- For more information, please call us at 555-1234.
CONDITIONS VITAL TO PROSPERITY

A study made some time ago by a group of individuals and government found that certain conditions always prevail in periods of great prosperity in this country. Among them were:

1. An absence of unregulated competition.
2. Government regulations limiting industrialists to promotion of fair competition in either production or distribution.
3. A group of industrialists angry at each other in taking the profit out of industrial honesty.
4. Business notice that the weight of competition is too great, and that it amounts to government playment, and other industries.
5. The pleasure and profit to be had from summer homes and camps.
6. Leaving them unattended.

There can be no sustained prosperity while these conditions prevail.

In the past, government has taken the rap. And finally, government has been used to penalize certain business activities.

In the future, the most important thing is that the government not be used to penalize certain business activities.
