, tired expanse of Claire's mind. The "Social Charm" lecturer's line returned to her consciousness with renewed force.

The mail plane glided to a skillful landing on the scouted field, so near the watching girls that the pilot's tall, handsome figure as he stepped from his flying niche to the ground was distinctly visible.

"If only he will turn and look at us . . ." thought Claire, almost wavering in her daring course of action, designed to prove to the girls once for all that she was not a wallflower, but in truth a "man's woman."

As if in obedience to Claire's mental command, the young man turned and faced the group with a smile and a cheery, casual wave of his hand. Claire's cue! Flushing her ratchet down, she returned the wave enthusiastically, crying to the amazed group:

"Why—why—it's Joe! They must have put him on this run." And she flew across the field toward the pilot, who had turned back to his motor.

"Joe" looked around at the sound of Claire's running feet, and went a trifle white under his tan as she threw her arms around his neck.

"Hug me!" she whispered, "as though you loved me! I'll explain later if you'll leave me your address."

"You needn't explain," he murmured in a breathless baritone. Suddenly he held her shoulders out at arm's length and stared hungrily at her. A blush reddened his boyish face. Then he smiled as if he visioned something no one else could see.

He folded her close again; so close Claire felt the thud of his heart. They clung so a brief moment. Rousing herself from her new heaven, and all at once a little afraid of the stare of the waiting girls, she forced his arms away, gently.

"I must—oh, I must run—my—my dear!"

"So must I," he replied, eyes on the mail bags. "But I'm coming back, right to this spot—Sunday!"

STANDARDS OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:1-48 (Print vv. 2-5, 17-29, 42-48).

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus Teaches Us to Live.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Standard of Life and Service.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Accepting and Following the Highest Ideals.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Christian According to Christ.

1. The Characteristics of the Subjects of the Kingdom (vv. 1-12). These characteristics are set forth in the nine beatitudes.

1. The consciousness of spiritual poverty (v. 3).
"Poor in spirit" means to come to the end of self in a state of spiritual beggary.

2. A profound grief because of the spiritual insolvency (v. 4).
The mourning here is because of the keen consciousness of guilt before a holy God.

3. A humble submission to God's will (v. 5).
This is the outgrowth of mourning over spiritual insolvency.

4. An intense longing to conform to the laws of the kingdom (v. 6).
The one who has received the righteousness of Christ as a free gift follows after the purity of character which expresses itself in deeds of righteousness.

5. Merciful (v. 7).
The subjects of the kingdom now take on the character of the King. Because of the mercifulness of Christ, His followers will be merciful.

6. Purity of heart (v. 8).
Since the King is absolutely pure, the subjects who enjoy fellowship with Him must have heart purity.

7. Peacemakers (v. 9).
The subjects of His kingdom not only have peace, but follow after that which makes for peace.

8. Suffering for Christ's sake (v. 10).
The world hated Christ, the King; therefore those who reflect His spirit in their lives shall suffer persecution (II Tim. 3:12).

9. Suffer reproach (v. 11).
To have all manner of evil spoken against us for Christ's sake is an occasion for glorying.

10. The Responsibilities of the Subjects of the Kingdom (vv. 13-16).
The world is in utter darkness because of its corruption. The subjects of the kingdom are to live such lives as to purify and enlighten. Their responsibilities are set forth under the figures of salt and light.

1. Ye are the salt of the earth (v. 13).
The properties of salt are (1) Penetrating, (2) Purifying, (3) Preserving. Since salt only preserves and purifies in the measure that it penetrates, so Christians only as they enter into the life of the world can preserve it from decay.

2. Ye are the light of the world (v. 14).
This world is cold and dark. In this darkness the devil has set many pitfalls, and the subjects of the kingdom should so live as to prevent the unwary from stumbling.

III. The Laws of the Kingdom (vv. 20-48).

1. As to deeds of righteousness (v. 20).
The deeds of the subjects of the kingdom must spring from Christlike natures.

2. As to sanctity of life (vv. 21-30).
The duty of the subject of the kingdom is to conserve and sustain his own life and the life of others. Rash anger is heart murder (v. 22).

3. As to organized life (vv. 27-32).
The family is the unit of society. The two awful sins against the family are (1) Adultery, (2) Divorce.

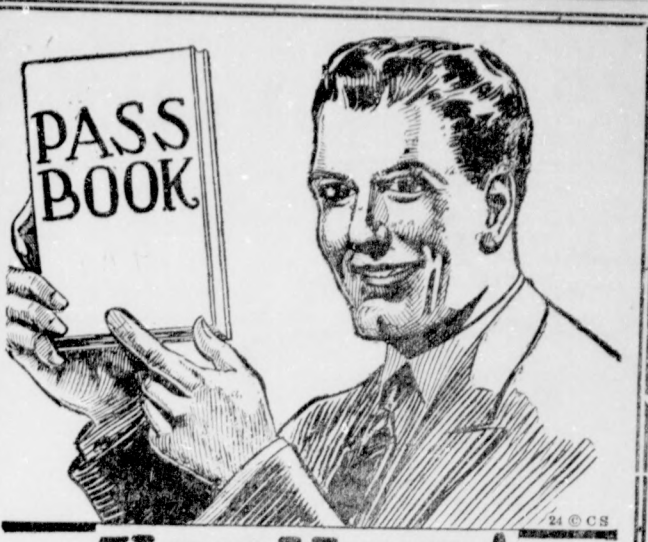

4. As to oaths (vv. 33-37).
Whatever is more than the simple form of affirmation or denial comes of evil.

5. As to behavior toward those who do not recognize the laws of the kingdom (vv. 38-48).

(1) Not revengeful (vv. 39, 40).
Turning the other cheek after being smitten, means, after one insult, permit another without revenge. (2) Willingness to do more than is required (v. 41). If compelled to go one mile, go two miles with the one thus compelling you. (3) Be charitable (v. 42). Our hearts should always be open, ready to give to all. (4) Love enemies (vv. 43-48). Love to them consists in: a. Blessing them that curse us, b. Doing good to them that hate us, c. Praying for those who spitefully use us.

Consciousness of Duty
In every heart there is a consciousness of some duty or other required of it; that is the will of God. He that would be saved must get up and do that will—if it be but to sweep a room or make an apology, or pay a debt.—George MacDonald.

Entering Heaven's Gates
Heaven's gates are not so highly arched as kings' palaces; they that enter there must get upon their knees.—Daniel Webster.

ROADS THEN AND NOW

So rapid has been the improvement of rural highways in ten years, yet almost without our realizing it, that the entire diet of the American people has been changed in that brief period of time. Not only that, but the paving of roads has caused a revolution in agricultural methods as well. For every mile of improved highway laid down some farmer has added something to his production of green vegetables marketed in the big centers of population.

In North Carolina, for instance, farms where nothing but tobacco was grown for years and years are now green with truck crops of all kinds. Dairying, too, has sprung into prominence in many states where it would have been impossible to get the milk to a city ten years ago. Farmers who once depended almost entirely on one staple crop—corn, cotton, tobacco, wheat—are now going in widely for vegetables and fruits which would have been too perishable to have been grown profitably under old transportation conditions.

You can note a big change of this kind right around Fulton if you want to study the subject a little. Our people are now able to grow many things they didn't grow ten years ago because good roads and the auto have made it possible for them to get such products to market. We're in better position to fight for our share of prosperity than we ever were before. We've found out that paved highways are essential to farm success. And since success in practically every field depends on success on the farm, it looks as though there is no longer any place in the United States for the man who fights a good roads movement of any kind.

THE CLOSED GARAGE

There is hardly a newspaper that does not at least once a year publish a warning about those death-dealing fumes emitted by running auto engines in closed garages. Yet in spite of this, people are still careless and insist on warming up the old bus behind closed doors. The result is a large number of deaths each winter. We are not yet over the dangerous period. That is why we want to sound one more warning to Fulton car owners. Exhaust from auto motors contains from five to 13 per cent carbon monoxide, a colorless, tasteless, odorless gas that is capable of producing death in two minutes. In warm weather it evaporates before it can reach the lungs. In cold or chilly weather, however, it does not pass so easily. Enough will come from the exhaust pipe of an ordinary car, running in a closed garage, to kill a dozen people. Don't be thoughtless; don't take chances. Open the garage doors—and leave them open before you start the car.

WHY NOT TRY IT?

Edward Hurley, one of Pres. Wilson's assistants during the war, says the industrial leaders of the world, can forever abolish war by a mere gentlemen's agreement. In a letter to the president of the International Chamber of Commerce, Hurley urges industrial chiefs to control the world's supply of iron ore, coal, rubber, manganese, nickel, aluminum, petroleum mercury and other things in such a manner that these materials will not be available in sufficient quantity to enable any nation to wage war effectively. This is a big program, but comparatively simple. Financial leaders of America alone could prevent war by a gentlemen's agreement. There is not a nation in Europe that could finance a war for two months—probably for two weeks—without calling on Uncle Sam for the money. That being true, we are wondering why our big business men do not set about a gentlemen's agreement at once. Anything that promises to end war is certainly worthy of a trial.

WATCHING THE GROUND HOG

Old Father Time has a way of mowing down weeks and months in a hurry, and here we are back to the time when the men who make our weather forecasts take a back seat while the groundhog makes his.

Customs change, but not this one. There will be just as many people around Fulton wondering this time "if the groundhog saw his shadow" as there ever was before on February 2. And this community is not an exception to the rule—the groundhog's movements will be watched and inquired about in every state in the union. Older citizens accept it as gospel that if he sees his shadow we are due for six more weeks of winter weather. And even though the younger generation of weather sharks wink an eye when discussing the subject they, too, always manage to cock the other eye skyward on February 1 to see if the sun is going to shine.

There may or may not be anything to the belief that the little animal can forecast for a period of six weeks ahead; we don't know and we don't want to get into an argument by venturing an opinion, since sentiment is pretty well divided. But this we do know, that if the groundhog can offer as many alibis for missing it as are offered by some of our local forecasters then he is entitled to qualify for the Ananias Club.

FOUR OBION RESIDENTS KILLED IN TWO DAYS

Train, River and Auto Take Heavy Death Toll

Union City, Tenn.—Cold weather and high water were blamed for the death of four Obion County residents Friday and Saturday in automobile accidents.

Mrs. Carmel Maddox of Union City was the fourth victim when her car was struck by a Mobile & Ohio passenger train Saturday morning at 9 o'clock near Nailling's Mill, after the automobile skidded into the pathway of the train.

Friday night, one mile north of Trimble, Evelyn Fields and Mildred Crockett of Obion, lost their lives in Obion River when their car, the driver blinded by snow, plunged off the levee on the Jeff Davis highway.

Near Millington Friday night Mrs. Roy Vincent of Union City was hurled from her automobile when struck by a second car after the driver had stopped to allow another car to pass. Snow on the highway was blamed for the accident.

Skull Fractured

Mrs. Maddox suffered a fractured skull, which caused her death just before 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Her husband is in a critical condition at a local hospital and their son, Elvis, 6, was seriously hurt in the wreck. Maddox's arm was amputated Saturday.

Mrs. Maddox is survived by her husband, the small son and six daughters, Mrs. Albert Davis, Misses Mozelle, Velma, Ruth Lorene and Christine, all of this city. She is also survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Heathcock of Rives community; a sister, Mrs. W. A. Ring, of this city, and two brothers, one of whom is L. M. Heathcock of this city.

Mrs. Myrtle Crouch of South Second street of this city, suffered a dislocated hip when the automobile in which she was riding was hit by another car. She was brought to a local hospital. Mrs. Crouch was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hart of Ridgely but they were not injured.

Mrs. Walter Hayes and her son-in-law, Elmer Bunch, were slightly injured Friday afternoon in a car wreck. An automobile driven by basket ball players of the Crockett Mills team en route to Woodland Mills, struck that occupied by Mrs. Hayes, her husband, Walter Hayes and Mr. Bunch.

R. H. Bond, accompanied by his son, Wilson, and two daughters, Misses Gertrude and Edith, had a narrow escape Friday afternoon about two miles this side of Troy on the Englewood hill when the car in which they were riding got out of control on the slippery highway and rolled into a ditch, overturning twice. None of the occupants of the car were seriously injured, although they all suffered cuts and bruises and were badly shaken up.

Double Funeral Services

Double funeral services for Miss Fields 16, and Miss Crockett, 16, Obion High school girls who lost their lives when en route to a basket ball game at Trimble, was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Miss Fields was buried at Hornbeak and Miss Crockett at Obion.

The service was conducted by the Rev. C. H. Woodruff, pastor of the Church of Christ, and the Rev. R. M. King, Methodist pastor, was held from the high school auditorium, scene of many of the school activities of the two girls, who were recognized as leaders among the students.

The bodies of the girls were recovered Saturday morning near the place where the sedan in which they were riding with Charles Brown, Roy Foster and Ernest Heffstutter, leaped from a levee on the Jeff Davis highway one mile north of Trimble, into the river when Foster, the driver, was blinded by snow.

Brown, assistant principal at the local school, Heffstutter and Foster, were brought back to Obion Saturday from Trimble, where they were taken last night for treatment. The three are suffering with frozen hands and ears.

The girls were the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Crockett and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Fields, two of Obion's most prominent families. Heffstutter and Brown live here, while Foster's home is at Brice, near here.

Arm Hits Mail Box as

He Rides on Truck; Dies

Shelbourn, Wis.—The death of a man who had come to pay a birthday visit brought death to Roland Fathles, thirty-one years old, of Potter.

Fathles was knocked from the running board of a truck when his arm struck a rural mail box projected from a fence post. He died a short while later at the office of a physician here.

The man was a steam shovel operator and was on a holiday. He decided to go out to the place where the crew was working on highway 51, near Random lake, and accepted a ride on a truck.

Just before reaching the scene of operations he saw his brother, Arnold, approaching in an automobile. He dashed to the running board and intended to jump off when the driver slowed down, but was hit by the mail box.

Rattler Proves Hitch

Hiker on Texas Auto

Goose Creek, Texas.—A 10-inch diameter rattlesnake, with a lust for travel, and a motorist making a tour of West Texas, recently combined to make a fitting station attendant wary of future requests for a change of battery water.

T. C. Jordan, of Velly, little realized while driving peacefully on his way that he was playing host to the rattle-snake reptile. He became cognizant of the fact rather abruptly, however, when the attendant informed him of the presence of the snake, which was curled up placidly on the battery box, having ridden a distance of some 500 miles.

Jacobs, Wis.—The mortgage on the old farm home that fiction writers long have used as a basis for stirring plots was a reality on a pioneer homestead farm near here which recently was sold at auction. The state revealed that an unsatisfied mortgage for $1,000 had been standing against the farm for 50 years.

STATE FUNDS ASKED FOR MAMMOTH CAVE PARK

Entrance to Mammoth Cave Looking Out

The Mammoth Cave National Park Association will ask the State Legislature to furnish sufficient funds to complete the Mammoth Cave National Park project.

The state of Virginia has appropriated $1,000,000 for the completion of the Shenandoah National Park and the sum of $3,500,000 has been appropriated by the Legislature of Tennessee and North Carolina for the completion of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. It is believed, according to officials of the Association, that the required sum should come as an investment by the Highway Department from a portion of the ad valorem, or general property tax, which is now being received by this department. They state that $1,500,000 added to the $800,000 which has been subscribed by more than 15,000 citizens of Kentucky, will complete the Park, and if the money is furnished by the State, this will be the first large National Park in the eastern section of the United States.

When purchased, the Federal Government by an act of Congress, which has already been passed, will develop and preserve the cave.

GASOLINE LEVY IS DEDUCTIBLE

Tax in Various States Yields Total of $375,000,000.

The gasoline tax is deductible in filing income tax returns where the language of the state law specifically lists it as a tax on the consumer, according to a bulletin issued by the legal department of the Chicago Motor club.

The bulletin pointed out that it is clear that the consumer always pays the tax, regardless of the wording of the law; therefore, the consumer should be allowed a deduction in all instances.

Interpretation of Law.

"However," continued the bulletin, "the bureau has put a strict interpretation of the state gasoline tax laws in the rulings already made. Consequently, in states where the bureau rules that the gasoline tax applies to the dealer, the only remedy remaining for these states is to amend and clarify the state gasoline tax laws so that the language of the act specifically levies the gas tax on the consumer."

"The gasoline tax in force in the various states this year will yield a total of approximately $375,000,000, which, if construed as a tax on the consumer in the various states, would amount to a considerable saving to the motoring public."

Tax Deductible.

J. H. Braun, general counsel for the club, declared that the bureau of internal revenue has already ruled that the gas tax is deductible under an interpretation of the laws of Delaware, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri, New York, North Carolina and Virginia. On the other hand, if the tax is added to or made a part of the business expense of the owner of such motor vehicles, it cannot be deducted separately as a tax.

The motor club attorney asserted that decisions have also been rendered by the bureau with respect to the states of Colorado, Connecticut, Maryland and Ohio, holding that under its interpretation of the gasoline tax laws of these states, the tax is levied against the dealer, and therefore is not deductible by the consumer in filing his income tax returns.

Proper Care Will Make Tires Last Much Longer

Tires, among the most neglected of all motor-car essentials, can be made to render remarkably greater efficiency with improved economy, by systematic and intelligent care. This point, often emphasized by tire engineers, has been conclusively proved in a year's test, results of which have been computed.

On a metropolitan bus fleet selected for the test, a saving of 418 bus tires with a total of 7,213,706 tire-miles, at an average of 26,947 miles to the tire, was effected, according to the data available.

Under the care of an expert tire man the mileage of this entire fleet is declared to have been increased 67 per cent in one year and records for the first three months of this year show an increase of 96 per cent over 1926. The tire expert took charge of the inspection and the care at the beginning of 1927, it was explained.

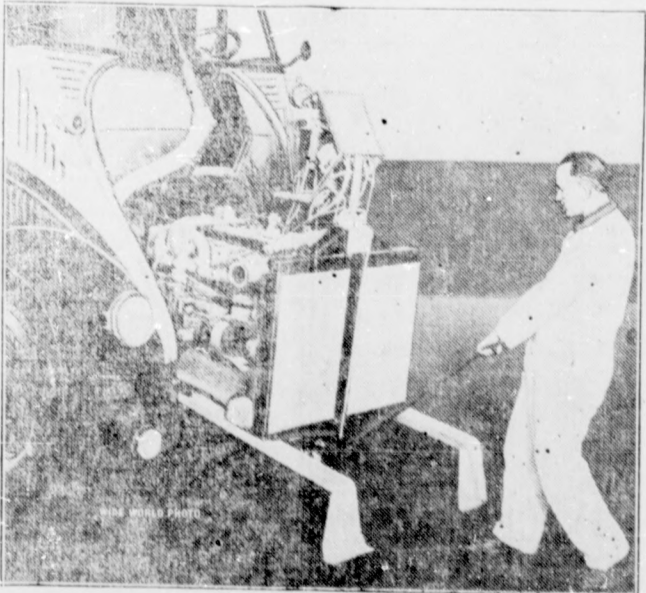

AUTOMOBILE FACTS

A front-wheel drive is being put on the market by an Indiana car manufacturer. Combining this with the back seat drive will give it nice balance.

It is estimated if all the automobiles in the world were placed end to end, some hot dog stands wouldn't do any business in their present locations.

A tourist back from abroad says you have to speak very distinctly to traffic officers on the Continent. Many of them do not understand broken English.

Few Simple Traffic Rules Will Make Travel Safer

Believing that the careful observation of a few simple traffic rules will materially help in making travel safer on the highways the United States National Chamber of Commerce has prepared the following recommendations for drivers of automobiles:

1. Always remember you are an engineer, fully responsible.
2. Always test your brakes when starting and have them inspected frequently.
3. Never pass a street car when it is stopping, or if the law permits, proceed very slowly past it at the legal distance.
4. Exercise especial care in crossing in front of a street car or in passing it, as you cannot tell what may be coming on the other side.
5. Always signal with hand when slowing down, turning or stopping, even though you have an automatic or mechanical warning device.
6. Look before you back and sound the horn three times.
7. Try to drive with using the horn as little as possible. A sudden noise may stop pedestrians in their tracks rather than warning them.
8. Don't count too much on the common sense of the other fellow. No one is 100 per cent alert all the time.
9. Drive slowly in streets where children are playing. Remember your own childhood.
10. Cross crossings cautiously. Warning bells may be out of order, watchmen or gate operators may be off duty. Trains cannot stop as quickly as you can. Shift into second to avoid stalling on tracks.

Youngest Executive in Automotive Industry

Harlow H. Curtice, who has just been appointed president and general manager of the AC Spark Plug company of Flint, Mich., is one of the youngest, if not the youngest, major chief executives in the automobile industry.

Mr. Curtice is thirty-six years old. Starting in the accounting department 16 years ago, he successively occu-pled the positions of comptroller, assistant manager, and vice president and assistant general manager.

He is head of one of the largest automobile accessory companies in the world with branch factories in France and England and employing 5,000 persons. The products made by these plants are estimated to be in use on 20,000,000 automobiles today. Mr. Curtice succeeds Basil W. de Gulchard, one of the pioneers in the industry, who resigned because of ill health.

Shock for Men

Here's a shock for men drivers! A recent survey conducted in 30 states showed that only 5 per cent of all accidents were due to women driving cars.

It was also found that on an average more women drivers bring in their cars at regular intervals for mechanical checkup which includes brake inspection. This, it is held, practically eliminated mishaps to the failure of a vital part of their cars. Brakes are often overlooked.

A Two-Dollar Dinner For Six

for one hour or till tender. Serve with a sauce made by cooking two tablespoons chopped green pepper in two tablespoons butter, adding the contents of one No. 2 can of tomatoes and one-half cup chopped celery and cooking ten minutes more.

Beef Birds with Tomato and Celery Sauce: Cut one round of thinly sliced round steak into pieces two by four inches, dredge with flour, and pound with edge of plate till tender. Make dressing by cooking four tablespoons chopped onion in two cups dry crumbs, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sage, one-half teaspoon thyme, and pepper, and moistening with water in which one-half bouillon cube has been dissolved. Spread dressing over pieces of meat, roll them up and tie them to keep them in shape. Brown in skillet with drippings, then place in casserole, pour hot water around, cover and bake in a moderate oven.

Asparagus Salad Parisienne: Drain and chill the contents of one 15-ounce can of asparagus tips, then arrange on one-half bunch of crisp romaine. Chop finely half the contents of a 4-ounce can of pimientos and add with two tablespoons capers to one-third cup French dressing. Pour over the salad and serve very cold.

Cranberry Jelly with Cream Cheese and Crackers: Chill a 9-ounce can of cranberry jelly on ice for several hours before serving. Open can and slide out in a mold. Slice in six portions. Have one cheese formed in balls and chilled. Place one with each slice of jelly on small plates. Serve with toasted crisp crackers.

Yes the Coleman IS Different

You'll quickly see that the Coleman Cooker is different from other stoves the minute you see the Gas Preheater demonstrated. This exclusive Coleman device is years ahead—the result of more than a quarter century of Coleman engineering skill. It lights instantly and in a minute or less the burners are ready with a clear, clean, hot blue flame.

Coleman Cookers Make Their Own Gas

Besides this miracle of speedy cooking convenience, you'll find many other features that make the Coleman different—features that make a big difference in your daily preparation of meals.

Just think what a difference it would make in each day's household duties to have gas service for cooking... with its speed, its comfort and its economy. The Coleman gives you that wonderful convenience... no matter where you live. It makes and burns its own gas from regular clear-white gasoline. No piping, wiring or installation expense whatever.

And what a difference to have your kitchen free from soot, dirt... blackened pots and pans. The Coleman Range brings you that freedom. Ceilings, curtains and walls stay clean longer when you have this modern range.

You'll find the Coleman makes a difference in the cost of preparing each meal, too. Cooks a meal for the average family on less than 2 cents' worth of fuel.

There are other features about the Coleman Range that make cooking entirely different. Come in and see them. Pick yours. There's a style and size for every cook and kitchen.

Brieflets

Any Fulton woman who wants to find how a touch of indigestion feels, might try turning the kitchen over to her husband.

It's hard sometimes to tell whether people are trying to be as disagreeable as the weather or whether the weather is trying to be as disagreeable as some people.

Not all of the people who are hard to talk to are deaf. Some of them are just dumb.

After the unexpected has happened you can always find somebody in Fulton who knew it would.

Since skirts have become longer and dollar bills smaller it takes more money than ever to cover a girl.

A fool motorist is one who thinks a locomotive is whistling just to keep up its courage.

It has been our observation that the Fulton men who get credit for knowing what they are talking about are the ones who do the least talking.

One secret of success is to go off where nobody knows you and pretend that you amounted to something where you came from.

You can get that schoolgirl complexion in most any drug store but you can't get the giggle.

What some of the younger set around Fulton really need is a car with two horns, one to say "Look out" and the other the "I told you so."

A lot of fellows never put their best foot forward—now that brass rails have been abolished.

We see in an exchange that worry is deadly. Now that's something else to worry about.

Another hard thing for Fulton merchants to understand is why Santa Claus is so prompt in giving out presents yet so slow in paying his bills.

Many a man keeps his nose to the grindstone so his wife can turn up hers at the neighbors.

Experience is about the only thing in this world that you can't buy on the easy payment plan.

The community is safe as long as a majority of Fulton men prefer the old-fashioned night-shirt to embroidered pajamas.

Oaths Check Lion That Hits Farmer

Berlin.—Entering the farmyard to ascertain the cause of the bellowing among the cows, a farm manager at Druecklarchoefchen, East Prussia, received a blow in the back.

Swinging around, he saw that his assailant was a fine specimen of an African lion with a remarkable set of well preserved teeth.

He told the authorities that he gave the lion a loud round of cursing which caused the beast to retreat. He then went into the house and, looking through the window, he observed that he had escaped not from one lion but three.

DIES AS HE SEEKS REVENGE ON BEARPark Warden's Body Found Marked by Claws.

Edmonton, Alta.—Forest rangers, searching the Tonquin valley of the Canadian Rockies, found the marked body of a man lying in the snow near an isolated cabin.

The cause of his death is undetermined. He may, they think, have fallen victim to the huge prowler, who is still king of the mountains, the wandering grizzly, for the man whom they found dead had started a feud with one of the grizzly tribe and, only a short time ago, had returned to his lone cabin with the avowed intention of killing one particular marauder before he left the valley.

The dead man was P. H. Goodair, ex-officer of a crack English regiment, member of a well-known British family and, more recently, a warden in Jasper National park. At the end of the war he had come to the mountains seeking to regain his shattered health and took a position as game warden to occupy his time.

Late last summer he was visiting in Edmonton. He told the story of his feud with a grizzly. The bear had broken into his cabin, destroying grub and supplies, but also breaking up a number of war souvenirs which could not be replaced. Goodair was on the warpath. Grizzlies do not wander much, usually hunting some favorite locality, and Goodair was confident that he would meet his enemy again. In addition, this particular bear had a peculiar malformation of one front foot so that the warden would have no difficulty in identifying his tracks.

What has happened since no one knows or ever will. Rangers found the body marked as if from a grizzly's attacks. But recent snowfall had erased all tracks or footprints. Goodair may have met his enemy, fired and missed or he may have wounded the animal only slightly and enraged it.

Lady—Can I send a telegram to Abouli?
Postal Clerk—Where is it, madam?
Lady—I don't know—it might be Asia or even Africa.
Clerk (after long search)—Ah, here it is—Abomey in Africa.
Lady—Is it spelled with a 'y'?
Clerk—Yes.
Lady—Thank you very much—I wanted it for my cross-word puzzle.—Dorfbardier (Berlin).

Married Wrong Man

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Mr. Grouch "here's an account of a woman who says she didn't realize until after the wedding that she had married the wrong man!"
"Huh!" snapped his wife, "try and find a wife who doesn't feel the same way."

Lucky at Bridge

Blinks—I'd like to hold that woman's hands.
Jinks—Huh! What would your wife say?
Blinks—Not as nasty things as she usually does at the hands I hold when I am her partner.

Wife a Good Reminder

Wife—Do you know of what you remind me?
Hubby—No, but I know of what you remind me.
Wife—What?
Hubby—Of everything I happen to forget.

YOUNG TWINS

Furniture Salesman—Would you like to see something in twin beds, madam?

Customer—I think not. You see the twins aren't old enough to sleep alone yet!

An Eye-Opener

Her eyes were black as jet.
This charming girl I knew,
I loved her, and her husband came.
Now mine are jet black, too.

Time for Practice

Judge—You are accused of stealing a turkey. Have you anything to say?

Prisoner—I just took it for a lark, your honor.

Judge—Well, see if ten days in jail will teach you to sing like one.

Unlucky Youth

First Student—Why so sad, old man?

Second Student—I wrote my uncle to send me the money to pay my tailor, you know, and by George he sends me the receipted bill.

A Falling Market

Hardfax—What do you mean real estate is coming down?

Everbrook—All my castles in the air are tumbling.

From the Question Box

"Is it the mission of the newspaper to mold public opinion?"

Old Subscriber—No; it's to keep the public opinion from becoming moldy.

BEST ABOUT COED

SCARCITY OF CLOTHING

"Huh!" said Johnnie, who was entertaining the young lawyer sis was setting her cap for, "you have got some clothes on. Who loaned 'em to you?"

"Loaned them?" he snapped. "Nobody loaned them to me—they belong to me."

"That's funny," remarked the kid. "Dad said you lost your suit in court and your shirt in Wall street."

That's Right!

Al Fruch, the caricaturist, recently submitted a picture to a magazine editor in which Father Time, along with the regulation hourglass and scythe, is depicted with a loosely rolled umbrella under his arm.

"What's the idea of Father Time carrying an umbrella?" queried Ye Editor.

"You forget," replied Al, "that boy survived The Deluge!"

UNKISSABLE

He—You were just made to kiss.

She—I never saw the fellow yet who could make me.

Romping Initials

The printer said, "I'll have to go and study up my radio."

As letters strangely strike my eye They look to me like so much "pt."

A Fair Offer

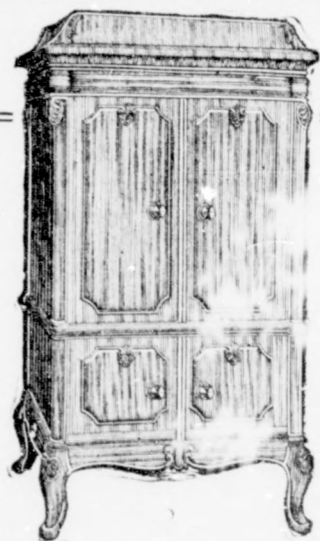

The Judge—You are charged with breaking into a cigar store and stealing $40 from the cash register. Have you anything to offer in your defense?

The Culpit—I'll split the loot fifty-fifty with you.

Flattery

Miss Dimpleton (fishing for compliments)—Don't you think my double chin is terribly unbecoming?

Mr. Coltrax (politely)—Nonsense, my dear lady; one is more beautiful than the other.

Efficient and Economical Home Heating

The Enterprise Automatic circulating warm air Heater will heat the entire home with a constant circulation of clean, warm air, insuring the same comfortable warmth in every room.

Finished in dark grained Mahogany enamel, it is in harmony with the other furnishings of the most refined taste. The fire door, ash door and all mechanical parts are concealed when the cabinet is closed.

The powerful heating unit makes it most economical in fuel consumption. The wide deep air ways from top to bottom of the cabinet permit free passage of air, which is quickly heated in passing over the heating unit, and out the top to circulate through the entire house.
