THE LISTENING POST

Of course, if I had my rathers, I'd rather not be sick at all, but a person never gets all his rathers in this world of ours. Palling in not ever being sick I'd still rather be sick at home than in a hospital. I grant, without argument, that a hospital can take better care of a patient than the same patient might receive at home. I know that the proper equipment is there, with all facilities, but I guess I have an old fashioned desire to be cared for by those who are personally interested in me. Until a few days ago I had escaped the hospital angle, but last week the law of averages caught up, and I was slapped into a hospital room for a day and a night. I wasn't particularly sick, but needed intensive treatment and so they kept me there.

All told, it was not as bad as I feared, although I suspect this was caused by the fact that I was not very ill. I was able to lie in the window and keep an eye on the office, watch the folks go and come from the postoffice, and with the full belief that I was not in prison for a long time. That all made the period more endurable and I must confess that the hospital folks were most kind to me. So I saw a dawn come into the east over a section which I once knew quite well, for I lived for many years near this corner. It was the first time in almost eight years since I saw dawn come in at this particular section, and I began thinking of the blossoms out around home, and I knew I was going home rather soon. The doctor had told me to go on home that morning if I felt like it, and pretty soon I rose up, dressed and went home.

Ab, me, it was such a peaceful thing to get into my own bed and look out on the massed loveliness that April brings out there. The sun was shining, the two apple trees were in full blossom, and along an old fence the purple mystery of massed wisteria turned the place into something which seemed like a dream. Those masses of wisteria seemed dark clusters of grapes, and by turning my head a little I saw a couple of dogwoods with their pale blossoms gleaming in the sun. Life seemed so much fuller, the world seemed so much more beautiful, the scent of lilacs from the yard—all these things seemed more healing than any drug could possibly be. For the greater part of the day I just lay there in the bed, eyes fixed on the blossoms, and while I know science is exact and the medicine probably brought about the desired result, there was a sense of healing in the green leaves, the blossoms, the glimpses of dark clouds through the trees, the odor of flowers; there was peace in watching the life that went on among those blossoms.

Life did go on there. Hundreds of bees were swarming through the blossoms at all times, and the gnatlike bumble bees, flew in and out like bombers. Then, like the trim fighters, came the humming birds, and if a plane could ever be invented which could rival a humming bird, that would be something. These fragile creatures, looking more like something imagined than real, darted in and out all day. Several times, just outside my window I saw a pair of them practically motionless, so far as forward and backward motion was concerned, but I could see the ceaseless beat of their thin and gossamer wings as they supported themselves with the motion of their wings and drank the nectar from some of the blossoms.

FDR Asserts Britain To Be "Kept Going"

Says War Can Only Be Won By Maintaining Empire's Resistance

Washington. —President Roosevelt declared today that the current war could only be won by keeping the main defense of the existing system of democracy going and said that defense was England.

He told a press conference that the war would not be won by one sea fight or by one retreat in Greece or even the whole Eastern Mediterranean.

A strong affirmative was his reply to a question as to whether he was confident that the defense of England "will be kept going."

And certainly, he asserted, there will be no lessening of shipments of war materials to Britain.

Silent On Convoys
Asked whether the question of convoys now had to be considered, the President replied by remarking cryptically that he did not live in Delphi—where a legendary Greek oracle was situated.

Mr. Roosevelt dismissed as to glittering an inquiry whether any steps were being undertaken to protect a "bridge of ships" to Britain.

His discussion of the war situation was prompted by a request for any comment he might be able to give, on reports sent back from England by general H. H. Arnold, assistant chief of staff in charge of air.

Too Many Reports
The President said so many reports were coming in it was difficult to say what should be made public.

Mr. Roosevelt went on to add that there was one thing he thought everyone should realize. The reading and radio-listening public in this country, if it read history, he said, ought not to go up on a pinnacle of hope one day over a sea battle in the Mediterranean and into the depths of despair the next day over an axis advance in Greece.

It was at that point that he said the war would be won by keeping Britain going.

Jones Hails Speed In Arming U. S., But Warns Against Complacency

New York. —Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones declared today that although defense activity is "better than good," there is no room for American "complacency."

"There is no place for indifference," Jones said in a speech prepared for delivery at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press.

The Secretary coupled a report of progress in defense over the past year with two warnings:

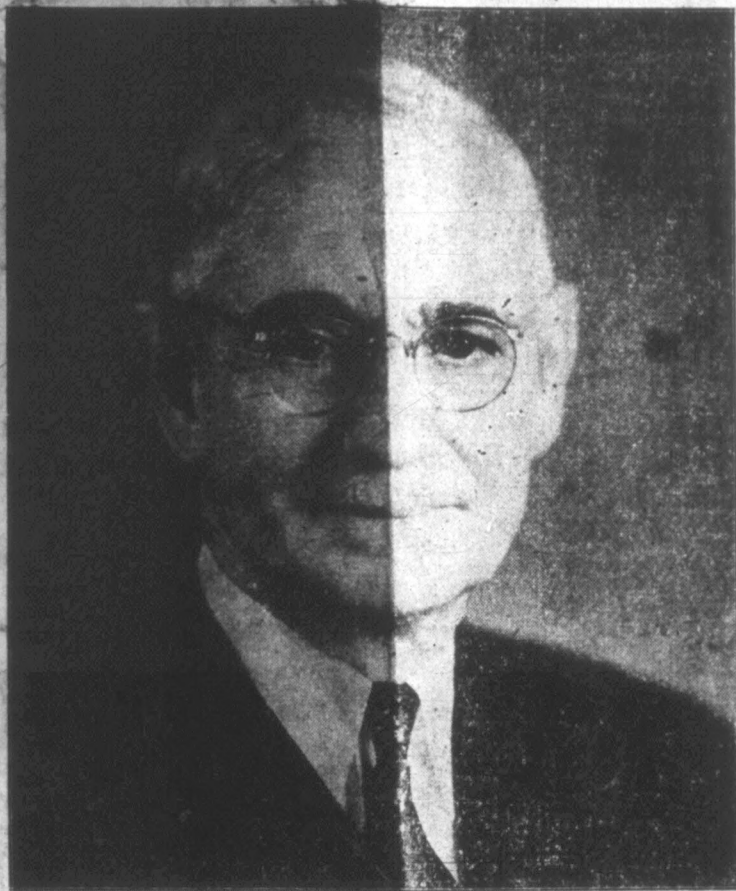

"If the aggressor nations are successful, our generation is apt to see little of tranquility."

Task Not Easy
"If we are to get ready to defend ourselves, let's be sure that we do a good job of it."

Dwelling momentarily on "our lack of preparedness" a year ago, he conceded it is "not easy for a peace-loving people like ours to change overnight from purely peacetime pursuits to complete all-out effort at arming, even for defense."

On defense progress, he said more

Judge Claude L. Walker Makes Formal Announcement For Reelection As County Judge Of Fulton County

Funds Are Sought To Carry Band To Memphis Carnival

Plans are now being considered by which the Fulton High School band can be taken to Memphis to attend the Cotton Carnival next month. The Carnival Association will defray all expenses for the band while it is in Memphis for two days, but transportation costs must be met. The Illinois Central has agreed to furnish two special coaches for the band members for $150, and the Young Men's Business Club has made plans to raise this money. Within the next day or two committees will approach the business men of the city on the proposition, and it is believed the response will be generous.

The local band has made remarkable progress and it is an honor to be invited to take part in the big Memphis show. Fulton people, this newspaper is certain, will be glad to help in the worthy cause.

LIBRARY TO BE CLOSED
The Fulton Library will be closed on Thursday April 24.

In this issue The Leader is authorized to announce that Judge Claude L. Walker is a candidate for reelection to the office of County Judge of Fulton County, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in August of this year. It has been generally believed by the many friends of Judge Walker that he would make the campaign again, but Judge Walker stated that for a time he deliberated over the matter, being somewhat reluctant to make the campaign. "However," he said yesterday, "I had a feeling that there were some things I had started and could probably handle to better advantage than others. I know that the county is in far better condition than it has been for many years, and I have a strong desire to keep it so."

Judge Walker's record is well known. During his two administrations the financial condition of the county has been vastly bettered. The county's credit is now strong, all bond issues are current and all warrants issued during the Walker administrations have been paid.

In addition to bettering the financial structure, vast progress has also been made on the county road system, and many miles of highways built, with others in prospect. Judge Walker has always been able to get his full share of state cooperation in these matters, and if returned to office pledges unswerving work to the end that all of Fulton County may be on hard surfaced roads.

In making his formal announcement Judge Walker makes a personal statement. The statement is a fair one, backed up by figures from the county's books, and approved by auditors. In this statement Judge Walker presents his own case in clear and forthright language. The Leader commends his statement to the public. It follows:

TO THE VOTERS OF FULTON COUNTY.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Subject to the action of the Democratic Primary, I am a candidate for re-election to the office of County Judge, which office I have filled for the past seven and one quarter years.

During the time that I have been in office, I have given all of my time and energy, and such intelligence as I have to straighten out the county's affairs, and I leave it to the voters to judge for themselves the kind of job that has been done, and I invite a close ex-

Mine Owners Will Resume Wage Talks

Southern Operators Answer FDR's Plea To Seek Settlement

Southern coal mine operators agreed Tuesday to return to New York to reopen negotiations for a contract with the United Mine Workers which would permit resumption of soft coal production in the eighth-state Appalachian area.

The southern operators withdrew from negotiations in New York after a split over a north-south wage differential, but acceded to the request of President Roosevelt to go back to New York from Washington.

L. T. Putman, spokesman for the southern operators, said five negotiators would go to New York to resume conferences with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

The agreement was reached after a second conference ordered by the President between his secretary, Major General E. M. Watson, and the southern operators.

The President Monday night had urged in a formal statement that the operators and union settle their wage dispute and get the mines reopened immediately.

"Bituminous coal production must be resumed, and promptly," the President declared in a formal statement issued at the White House.

In Detroit, two officials of the CIO United Auto Workers issued a statement saying they could not see that an order of the Michigan Labor Board invoking a 30-day "cooling off" period applied to the union's threat to strike at General Motors plants. They contended that no defense workers would be involved, and hence they did not believe the 30-day law applied.

Seniors To Present Annual Play Friday

Do you think that times have changed since Grandma was a girl? Are you of the opinion that people are different now than they were sixty years ago? If so, you will be surprised to find how similar are the trials, tribulations, romances, tragedies and ambitions of modern families to those of old when you see "Little Women" which is the play in five scenes to be produced by the Senior Class on April 25, in Science Hall. This dramatization is a comprehensive study of the famous Louisa M. Alcott novel—a story that will live forever in the hearts of Americans. Tickets may be secured from the Junior and Senior classes and the seats are not reserved.

Red Cross War Relief Is Placed At 27 Millions—England Gets Most

Washington. — The American Red Cross has expended almost $27,000,000 on war relief since the invasion of Poland, L. L. H. Davis reported today, with Britain the largest single beneficiary.

Davis, Red Cross chairman, told the opening session of the organization's annual convention that the relief extended to Britain exceeded $13,000,000 and that approximately twenty-three ships a month were carrying Red Cross supplies to the besieged island.

President Roosevelt, in a message to the convention, wrote that the foreign war relief work of the Red Cross "has brought a measure of hope to a distressed world."

F. D. R. Cites Role
Roosevelt also stressed the fact that the "Red Cross has a special place in our defense program," the importance of which should not be minimized.

Davis, in his address, said the Nation's vast productivity effort necessitated an increase in Red Cross activities. It was probable,

REVOLUTIONARY NAVAL CHANGES

So vast have been the changes in land warfare during the past year that many people have not seen a similar revolutionary change in naval tactics. Yet the change is coming, and during the next few years, as new American ships begin to go into commission, it will become much more apparent to observers. For the United States originated this change, and in the new fleet which is in construction these changes are being embodied. The new two-ocean fleet visions more than a defense of North America, even of the two Americas—it visions a force which will be able to strike with withering force in almost any part of the globe.

The expression "carrier striking group" is used more or less to describe the new fleet and the new battle practice. This carrier striking group visions an aircraft carrier, accompanied by the most powerful, most speedy cruisers ever built, and with a cruising range that will take them to almost any part of the Seven Seas. This group is designed for more or less independent action, or at most, semi-independent. Loosely, the group would certainly be attached to a battle squadron, made up of the full services, such as light cruisers, destroyers, submarines, heavy cruisers and battleships. The striking group, operating on the order of the German panzer land divisions, would be able, however, to cut loose from the battle fleet when an enemy was suspected and range far to the flanks and even to the rear of the enemy formations. The carrier would launch swarms of fighters and bombers, and the powerful cruisers would inflict heavy damage on enemy aircraft carriers.

More important perhaps, these striking groups will be able to range all the way across the ocean, preying on enemy supply lines, destroying water borne commerce, perhaps even harrying an enemy coast line. With terrific speed, it will require ships of equal speed to overhaul them in open seas, and nothing is believed now aficat that can equal these projected ships.

Our projected battle cruisers and the high speed, long range 45,000 to 55,000-ton battleships are similarly useful for more than fleet actions. The new battleships would naturally form a battle line of tremendous power, but two of the 35-knot 45,000-tonners, accompanied perhaps by a carrier and cruisers, of several of the 26,000-ton battle cruisers (which, when completed, will outgun and outspeed every cruiser in the world) could also act as a far-ranging strategic weapon—a striking group which would force any navy or combination of navies on earth to "cover up," to guard its commerce lanes with tremendous forces, and to retain large portions of its own fleet in readiness to repel raids by such a group.

With such ships in being and capable of extended operations in European and Asiatic waters, obviously even if the Western Hemispheres were fighting a coalition of enemies, those enemies would not dare to strip themselves of all (or even most) of their naval protection in order to provide a combined fleet for operations against the Western Hemisphere. Ships of the new types, therefore, can do much to provide the implements for aggressive naval defense.

BRITISH AND GREEKS MAKING LAST STAND

Across the waistline of the mountainous Hellenic peninsula—probably along a pre-arranged front extending from Lamia to the Gulf of Arta—the hard-pressed Greek and British forces are making their last stand against the overwhelming numbers of Nazis blitzmen and Nazi blitzmachines.

The line is shorter and stronger than any heretofore held. It has fewer gaps and passes than those farther north. It is in the vicinity of historic Thermopylae where Leonidas and his 300 kept at bay the entire Persian army. But only 30 miles behind it are the Gulf of Corinth and the Corinth Canal. There can be no further retreat except by water to the virtually insular Peloponnesus or by sea to the island of Crete or to Egypt.

Skillful retreat has prevented the encirclement and annihilation of the Greek-British forces. It has frustrated the usual Nazi strategy and caused tremendous losses to the enemy. Even under the incessant bombing of German planes and with panzer divisions bearing down upon them the Australians and British retired in order from the plains of Thessaly where the panzers for the first time could effectively operate. Now there is no alternative but to stand their ground, to hold the passes and mountain trails against the endless waves of Nazi infantry to fight or to quit the mainland.

There is the prospect, however, of further delaying action and every day the German army is occupied in Greece is that much gain for the British. There is the possibility of a retirement to the Peloponnesus to continue the fighting and produce further delay. While Greece holds out the full force of Hitler's war machine is not directed at the Suez Canal or the British Isles.

But British newspapers are now cussing Germany's next move, whether an attack on Turkey or Gibraltar or a concerted movement against both. The Greek campaign is entering its decisive and perhaps final phase. Courier-Journal.

Y. M. B. C. In Regular Business Session Last Night

The regular business meeting of the Young Men's Business Club was held last night in the Rainbow Room, with the president, F. A. Homra, presiding. One new member was introduced to the club, Aaron Butts of A. C. Butts & Sons grocery and feed store, R. G. Dunn, Railway clerk, was elected to the club.

Billy Blackstone reported to the club regarding the high school band going to the Cotton Carnival in Memphis and stated that Mr. Rhodes, of the I. C. traffic department, has completed arrangements by which the band can travel in two special cars on number 3, leaving here one day and returning the next night on number 4. He stated that a rate of 1-1-4 cent per mile will be charged, the same as the U. S. government pays to haul its troops, but that he is still trying to get the rate reduced to 1 cent. At the 1-1-4 cent rate, an adult ticket would amount to $3.10 for the round trip and these tickets may be used on any train or at any time, if a person does not desire to make the trip with the band. At least thirty must make the trip in order to secure the two special cars. Mr. Harrison, band director, said that there are forty-three children over twelve years of age who cannot obtain passes and ten children under twelve. Several townspeople will make the trip.

P. G. Boyd, chairman of the summer work of the band, reported that the Board of Education voted to donate its regular amount, fifty dollars, towards keeping the band in operation two months during the summer. The Y. M. B. C. in its meeting last night, voted to donate $30.00 towards the fund. A committee will contact the Rotary, Lions, Elks, Woman's Club and the Chamber of Commerce in the near future.

It was voted by the club last night that the July meeting will be held in the Chestnut Glade community, the club having received an invitation from the people there. The purpose of this meeting had dropped away and dusk was creeping over the earth, I saw the shadowy forms of birds in the trees, and before long I began to hear the evening song of a catbird. If a mockingbird can sing any sweeter than a catbird, I'd like to hear one, for that catbird poured out its soul in such an ecstasy of music that it seemed unbelievable. For a long time the notes poured into my room from the tree outside, and I finally fell asleep with that liquid music pouring over me in restful waves.

Yes, I know the medicine must have done the job—but all those other things helped.

SPORTS

Spring practice for the Fulton High Bulldogs will end this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon they will play the McKenzie eleven, this winding up their activities until practice in the fall. Coach Giles has put his boys through a steady work-out for the past five weeks and is pleased with the result. He stated this morning, "Yesterday was the best day of spring practice—the boys worked hard and a great deal of time was spent in trying to perfect the plays and on fundamentals I expect the boys to show a great deal of improvement tomorrow over the last two games."

The game tomorrow will be called at 2:30 and will be played at Southside park at South Fulton. An admission of 10c will be charged.

Among the prospects for the 1941 eleven are: Layne Spence, who has been shifted from tackle to right end, proved to be very rugged in the last game with McKenzie. He is 6' 1" tall and weighs 185 lbs. The coach expects him to develop into a fair pass receiver.

Jack Tosh, who suffered a bruised leg muscle recently, has showed much improvement in his defense work in the last two weeks. Tosh, who has had two years experience, is expected to play a vital part in the Bulldogs defense next year. He weighs 185 lbs.

Shelby Davis, who will probably start at tackle tomorrow, has been working hard to overcome his increased weight which has slowed him down considerably making it necessary that he be shifted from guard to tackle. He is counted on to be one of the best linemen for next year. Also trying out for this position is 14-year-old Loyal Hartman, 210 pounder, who moved here from Dyersburg last winter. Hartman is a junior high school student now, but with some experience he should turn into a first class tackle.

Earl Willey, 140 lbs., who is holding down the right guard position has showed lots of blocking ability this past week. He is one of the lightest men on the squad.

The other guard position is one of Coach Giles' chief problems. The latest prospect is Buddy Steele, who tips the scales at 138. Buddy is making a real blocker and defensive guard although his lack of experience and weight is a great handicap. Jack Snow, who played at guard some last year and who has played quite a bit this spring, is another of the candidates for this position.

The center position brings a smile to coach's face, for in Dan McKenzie, Fulton High has one of the best prospects for a good center in this section. Dan is following in his brother, Norman's footsteps on the gridiron. His brother, who is now coach of McKenzie High, was a star center at Murray college. Dan is the most impressive tackler and defensive man on the squad. He has shown a great deal of improvement in spring practice, and with one year's experience behind him, Dan is expected to "go places" this fall. He is only a sophomore and if he continues to improve he should make one of the best centers Fulton High has ever had.

The other end position is between Robert Hart and Butch Nelms. Hart will probably get the call to start in tomorrow's game, since Nelms has missed many days of practice. Hart, although very light and inexperienced, has shown lots of possibility of making a deceptive pass receiver and has shown much improvement on his offensive play. Nelms, who played end last year will probably substitute at blocking back tomorrow.

In the backfield, Coach Giles has only Big Bug Willingham of last year's squad. Three new backs are being tried out in spring practice and Joe McAllister, showed much improvement in his ball carrying ability in the McKenzie game. This is his first year to play regularly, although he substituted some last season. He is filling the vacancy of Bobby Merryman, sophomore back, who has not been out for spring practice on account of infected tonsils and glands. Joe shows promise of becoming a good defensive and offensive back.

The position of blocking back, which was vacated by Captain Tate Crawford, is now being ably filled by freshman Robert Whitesell, who shows possibilities of becoming a good blocking back. His chief drawback is his lack of game experience.

"Bug" Willingham, 185 pound tailback, proved his ability last year. He was shifted from guard to tailback and his ability to gain yardage is a big help to the offense of the Bulldogs. He is also the squad's punter. He shows prospects of becoming one of Fulton High's greatest backs.

Johnny Sharpe, who has been substituting for both the 1 and 3 back positions, has not been out for practice due to a sprained wrist which he got in a car accident. He did not get to play in the last game with McKenzie, but will get the opportunity to show his wares in tomorrow's game.

Other boys who have been faithful in coming out for spring practice and who have considerable ability are: Dick Meacham, Leon Barron, Billy Dunning, Paul Gholson, Bill Darty and Bobby Hancock. Most of these boys are freshmen or junior high students and are now being groomed to be regulars in a year or so.

I have dealt fairly with all people, regardless of their financial standing, the rich and the poor alike. I solicit the support of the voters in the Democratic Primary which will be held on August 2nd. I will be grateful to those who support me and to those who do not, I will bear no ill will.
