News-Prints

Beginning with this week's paper, our editorial page column "Turning back the clock" will include news of 25 years ago in Fulton as well as the 20-years-ago column we have been digging up from our files.

Do you remember the news from January 2, 1925 . . . or of January 3, 1930? Turn to page 2.

Wide prominence is being given Einstein's new "theory" this week, even though his old one, compounded in 1905, has still failed to be understood after all these forty-five years.

It goes something like this: — % @** equals O; % % %), ¼ ¼ = equals O; — % equals O.

As far as we can see it is quite simple; just as it says, it equals O.

Note to Mattie Dear: We are sorry that we received your column too late this week to get it in the paper; we will save it till next week.

The novel two-color treatment on today's front page was a brainchild of our floor man, Charlie Hicks, who take great pride in adding little extra touches here and there for pleasing effects. If it looks as good (this is being written before we have seen it all put together) as we think it will, we try it more often. With our type of newspaper press, it is not difficult to do at all.

If the pretty, balmy weather of the last couple of days holds out, we know of at least one Fultonian who is going to "win" right here at home. James Brann says he is "getting all the sun" he needs.

POUNDS SERVICES HELD ON SATURDAY

Services for Omar Pounds, night engineer of the Fulton Swift and Company plant who was killed when he was struck by an automobile on the Mayfield Highway last Thursday, were held Saturday afternoon at Sandy Branch Church. Pounds died of multiple injuries received when he was struck by an automobile while walking down Highway 45 during a heavy rainstorm.

Although an air of mystery, indicating possible foul play, surrounds his presence on the highway, police today were unable to throw any light on the dead man's activities from the time he left downtown Fulton at 10:45 Wednesday night to report for work at the Swift plant at 11:00 o'clock. The plant is on the opposite end of town from the highway.

Mr. Pounds, who was 56, never regained consciousness after being struck. The accident occurred about a mile from Fulton. He was taken to the Fulton Hospital by the driver of the automobile, James E. ## PASTOR WAITES DIES IN CALIF.

It was with deep regret that the news was learned here of the death of an early First Christian Church pastor.

E. M. Waites, who served the congregation from 1896 until 1902. Waites, a brilliant young man was destined to do great things for his church, his followers often predicted, and he obligingly bore out the faith they had in him. In 1899 he married Miss Sara Wooten, a local school teacher whose father was judge in the Warren County courts. At the end of his pastorate here they moved to Ladonia, Texas, in which state he gained eminence both as a theologian and an educator. He became president of Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, one of the foremost sectarian schools in the country. He was living in retirement in California at the time of his death.

Born in Cynthiana, Ky., he held pastorates in only the States of Kentucky and Tennessee.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Gail Scott of Fort Worth and Mrs. B. E. Highland of Washington.

Attention, Mr. Mayor and City Councilmen

By the time this editorial reaches you, 1949 will be making final preparations to leave us, and the infant 1950 will be adjusting his tri-cornered garment to descend upon us. The arrival of this latter personage will mean that the U. S. Government will begin its tremendous task of taking the 1950 census.

On road maps, official population documents and other population media the City of Fulton, Kentucky is listed as approximately 3300. Regardless of our claims of "nearly 8000" for Fulton and South Fulton, the cold fact remains that Fulton, Ky., is a town of 3300 people.

Perhaps the significance and importance of this figure has not been sufficiently impressed upon city officials in our previous editorials. It means that Fulton, for all practical purposes is listed as a fourth or fifth class city, when in reality it is very much a first class city, in our own estimation, and in the qualifications of its industries, schools, utilities and other matters.

Gone for nothing at all, is an additional 2000 population in the Highlands, Riceville and other unincorporated areas, for which the city proper gets no credit at all.

Our various newspaper exchanges tell us that other cities made great strides in annexing outlying areas in order that the population increase might show on the 1950 census. Memphis, Tenn., annexed 113 square miles of territory so that the city would show a substantial increase in population.

When big industries, the U. S. Government, even foreign countries take into consideration expansion of their facilities in a southern or mid-southern area, they do so with population figures as a basis. To look at Fulton, Ky.'s population figures, with hardly any change census after census, their only alternative is to pass us by with a shrug that "we're dead at the branch."

That's not true, and any allegation or implication in that respect is a personal insult to us.

But what can they do about it. The job rests with the City Council to annex the outlying areas, thereby gaining a population increase and additional tax revenue for the city.

There will be loud squawks from some residents regarding the annexation, but remember there are mighty few things accomplished in the world with the whole-hearted concurrence of all concerned. There's not a person in this neck of the woods who knows that better than we do.

Mr. Atkins: The Progressive Veterans Ticket of City Councilmen: All others interested in a bigger Fulton (literally). Let's change the population figures for this census instead of waiting ten more years.

God Bless You, Betty Lou

The heart of a Nation, and the prayers of millions are joined together this week in recognition of a brave little girl who willingly and with faith gave up her right hand through amputation to save herself from a dread disease that might spread through the rest of her body.

Whenever newspaper accounts mention "a dread disease" we know the families of the stricken victims are rocked with a greater pain in their hearts because medical science, with all its experiments is still helpless in truly combating the onslaughts of this yet incurable disease.

It is right then and good too, that Betty Lou Marbury turn to prayer. In times of greatest need and on the darkest days, there is nothing that fills the heart with peace, like prayer. Without divine guidance even medical science is helpless to heal the sick. Betty Lou knows that, and it is for that reason her faith is so sweet and so fervent and has so touched us all.

In this mother's heart of ours we say, God bless you, and keep you, and cure you Betty Lou. That is our prayer for you and thousands of other dear children who are suffering as you are now.

WATER vs MONEY

Perhaps you have read or heard, in the past several weeks, of the critical shortage of water in the New York City reservoirs . . . resulting in such things as "Bathless" Fridays . . . revival of "water wardens", etc., etc. Without water, the huge metropolis realizes that it would be paralyzed, and must take some drastic measures before it is too late.

Perhaps you have read or heard, in the past several years, of the critical height of our national debt . . . resulting in such things as "yearly deficits" . . . increased spending" . . . "unbalanced budgets," etc., etc. . . .

Now water, on the one hand, is important; while money, on the other, is not. Seven million people make it their immediate, prime concern to conserve their water supply, while the same seven million and one-hundred and forty million more twit their fingers in indifference as their debt rises despite good times, good profits, good national income.

Hmmmmmmmmmmmm.

Road - Minded Governor

Introduced at a highway staff conference as "Kentucky's most road-minded Governor", Earle Clements reminded the nearly three hundred engineers present that he had once been "the road-minded county judge of a rural Kentucky county."

"Never before in the history of Kentucky has so much location work been completed in one year," Governor Clements said. "I want to compliment you and to express my personal gratitude for your loyal efforts."

The Governor said that today's deliberation should be turned down next year, "what we can do to make it as good or better."

"While I am proud to tell you that our road program has been the biggest in the state's history, I am also glad to tell you that the prospects are better for 1950. We will have more manpower and more money."

Speaking of the increased income, the Governor said, "The road tax is of no value except when it gets on a road."

Amen: (Ed's Note).

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

Being Typical

Hollywood and many other unnatural influences would like to make all of us typical, so that when someone said "Kentucky," at once would rise up a typical person, a sort of standardized gadget like a part needed by an automobile. This tendency to group things according to some preconceived plan does damage to everybody. There is no typical Kentuckian or typical person from anywhere else. Hitler loved to imagine a super-race, his own, but no sensible person believes there is any such animal. It sounds wise to say that So-and-So was a typical Southerner. How about his neighbor, who has always lived in the same place and has every claim to be so regarded, too? The intelligence of those who are looking for typical people just does not go that far.

Joe Creason, of the Courier-Journal, has my respect and admiration for attacking so often and so keenly the people who are determined to make the Kentuckian typical. Creason, like me, came from "away down yander," the Jackson Purchase, the part of the state that nobody knew anything about until Kentucky Dam brought good fishing. Down that way we never owned great race or saddle horses, we did not manufacture whiskey in great lots (except in some places), and we did not have any very extraordinary ancestors. An yet we were and are Kentuckians, just as much so as anybody who lives in the Bluegrass or the Mountains. Once in a very great while we saw what was purported to be a Southern Colonel, but he was more often laughed at than imitated as something remarkable. Our women were and are just as pretty and charming as they are elsewhere, too. But who ever heard of a "typical" story of Kentucky with a setting in, let us say, New Concord, Calloway County, my original Fidelity? People there, I suppose, are just plain people but not typical.

In their efforts to find typical Kentuckians sensational writers choose only the unusual or else resort to splicing two or more stories together to get the true or typical effect. Many a time I have told outsiders that what we have that is queer is no more queer than can be found in anybody else's state. If two men get into a gun battle in New York City, the less said about it the better. But just let two marksmen shoot it out at Harlan, and the New York papers have to order new metal to pour letters for headlines.

Kentucky On The March

January 26 is going to be the day of all days for the Committee for Kentucky.

That day will see the largest gathering ever held of local and state leaders striving to make Kentucky fulfill her destiny as one of the great states of the Union.

Accent is going to be on civic endeavor in communities. The objectives of the conference are to stimulate citizen interest in building better communities by hearing outstanding achievements in some of the towns, cities, counties of Kentucky, by providing an opportunity for mutual exchange of ideas and methods among community and state leaders, and by lessening the gap between the community and the state through mutual understanding of each other's problems.

At the morning session, at the Henry Clay Hotel in Louisville, eleven notables including state officials, ex-state officials, and leaders in commercial development—will outline resources and services available to local organizations through their particular agencies. This is to emphasize to local people what they can expect from statewide organizations.

There will be seventy or more community leaders to listen to the morning program, as well as a good many editors attending the annual convention of the Kentucky Press Association. The entire membership of the KPA are to be guests of the Committee until 10 P. M. In the afternoon community leaders will tell about civic achievements in their localities. After the banquet, five celebrities will speak.

Your reporter will be there if Asthma, the old jalopy, doesn't blow a gasket a long way from a service garage. President Harry Schacter adds greatly to the attractiveness of the program by setting a 15-minute limit on all speakers. This time limit probably will bring people from as far west as Hickman or Fulton and as far east as Jenkins or Louisville people who otherwise might not attend.

All the world loves a brief public speaker. See you in Louisville on January 26.

The Fulton County News,

Dear Sir:

Our attention was drawn to your article in the issue of Friday, December 16th, entitled "Should She Believe in Santa Claus—a Story For Parents." That was a very fine piece of writing and we wish to commend you heartily for publishing it.

Such an intelligent treatment of the parents' role in the education of their children — whether it be about God, Santa Claus, or the facts of life—is something we would like to see more often.

May we also say that we like the high caliber of your paper in general? It is gratifying to see, especially in these times.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, I remain,

Very sincerely yours,
Norbert R. Ciesel,
Director.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"God" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, January 1, 1950.

The Golden Text is: "Who is so great a God as our God?" Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him." (John 1:18)

This Buick costs less than Butter!

MAYBE you never thought of it that way, since you don't buy butter in 3600-pound lots.

But pound for pound, this prideful Buick SPECIAL sells today for less than store-bought butter!

Actually, it costs less per pound than some of the cars in the so-called "lowest price" bracket—less than any other straight-eight on the market.

Now that's a pretty important yardstick.

Because cost-per-pound is a pretty stable measure of a car's merit. It takes skilful engineering, careful buying, efficient manufacturing to keep this figure around the half-dollar mark—and that's where it is on the 1950 SPECIAL 4-door Sedan.

The real point, of course, is that this is a Buick at that figure.

Buick styling. Buick valve-in-head straight-eight power. Buick steadiness and roadability. The gentle cushioning power of Buick 4-wheel coil springing.

Buick room, finish, standing—with a special plus these days in greater maneuverability to help you slip into tight parking spaces and home-size garages. Buick's unmistakable appearance, through gracefully tapering fenders and that new "Buick first," that sturdy, shock-absorbing, triple-purpose bumper-guard grille.

All this at price tags that "sound like a six" and a cost-per-pound right down with the very lowest!

So—if you can afford butter, why not a Buick? Talk to your dealer about it—delivered prices, trade-ins, delivery dates, all the rest—and make your next car a Buick.

ALL YOURS FOR ONLY
$1975.00

The roomy 3-passenger 1950 Buick SPECIAL Coupe shown delivers for this figure, plus state and local taxes if any. Prices subject to change without notice. Prices may vary slightly in adjoining communities due to transportation charges.

Dynaflo Price Reduced $40
This 1950 Buick SPECIAL is available with Dynaflo Drive at $40 less than November prices.

Miss McCollum, Mr. Baird Are Wed In Brilliant Ceremony At Baptist Church

By Agatha Voelpel

Amid a classically beautiful setting of circular candelabra holding dozens of white tapers and garlands of southern smilax, Miss Joan McCollum, daughter of Mrs. Clay Carter McCollum, and the late Mr. McCollum, became the bride of Mr. Daniel McDade Baird, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horton Baird. A large assemblage of relatives and friends witnessed the impressive double ring ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Lewis D. Ferrell at the First Baptist church on Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock.

The entire chancel of the church was filled with the candelabra suggesting the wedding ring theme. Smilax was used profusely throughout the altar and festooned the choir rail which also held large fern balls and smaller groups of candles.

Preceding the exchanging of the nuptial vows Miss Martha Ann Giles of Lexington, Tennessee, soprano, and Mrs. Steve Wiley, organist presented a program of wedding music. Miss Giles sang the De Koven "Oh Promise Me," and the Greig "I Love Thee," and Mrs. Wiley played a Chopin "Nocturne," the Mac Dowell "To A Wild Rose," and during the ceremony the Wagner "Oh Thou Sublime Sweet Evening Star" from Tannhauser. The traditional Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches were used as the processional and recessional.

Mr. Wallace Green McCollum gave his sister in marriage. She wore an exquisite formal wedding gown of gardenia satin, a Nanty original fashioned along period lines. The fitted bodice had a deep portrait yoke of illusion which was outlined with an intricate design of seed pearls, silver bugle beads, and innidescents. The headed design extended into a circular train. The skirt was caught up in festoons to show rows of pleated illusion ruffles. The fitted sleeves ended in points over the hand and a row of covered buttons closed the back of the bodice. Her tiered veil of imported illusion fell from a satin coronet beaded with pearls and silver. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and white orchids tied with brocade satin ribbon and puffs of illusion.

Miss Barbara Ann Roberts was the maid of honor and Miss Marilee Beadles the bridesmaid. They wore identical period frocks of American Beauty slipper satin. Deep berths formed portrait necklines and standing collars. The very full skirts featured a side bustle. Their headresses were coronets of the satin and curled ostrich tips. They wore satin gauntlets and carried satin muffs to which were fastened clusters of gardenias.

Mr. Jack Browder attended the groom as best man. Ushers were Messrs. Read Holland, Hunter Whitesell, Billy Murphy, Joe Davis, Mac Nall, Joe Ridgeway of St. Louis and James Claude Cathey of Helena, Ark. Max McDade and Don Wright were the acolytes.

Mrs. McCollum, the bride's mother, wore a lovely dinner dress of wine tissue faille. The groom's mother, Mrs. Baird, chose a strikingly simple model of heaven blue faille taffeta with a brief bolero with elbow sleeves.

Immediately following the ceremony a large reception was held in the church parlors which carried out a holiday theme of white, marked each place.

The honored guests were presented a cook book by the hostesses.

McCollum, Miss Marilee Beadles, Barbara Roberts, Jack Browder, Billy Murphy, Read Holland, Hunter Whitesell, Joe Davis, Mac Nall, Miss Mary Lee Haws, Miss Lois Jean Hindman, Rodney Miller of Gaitheburg, Md., Miss Bertie Sue Meacham and Dr. Ward Bushart.

The same festive glow was cast over the candle-lit living-room and dining-room window while the guests enjoyed a delicious buffet dinner.

Artistically placed near the entrance was a huge bowl of snapdragons, pink carnations and shasta daisies. About the rooms candles burned in silver holders. The dining-room table, overlaid with a linen damask cloth held as a centerpiece a bowl of white carnations, interspersed with silver wedding bells made of starched net. The centers of the carnations were similarly adorned.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Lee and baby spent the weekend with her mother, Mrs. Lorene Howell.

things with a shotgun and rifle that no human reasonably could do expected to do.

Since that time I have encountered this same enthusiastic devotion from Parsons fans in the States. Then, by chance, our paths crossed a couple of weeks ago in Louisiana. I watched Herb put on a show for several hundred bug-eyed fans. He shot dimes and quarters with a .22 rifle, he hit five clay targets tossed into the air with a Winchester pump. He pulled off about every difficult shot possible with both rifles and shotguns—and made it look easy.

And in addition to this shooting, his verbal comments as the show moved along would have done justice to Will Rogers or other great entertainers. Parsons is a showman—one of the best of this or any generation.

Probably it is this ability as a showman that will give Parsons a special niche in the outdoor hall of fame. But actually, the Parsons behind this showmanship front is the guy that impressed me the most.

He's one of those persons who makes you feel as if you've known him for years after only a few minutes; he's the type of guy you'd like to spend a day or week with in a duck blind or a fishing boat.

Herb Parsons has personality plus; and if you ever get a chance to see Herb put on one of his shooting exhibitions, go up and introduce yourself. You'll make a friend with one of America's finest sportsmen.

True delicacy, as true generosity, is more wounded by an act of offence from itself, than to itself.—Greville.

The primary indication, to my thinking, of a well-ordered mind is a man's ability to remain in one place and linger in his own company.—Seneca.

The Douglas fir is named in honor of David Douglas, a Scottish botanist who introduced it into Europe in 1827.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

In wandering around the country hunting, fishing and talking conservation I have had the opportunity of getting acquainted with a great many sportsmen. You meet great guys and true sportsmen almost everywhere you travel.

But none of the fellows I've met in three decades of outdoor meandering ever impressed me more than Herb Parsons, the likeable Tennessee shooter who puts on exhibitions for Winchester-Western.

Possibly you know Herb, or have seen him shoot, for his trail has cut across most states, Canadian provinces and Alaska in staging exhibitions for the arms and ammunition firms which sponsor his work. Usually he is billed as the "world's greatest shot" or some other similar title.

I had heard the name for years, but it was not until 3 years ago that I was fully impressed. I happened to have followed Herb through Alaska and everywhere I stopped to visit with natives all they could talk about was a guy named Parsons who could do

NATURAL GAS STARTS TO FLOW THROUGH NEW TEXAS GAS LINE

For the men working above, the biggest job of laying the pipe line is over... Last week, in time for Christmas, Texas Gas Transmission's natural gas pipe line that passes near here went into preliminary operation.

This is the line, 26-inches in diameter and over 800 miles long, that was begun last May. In planning the project it was determined that, despite obstacles, the new artery would go into service for this winter's coldest weather.

Looking back, the pipeliners above remember the obstacles well. In October, rain caused the loss of half the working days in the month. Crews had to lay pipe through miles of rock and miles of swamp. Fifteen rivers that had to be crossed each presented its own problems in engineering and construction... Despite this, more men and more machines were moved in to do the job, and the line was built.

Although the pipe line is in the ground, the job has not ended. Additional compressor stations will be erected in 1950. And for years and years to come the pipe line system, from Texas to Ohio, will remain under constant maintenance and supervision.

Thus, the new pipeline takes its place in our nation's vital chain of 250,000 miles of underground lines carrying natural gas.

As operations begin, Texas Gas wants communities along the pipe line to know it appreciates the help they have given in many ways to speed the construction program. Having met you, the Company looks forward to becoming a good neighbor.

Memo to citizens of Fulton County:

Attached information from our company newspaper, PIPE-LINE PROGRESS, is printed to give you news about our new pipe line through your area and to inform you of activities of our natural gas transmission system. You may receive regular copies of PIPELINE PROGRESS by writing to:
