LET'S NOT PRETEND

At the present time there is a great deal of discussion regarding the military strength of the United States. Many plans are being made to strengthen all South and Central American possessions into one group for a united defense against aggression, which is likely to come from a German victory. In the present atmosphere in which this activity is occurring, it is clear that our present efforts are not enough.

Probably it is not sound strategy to build new defense lines. It is most important that we strengthen the military forces of the republics, and consider this to be an important task. It is not enough to rely on the United States for protection, as they have indicated that they are unable to help defend the area.

The United States is not greatly interested in any of the nations south of the Rio Grande. By several is it considered half-hearted, and a week or so ago the defense program was stopped. Mexico, for example, has been torn apart by civil strife many times during its history, and it is not long ago this country was at odds with the present regime there over the seizure of oil properties. That country has never been really settled, but is being dropped for the time being in favor of more pressing matters.

However, there is no use in deluding ourselves or our neighbors. We can help the nations in the region by giving them the means to defend themselves. It may be that much of the money would be loaned Mexico, where victory in the present war. Only then would the situation be settled.

In planning our defense we should need them badly. All plans which may have gotten into its defense against any aggression must be dropped for the time being in favor of more pressing matters.

There can be little doubt, if the story for totalitarian penetration. Large sums of money would be loaned Mexico, if we need them badly. All plans which may have gotten into its defense against any aggression must be dropped for the time being in favor of more pressing matters.

The suicide of the author is not vague to many of those nations, and may be for the best, of course, but incidents such as the Alaska "ark" one make us wonder.—Sunshine and Shadows.

TOO MUCH CODDLING

Among all the other things wrong with this country, the rest of the world, maybe one trouble is that we've gone in for too much coddling, too much protecting, too much making things easy for other people's business.

That applies to the experimental field. We have hesitated to try new fields of endeavor or to let other people do it because of the fear that someone would get hurt. Take the case of the lumberjack who started off on a trip up the west coast to Alaska in a home-made "ark." He built it himself, put his family and belongings aboard, and started off to "build a new life" in Alaska.

All along the way people laughed at him. They said he would never make it. Authorities in one town arrested him in an attempt to stop him from proceeding on what they declared would be certain suicide for himself and his family.

But he was stubborn. Handcuffs were put off him, and on his "ark" he changed. He traveled the stormy ocean—and won through.

There was great surprise when the "ark" turned up in Alaska. He had done what they said he couldn't do, and with too many people trying to keep him from doing it. That's the way most progress is made. They laughed at the steamboat, the electric light, the automobile, the radio, the printing press. Scientists have been bored down through the centuries.

And much time and money have been spent "protesting" people from themselves. It may be, for the best, of course, but incidents such as the Alaska "ark" one make us wonder—Sunshiny and Shadows.

SUNSHINE AND SHADOWS

New York—Once upon got the $2 which Charles Wright, 15, saved by walking a mile and a half to school each day.

She sent the money to Washington, "as the defense of the United States." Her gift was formally acknowledged by Daniel W. Bell, undersecretary of the Treasury.

The moment we are able to and we should always bear this in mind.

In planning our defense we should not forget—something which we may have gotten into its defense against any aggression must be dropped for the time being in favor of more pressing matters.
