32 WIN PRIZES IN CANDLE CONTEST

"How long will a candle burn?"

A one-pound eighteen-inch red candle will burn forty-one hours and thirty-six minutes. Remember this for future reference.

Widely Worked Racket

(Lebanon Enterprise)

If you have received a letter notifying you that you may be one of the heirs to a huge estate somewhere awaiting distribution, better be careful about spending any of your money to obtain your share, or even to investigate the matter. It is a "racket" that is being widely worked, and impostors and unscrupulous attorneys in some of the large cities are reaping a rich harvest.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York has issued a warning regarding false information which is being circulated about large New York estates that are represented to be awaiting unknown heirs. The Governor's warning follows the statement by him that he had received more than fifty inquiries from points in Southern States about the "Buchanan estate," which was falsely declared to have recently paid a transfer tax of $50,000,000.

"During the last two months," the Governor said in his warning, "letters have been coming to me and to other officials of the State government in Albany asking for information about various estates centrally under the name of famous men who lived seventy-five or a hundred years ago. These letters are inspired by impostors who are going through the whole Nation persuading gullible persons that huge estates exist in New York which are now ready to be distributed to unknown heirs."

"In the interest of fair play and in order to save innocent

The Star On The Christmas Tree

by Katherine Eelman

AY, can I get some trimmings for a Christmas tree? Fix up the best assortment you've got, please."

Lena Masters looked up at the sound of the pleasant voice and a smile flashed across her face. "In just a moment," she answered, "as soon as I get this package tied up."

Carefully she went over the counter, selecting such things as she would put on a Christmas tree, herself. Yards and yards of silver tinsel, boxes of Christmas snow, numerous tree ornaments, several Santa Claus figures, and all the other things that go to make a Christmas tree a thing to exclaim about. And on the top layer of the box she put a beautiful shining silver star, carefully wrapped in tissue paper. Then she tied the package and handed it across the counter.

"Somebody's going to have a lovely Christmas," she said. "I can imagine how beautiful this tree will look."

The man took the box and started to move away, then returned rather slowly. "Pardon me," he stammered, "but there was something about the way you said that that set me to thinking. Do you have folks of your own, and—a Christmas tree and everything?"

"For a moment Lena Masters was silent, then as she looked into the strong, kind face, she answered: "The only relative I have, an uncle, lives in Montana, and—I have never had a home Christmas. But—I love the day just the same."

Then John Anderson told her something of his own life. He had gone away at twenty-two—had been sent abroad as the representative of a large concern—now, after five years he had come back at the quest of his father, to help him with his business. His father and mother were growing old, and because he had come back, they wanted a Christmas tree, and so he had come for the fittings.

Later that evening, just as Lena Masters was getting ready for closing time, she looked up to find John Anderson standing by the counter. He was accompanied by a sweet-faced old lady—his mother, Lena knew even before he introduced them. "I just had to bring mother down," he said. "As soon as I told her about you today, she just insisted that you spend Christmas with us. You—you've got to see the Christmas tree, you know; you had a part in its making."

The days that followed were the happiest Lena Masters had ever known. The joy of Christmas was multiplied a hundred fold by the kindness and attention shown her. The Anderson family left nothing undone to make her happy. And they told her over and over again how much her coming had meant to them all. There was but one tiny cloud on her sky, the thought that this could not last forever.

But Lena Masters found the happiness that Christmas had brought her was going to be lasting. From now on, all the joy of happy home life and comradeship was going to be hers. For, as they stood beside the gleaming Christmas tree, John Anderson's hand reached out and clasped hers, and she heard him whisper: "Ever since I put that star on the Christmas tree, it—it seems like a symbol of the happiness that lies ahead for us two."

people from putting their money into so-called legal retainers, I am giving this warning. So far as our tax department and I know, there are no large estates in the State of New York awaiting distribution to unknown heirs.

Ruby Laffoon

(St. Louis Post Dispatch)

Kentucky has elected the Democratic candidate for Governor by a majority of 71,000—the noblest day's work the State has ever done in the cause of the bluegrass party. But Kentucky did more than break the numerical record. It wrote the name of Ruby Laffoon on the scroll of politics and in so doing has handsomely embellished the annals.

There is a rare blend of color and euphony in that name. One instinctively paints a mental picture of its proprietor. The prosaic news tells us that the Governor elect has been a Judge and has reached the mellow age of 63. Fancy refuses to be trampled by such stolid facts. Ruby Laffoon connotes elegance, adventure, romance. Not for him the boozing grind, the solemn scribe and the stuffy chambers of the law. He were more happily found in the swelling cadence of a Pyronic ballad, in the glitter and clash of a Dumas narrative, under the heroic banner of Thespis, a soldier of any forlorn hope. And youth were always, irrevocably, the portion of that delightful patronymic. A dashing elegant, picturesque figure is this son of Kentucky to whom greetings and good wishes and, if the law will kindly look away, a julep.

Some motorists may be inclined to dispute these figures, but there is no occasion for doing so. Tests of every kind have been made by these experts, with every kind of car every form of brake and on every type of road. They know what they are talking about, and their warning against speeds, or in driving without any knowledge of what distance is needed for bringing a car to a dead stop, is timely and sensible. It should be given thought by every motorist who actually wants to reduce accidents and make the highways safer for himself and everybody else who uses them.

The engineers say a properly equipped car traveling at only 20 miles an hour on a concrete road cannot be stopped in less than 15 feet from the point where the brakes are applied. If it is traveling at a speed of 40 miles

Speed And Accidents

(Hardin County Enterprise)

Safety experts in convention at Chicago a few weeks ago pointed out that one cause of accidents is a lack of knowledge on the part of the average driver as to the time and distance required to stop a car that is being driven at faster than average speeds. They contend that if every motorist knew more about it there would be fewer accidents and, naturally, a reduction in this country's annual toll of death.

Thirty-five miles of creek beds have been cleared and enlarged this fall in Knox county, as a result of demonstrations made by several farmers this year.

J. E. Littleton, progressive

Mr. Littleton left an order with the Ledger & Times for printing a large quantity of two-page bills for his big sale, which will open Friday, December 4 and continue through Saturday, December 12. Mr. Littleton is one of the county's most able merchants and has a store in Hazel that would do credit to a much larger city.

New Airship Akron Has Telephone System

Did you know that our new routing airship, the U. S. S. AKRON, has an elaborate telephone system? It consists of 17 telephones, a switch board, and these miles of wires. In an emergency, all 17 phones can be rung at once and the Captain can talk or give orders to all strategic points at the same time. That is a quartermaster in the Navy is entirely different from an Army Quartermaster? He has nothing to do with supplies, transportation, etc., but is a petty officer who assists the Navigator of a ship and attends to the steering of the vessel.

That the Chief of Police aboard a naval vessel is known as the Chief Master at Arms?

That the Navy oil tankers are named after rivers? The rivers which lend their names usually flow through an oil producing region.

That the above information has been furnished by the U. S. Navy Recruiting Station, McDowell Building, Third and Walnut Streets, Louisville, Kentucky.

Made FRESH

never parched, never toasted

CAMELS are KEPT Fresh!

You probably know that heat is used in the treatment of all cigarette tobaccos.

But you know too that excessive heat can destroy freshness and fragrance.

That's why there could be no truly fresh cigarette except for scientifically developed methods of applying heat.

Reynolds is proud of having discovered and perfected methods for getting the benefits of heat treatments and still avoiding ever parching or toasting.

With every assurance we tell you, Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh—not parched or toasted—and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

If you wish to know why the swing to Camels is nationwide and steadily growing—switch to them for just one day—then leave them, if you can.

Prof. W. M. Caudill Invites Members to Attend Convention

At the regular meeting of the World's Affairs Club, November 17, Professor Caudill, the club sponsor, read a letter inviting representatives from the Murray State College club to attend the Ohio Valley Conference of World's Affairs Clubs meeting at Oxford, Ohio, December 10.

One of the features of the program was a book report by Wm. D. Cox of Murray, Ky., on "The Next War" by Major K. A. Bratt.

"This book challenges the intelligence of the world," said Nicholas Murray Butler in the introduction.

The author described the forces that made war imminent and discussed the psychology of armaments, the maturing of finance, the role of patriotism and the points of conflicts between European and Asiatic peoples.

He showed that the causes of war in the main have been a combination of ethical, psychological and economic problems.

The book was based on three axioms as follows:

1. Only by political and economic action can the civilized races be saved from war.
2. The present War Society must be destroyed if humanity is not to go under.
3. Unless the present generation with recollections of the great World War tragedy can mobilize enough force to combat war, it will come. The author in closing cited the League of Nations and the Kellogg Peace Pact as factors in the peace of the world but inferred that these were more of a moral force than a practical one.

He quoted Woodrow Wilson, who said: "If peace is to be lasting it must be a peace established by the force of the organized cooperation of humanity."

CHRISTMAS in the MOUNTAINS

By Noni Mack Bailey

ALMS and poinsettias, orange trees and roses in the sun-bright valley with snow and frozen lakes a few hours' ride away in the High Sierras, that's California in winter; so Marion's father, who was a New Yorker, planned to take the family to the mountains for a white Christmas. "Christmas without snow, isn't Christmas at all," he said.

Marion, her mother and father and Tom and Harry, her two cousins, made up the party of five. As they were ready to start, Marion's collar, mounted the running board of the car and insisted on going. With much coaxing on Marion's part he was allowed to do so. When the snowy playground was reached there was plenty of fun with snowball battles, skating, lessons in skiing with many spills and thrills. Then the suggestion for a toboggan ride was answered with shrieks of delight.

Marion and her mother decided to let the father and boys try it first while they gathered more courage. Prince stood by watching excitedly, wagging his tail and voicing his approval in sharp barks.

It was a thrilling ride but a safe one so Marion and her mother readily took their places for the second slide. As they started down hill, Prince gave a quick leap, caught Marion by her coat and pulled her off the toboggan into the soft snow; returned like a flash and caught her mother's clothing in like manner and dragged her free of the toboggan.

Several times they made the attempt but Prince simply would not be pacified and at last they had to chain him to a tree so they could take their ride. For men and boys pair, and after a two weeks' job, figured the cost was $82.50.

it was alright, but Prince did not approve of so dangerous looking a sport for his little mistress and her mother.

"Well, daddy," said Marion, "I coaxed you to let Prince come, so I suppose I deserve to get rolled in the wet snow; but poor mother had to pay for my coaxing, too; and I am sorry."

"Let's not be sorry about anything today. It's Christmas," her father replied, "there's a huge log fire in the lodge and you'll soon be warm and dry."
