CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ANNUAL BANQUET

To Be Held April 22, at First Christian Church—Henry Mace Payne to Speak.

Next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, the Chamber of Commerce will stage their annual banquet at First Christian Church which promises to be an outstanding affair for the promotion of good will.

Henry Mace Payne, of Louisville, Ky., has accepted an invitation to participate on the program. Mr. Payne has given his life to the study of building cities and communities, and he enjoys a reputation of being one of the best inspirational speakers in the whole South. Mr. Payne has appeared before conventions all over the country, and has been asked to participate on more programs for Chambers of Commerce than any man in Kentucky. He has made a study of the basic industries and the vital programs of the Southern communities, and has the ability of putting over to the audiences these ideas that count for the most.

An attractive musical program will be furnished that will be enjoyable to all. A tempting menu is being prepared, and everything will be decorated for this gala occasion.

There will be many invitations extended to officials of various capacities who have been in sympathy with the growth and development of Fulton. The new member of the Road Commission, Hon. Roy Shelbourne, has been invited, and our people intend to show him every courtesy known. Mr. Shelbourne is really one of us because he has lived in our neighboring town all of his life, and he knows that the people of Fulton are his friends.

A great interest has been shown by the members of the Chamber of Commerce in this event, and the officers and directors are assured that there will be a capacity crowd in attendance. At this banquet there will prevail nothing but good feeling, and there should develop a determination to carry out the program of bettering Fulton to a successful conclusion of the work for the year.

Fulton is far more fortunate than the most of the people can realize. There has been an awful depression over most of the country. Men and institutions have fallen by the wayside in bankruptcy in many places, but our people have enjoyed a good business all along. Our farmers are still optimistic of the future, and their trade has been entirely satisfactory to the merchants. Our markets are in good shape, considering the past, and today there prevails a good feeling throughout the community. If our people can be made to realize what a good town and community they live in, and can be convinced that their cooperation is always needed in projects being carried out; then, the effort in having a banquet will be of untold value.

Tickets will be on sale by the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce this week, and it is expected that the capacity of the dining room of the church will be sold out before Saturday.

CLEAN-UP WEEK REMOVES MANY EYESORES

The committees in charge of Clean-up week deserve much credit for the splendid work accomplished in so short a time. Many spots that had been eyesores for a long time present a pleasing appearance today.

We especially want to commend every property owner in the tidy appearance of their premises who took an active part in the clean-up campaign. Fulton is a pretty town and practically every citizen in it takes pride in clean home surroundings. Few places are without shrubs and flowers, and my! how a small bunch of wild Sweet Williams here and there can brighten up things. The colorful beds of tulips here and there are attracting much attention and admiration. In fact, it is refreshing to take a trip over town and see the pretty shrubs and plants in blossom.

If the city could make some provision in keeping the downtown streets and alleys clean, we would have a just pride in saying Fulton is one of the cleanest cities anywhere. The merchants, too, would be given relief of damaged merchandise by accumulation of dirt and dust.

CHILD HEALTH HYMN FOR MAY DAY

(Tune—The Church's One Foundation)

O God of little children, whom Thou on earth didst love,
Look down today and bless them from Heaven high above,
Our orchards and our vineyards we till with zealous care,
But child-plants, unprotected, are drooping everywhere.

O God of little children, teach us to know their worth,
Of such shall be Thy Kingdom in Heaven and on earth.
And in the great world-garden Thy laborers are we
To guard and keep the blossoms for all eternity.

O God of little children, we have no wealth beside,
Teach us to seek and save them by effort nation-wide,
To fight the foes that threaten, the weeds and pest and blight,
For every child-plant growing is precious in Thy sight.

O God of little children, Thy garden shall be tilled,
By us whose hearts are wakened, Thy prophecies fulfilled.
The desert long neglected shall blossom as the rose,
With health and hope and freedom for every child that grows.
—Molly Whitford Anderson.

Annual Easter Egg Hunt

Sunday Afternoon at Fair Grounds, Sponsored by Lions Club

All of the children 2 to 12 years of age, of the town are invited to participate in the Annual Easter Egg Hunt at the fair grounds Sunday afternoon, sponsored by the Lions Club. The grown-ups are also invited. This is an occasion looked forward to with pleasure by the children and may be termed as a great sport for the little ones hunting for eggs, many of which are prize winners. In fact, some of the eggs are worth $5.00 in cash, while hundreds carry prizes of more or less value.

Be sure to enter your child in the hunt; he may find several prize winning eggs. You too, will enjoy watching the little ones in their eager anticipation of finding the golden eggs.

There is no admission fee. Everybody is invited to attend and enjoy this annual event.

YOU ARE INVITED

"Visitors' Week" is announced by the O. K. Laundry for April 22, 23 and 24, when everybody will be invited to call in the afternoon at the laundry plant on State Line street and inspect this modern and sanitary laundry establishment. It should be of special interest to go through such an institution, which serves the public with such painstaking care, relieving the housewife of the burdensome care of washday. The O. K. makes a specialty of family wash and also maintains a dry cleaning department of the higher class. Don't fail to visit the O. K. next week. You will be given a royal welcome.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HAS SUCCESSFUL BUDGET

Work Progressing Satisfactorily Most All Firms Have Signed Up

The Chamber of Commerce, through its committees, has canvassed the town seeking pledges to the budget for the year, and the most of the business firms of the town are determined to have this work carried out to the very best of the ability of the men in charge. In doing this the merchants and business men believe that great good can be accomplished by keeping intact an organization ready to go after the things that are needed for the town. Through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce the very best feeling will always be maintained between the business men and in keeping this feeling business conditions will naturally be stimulated to a greater extent.

Fulton trade territory is large and always needs developing. The merchants are determined this year to do their utmost to cultivate the very best friendship possible with the people who live in this trade territory of ours. The Chamber of Commerce expects to cooperate with the county agent in an endeavor to better the farm conditions. They also expect to cooperate with the Fulton County Fair Association to help make the fair the biggest that we have ever had. The road program will be pushed harder this year than ever before, and good results will be gotten from such effort. Committees are busy at the present time trying to negotiate in the right way with some firm to occupy the American Cigar building that was recently vacated. These and many other things will be followed closely throughout the year, and if the same spirit prevails, a successful year is bound to be had.

SOUTH FULTON JOINS CLEAN-UP WEEK FIGHT

Mayor Fields Issues Proclamation

Proclamation
Knowing the value of a general clean-up campaign for the city, and having a desire to better health conditions of the community, I, T. N. Fields, Mayor of the City of South Fulton, do hereby proclaim the week of April 21 to 26, as Clean-Up Week, and invite the cooperation of all our citizens in making South Fulton clean, healthful and beautiful. Especially do we want the help of the Parent-Teachers Association and the American Red Cross.

(Signed) T. N. Fields, Mayor.

The above proclamation by T. N. Fields, the Mayor of South Fulton, sets next week as the time for the general clean-up campaign in the city of South Fulton and an especial appeal is made to the citizens to do their part in cleaning up their premises so that the town will present a good appearance.

Wonderful work has been done on former occasions such as this, and Mr. Fields stated today that he had the assurance of the citizens that South Fulton would be spick and span before the end of next week.

Committees from the Parent-Teachers Association and the Red Cross, as well as the health department, are to be formed, and the town divided into two districts; one district will be all of that territory west of highway 45, leading from State Line towards Martin, and the other district will be all of that section east of this highway. The first three days of the week will be devoted to the cleaning up of the territory in the west section and the latter three days for cleaning up the east section.

The teachers of the colored school are to be appealed to in order that they might use their influence in getting the colored population to clean up their part of the town too. The colored folks of South Fulton have always shown the right spirit, and Mr. Fields states that he believes they will do better this year than ever.

There is nothing that will help business any better than to present a clean looking town, and there is great benefit to be derived from a health standpoint also.

The creek running through the town should be cleaned of all rubbish and the alley ways must be cleaned also. Mr. Fields states that those who have discarded old automobiles and left them in these places will be expected to remove them.

The city will have its truck and a force of men busy all next week removing the debris and the population is urged to have everything cleaned up and piled in the alleys so that the truck can pick it up.

Brieflets

One of the hardest jobs any Fulton man tackles is trying to convince his wife that the man he works for isn't Santa Claus.

News of the finding of a new planet is of interest. Now maybe there will be enough new parking places to go around.

The definition of a "necessity" this day and time is something that can be bought for a dollar down and a dollar a week.

Our idea of the best natured man in Fulton is the one who can stand around all afternoon while his wife prices everything in the store and then get back home in a good humor.

If the ads are true, the toothbrush is even more important in modern life than the can opener.

A Hollywood actress is suing for $1,000,000 damages to her reputation and even if she didn't have much of one before she filed the suit, she ought to succeed in getting one now.

Some Fulton women have an idea that the only comfortable shoes to be had are the ones they can slip off in a picture show.

Many a boy who is a comfort to his mother is only a "wet blanket" to a miss of sweet sixteen.

Maybe if the delegates to London can't get our battleship tonnage reduced, they can come on home and cut down the weight of trucks that are ruining our highways.

As most Fulton girls view it, the tan obtained in front of a kitchen stove doesn't count.

Maybe now that the long skirts are coming back our girls can start getting vaccinated again.

They say the Wall Street crash broke all records. But the worst part of it is that is not the only thing it broke.

Our idea of a foresighted man is the Fulton motorist who has already figured out how he can get all of the picnic equipment on the running board.

Maybe the reason Chinese soldiers don't fight any more than they do is they spend so much trying to find out which side they are on.

Never judge by appearances. The biggest crook often has the straightest crease in his trousers.

Another thing Fulton housewives will soon be worrying about is what became of last summer's fly-swatter.

A lot of wets and dries have been down at the mourner's bench in Washington, but we haven't heard of any conversions.

For a short time we will accept subscriptions for this paper and the Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal—both papers one year for only $1.25.

MOTHER OF INVENTION

The great silver eagle of the R-101 was drifting lazily over the interested upturned faces of a great crowd. Said one spectator:

"Can you tell me what relation a loaf of bread is to that airship?"

"What nonsense!" replied another onlooker. "There can be no relation ship."

"Oh, yes there is!" said the first speaker. "A loaf of bread is a necessity and the airship an invention. And everybody knows that necessity is the mother of invention."

Preparation

COUNTY BOARD ELECTS TEACHERS

The Fulton County Board of Education met in regular session on April 3 and had a very busy day of important matters.

So many people having moved from our rural districts, thus making attendance so small, the board decided to close Taylor and Stubbs, also Mud Creek, colored, and reduce Lodgeston from a two-teacher to a one-teacher school.

Only a few vacancies existed in our schools, since all teachers now in our employ, who were giving satisfaction were taken care of by moving them to different districts.

The following teachers were employed:

Jordan: Clyde Lassiter, principal; Marian Wright, assistant high school teacher; Wilmer Cruce, 7th and 8th grades; Evelyn Bondurant, primary.

Cayce: L. A. Rains, principal; Mary Jo McNeill, assistant; Cecil Cruce, 7th and 8th grades; Mrs. Wilkins and Christine Jones, intermediate grades; Mrs. Rains, primary.

Work of Early Farmers Recognized

Styles in ships have changed greatly since the first commercial fertilizer was brought to this country. Above—Modern liner of the type that carries 1,000,000 tons of nitrate of soda annually to the United States from Chile. Right—Freighter in service in 1839. Inset—Herbert C. Brewer, director of the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau.

THE older generation among Southern farmers deserves credit for laying the foundations of the modern soil-improvement programs which have proved so successful in raising the yields and profits on our farms.

This is shown by the experience of Southern farmers, now past middle age, who have volunteered information about the earliest users of nitrate of soda in their states. Some of these planters have been using fertilizers continually for quarter of a century, and one farmer in South Carolina reports that he first used nitrate of soda back in 1875.

As part of the 100th anniversary of the use of nitrate of soda in this country, recognition in the form of a distinctive award is to be conferred upon the farmer in each state who has used this fertilizer for the longest period of time. This award is being given by the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau. Letters from farmers are reaching the office of the Educational Bureau daily and the awards will be made this fall.

"Four generations of Southern farmers have used commercial fertilizers during the past 100 years," says Herbert C. Brewer, director of the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau, "but efficient soil-building practices were not understood generally until the last quarter century. It remained for our educational agencies, such as the extension services of the state agricultural colleges, to popularize the practices which could be depended upon to assure the most economic production. At present, thousands of farmers are doing daily what only a few of the most enterprising did a half century ago."

New Methods Adopted In Chilean Industry

Production of Nitrate Fertilizer in Sun-Parched Desert Is Speeded Up.

AMERICAN engineers are helping to revolutionize an industry up in the sun-parched mountains of northern Chile.

The application of modern methods of mass production is making the Chilean nitrate industry a model of 20th century efficiency, according to Conrado Rios Gallardo, former Chilean Secretary of State, who was a recent visitor to the United States before becoming his country's ambassador to Peru.

With the elimination of waste and the use of labor-saving machinery, a marked decrease, he said, has been made in the cost of producing the fertilizer under the difficult conditions found in the arid desert.

"Never before has the nitrate industry occupied as strong a position as it does today," declared Ambassador Gallardo. "Not only have the mechanical processes been vastly improved, but the production has been stabilized to the benefit of both the producers and the consumers of this fertilizer."

The Chilean Government has taken an energetic part in the improvement of the industry. It has aided the producers through legislative enactment and has encouraged new American processes for mining and refining the fertilizer.

At present nearly one-half of the total capital invested in the industry is owned in the United States, pointed out the Ambassador. American farmers are also the largest users of Chilean nitrate, their consumption during the past five years averaging about 1,000,000 tons annually.

The nitrate fertilizer was first shipped to this country in 1839. It has been used ever since, and today it occupies the honor of being the oldest of the commercial fertilizers.

PROTEIN IN FEEDS MAKES HEN LAY 42 MORE EGGS

HENS ON SKIMMILK LAY 42 MORE EGGS

If grain alone was a completely balanced food to make eggs, then a hen would not lay from two to five dozen more eggs per year when skimmilk or some other good protein concentrate is added to the grain ration, says the Blue Valley Creamery Institute.

The cost of adding an efficient protein provider to the grain is small in comparison with the extra returns it makes possible. Of course the better the hen is bred to lay the greater will be the return but under ordinary flock conditions on the average Mississippi Valley farm every dollar's worth of protein feed fed with grains should return from $1.00 to $5.00 in profits. Records kept on farms in the same districts in Michigan show that where skimmilk or tankage was fed the profits from the flocks were double the poultry profits on farms where no such protein providers were fed. Where the rations included such sources of animal protein the flocks averaged 96.8 eggs per year per hen, whereas only 54.8 eggs per hen were yielded in the absence of skimmilk or tankage in the ration. The better fed hens, laying the greater number of eggs, made an average net return per hen of $2.60, against only $1.28 for the flocks whose rations were poorly balanced through the lack of protein. The 42 more eggs per hen and the $1.32 per hen greater returns were the result of providing each hen with an average of 20¢ worth of animal protein, such as skimmilk or tankage. At this rate of return every dollar's worth of protein supplement returned $6.00.

A hen labors under a severe handicap without enough protein. Every egg contains definite amounts of protein and it must be supplied in the raw state. Skimmilk is the best farm-produced protein obtainable and since a good supply of animal protein is the limiting factor in egg production it pays excellent dividends to feed it to hens—all they can consume.

POULTRY

(By J. T. Watkins)

Well, I certainly have worked hard these last two weeks. As was mentioned in this column about two weeks ago, we were starting work on the first unit of our poultry plant, which will consist of four units. The first house was completed last Saturday and 100 baby chicks placed therein. We feel real proud of our start.

This house is 15x20 feet and will house about seventy-five grown fowls. We will have three houses of this type. They will be shed style with open front, covered in cold weather with a muslin curtain. Each house will have a separate breed, but all white—Wyandotte, Plymouth Rock and Leghorns, we will also raise White Holland Turkeys. The place will be called the "White Feather Farm." Well wishes are now in order.

Join the poultry association. Do it now. Dues $1.00 per year.

We have set our mark at 1,000 birds at the fair this fall. Help us reach that mark. If we top this figure it will be known from Maine to California. The big metropolitan papers will run an article about Fulton county, Kentucky having the largest poultry show at a county fair in the United States. Sounds good, doesn't it. A little work on your part, and a lot of work on my part will put it over, provided we have the financial backing of the merchants of this town, and they have never fallen down on their part of the job yet. They will do their part, I'll do mine now will you breeders and chicken raisers do your part? It is easy, just join the association, show a string of your birds, and we will show the world, not only Missouri.

I received a list of 4-H club members from Ohio County last week sent in by Mr. Cleland the county agent, for that county, there are only 170 boys and girls interested in poultry over there. If each one enters a pen of birds at the fair that will be 850 birds. But of course, we don't expect to have entries from each member, as some of them live too far away from Fulton to come to the fair, but we should have at least 300 from Ohio county. Then I got a list from Graves county, they have 19 members, far too few for a county that size, but we should get 50 entries from Graves, we have 85 members in Fulton county, should be 125 members in this county, but we should have at least 250 entries. I haven't heard from Hickman nor Weakley counties but hope to have 100 entries from those two counties. This will give us 700 birds entered by 4-H club members. That will give Judge Humphries some job, for he has already promised me he would come down and judge the 4-H class. Then we should have enough poultry entered by the grown breeders to easily reach the 1,000 mark. Gosh, but I'm optimistic. Why not?

I don't know if you folks get tired reading this junk or not. Sometimes I think you will rise up and stop my continually harping about what I want you to do, but I have started out to make this the best poultry county in the state, and by jing, I'll do it if I can. But I guess some of you are like Amos and Andy, you are getting "regusted."

WHITMYER TO PREACH

Arrangements have been made for the Rev. C. L. Whitmyer, rector of the Episcopal Church at Union City, to hold services each Sunday at Trinity Church, Fulton. During March the Rev. D. E. Johnstone, rector, died of a heart attack at his home in Hickman, leaving the local church without a regular minister. It is thought that it will be some time before Bishop Charles E. Woodcock, of the diocese of Kentucky, will place a permanent minister in Fulton and Hickman.

DAIRY

GENTLE TEMPERED BULL IS TREASURE

Proper Handling of Calf Helps Animal Later On.

From time to time press reports tell of another "quiet" bull which went wrong and somebody was hurt, or killed. A really good-tempered bull is a treasure (and there are a few), but only a herdsman of 20 or 30 years' experience can be reasonably sure he knows a quiet bull. Proper handling of the calf which is destined to become a herd sire is the only known method of producing an animal which will be easy to handle when mature. Many a good bull has been sent to slaughter, and many a man met his death through careless handling or rough treatment when a bull was young. Miss Tucker, the experienced manager of a large herd of Red Polls in Worcester, England, offers some sage advice on this subject in a recent issue of the "Journal of the Red Poll Breed." Kindness should always be the keynote of the training of young bulls. They can be very aggravating, but on no account hit a bull, for he will remember it and sooner or later try to pay you back. If the bull has been frightened sooth him quietly, always aiming to maintain his confidence in you. The same person should always handle him, at least during his schooling. When old enough, see that the ringing is done properly and that the ring is well back. Never attempt to handle a bull with blood or any offensive smelling materials on your hands or clothes. Wash such things off or cover them with disinfectant. Teach him to let you handle his legs. If he has a tendency to kick let him hit the bristles of a wire broom. Never let him think that you fear him. If the bull persists in a surly mood, a sharp twist of the ring, and tying his head higher than usual for a while should mend matters. Persistent kindness will always win, while ill-treatment will only make matters worse.

Price of Beef Checks

Expansion of Dairying

The relation between the price of beef and the price of milk has an important influence on the number and age of the milk cows in the United States, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. This relation, says O. E. Reed, chief of the bureau, dairy industry, affects both the age at which milk cows are sold for slaughter and the number of beef-type cows milked. "Because of the present prices of beef," he comments, "dairymen are culling their low producers and aged cows to make room for the heifers just coming into milk. Indications are that for the next few years the price of beef will be an important factor in restricting the expansion of dairying, and the number of cows milked is expected to show little increase for several years. The gradual increase in the demand for milk due to increasing population seems likely to result in prices averaging sufficiently above feed costs to permit a gradual further increase in the production of milk per cow."

Cow Must Have Protein for Production of Milk

Practical experience is in accord with research work done at a number of experiment stations. In a comparison between linseed meal and ground soy beans when fed with corn and oats, ground beans produce fully as much milk and fat as when linseed meal is fed. This indicates that dairymen who must purchase a protein supplement may well consider the use of soy beans when the ground beans are as cheap or cheaper than linseed meal. The dairy cow must have protein to produce milk. As this is the most expensive ingredient in the ration the cheaper it can be procured the lower the feed cost is likely to be.

Remodeled Dairy Barns

Render Better Service

Old barns made new by being properly remodeled or repaired will render good service to many dairymen who are now struggling along with poor equipment. Even a shed which is rebuilt so as to provide good floors, stanchions, ventilation, sunshine and warmth will be worth while. Dairy cows will pay better returns for improved conditions than practically any other type of live stock on the farm. In addition, the owner spends more time with the cows than with most other types of live stock, so that he will share in the added comfort and convenience.

Silage for Calf

Silage is not very good for calves under four months of age and then only the leafy parts should be fed in small amounts. Very often young stock is neglected and not kept in a growing condition. A heifer must be well fed with a light feed of grain. A cow in order to be able to consume large quantities of feed must be fed while young all the good roughage she will take so as to develop a large capacity for feed which will be needed when she comes in milk.

Lesson for April 20

JESUS TEACHING FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:15-35, or Easter Lesson, John 20:1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Forgiveness.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Forgiveness.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Practice Forgiveness?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Is True Forgiveness?

This lesson touches a most vital subject for our everyday lives. We are always surrounded by wicked men. Ill treatment we shall most surely receive, for all who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution (II Tim. 3:12).

In this lesson we have divine instructions as to our behavior in case of such ill treatment.

I. How to Gain an Erring Brother (vv. 15-20).

A sinning brother is lost. To bring him to a knowledge of his sin and restore him to fellowship in the church is to gain him. One soul is of greater value than the whole world. The method to be used is:

1. Personal (v. 15).

Go alone and tell him his fault. Personal effort is most vital in winning an erring brother. It is usually an effective method.

2. The help of a comrade (v. 16).

"Take with thee one or two more." The presence of one or two comrades helps in making known his fault.

3. Tell it to the church (v. 17).

Sometimes the church can accomplish that which the individual and the comrades fail to do.

4. The binding authority of the church's decision (vv. 18-20).

When the church follows the instruction of the Lord, gathers in the name of Jesus Christ, and is actuated by the Holy Spirit, its decisions are final.

II. Peter's Question (v. 21).

This question was probably occasioned by the ill treatment which Peter was then experiencing at the hands of his fellow disciples. Christ's confession of Peter brought him into the limelight. The question of the disciples, "Who is greatest in the kingdom?" shows that there was some jealousy of Peter among the disciples. This envy and jealousy was known to Peter. His patience being thus tested, he came to Jesus with a question regarding forgiveness. From the Lord's teaching as to the efforts to bring about reconciliation in case of offenses between brother and brother, he knew that the spirit of forgiveness would be required. Peter, disposed to be gracious, inquired, "till seven times?" showing his readiness to forgive his brother not three times, but twice three times, and a little over.

III. Jesus's Answer (v. 22).

This answer was an astonishing revelation to Peter. Jesus said, not until seven times, but until seventy times seven, showing that willingness to forgive should be practically limitless.

IV. The Two Creditors (vv. 23-35).

These two creditors illustrate Christ's principle of forgiveness.

1. The gracious creditor (vv. 23-27).

The king in this parable represents God. The servant who is greatly in debt represents the sinner, any sinner, every sinner—you and me. We were hopelessly in debt to God. Ten thousand talents are equal to some twelve millions of dollars. To meet his obligation would be an utter impossibility. This man's plea for time, promising to pay all, resembles man's vain imagining that he can pay his debt to God, that by his future good works he can atone for past sins.

2. The cruel creditor (vv. 28-35).

The man who was forgiven so much found a man who owed him a small sum—perhaps seventeen dollars. He shut his ears to this man's entreaty to have patience with him, flew at his throat, and cruelly put him into jail. The great mercy shown the one whose debt had been forgiven did not touch his heart, so he refused to be merciful. Being set free from so great a debt as our sins against God, we should not take up some slight consideration against our brothers, but should make God's act of unlimited forgiveness toward us a standard of unlimited forgiveness toward others.

(1) We, every one, continue to need every day the forgiveness of God. When we pray, "Forgive us our debt as we forgive our debtors," let us be sure that we have put away all thought of sin held against others. No mercy will be shown to those who have not shown mercy.

IT'S GOOD BUSINESS

"I certainly like to trade in a happy place," said a total stranger a few days ago as he came out of a local store to get in his auto. He was addressing himself to whoever happened to be in earshot, and while no one paid much attention to the remark, it struck us as revealing the real secret of running a successful business.

People love to trade in happy places, where everybody is on the job and anxious to meet the wants of the customer. A willing and smiling clerk shows satisfaction with his line, and in that way he boosts the business. Politeness, cheerfulness and a desire to please cost nothing whatever but they are mighty forces in building good will, and good will is the foundation stone of any business. The customer who is made to feel that his friendship is just as desirable as his money is pretty apt to go back regularly. And it is his good will that encourages other buyers to visit the same place he does.

To have a happy place it is not necessary to encourage loafing, singing and loud laughter. Such nuisances really drive business away. The Fulton business man who realizes this, and who knows there are far better ways to make his customers happy, is sure to enlarge his business, no matter what kind of business it may be. "I like to trade at a happy place," said the stranger as he stepped on the starter and then on the gas. And we believe everybody in the community feels the same way about it.

STILL ANOTHER "MERGER"

Nothing is passing much faster in this country than the one-room school house. While the whole country seems to have acquired the "merger" habit the school has fallen into line, and in almost every state the one-room school houses are being abolished for centralized schools.

Older Fulton citizens, in whose hearts the one-room schoolhouse is still a shrine will not oppose this kind of "merger," at least not those who are acquainted with the wider educational advantages it brings to the children of America. The one-room school still must serve its purpose in many sections. But each year sees highways improved and extended, and this means the auto will soon be able to get into those sections, bringing with it the centralized school. There, with one staff of teachers, a uniform course of study, more comfortable and more modern quarters and better equipment, the taxpayers are maintaining one school house instead of a half-dozen or more. And the scholar is surer to have an increased opportunity for learning. In Nebraska alone, 284 one-room schools have disappeared within five years. We believe that ratio will hold good all over the country.

Those who love the "little old one-room school" will, of course, feel a tinge of sorrow over its passing. But that can be soothed by the knowledge that a new day demands new methods. Whatever is best for our boys and girls is the thing we want now, even if we have to part with a lovable old institution like the one-room school house to get it.

FINISH FULTON PAVING

The city made its final settlement with the firm of Carey Reed Company for completion of the street program which amounted to approximately $51,000. Of this sum more than $16,000 was paid in cash and the remainder was signed for by property owners. This final work completes the paving contract for the city with about nine and one-half miles of concrete streets having been laid in the past two and one-half years in Fulton.

BREAK THE CHAIN

We note in an exchange that the old-time chain-letter nuisance is again bobbing up despite the numerous attempts made by the postoffice department to discourage such foolishness. Anyone around Fulton who gets a letter instructing him to write a certain number of letters just like it and to mail them on to that number of friends, along with a veiled warning that "bad luck will descend upon anyone who breaks this chain," should tear the letter up. No need to read it in full, after you've discovered what it is. Such nuisances are originated by people with more time than brains; they do not help anybody or any cause; they mean a waste of time, paper and stamps, and simply add to the burdens of hard-worked postal employees. You will show good judgment if you ignore the "chain-letter." As far as having bad luck if you do so is concerned, that is too silly to even think about.

AN ARGUMENT FOR PEACE

We don't know what the average Fulton man's reason may be for opposing war—but here is ours. So far the World War has cost the American people $36,000,000,000. Uncle Sam is now caring for more than 28,000 veterans of the war, and 230,000 others receive compensation from him. More than $800,000,000 will be spent this year for pensions, hospital care and insurance. By 1945, a government survey shows, $11,500,000,000 will be added to the thirty-six billion already paid out. And this doesn't include the millions and billions that must be paid out in war loans—the Liberty and Victory loans floated during the war. Of course, our chief objection to war is that it destroys the flower of the nation's young manhood and leaves countless women and children to suffer. But if more argument against war is needed, here you have it in plain figures. And figures, when used to show the high cost of war, do not lie.

CUTTING DOWN ACREAGE

The Department of Agriculture estimated at the beginning of April that farmers as a whole are decreasing the acreage of spring wheat by 3.7 per cent. Chairman Legge, of the farm board, who has been urging wheat growers to reduce their acreage in order to bolster the price of their commodity, has warned farmers that a reduction of at least ten per cent was necessary for an appreciable effect on the market. Reports indicate, the department says, that growers plan a 15 per cent decrease in some sections, while the decrease in Montana, Idaho and Minnesota is expected to be around 5 per cent. None of us, of course, can predict the harvest total; no one can foretell whether or not it will be a good crop year. But we do believe that the farm board is sincerely trying to cut the acreage down in the interest of wheat farmers in general and it would seem that the wisest thing to do, under present conditions, is to cooperate with the board and try to help them in their work of restoring the price of this commodity.

WHY FREEDOM FROM DEFECTS OF THROAT AND TEETH IS REQUIRED TO WIN A BLUE RIBBON.

Many of the ills that children and adults suffer from are due to diseased teeth and throats. Some children fail to make the grades in school because they are handicapped by these defects. Poisons from diseased tonsils and decayed teeth can make your child underweight, take colds and have sore throat, joint pains, other infectious diseases easily, earache, gum boils, poor appetite, be restless, irritable and may eventually cause heart trouble or other very serious organic trouble. Without considering the bad effect upon the body, a child who has frequent sore throats, cold, other infectious diseases, toothaches, etc., and has to be absent from school, has a hard time to keep up in his school work. A child cannot develop physically and mentally as he should if his tonsils and teeth are diseased.

A person normally has only two natural sets of teeth during a lifetime. If both sets are not taken care of, the permanent teeth will be lost and will have to be replaced by false teeth. If the baby teeth are allowed to decay, they will often injure the permanent teeth as the latter come in. It is very injurious to allow teeth to be neglected until they ache, for an ache shows that much destruction of the tooth has already taken place, and often the tooth must be pulled. A dentist should examine the teeth every six months, so that he can discover the decay before it has caused much destruction, and can repair the tooth with little pain, cost, or injury to the tooth. The teeth should be cleaned twice daily, from the very beginning when the first baby teeth appear. If you have allowed your child's baby teeth to decay, have the injury repaired at once; do not wait for them to fall out or to be pulled. If in the school inspections, in clinics, or by your own physician and dentist, it has been discovered that your child has diseased teeth, have them corrected. This is necessary to help make your child a Blue Ribbon Child, and more important, to enable him to grow and develop as he should, and to save him much suffering in the future.

"In a single generation we can add years to the average life by proper dental care alone. By making universal the observance of all good health habits, the human span may be extended."—President Hoover.

Community Building

Planting of Suitable Trees Important Point

There are few people who would not think that a house with at least one full-grown tree in its yard looks more homelike and attractive than one standing on a treeless lot. For this reason planting trees is one of the first things that a man does when he acquires property, whether he considers his home as an investment or the home he plans to live in all his life. But what trees to plant and how should he plant them?

There should be trees along the parking, of course. In some communities the custom is to plant the large spreading trees like elms or maples along the parking, thus making a completely shaded avenue when the trees have reached their maturity. In communities where summer days are excessively hot, this is a very wise custom. Other communities are trying to give variety to the streets by planting native flowering trees there—crepe myrtle, flowering dogwood and Judas tree and wild crabapple. These streets in the spring time are surpassingly beautiful. It seems that Americans are wanting color along their sidewalks as well as in their gardens. Do not let the large trees be planted closer than 25 feet apart. They will not grow to maturity with the symmetry that is so desirable if they are planted too close together. The smaller trees may be planted 10 or 15 feet apart, or they may be grouped, if the parking is wide.

Town Library Essential

to Modern Education

America did not discover or originate the public library; but nothing has been more striking than the growth of the town library within the present generation. There were town libraries before Andrew Carnegie, and they would have increased and multiplied without the stimulus of his benefactions. This can be said without belittling his philanthropy. Today, the public library is as much part of a town's educational equipment as the public school itself. It is the complement of the school. Any school-day afternoon one finds in these reading rooms numbers of studious boys and girls busy among the reference books, or asking for books which have been listed by their teachers for home reading. It is in ministering to the needs of these earnest young people that the town library discharges perhaps its most useful function.

Perfect Architecture

Architectural perfection in a building is based upon four general requirements, and the more complete the fulfillment of these requirements the more certain it is to be architecturally good. C. Julian Overwath declares in Architectural Progress.

"The first of these is utility, or fulfillment of the purpose for which it was intended," says Mr. Overwath. "The second is expression, or the way the design suggests the purpose, materials, construction and general plan arrangement. The third is soundness of construction, or the durability of the materials, knowledge and ingenuity in their uses and engineering perfection in assembling, and the fourth is beauty of design."

French "Garden Cities"

France, especially Paris, anxious about the future, is making determined efforts to bolster up the native population. Realizing that want of air and light and general sanitary conditions are largely responsible for the high rate of infant mortality, the government has constructed eleven "garden cities" just outside of Paris. Attractive apartment buildings are being put up. Social workers conduct clinics and teach child care, cooking and sewing to mothers and keep a general watch over the welfare of the community. The nominal rent is reduced with every addition to the family.—Patrolman Magazine.

Pergola Good Feature

With the increasing interest in the outdoors has come a greater demand for privacy on the home grounds. This has led to the development of at least a portion of the grounds as a small formal flower garden or informally planted lawn area intimately related to the house.

Of this a pergola would be a delightful feature. It is usually located at the opposite end of the garden, to be viewed from the house as a terminal feature of the garden or lawn.

Home Owner Good Citizen

The soundest thing in America today is absolute home ownership. It is the keynote to the real prosperity of the individual. People should own a home before they own an automobile or a radio.

A man who owns a home is a better citizen and a better influence for the community in which he lives.—Chicago Post.

Home Site Important

In buying your home site be generous and buy as large a one as you can afford, for a home site has almost as great an effect on a family's happiness as the house itself and a large lot usually makes a home far more valuable.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

GO BACK, LAD

Matrimonial Agent—You don't like the photographs of any of these? I will show you one more and if that is not suitable I can do nothing for you. Now, how about this one?

Client—Yes, that is just the type I like.

Agent—Then what about an interview with her?

Client—Unfortunately she is my divorced wife.

Before and After

Mr. Pester—Cleaning house just because a few women are going to drop in this afternoon? You never make such elaborate preparations when I entertain my friends.

His Wife—No, but I clean up five times as much after they leave.

For the Laboratory

"Five hundred dollars for that old worn-out flyover of yours! Impossible! Who'd ever pay that?"

"The auto school. They wanted it for the students to practice on, and it certainly had everything that could be wrong with a car."

Enjoying the Game

"Do you enjoy bridge?"

"Some parts of it," answered Miss Cayenne. "I particularly like the moments when cards are being shuffled and everybody has time to give out the gossip."—Washington Star.

WILL PROBABLY SUCCEED

"Say, Jerry, are you really serious about taking up the saxophone?"

"Sure! I'm tryin' to run the family out of our upstairs apartment."

Bringing the Bad News

The ticker tape comes rolling fast And brings me deep regret. It always lets me know, at last, I have misplaced my bet.

When Courage Failed Her

Circus Director (Impatiently)—What in blazes is the matter with Mlle. Carreno? Why doesn't she get into the lion cage?

Arena Hand—She's afraid to; there's a mouse in there!

"What's in a Name?"

Mr. Nickelpinch—Haven't I given you my name? What more do you want?

His Wife—I want the privilege of signing it to checks that will be honored at the bank.

Hope

"There was none of this promiscuous kissing at parties when I was a girl."

"Well, you're only forty now, dearie. Still young enough to get a few breaks."

AFTER THE FAST GIRLS

"So you don't talk much of the handsome motor cop?"

"No—he's always chasing after these fast girls."

Too Bad

Grandpa in a speedy car, Punched the throttle down too far, Twinkle, twinkle, little star, Quake by the G. A. R.

Superior to Influence

"Do you play golf?"

"I claim to do so," said Senator Sorghum. "But the voice of the proletariat is against me. The caddy thinks differently."—Washington Star.

The Only Difficulty

She—Dad, do you think there are people in the moon?

He—How could there be? Where could they go when there is no moon? Kikeriki (Vienna).

Pioneer Fertilizer Mined on Barren Lands in Chile

Introduction to United States in 1830 Marked First Use of Commercial Fertilizer.

THE first hundred years in the use of commercial fertilizers can now be recorded in the agricultural history of the United States. The practice of using commercial nitrogen as a fertilizer was started in 1830 when the first shipment of nitrate of soda was brought to this country. Up to that time only lime and manure of the domestic animals were commonly used for agricultural purposes were known to the early farmers. Used continuously since that time, nitrate of soda, or Chilean nitrate, as farmers commonly call it, is now recognized as the oldest of the present-day commercial fertilizers.

Although nitrate of soda has become a commonplace article on farms throughout the country, it is not generally known that one of the romances of modern civilization is woven around this fertilizer. It is a product of a barren desert, high in the Andes Mountains of northern Chile. There is no rain or vegetation in the entire nitrate zone, which occupies a region nearly as large as the combined area of New York and Pennsylvania. Not a blade of grass springs from the soil, beneath which is one of the most important fertilizing compounds known to Nature.

The nitrate ore is found at various depths below the surface, the average being about three feet. It varies in richness from 5 to 70 per cent sodium nitrate. Open-cut mining is practiced in removing the ore, after which it is transported to a refining plant erected near by on the desert. The refining of the ore is an extremely technical process. The objective of the operations, however, is to remove the impurities from the ore and to concentrate the sodium nitrate so that when ready for shipment the fertilizer contains 95 to 99 per cent sodium nitrate and analyzes 13.5 per cent nitrogen. Indeed, which is also present in the ore, is a by-product of the refining process. Small quantities of this element are found in the fertilizer, as are also traces of boron and magnesium.

Conservative estimates by geologists and engineers in Chile indicate that the deposits are of sufficient size to supply the needs of the world for generations to come.

Red Letter Events Found in American Agriculture

1830—Nitrate of soda introduced into United States. In point of service, nitrate from Chile is exceeded only by lime and manure of the domestic animals now used for farm purposes.

1842—Laws in England took out patent for making superphosphate. Since that time phosphate deposits have been discovered in our southern states and in Africa.

1860—Potash from German mines first utilized for farm purposes.

BANKERS REPORT DROP IN SAVINGS

Lure of Stock Market Partly to Blame, but Slackened Speculation Expected to Bring Return to Thrift.

The first recession in the nation's savings account in banks in the twenty years during which records in this field have been kept by the American Bankers Association was disclosed for last year in the recent annual compilation prepared by its Savings Bank Division. The shrinkage amounted to over $195,000,000, on the basis of figures for the year ending June 29, 1929, whereas a year earlier the reported increase was over $2,500,000,000, the largest ever recorded. The number of savings depositors also decreased during the year covered by more than 500,000 accounts. The lure of the stock market and affiliated activities are cited as part of the explanation for these changes.

The association's statement says that savings deposits in banks and trust companies of continental United States on June 29, 1929, stood at $28,217,650,000. The recession in savings, it declares, indicates a fundamental change in the savings situation, irrespective of whether it is temporary or not.

How Savings Used to Grow
"In 1926 savings deposits increased $1,562,000,000, in 1927, almost $1,400,000,000 and in 1928 over $2,500,000,000," it says. "It appears now that some influences in one year have taken the gain that might reasonably have been expected in savings deposits for 1929 and lowered them from the high mark of the preceding year. This recession is not one coming as a result of drought, famine, unemployment or conditions outside of the United States."

"A year ago it was stated: 'The year closing June 30, 1928, registered the largest gain in savings deposits in banks and trust companies of continental United States ever recorded in the history of this country.' What a difference one year makes! From a gain of more than 2 1/2 billions of dollars in savings deposits to a loss of almost 200 millions!"

"The loss in savings deposits is reflected also in the loss of savings depositors. The year 1929 showed a total of 52,664,127 depositors, against 53,188,348 for 1928, a loss of 524,221."

"Industrial production was much higher last year than the preceding year. Factory payrolls were considerably greater. In production, employment and trade, advances were made over the preceding year. In the farm areas the improvement noted for 1928 did not recede in 1929 and the livestock industry in all its branches was prosperous."

The Causes of the Drop
"The causes of the recession are possibly multiple. There is scarcely any reason to doubt that one of the important factors draining away savings and decreasing depositors has been the lure of profits to be made in stocks. For a number of years the people have been regaled with stories of profits made in stocks in all types of companies. During the last few years there has been a specious philosophy preached that panics such as formerly occurred were no longer possible."

"If it was the lure of profits in stocks which caused the recession in savings, then a factor in future savings will be the success attendant upon this venture of savings depositors in stocks. For the experiment did not prove generally successful, then another year will doubtless witness an increase in savings deposits as well as in savings depositors."

Trade among Friends

No matter what some folks say to the contrary, there certainly is a lot of sentiment in business. Friendship, for instance, makes more satisfactory sales than all the cleverness and argument in the world.

You like to trade at a certain store—not because its counters are arranged in a scientific way, but because the folks who serve you are always friendly and helpful.

Just that very thing—FRIENDLY SERVICE—is the power that draws people together into communities like this, where everybody can enjoy the many benefits of neighborly cooperation.

And FRIENDLY SERVICE is the sentimental reason why you find it very much to your advantage to trade with our advertisers—to buy where you feel at home, where your friends will see that you are well satisfied.
