WOULD PRESERVE CHEAP EGGS FOR USE NEXT WINTER

Eggs are so cheap on farms in Kentucky this spring that J. E. Humphrey of the State College of Agriculture at Lexington is urging housewives to preserve them for use next fall and winter when they will be worth twice as much or even more.

Water glass solution is the common method of preserving eggs for home use. One quart of waterglass is sufficient for 15 to 18 dozen eggs. To make the solution, boil and cool nine quarts of water. Then mix the quart of waterglass with nine quarts of water in stone jars, crocks or galvanized vessels that have been sterilized with boiling water.

Pour the containers half-full and add more liquid, if necessary, when the eggs are in the solution. The solution should cover the top layer of eggs to a depth of at least two inches.

Use only fresh eggs with sound shells, says Mr. Humphrey. The eggs may be placed in the solution as they are gathered, with the little end down. A plate or cover may be placed over the eggs to prevent their coming to the surface. Cover the vessel to prevent undue evaporation and store in a cool place. In the event that eggs preserved by this method are used for boiling, a pin hole should be made in the large end.

Suggestions for Shearing Sheep

Sheep shearing is best done after cold weather is over and warm days have caused the flow of oil known as yolk, which puts wool in proper condition for shearing, says a statement by Richard C. Miller of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. If shearing is delayed too long, the wool becomes dead and dull. Shearing should not be done when the wool is wet, as damp fleeces do not keep well.

A clean place for shearing is important, since dirt of other foreign material lowers the value of fleeces. Shearing may be done on clean floor, tarpaulin or grass sod. Sweep the floor of objectionable material after shearing each sheep.

Tags and filthy locks should be removed before the fleeces rolled and tied. Roll the fleece flesh side out, starting at the breech part and proceeding toward the neck. Tie with paper twine, using only enough twine to hold the fleece intact, which is about 8 1/2 feet to the average fleece.

Wool should be packed in standard sized burlap sacks, 7 1/2 feet by 40 inches, made especially for this purpose, ewe, wether, ram, lamb, and black, burry seedy, taggy and dead wool should be packed separately.

The Farm and Home

Pigs often suffer more from lack of water than from lack of feed. Plenty of clean fresh water should be kept within easy reach of all kinds of livestock. Good water increases egg production since eggs are mostly water.

Vegetables do better on deeply plowed soil. Some professional gardeners plow 14 inches deep, but 10 inches is a good depth. A loose soil is needed to grow shapely root vegetables and potatoes. To have quality, vegetables must grow quickly. Young trees set last year will grow better if the soil is cultivated about them for at least two feet. This will keep down weeds and grass, which absorb much moisture. Keep this area stirred until mid-summer and then apply a mulch.

The farm home water system serving kitchen, bathroom and laundry should provide 30 to 40 gallons of water per person per day. Sewage disposal should be had through a carefully constructed septic tank.

Home Agent Notes

Mrs. Catherine Thompson, Home Demonstration Agent and Mr. S. V. Foy, County Agent, announce that plans are about completed for the 4-H Club Spring rally day, which will be held at Cayce school Friday, May 12, beginning at 10:00. Miss Anita Burnam and Mr. H. C. The boys contests are demonstration and terracing contests.

Miss Ida C. Hagman, Home Management Specialist from the University of Kentucky will conduct a training school for the Home Improvement Leaders of the Fulton County Homemakers' Assn. on Wednesday, May 3, at Cayce school. The subject of the day will be Model Kitchens, and moving picture show of convenient kitchens.

KENTUCKY FARMERS TO GET 9 MILLIONS

Approximately $5,000,000 has been paid to Kentucky farmers cooperating in the 1938 adjustment program, and total payments for last year probably will reach nearly nine million dollars, according to estimates made at the State Agricultural Adjustment Administration office at Lexington.

To date about 150,000 applications for payment have been received at the state office, and 142,000 have been checked and forwarded to Washington. Approximately 162,000 applications are expected from the 120 counties in Kentucky.

In addition to the benefit payments for last year, 2,302 cotton growers in eight Kentucky counties have received $109,454 in cotton price adjustment payments.

For this year, approximately 200,000 Kentucky farmers will be eligible for payments, it was estimated at the State Office. Payments for burley tobacco have been increased from a half of a cent a pound last year to eight-tenths of a cent a pound on the normal yield on the acreage allotment this year. Dark tobacco payments have been reduced from 1 1/2 cents a pound to 1 1/4 cents a pound.

Union Pacific Stars Stanwyck, Joel McCrea

Barbara Stanwyck, in a role completely different from any she has previously attempted, and Joel McCrea, as a character strongly reminiscent of the one he portrayed last season in "Wells Fargo," are co-starred in the romantic leads of "Union Pacific." Cecil B. De Mille's grand-scale interpretation of the building of America's first trans-continental railroad.

Although the popular Miss Stanwyck has played roles as varied as Middle Western farm-woman, New England factory wench and Park Avenue debutante, her Mollie Monahan in "Union Pacific," which Paramount will show Sunday at the Fulton Theatre, marks something totally new in the Stanwyck repertoire. She is a daring, warm-hearted fiery girl of the West, the daughter of the "U.P.'s" first engineer, the postmistress of "end of track" and little sister of the husky railroad builder. She is equally at home outwitting Western sharpers, comforting the homesick Irish laborers, battling Indians in the warpath or engaging in high-powered romance.

Mollie's romantic interest in "Union Pacific" is one Jeff Butler (played by the handsome McCrea), a brave and reckless trouble-shooter whom the Washington government has assigned to help keep order along the right-of-way. The two meet at "end of track," the gaudy brawling, settlement that moves ever westward with the railroad, and their romance moves as swiftly forward as the phenomenal railroad itself.

Although Indian attacks, corrupt officials and hostile nature can all be dealt with, Mollie and Jeff meet a real difficulty in Dick Allen (Robert Preston), a smooth young Western adventurer who has teamed up with a crowd of sharpers to sabotage the railroad. In love with Mollie, Dick has the double incentive of ruining Jeff's work and stealing his sweetheart at the same time.

When the irresponsible Dick goes so far as to help rob a pay train, upon which the "U.P." vitally depends, the good-hearted Mollie marries him to save him from the law.

But before the railroad is finished Dick's own crimes remove him from the scene, leaving the track to romance clear for Jeff.

A dozen other popular Hollywood players will be seen in equally unusual roles in De Mille's production. Akim Tamrioff, the roistering Russian actor, is "Fiesta," a rowdy Mexican railroad cop who brings his own kind of law and order to the West at the point of a bullwhip. Lynne Overman holds up the comedy end of the picture as a hard-as-nails fur-trapper and pioneer. Brian Donlevy is the sharper who is hired by financiers to sabotage the project.

Business Conditions Remain About On Par With Last Year

According to reports to the Department of Commerce from 36 key cities, received by its Louisville District Office, during the past week steel ingot production declined; automobile assemblies moved up, though not to the full seasonal extent; lumber output increased more than seasonally. The bituminous coal situation became more acute, with the effects felt in railroad traffic. Retail sales, stimulated by more favorable shopping weather in many sections of the country, showed improvement over the preceding week and the comparable week last year. Wholesale trade continued at a fairly stable level, though cautious buying policies were still in evidence.

Louisville reported that weather conditions retarded retail sales during past week and volume fell slightly below last year. Wholesale dry goods sales about even with year ago, with some electrical supply houses reporting volume sharply above last year. Industrial operations showed little change.

WPA rolls in Kentucky reduced by 2,578 persons recently. All West Kentucky soft coal companies operating mines with UMW labor ordered to close May 5, unless agreement effected in the meantime. Such a shutdown estimated to affect 62 mines employing about 6,000 men.

Wage and working agreement between clothing manufacturing concern and its employees signed at Jeffersonville and New Albany, Ind.

Kentucky employment services reported placements past week totaled 641, decrease of 3% from preceding week.

Louisville bank clearings increased 11.3% over year ago.

All dark-fired tobacco markets scheduled to close, indications being that only a negligible quantity of leaf is left unsold.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

By DAVID M. PORTER

The warm sun shines on Kentucky and nature is showering her loveliness on a fortunate people, but a shadow is rising over the horizon and the distant murmur of distant strife may reach a thundering crescendo on Kentucky soil.

Labor leaders have called a strike, not for more wages, or shorter hours, but for the supreme right to dictate to the employer in the hiring and firing of men, and to evade a fine for wildcat labor strikes.

Regardless of the merit of their demands it has thrown over 350,000 men out of work in the coal mining industry, more than 60,000 railroad workers, and has cost the railroads of America more than 20,000,000 dollars.

In Kentucky more than 23,000 miners are out of work and can not draw unemployment compensation because they are on a strike and not involuntary unemployed, many are existing, only because of credit given them at company stores.

Down at Owensboro, business is crippled by labor agitation. Organizers are wineing and dining the girl employees of the Ken-Rai Co., in an effort to organize them and a picture show that was being picketed, and continued to run, had most of its seats damaged by knife cuts in the upholstery.

All of this leads up to the coming Governors race, briefly. Chandler was put in by the Opposition to the sales tax, and Brown may be kept out by the Opposition to the tactics of labor organizers and leaders.

Next week Kentucky will be talked about over all the world, and most of the world will listen to broadcasts from Kentucky. For the Derby will be run at Churchill Downs near Louisville and its fame and tradition have helped to make us famous.

Don't call it Darby as the English do. We were once with Governor Laffoon when a reporter asked him about the pronunciation and I well remember his reply. "In England it may be called 'Darby' but we Kentuckians have made the race world famous as the 'Derby' and I decree that Derby it shall always be."

The Flow of Commerce

Commodities move from place to place because change in location adds appreciably to their value. They move profitably because the charge for the service is encouragingly less than the value which the movement adds. Thus do rates for transportation lie deeply imbedded in the foundation of our commercial life.

The rates that are maintained for transportation by railroad must do three things:

They must cover the out-of-pocket expense of performing the service;

They must provide a living wage for the capital that is invested;

And they must cause the greatest possible volume of traffic to move.

This latter aim is expressed in the pledge of the Illinois Central System to "maintain rates which will stimulate the flow of commerce."

Thus we recognize that railway rates are made to move traffic. To serve their purpose, they have to be written on freight bills as well as in the published tariffs. Unused rates are no good to anybody.

OUR STATE DEPARTMENT

Always highly important, our Department of State comes into special prominence in times of international stress like the present, the Secretary of State being charged, under the direction of the President, with duties concerned with our relations with foreign nations.

Our Secretaries of State have usually been among our ablest statesmen, six of them—Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Van Buren and Buchanan—having become Presidents, while Jay, Marshall and Hughes became chief justices of the Supreme Court.

Among other more notable former heads of the department may be mentioned Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun, James G. Blaine, John Sherman, John Hay, Elihu Root and William Jennings Bryan, some of whom were unsuccessful candidates for the office of president. The present secretary, Cordell Hull, has long been one of the nation's outstanding political figures.

In recent years the State Department has had its hands full of delicate international problems, especially those growing out of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, Japan's encroachments on the mainland of Asia, and Germany's aggressions in Europe.

The present tense international situation is placing upon the department burdens and responsibilities heavier than at any time since the World War.

SHRINKAGE WORRY ENDS

Men have long been puzzled over the problem of "how much will a pre-shrunk shirt shrink?" The ladies, too, have worried about wash dresses that shrank until they could hardly squeeze into them with a shoe horn.

But Uncle Sam has come to the rescue, and from now on the percentage of residual shrinkage remaining in the fabric must be given, according to Federal Trade Commission fair trade rules.

Women's clubs are campaigning to acquaint consumers of this opportunity for protection from chafing collars and puckered waistlines by merely looking for the labels.

Science has developed mechanical means of controlling shrinkage of all cotton, linen and spun rayon fabrics so that residual shrinkage will not be more than a tiny one per cent.

When house dresses, children's dresses, slacks and shirts carry a guarantee that the fabric will not shrink more than one per cent, you can buy the correct size and be sure of a perfect fit, no matter how many trips they make to the wash-tub. Many washable slip covers and drapery fabrics also carry similar guarantees.

Leading stores are cooperating with consumer groups to help end shrinkage disappointments. So the joke about pre-shrunk shirts that shrink away may soon be as dead as the dodo.

SAVING HUMAN ENERGY

There is no more important phase of designing than the elimination of human fatigue through reduction in the weight of articles which require constant or frequent handling, says Charles B. Bohn, prominent Detroit metallurgist, who notes that the reduction in efficiency of workmen in the later hours of a working day due to fatigue is well known to all production authorities.

Moreover, the human side of the situation in which the useful life of a workman is prolonged many years by eliminating dead, useless weight from the tools which he has to handle, is a subject for the attention of every industrial executive. Mr. Bohn also points out that a similar situation in the fatigue of the housewife is recognized by manufacturers of washing machines, lawn mowers, vacuum cleaners and other devices, and adds:

"There is a rapidly growing use of aluminum and magnesium alloys for all of these purposes. In a recently introduced vacuum cleaner it was possible to add a headlamp for illumination of dark corners, a two-speed switch, radio interference eliminator, new castor arrangement, visible nozzle adjustment indicator, foot-operated tilting device and other useful accessories to the vacuum cleaner, while making it actually lighter than the obsolete model which it replaced. The accomplishment was simply through the use of light but strong magnesium alloys."

Thus, the metallurgist, through more efficient light weight tools, contributes toward longer and happier life for both industrial worker and housewife.

PROTEST BY FARMERS

Lively interest is being shown by growers in resolutions recently adopted by the soybean section of the National Farm Chemurgic Council, calling upon the Department of Agriculture to change the classification of soybeans in the soil program.

Pointing out that soybeans, as a new crop in American agriculture, offers a solution to the problem of idle land, brought about through crop restrictions, the resolutions declare that the future of this legume crop is seriously endangered by classifying soybeans harvested with a combine as soil depleting.

This attitude of the Department of Agriculture is said to be contrary to all experiment station evidence, and has resulted in the circulation of erroneous and misleading statements among farmers, thus creating confusion.

The Department is urged to "so amend its rulings that soybeans when grown on level or gently undulating land, and harvested in such manner as to return the leaves, stems and pods to the land, be no longer classified as soil depleting."

It was provided that the resolutions, which were unanimously adopted by the growers, should be submitted to the Secretary of Agriculture by President Wheeler McMillan of the Council, and, in compliance with requests, that copies be made available to members for distribution to their Senators and Representatives in Washington.

Action toward bringing about the desired changes is expected to be taken by the group of farmers composing the American Soybean Association.

UNREST AT GIBRALTER

Reported activity of Italian and Spanish troops on the mainland of Spain behind the Rock of Gibraltar is said to have caused British fears of attack from the rear in the event of war. Hurried measures to strengthen the defenses of the fortress, hitherto considered impregnable, are being taken, according to press dispatches.

A great concentration of sea power by Britain and France on the one hand, and Italy and Germany on the other, in the Mediterranean and in Atlantic waters near Gibraltar indicates that this area may be the scene of bitter naval conflict should hostilities occur.

Gibraltar has been in possession of the British since its capture on July 24, 1704, although besieged several times. The last siege by the combined forces of France and Spain, which lasted nearly four years, from 1779 to 1783 (while our Revolutionary War was in progress), was one of the most notable in history.

The rock of Gibraltar is about two square miles in extent, and is separated from the Spanish mainland by a narrow isthmus. Its greatest height is 1,396 feet. Guarding the western entrance to the Mediterranean, it is of the greatest strategic importance.

It was first fortified by the Moors, when they crossed from Africa to Spain in the 8th century, and various nations have fought for its possession no less than 14 times since.

A UNIQUE EXHIBIT

One of the most quiet and refreshing spots at the New York World's Fair, according to a press dispatch, is the Japanese Pavilion, whose exhibits are based on the cultural and artistic, rather than the industrial, and present a particular appeal to women fair visitors.

The pavilion is planned to introduce to American women the charming and traditional rites of the Japanese household, including the ancient ritual of Cha-no-yu, or tea ceremony, demonstrated daily in the silk-hung grand hall. It takes a Japanese girl several years to learn to conduct this ceremony with the required grace.

The entire exhibit is replete with the finest examples of Japanese art objects, including a million-dollar

Liberty Bell replica in lustrous cultured pearls, and other Oriental treasures of every conceivable kind. A flower arrangement illustrates a delightful woodland scene in miniature, only flowers that are in season being used.

One wing of the pavilion is devoted to the story of silk, from the cocoon to the finished material; also gowns, draperies, kimonos and other garments fashioned from the rich textile.

After viewing the exhibits, the visitor may repair for tea to the cool veranda, which overlooks the charming Japanese garden, 25,000 square feet in area, representing in miniature the country of the Isuzu River, with the river itself cascading through it, over red and green rocks hewn from the sacred slopes of Mount Chiechibu and brought to New York for the occasion.

It is predicted that the Japanese pavilion will prove one of the most attractive features of the big show.

Stray Milk Bottles

By Harry Barry, Sanitary Inspector Fulton County

With the arrival of spring and the customary house cleaning activities which occupy the time of many families, now will be an ideal time to turn over to the milk dealer all stray bottles that have accumulated in the cellar, garage, or back room during the fall and winter months.

Perhaps it has never occurred to you that the dealer who supplies you with milk is not selling you the bottles. He is in reality only leasing it to you and inasmuch as it is his property he actually expects it back. When you go to a grocery store and buy a jar of mustard, a glass of pickles, or numerous other prepared food articles, the container belongs to you. The price of the food includes the cost of the glass container.

In Fulton it has been estimated that about 3000 bottles are needed daily to handle the sale of milk and cream. This, however, is only part of the picture as it is necessary for most dealers to have on hand three or four bottles for every customer they serve.

You, as a customer, have one bottle in your refrigerator, on the route is another filled bottle, on the same delivery truck or wagon, is an empty bottle collected from you and now on its way back to the dairy and in the dealer's refrigerator or storage room is another bottle filled for tomorrow delivery. You can readily see that it requires a large number of bottles for the average dairy to carry on its business.

Possibly you might be interested to know that at the present time milk bottles cost the dairyman $15.00 a gross or over ten cents each, so do not give the bottles to a junk man or haul them away to the public dumps, and also refrain from using them for holding oils, paints, preservatives, etc. Your milk dealer will appreciate your efforts in returning his property.

So let us all surprise the Dairyman by returning his long lost milk bottles right away.

KITE FLYING DANGERS

This is a season for kite flying, and many boys throughout the country are indulging in this old and interesting sport. But in localities where overhead electric wires are present there are some dangers to be guarded against.

To be perfectly safe, kites should not be flown except in open spaces, where contact with wires is impossible. This precaution is not always taken, however, and for that reason no metal or metalized cord should be used, as such materials are conductors of electricity. Even a wet cord becomes a conductor when it touches a live wire.

If a kite becomes entangled with electric wires, children should not attempt to bring it down, as two wires may be pulled together, causing a short circuit. The proper thing to do is to telephone the electric company and ask that a lineman be sent to remove it.

An instance was reported a short time ago in which a boy using a very light wire as a kite string was electrocuted when it fell across a power line.

While accidents in connection with kite flying are not very frequent, there is an element of danger from electric wires; children should be warned against taking any chances.

THE FIRST CENSUS

Provision for the taking of a census of the United States every 10 years is made in the Constitution, and this was originally intended principally for the purpose of determining how the representation in the House of Representatives should be apportioned.

The first census was taken in 1790, in accordance with a bill introduced in the House by James Madison, who later became President. This simply provided for a count of the population, divided into the following classes: White males over 16, white males under 16, white females, free blacks, and slaves.

Madison at first wanted to list the occupations of the people, but fear of opposition by the citizens, who might suspect that the government was trying to get a line on their incomes so as to levy higher taxes, caused the Senate to strike out that provision.

Six months was allowed for the taking of the first census, the total cost of which was $44,377. In some sections a good many people objected to giving the mere information concerning age, but a fairly good job was done and it was shown that the new nation had a population of 3,929,214.

Mrs. Elsie Marston of Detroit received a reward of 25 cents from a woman whose purse containing $2,500 she found and returned.

Fulton Women Plan New Group to Study Taxes

With appointment today of Mrs. J. E. Fall, Sr., of Fulton, as chairman of a National Consumers Tax Commission unit, Fulton women are joining a nation-wide educational movement "to study taxes and oppose those that penalize the consumer."

Her appointment was announced by Mrs. Kenneth C. Frazier, president of the NCTC, a non-political women's organization composed of hundreds of local units bound together "by the common desire to reduce the load of hidden taxes, which bear heaviest on lower-income families."

"This is a movement every woman should support," said Mrs. Frazier, in welcoming the new chairman. "Women do almost 85 per cent of the consumer buying of the nation. Through this educational program every woman learns for herself how much she pays in hidden taxes, taxes that raise the price of every article she buys."

The NCTC vice president is Mrs. Melville Muckelstone, past national president of the American Legion Auxiliary. The drive is led in this state by Mrs. J. E. Warren, of Mayfield, the commission's Kentucky state director.

"Most people pay hidden taxes without even knowing it," explained Mrs. Muckelstone. "It is little wonder family budgets are strained when, for example, hidden taxes add 11 cents to the price of a 29 cent package of meat, $1.56 to a $4 pair of shoes, $1.95 to a $5 hat, $10 to every $30 of rent."

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its busy and worry-ridden habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning scanty or too frequent urination.

The Doan's Pills help the kidneys to get rid of excess poisonous body waste. They are automatic to the urinary tract and tend to relieve irritation and the pain it causes. Many grateful people recommend Doan's. They have had more than forty years of public approval. See your neighbor!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, May 7, 1939.

The Golden Text is: "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." (1 Cor. 15:22)

Among the citations which compose the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." (Rev. 22:17)

The Lesson-Sermon includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christian Science separates error from truth, and breathes through the sacred pages the spiritual sense of life, substance, and intelligence. In this Science, we discover man in the image and likeness of God. We see that man has never lost his spiritual estate and his eternal harmony (page 548.)"

VALENTINE HONORED AS SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPT.

W. C. Valentine, who has served as superintendent of the Sunday School at the First Baptist church here for the past seven years, was signally honored last Friday night when 54 officers and teachers gathered at the basement of the church for a banquet given in his honor. His retirement came after his transfer from his position here with the Illinois Central System.

E. E. Mount, the newly elected superintendent, introduced J. O. Lewis, toastmaster for the evening, who gave a brief resume of Mr. Valentine's activities since being chosen superintendent of the Sunday School of the Baptist Church. Words of appreciation of his loyal service were given by superintendents and teachers of the various departments.

As the evening of entertainment drew to a close, a gift bag was presented to Mr. Valentine by Rev. Fuller and J. O. Lewis, as an expression of appreciation of the fine loyalty and leadership of the retiring superintendent.

UNRECOGNIZED KING

When Sergeant Faustin Wirkus of the United States Marines was assigned to duty on the island of La Conave, a part of the republic of Haiti, in 1925, he did such a good job of pacification, or whatever he was supposed to do, that the black natives elected him as their king.

He really ruled the island for quite a while, but as a Marine sergeant, rather than as a royal personage, in due time "King" Wirkus was withdrawn from La Conave, and later was placed on the retired list as a gunnery sergeant.

Among those who admired his record as sergeant and ruler was Congressman Flannery of Pennsylvania, who has introduced a bill in Congress to promote Wirkus to the rank of captain on the Marine Corps retired list. But Admiral William D. Leahy as acting Secretary of the Navy objected, saying in a report to the House Naval Committee:

"While Wirkus rendered valuable service to the Marine Corps, there appears to be no good reason for singling him out and placing him on the retired list as a captain. It might be used as a precedent for similar claims by others." So it seems likely that the ex-king will have to be content with his present status as a retired sergeant.

FULTON TIGERS WON OVER MAYFIELD SUNDAY

The Fulton Tigers played Mayfield a second exhibition game here Sunday afternoon, and with a rally in the late innings, won 6 to 4, as Ray Clont's two bagger drove in two runs. Danstrup hurled the first five innings for Fulton, but was relieved then by Gans who was a victim of a rally by Mayfield, which club made three runs in the first half of the sixth inning.

With the game standing 4 to 1 in favor of the Browns, Clonts, who was manager here last season, smashed a hard two-bagger deep into the center garden to bring Fulton ahead. Three of the Browns' four runs were unearned, as Fulton had five errors.

RIDING BEHIND
When riding horseback was the chief method of getting anywhere, it often fell to the lot of a younger brother or sister to ride behind an older brother or other member of the family. When one was very small, this was a thrilling experience; but after one could ride alone, it was nothing short of insult. Big brother, with a scant two or three years ahead of you, would be given the chief place in the saddle; you would have to cling on in your misery or stay at home. And when you got to the country store or to church, you had all the staring eyes turned in your direction. Big Brother frequently did something to attract attention to your helpless childishness, hoping thereby to glorify his own mature size and ways. If the saddle were one with a horn on it, after the Texas fashion, and brandnew, it was the more humiliating to be seated behind it rather than on it.

Riding behind when the horse is smooth-gaited is not so bad, a hard gaited horse, the kind we used to say could trot all day in the shade of a tree, just about ruined us. The big boy in the saddle could crook his legs and take out some of the jolts; our dangling legs were not braced against anything to relieve the jolt. The worst thing the rider-behind could experience was a horse-race, in which Big Brother desired to beat all the other boys. Though I never knew any boy to get killed in such races, I have always feared for the little fellows tightly clinging, regardless of the rules, to the wild horseman in the saddle. Many a farm boy who has never been to sea has experienced all the pitches and tosses that a ship can make.

Though greatly experienced, I still do not know the proper way to hold on while riding behind. When I got scared and grabbed my brother under the arms, I was threatened with annihilation; and when I held on to the saddle, he accused me of pinching him. I felt I would surely fall if I did not hold to something. What I wanted was to reassure myself occasionally by placing my hands on the horn of the saddle in the way the big boys did.

Pillions had disappeared before our time, I suppose, but ladies still often rode behind, especially little girls who accompanied their fathers to the country store. The pillion had been replaced by an ordinary saddle blanket, but I think that the girl who rode behind showed fine horsemanship in being able to stay on. The rules about holding to the prominent person in the saddle seem not to have obtained here, as something had to be allowed for womanly weakness. The fine old custom of having the young lady ride behind her swain was gone before our time, but I would like to have seen it; I presume that is where back-seat driving got started.

UNCLE JIM SAYS

Unfavorable weather is a poor excuse for inefficient farming.
The best old age insurance for farmers is to always have something ahead in the pantry and feed bins.
You can't do anything about the weather but you can do something about the effect it has on crops and livestock.
Terracing cover crops, strip cropping, contour tillage, sub-soiling, and similar practices not only aid in erosion control, but they also add to the soil moisture content.
Nature treats the earth kindly. Man treats her harshly. He overplows the cropland, overgrazes the timber land, and overcut the timber acres completely.

Agricultural Extension work has become of age. May 8 marks the twenty-fifth anniversary since the signing of the Smith-Lever Act by President Wilson, creating this work.
Farmers are not just a part of a great crop-producing factory. Families live on farms and intend to keep on living on them. If adjustment is necessary each farm should bear its share, rather than have all the burden fall on some.
A lot of good meats, fruits and vegetables are wasted on the farm that might be saved with adequate refrigeration. Community cold storage plants have become increasingly popular during the recent years. U-T Extension Publication No. 215 "Locker Refrigeration" gives helpful information on their construction.

Mr. G. J. Shepherd, who has been manager of the local A. & P. Store for the past two years, is taking a back seat during Clerk's Week and is leaving the active planning and the displaying of merchandise to his clerks: Mr. Burgess, meat clerk; Mr. Grogan, Mr. Clark, Mr. Hill,

Mr. Brady and Mr. Henderson. The clerks in the local A. & P. Store cordially invite the citizens of Fulton and vicinity to visit their store this week and take advantage of the many money-saving values. They will consider this a personal favor and at the same time the customer will be receiving fine foods at real money-saving prices.
