North Carolina Finds Milk Is Better in Butterfat.

In recent years, new breeds of dairy cattle are being developed, and it has been found that certain traits are desirable in dairy cattle. One such trait is the ability to produce milk with a high butterfat content. This trait has been called "butterfat content," and is measured in percentage. The higher the butterfat content, the more valuable the milk is for making butter.

A butterfat content of 4% is considered to be average, but some breeds can produce milk with a butterfat content as high as 8% or even 10%. This high butterfat content makes the milk more valuable for making butter, and can increase the profitability of the dairy operation.

The next time you want to eat away from home, bring your family here.

A content established itself in the hearts and minds of these men, who were exposed to the rigors of the climate, the cold and the weather. This is not an exaggeration. It was the result of the splendid hospitality which these men received when they were invited to meals at the Hotel. It was not just a matter of food, but it was the way it was served. It was the way it was prepared that made the difference. This is truly a home-like restaurant because they get at home. That's the reason they come here so frequently to eat. Years of catering to the appetites of particular people make it possible for us to serve appetizing meals. The next time you want to eat away from home, bring your family here.
