W. VALLEY WOMAN DIES FROM BURNS

Mrs. W. L. Durbin, age 53, wife of the Illinois Central System yard master in Fulton, died at the I. C. Hospital in Paducah at 9:45 o'clock Monday morning from burns sustained at her home in Water Valley early Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Durbin came to Fulton in 1914, and they lived here for a number of years, moving to Water Valley about a year ago. Funeral service were held this week at Youngstown, Ohio. She is survived by her husband; one daughter, Miss Dorothy Durbin, one son, Norbett Durbin of Ohio; and grandchildren.

At the time of the accident Mrs. Durbin was alone at her home. When found by neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Williams, who reside next door, she was in a critical condition, and was rushed to the Paducah hospital. It is believed that she was using rubbing alcohol in the bath room where an oil heater was burning. She evidently dropped the alcohol on the stove causing an explosion. Evidence indicated that flames spread to her clothing, and she ran from the bathroom to the bedroom and into the living room.

Mrs. Durbin, who was said to have suffered from asthma and a heart ailment was alone, her daughter being away to carry her father to Fulton to work. Mrs. Durbin is believed to have fainted in the bathroom of the home and fallen against the oil heater. Doctors said she was burned from head to foot.

ROTARY CLUB HEARS DR. J. H. RICHMOND

In an address before a joint meeting of the Fulton, Union City and Martin Rotary clubs Tuesday, Dr. J. H. Richmond, president of Murray State Teachers College, described education as "the most powerful force in the world."

Dr. Richmond declared that education was more powerful than wealth or war. Through education business and industry make progress. The teaching profession requires instructors to spend untold sums to stay abreast of the times, yet the teacher is often underpaid, he stated. "The way to double the wealth of Kentucky, is to double your per capita for educational purposes," Dr. Richmond concluded.

Legionnaires Held Meeting Here Sunday

More than seventy members of the various Legion posts of the First District gathered in Fulton Sunday to attend the mid-winter conference, despite unfavorable weather. Convening at 10:45 the group marched to the First Methodist Church, where they were the guests of Rev. J. N. Wilford, pastor.

The group assembled at the Legion cabin at 1:25 p. m., where membership reports were made by officers from various Legion posts, with fine showings being made in enrollments.

It was decided to wait until the June convention in Fulton before voting on a proposal asking federal reinstatement of veterans, whose compensation ended with the National Economy Act.

District Commander John S. Kendall, Bardwell, estimated 16,000 Kentucky veterans felt the ax as the economy act reduced the compensation rolls of ex-service men. At least 1,400 of that number are in the first district, Kendall stated.

Speakers at the Fulton session Sunday included: State Legion Commander Joe T. Lovett, Murray; Vice Commander Joe W. Seames, Bowling Green and State Adjutant T. H. Hayden, Louisville.

Her devoted son, Hubert, and his family with whom she made her home, attest to the fact of her hope of life eternal. PLANNING AHEAD

The Chamber of Commerce will be holding its annual meeting and election of officers very shortly. It will start a new year and will decide on its projects and objectives for the coming twelve months. So we believe this is the time to look over the field and offer our suggestions in objectives for 1939.

Of course the first objective of the Fulton Chamber of Commerce is and will continue to be, the obtaining of industries for our city. This is something that the Chamber works on constantly, year in and year out, with all the resources at its command. This is as it should be for it takes time, constant attention and work to land any worthwhile new industry. It cannot be a one year job, as often it takes years of effort.

But housing is about as important to Fulton right now as a new industry, for if we secured a large new industry at this time, there would be no place to house the new people and the same old story would be repeated—they would go to some other community to live. Housing should be one of the main objectives of 1939.

Housing is not a one year job, either. It is a long term objective with many ramifications and is so important to Fulton that it should be pushed with all the vigor possible. And along with housing goes beautification. The Chamber of Commerce, aided by the help and support of other civic organizations could push through a project of this nature. Beautification also has many ramifications and while considerable work has been done during the past year, this is also a long term project, which must be pushed with vigor year after year. Obtaining a tree and shrub nursery would be a step forward, followed by a carefully directed program of planting trees and shrubs.

Beautification also includes a strong drive to get torn down all the old shacks that are now only eye-sores, but a real menace to our community. It should include a strong effort to enlist the cooperation of every family to make our city as neat, clean and beautiful as possible and constant pressure on the city to do the same with all public property, streets and parks.

There are many rural projects which should be given attention by the Chamber. Great work has been done in the purebred sire program, and improvement of livestock, poultry, more fruit growing are of vital interest to all of us.

The Chamber of Commerce has accomplished considerable good work during the past year and it has started several important projects. To carry on it must have the support of the people of the community. First it must have the finances to operate; then it must have the men and women who are willing to give their time and energy to work on committees, etc., and it must have the backing, the active interest, the support of the entire community, if it is to do effective work for all of us.

SAVING LIVES

A great many people die of all kinds of accidents each year; a great many people die of preventable diseases. It is important that every effort be made to save as many of these lives as possible. But from the standpoint of the future it is not more important to make every possible effort to save the lives of the living.

By that we mean that an alarming and increasingly great number of people are growing up through juvenile delinquency into a life of crime, and through neurotic tendencies into insanity. These living wrecks of our civilization are a double liability to us, for they are not only taken out of gainful production, but must be supported.

As had been shown repeatedly the best way to attack both these important problems is through proper environment, proper recreation and education. At this time we wish to take up only the problem of recreation, for that is the one that can most easily be solved and the one with the best chance of success right here in Fulton at the present time.

The city cannot do the whole thing at once; it cannot rectify the neglect of twenty years in two; but it can and should continue the start it made last year. Last year for the first time in its history, the City of Fulton made a capital investment in recreation for its people when it built playgrounds for white and colored. These are not adequate to serve all the population and this year at least two more white playgrounds should be built.

We believe this can and should be done. At the same time we believe the city should be looking forward into the future and laying plans for more recreation for all age groups. We need parks with public athletic fields for outdoor use and community centers for indoor use. We need trained supervisors to teach all the people how to play, how to use their spare time profitably, how to keep well and fit, both mentally and physically.

The handwriting is on the wall. This must come and it would be wise to plan now, a long range plan, so as to go forward along these more playgrounds during 1939 and lines. But right now let's build two get started by providing adequate recreation to all the children of playground age.

Your word is something to keep after you have given it to someone.

The fellow who gets up early is usually the same guy who gets ahead fast.

—O—

• AROUND TOWN

While talking with Mr. Joe Bennett the other day, we were impressed with the record of J. W. Gayle, secretary of the State Board of Pharmacy, who retired recently after 30 years of service. Mr. Bennett and his son, Joe, Jr., both took their examinations before Secretary Gayle, whose name appears on each of their certificates. Mr. Bennett went to Louisville in July, 1889, where he passed the examination of the board and 37 years later in 1926, Joe Jr. took his examination. Mr. Bennett's certificate number is 406, while that of Joe Jr. is 3648.

Fifty years is a long record for anyone, and in July his year, Mr. Bennett will have served as a registered pharmacist for half a century. During this long period of years he has devoted his services to aiding the sick of this vicinity. There's hardly a family in this community that has not at some time been administered to over the counters of the Bennett Drug Store. Few men can look back upon such a record of faithful and friendly service to humanity.

Our congratulations, Mr. Bennett.

Series of Fires Does Much Damage

Six fires over the past week end kept the local fire department busy.

About four o'clock Friday afternoon, firemen were called to the home of Mrs. T. H. Irby on Second street, where matches had been ignited in a window of the upstairs apartment occupied by Mrs. Ernest Huffman. The flame was extinguished with small damage.

Five o'clock Friday afternoon, the fire department was called to the corner of Fourth and Depot streets where a fire had started in a small restaurant. Origin of the fire was unknown. The blaze was extinguished. Then seven o'clock a fire was reported in the barber shop nextdoor. That too was smothered. Then at one o'clock in the morning the third fire broke out in the Sanitary Cafe on the corner. The last blaze destroyed the three buildings. Total loss with no insurance.

Thos. Wilson residence on Arch street, where painters and paper hangers had been busy the day before, caught fire Friday about five o'clock. Truck No. 2 responded, but they were unable to check the blaze. The home was completely destroyed.

A fire occurred at the City Electric Company at eight o'clock Sunday night, completely destroying the interior of the building. No damage was done to Graham Furniture Co. nextdoor, or H. H. Bug's Grocery, which were protected by thick brick walls.

CARPENTRY OF OTHER YEARS

The building of houses is such a fine art today that it is hard to realize how far we have come in a very few years. It was only 30 or 40 years ago that carpentry work was done by local men, who knew the trade as a part of their general accomplishments. Nearly every man knew enough to make horse troughs and chicken coops and to roof the henhouse or the stable or the barn. Fancy work, after log houses ceased to be, was likely to be done by some man of the community who knew a little more than the average. One of the queerest looking houses I ever saw was built by its owner. It was a plain boxed house, with a flue and the usual windows. But the flue was decidedly out of plumb and no corners of the house were parallel. The roof of home-made clapboards kept out the rain and the sun and served its purpose quite as well as that of a more adequate and expensive house would have done.

Many people now living have made boards, and a small part of the population still make them annually. Formerly boards were about the only kind of roofing material one would find in remote places, though shingles as a badge of aristocracy came in early. So unusual is a frow that I remember having seen several people stop at a mountain cabin to view one, as if it had been the tool of a cave man. There was real skill in making boards with a frow; it took a knowledge of the kind of timber being used and a deftness of the wrist and hand that only practice could bring. To have many scraps when making boards was a sure sign of being unskilled. Sometimes we smoothed down the boards with a drawing-knife, so that home-made boards, with the sap edge removed, often looked and wore like brought-on shingles. Piling the boards up so they would season and not warp was usually entrusted to the small boy, who soon came to pride himself on his ability to make the pile stand until a heavy weight could be put on it hold the boards straight while they were drying.

Many articles now bought were then made at home. Nearly all houses had home-made "batten" doors, rather heavy but strong and lasting. Even weatherboarding was planned down by hand, and tongues and grooves were made on ceiling and floor planks by planes especially designed for this. Plenty of floors and weatherboarded walls lacked this extra touch, however. Lathes, so often heard of and so seldom seen, were primitive fasteners, worked by a latch-string that, in the words of hospitality, always "hung on the outside." Doors also were fastened with buttons, home-made wooden ones that held the doors quite as well as any modern lock. On my left arm I still bear a scar from a wound I inflicted when trying to trim a button that I had already nailed on and found too large.

When an old building was recently torn down, I salvaged some of the old cut nails as souvenirs. There was a time when cut nails could be bought in almost any country store. Long after wire nails were common, there were still kegs of cut nails for the oldtimers, who were, as always, afraid of new-fangled things. It took a kind of skill to drive a cut nail; you either drove it or you didn't; there was no half-way driving.

Joists are still used, of course, but they are usually covered up, so that none of them furnish now a place to put things away. And few of this generation would believe me if I mentioned the cat hole, formerly cut in the door so that the cat could come and go at will. And that reminds me of the old fellow who cut several cat holes, so that when he said "Scat" and meant "Scat" the cats could clear out without waiting their turn at the cathode.

Many old buildings now being torn down had mortised joints; some good-sized buildings were put up without any nails. But modern nails and sawed timbers have about routed these old ways of building, so that remnants of these older ways are seven-day wonders to the younger generation.

Better leave the farm than have the farm leave you.

Erosion was the result of poor farming before poor farmers were the result of erosion.

Terracing and contour farming slow down the run-off of water, increase absorption, and reduce erosion losses.

Why go on making the same mistakes year after year? Farm records will show what pays and what does not.

Every well-run business takes an inventory of materials and equipment on hand near the end of the year—farming is no exception.

An egg in November is worth two in May. Get baby chicks in February and March so as to have a flock of early pullets to lay during fall months.

No single animal food contains a greater variety of minerals and vitamins than eggs. They are the only animal food containing the easily digested emulsified fat.

Stay on the job day and night during lambing time. Reduce the feed of ewes for several days before and after lambing. See that the new-born lambs get some of their mother's milk and do not freeze.

TIMELY TOPICS

Party harmony so complete as to be almost touching is seen in Congress at last. But it is among the Progressive members of the House of Representatives, of which there are two, Merlin Hull and Bernard J. Gehrman, both of Wisconsin. Each chose the other as floor leader of their party in the 76th Congress. In the last Congress, House Progressives numbered seven.

Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey recently announced that he had received 54 proposals of marriage for a woman who had written him that she was lonely. After the announcement, 12 more offers were received for the lady, and the governor decided to quit his activities as an emissary of Cupid.

The up-swept hair-do has met a serious obstacle in England, as it interferes with the fitting of gas masks so they will stay put. This probably means that the style will be abandoned over there, where everyone must have a gas mask.

Writing proposals of marriage has long been considered a dangerous pastime for wealthy men. Now, it seems, talk is equally dangerous. Miss Genevieve Kieley of Milwaukee is suing Robert Melius for $10,000, charging breach of promise, and declares she will offer phonograph records of his proposals as evidence.

Economic Highlights

"There is discernible in the 76th Congress a more favorable attitude toward the American business man—more concern for his problems—than can be ascribed to any national legislature since the advent of the New Deal six years ago," writes Alfred Flynn in Barron's.

This probably means that those congressmen who take pleasure in heckling business, though they may be as vocal as ever, will be less of an influence when it comes to actually getting legislation passed. And it means that the current Congress will be far more independent and far more immune to pressure from any source, than its immediate predecessors.

At the moment, Congress is sharply divided on the vital case of fiscal policy. The President, in his message, reaffirmed his faith in government spending to bring about prosperity. It is his theory, buttressed by the opinions of his most important advisers, such as Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, that the country should forget about lowering Federal expenditures and think about increasing the national income. He estimates that if the national income should be increased to $80-

000,000,000—it reached $69,000,000,000 in the fiscal year ending last July 1—an $8,000,000,000 budget would be balanced, due to increased tax receipts and a lessened need for relief expenditures. And, following the same reasoning, a $90,000,000 national income would balance a $10,000,000,000 budget without further boosting taxes.

Illustrations of how other governments, notably Sweden, have employed this spending theory successfully, can be produced. But, as the opponents of the theory point out, these governments have done most of their spending for things that produce an actual dollars-and-cents return, while our spending has been primarily for purposes, such as relief, that return the government nothing directly. Senator Byrd of Virginia is the leader of a strong congressional group which sharply disputes the view that we can permanently and materially increase our income through the lavish disbursement of federal money. This group thinks that the country can be kept temporarily going by this device, but that a collapse is inevitable. As a result, the spending versus the anti-spending philosophies will crash head-on many times before this Congress adjourns. First signs of that came in the opposition to Mr. Roosevelt's request for an extremely large relief budget.

The other big current issue is rearmament. The President, in a special message, has said that in a world of force we must be as strong as any power—that we must, therefore, embark on the greatest peace-time armament program in our history. There is strong opposition to this in some circles—curiously enough, in those liberal and radical circles which support the New Deal in most matters, but fear that the creation of an unprecedented military machine is a step toward war and fascism. There seems to be little opposition in Congress. The big-city press, Republican and Democratic, seems to favor the program in general, though there are differences as to details. Four or five years ago, observers point out, the American people would have been horrified and revolted by such a program—today, with their eyes fixed on the dictator-ridden Europe, the feeling is different.

Fiscal policy and armament will hold the center of the Congressional stage for some time. Then will come other items on this Congress' calendar—the railroad problem; revision of the Wagner Act; changes in the farm benefit program which has badly bogged down; legislation dealing with tax-exempt securities, and taxation of government employees. It promises to be a momentous session—as it must be, in this momentous and critical year of world history.

At last reports, business activity on the average was at a level more than 20 per cent above a year ago. Signs of the universally-anticipated winter decline—which some economists term a "corrective recession in the upswing"—were appearing. It is felt that this decline will be moderate, and that improvement should again get underway by April or before. If the attitude of Congress is friendly, that will, of course, be an extremely beneficial factor.

Considerable hope is pinned on the belief that railroad and utility buying will be substantially larger this year than last, though no one expects any real boom in these industries which face plenty of handicaps—largely political.

New car sales have been good, but there is a question as to how long this will go on, inasmuch as dealers continue to report that the used-car glut grows greater, and is taking the profit out of the retail end of the business.

Retail sales are at a favorable level for the season. But the long-awaited improvement in the position of the vital durable goods industries has not yet put in an appearance.

WEEKLY TOBACCO MARKET NEWS REPORT

An upward trend was indicated for tobacco sold on the Western District. Fire-Cured markets this Agriculture Economics. Average week, according to the Bureau of prices for the majority of grades of thin leaf and lugs showed increases over last week. In the heavy leaf group, fair and low qualities showed increases on most grades quoted, while good qualities were slightly lower.

Sales continued light in volume as the cold weather retarded deliveries. The tobacco sold consisted principally of fair quality heavy leaf, low and fair quality thin leaf, and low to good quality lugs. Thin leaf predominated. Heavy leaf was offered in slightly larger volume than last week.

According to trade reports, sales this season through January 20 amounted to 880,492 pounds at an average of $7.04. Of this total, 123,625 pounds, or 12.31 per cent were delivered to the Association.

PUZZLING PROBLEMS

By R. J. ALLEN

1. A train runs at an average rate of 40 miles an hour, and makes 2 stops of 4 minutes each and 1 stop of 3 minutes. If the total time it takes to go from one city to another is 47 minutes, how far apart are the two cities?

2. Jones, Smith and Brown made a total donation of $48 to their church. Each time Jones donated $1, Smith donated $2, and Brown $3. How much did each man donate?

3. I multiplied a certain number by 248, then added 25.92 to the product. I divided this sum by 3.456 then subtracted 240 from that result, and my final result was 9. What was the original number?

4. A man is 36 years of age and his wife is 24. How old will the man be when his wife is 4-5 of his age?

5. A woman had a 3-pint vessel and a 5-pint vessel, and wanted to measure out exactly 7 pints. How could she do so with the two vessels she had?

6. If a boy whose legs are 2 1-2 feet long has a normal step of 2 feet, how long a step will he make when walking on stilts which bring his feet 5 feet from the ground?

Answers

1. 21 miles. Explanation—Multiply 4 by 2; add 3 and subtract the result from 47; 36 is 3-5 of 60 (number of minutes in 1 hour) multiply 40 by 3-5.

2. Jones $8; Smith $16; Brown $24. Explanation—Add 1, 2 and 3; Divide 48 by 6; multiply 8 by 1, 2 and 3 to get the amounts each man donated.

3. 324. Explanation—If 240 was subtracted from last result and the answer was 9, then that result must have been 240. Therefore, multiply 240 by 3.456; from this product subtract 25.92; divide last result by 24.8.

4. 60 years. Explanation—Subtract 24 from 36; subtract 4-5 from 5-5, multiply 12 by 5.

5. Fill the 5 pint vessel; from it fill the 3-pint vessel; empty the 3-pint vessel; pour the 2 pints that remain in the 5-pint vessel into the 3-pint vessel; then fill the 5-pint vessel.

6. 6 feet. Explanation—Multiply the sum of 2 1-2 and 5 by 2; divide this result by 2 1-2.

SYNTHETIC WONDERS

Scientific research, whereby new and useful materials are produced from substances hitherto of little or no value goes on apace.

One of the most noteworthy accomplishments of chemistry is seen in the long list of products now made from ordinary coal tar. It is the basic ingredient of aspirin, of which 3,700,000 pounds were produced in a single year. It is also used in the synthetic production of many other medicines, dyes, flavoring extracts, perfumes and molded plastic materials.

The order of practically every flower may be simulated by artificial means. Thus a combination of citral and acetone gives the fragrance of violets; oil of citronella is treated to produce lily-of-the-valley; the order of lilacs is derived from turpentine, and so on.

Cellulose, derived from cornstarch, peanut hulls, straw, wood, or sugarcane refuse known as bagasse, is further treated to produce rayon and cellophane. It is also used in the manufacture of synthetic resins for lacquers and plastic materials, and even for the generation of gas.

Chemical acids and sugar for animal feeds are extracted from sawdust. Casein derived from skimmed milk is a principal ingredient of buttons, fountain pens, electric light fixtures, and other molded products, and is also used in soap, shoe polish, photographic plates, paints and in textile printing.

The list of synthetic wonders might be extended to a great and new ones are being constantly added. Further developments along these lines can not be foreseen, but it is safe to say that they will be of tremendous importance.

Habit is but a cable. You weave a thread each day until it becomes too strong to break.

GOOD PLACE TO SHUN

The craze of tax business out of business seems to have spread from state and federal governments to municipalities. For the moment, the chain stores are the particular target of the professional politician who is out to destroy some type of business as evidence of his solicitude for the "dear public," even though his destructive proposals boost the cost of living for every consumer.

Following the lead of anti-chain store legislation variously proposed by federal and state politicians, some cities are now looking to chains as a new source of municipal tax revenue. For example, a leading Southern city recently passed an ordinance providing a $1,200 per year tax on all chain stores. Such special class taxation alone, not counting any punitive federal or state taxes, would put some of the smaller retail outlets such as grocers and druggists, out of business entirely, and would hamper the variety and general merchandise chains. The result of this type of legislation will be destruction of retail progress and competition in cities where it is established.

It would be a good thing, as an object lesson, if all the chain stores in such a city were to close their doors and actually move out, lock, stock and barrel. It is safe to say that the loss to the community in rents, normal taxes, employment and trade which, in this day of the automobile, would go to other centers where it had a choice of competitive merchandising methods and prices, would be astounding.

This type of punitive taxation, passed to destroy one type of business on the theory that it will benefit another, is a very short-sighted policy. Progressive independent stores are prevented by such taxation for opening branch stores; and chain systems, most of which have developed from a single independent store, are prevented from giving the community a service to which the consumer is entitled.

A city that destroys the progressive merchant on the theory that it will benefit a less efficient merchant, whether he be independent or chain, is simply raising the cost of living to its residents and advertising itself as a good place for the investor, the man seeking a new business location, and the laboring man, to stay away from.

Bronchial Coughs Need Creomulsion

Just a common cough, a chest cold, or a bronchial irritation of today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. They may be relieved now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medicinal combination designed to aid nature in soothing and healing infected mucous membranes by relaxing irritation and inflammation, and by aiding in loosening and expelling germ-laden phlegm. The Medical Profession has for generations recognized the beneficial effect of Beechwood Creosote in the treatment of coughs, chest colds, and bronchial irritations. A special process was worked out by a chemist, for blending Creosote with other ingredients so that now in Creomulsion you get a good dose of genuine Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and may be taken frequently by both adults and children. Creomulsion is one preparation that goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

The Bulldogs met their strongest opposition Friday night when they opposed the Calvert City five, losing to them by the score of 31 to 30. Calvert's strong offense and deadly aim was more than the Bulldogs could overcome. The Bulldogs seemed unable to show their best playing ability and lack of co-ordination which they formerly possessed. The first half ended with the score 23-12 with Calvert City holding the lead as they did during the entire game.

A different story was written after the Bulldogs met South Fulton and were able to take the long end of 28-26 score. The boys were in top form during the first half but weakened during the latter half. The "Pups" also took their game.

Mayfield managed to pile up 13 points to the Bulldogs' 15 in the fracas on Thursday night, but not until the final whistle sounded was it Mayfield's game. The second team lost its game by three points.

SOUTH FULTON

The P. T. A. met in regular monthly meeting Thursday, January 30, at the South Fulton auditorium. Miss Gilman, the county health nurse of Obion County, spoke on "Dental Care."

A special meeting of the Obion County PTA Council met at South Fulton, Wednesday, February 1, with visitors from various schools of the county present, including Mrs. McFee and Mrs. Peacock, state officers of the P. T. A. A program commemorating Founder's Day was given by eight high school girls.

Supt. J. B. Cox and Coach James Good attended a meeting of coaches and superintendents in Union City Monday night, January 30, and drew places for the county tournament which is to be held at Obion, February 15, 16, 17, and 18. The girls' first game will be with Dixie girls. The boys will meet the winner of the Kenton-Troy game. Coach Good has great hopes for the two teams to make a good showing in the tournament.

For the District tournament, the girls will meet the Glenison girls. The Girls' District tournament will be held in Union City, March 1, 2, 3, and 4. The South Fulton Red Devils will play the Glenison boys in the District tourney. The Boys' District tournament will be held in Dresden on February 22, 23, 24 and 25.

Believing that our basketball players deserve some recognition from the public, we are publishing a brief history of their basketball careers. The interviews of four players will be published each week until the two main teams have been presented.

Harold Frankum, No. 22

Captain of Boys' Team

Harold Frankum, a Sophomore, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Frankum of Harris, Tenn. Frankum attended Harris grade school where he began his basketball career in the sixth grade. He has been a valuable asset to the South Fulton team for the past two years. He has played at both forward and center positions but now serves as forward and captain. He was a member of the second team last year under Coach Roberts and has made an excellent record this year for his first season as a first team man. In eighteen games he has scored 195 points, his best record being 23 points in the game against Obion. When asked for a comment on basketball as a sport he replied, "I like it." Believing all basketball players to be characteristic examples of men in general, we asked Frankum what comment he would make about girls. His answer was, "If it weren't for girls, I could not get along."

Leon Faulkner, No. 44

Leon Faulkner, a Sophomore, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Faulkner of Harris, Tenn. He also attended Harris grade school and began his basketball career as a teammate of Frankum's in the sixth grade. These two boys have worked together since then and make a good combination on the South Fulton team. Faulkner has worked at both forward and guard positions, but now is capably holding down an important place in the defense. In 18 games this season he has scored 57 points. When asked for his opinion on basketball, he like "Pol Frankum" replied "I like it." As to his comment on girls he says "It would be a pretty dull world if we did not have girls." His only ambition seems to be "marry and settle down."

Treva Ray, No. 63

Captain of Girls' Team

Treva Ray, a junior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ray of Fulton, Route 6. She began her basketball career in the Chestnut Glade school in the sixth grade and has been a dependable player on the South Fulton team for the past two years. Ray began playing at the forward position but was used last year as guard and remains in that position this year. Treva is an optimistic player and shows a fighting spirit from the first to the last of each game. Her ambition is to go to college and continue playing basketball which she thinks is one of the most interesting sports. When asked her opinion on men she merely replied, "I just don't know; they are all right, I guess."

Neil Bowlin, No. 17

Neil Bowlin, a senior, is a transfer from Palmersville to our school this year. She is the daughter of Mrs. Mertie Bowlin of Fulton, Route 1. She attended school at Wesley's Chapel and Palmersville and began playing basketball when she was in the seventh grade. She originally held the guard position but this year has alternately played guard and forward. In her eight games as forward, she has scored 44 points. Neil likes basketball better than any other sport. She also says "Most of the men are pretty nice."

Oxcarts and Driving Rigs Add That 1850 Atmosphere To "Stand Up and Fight"

The Western frontier moved back to Cumberland, Md., and Cumberland moved to the hills behind Culver City, Calif., as, in a paradoxical shifting of locales, the first co-starring film for Wallace Beery and Robert Taylor entered production.

On Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Sixty Acres," the ranch south of the studio itself, Cumberland as of 1850 had been constructed complete for the screen version of Forbes Parkhill's novel, "Stand Up and Fight," which comes to the Fulton Theatre for a 3-day engagement. The one main street was swarming with traffic. Ox-carts, saddle horses, Conestoga covered wagons and driving rigs all moved in a choking cloud of dust. One advantage over the original Cumberland was that a watering cart could lay that dust at regular intervals. At 6:30 in the morning a film crew prepared the set for the day's shooting. An hour later a caravan of busses brought 400 costumed extras from the studio. At 8 o'clock the shooting started with Beery, Taylor leading lady Florence Rice, Helen Norton MacLane, and fifty minutes later Director W. S. Van Dyke II had his first two "takes" in the can.

Cumberland, at this period a terminus of the great National Highway, the "pike," which led from Baltimore to Wheeling, Va., was little more than a frontier town of the type audiences are accustomed to seeing in their typical Westerns. Buildings on the M-G-M set were of the frontier type of the time, most of them frame—a hotel, a number of saloons, a barber shop, hardware store, the offices of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and one end of the main street the Bullock Line stage depot.

"Stand Up and Fight" is a romantic action melodrama that never loses in pace. The opening fox hunt sets a speed which continues all through two fist-fights between Taylor and Beery, a bar-room brawl, a battle between railroad and stagecoach employees, a wagon wreck, two gunfights, a jail dynamiting, an avalanche and the final race between one of the early B. & O. trains and a stagecoach. Fans who demand motion in their motion pictures should find their ideal in "Stand Up and Fight."

Farmers in some Kentucky counties still allow superstitions to play a part in their bee culture, say editors of the Federal Writers' Project, a division of the Works Progress Administration. From the files of the project it appears that beekeepers make a practice of draping their hives in black immediately upon the death of a member of that household. These drapes are left on until after the burial rites, because the belief of long years standing still holds that were the practice dispensed with the bees would swarm.
