Attorneys' Object To Electric Distribution on Which Witness Testimony Would Be Based

Several Changes Announced in List of Teachers

The Board of Fulton schools, in regular session Tuesday evening, announced the following changes in the teaching force for the first grade. Principals of the various schools were advised of the changes:

Mrs. Oslin Smith, a veteran of 40 years teaching, who was stationed in the coming year, was appointed to teach the first grade at the Fulton school.

Fraud was charged in various states of the union in which a phone call was made in the name of the Secretary of Commerce asking for a contribution.

The writer was talking with a Fultogram editor and mentioned the fact that he had seen an article in a local newspaper which purported to prove that few people read newspaper editorials. Being curious about the matter, the writer began a series of campaign reading his friends to ascertain if any of them had read any of these editorials. "I have asked about 1000 of them. They read some of the news, none of them read the columns, none of them read the sports, and practically all read the comics. But I have not found one who reads the editorial column. Although a few of these articles must have been more or less true.

This friend went on to say that he read every editorial in the newspapers every day. "I read them completely," he said. "Each column contains something that is worth reading." He continued, "I can carry on an intelligent discussion on almost any subject. We do not mean to say that we do not read editorials, but we read every article. For all these, there are a great many people, and many editors are probably not worth the time required to read them. In every newspaper, there are a great many people who can write wonderful editorials, but these are a matter of taste, and many editors are probably not worth the time required to read them. A newspaper man in Kansas recently captured the essence of an editorial with this statement: "The honest editor knows he is only a half educated club whose prestige demands he express as many opinions as possible. Rabbis have given him some freedom, although his style is often spoiled by his lack of thought."
