Dr. Don P. Hawkins, Palestine, Ill., newly elected minister of the First Christian Church, Fulton, writes that he expects to move his family to the Christian church parsonage in Fulton about September 26. Dr. Hawkins, who is now minister of the First Christian Church, Palestine, is chairman of the program committee for the Centennial celebration of the Palestine church October 14-15. "GOD BLESS OUR HOME"

A very old art again has supporters; the sampler is sought after by antique hunters, for its intrinsic beauty and its insight into other times and customs. Many of us grew up in neighborhoods where samplers were a matter of common occurrence, so common that no-body commented on any except new ones. Many girls and women made samplers as a matter of course, just as they pieced quilts and did hem-stitching.

"God Bless Our Home" was the legend most often found on samplers. Sometimes that was all, sometimes a pretty fair outline of the house itself was made as a part of the sampler. Other appropriate mottoes were known, and vines and flowers found their way into the bright-colored silk thread used for sewing of samplers.

Other samplers were made by girls but not framed. A very old-fashioned one included some figures of people, some flowers, some fancy letters, as well as a motto.

Closely related to the sampler was the motto printed in large, bright letters and hanging in any room of the house. These mottoes usually came from the Bible and were reassuring or admonishing in tone. "God is Love," "Jesus Is the Head of This House," "Whatsoever a Man Soweth, That Shall He Also Reap."

Mottoes had a much greater appeal to our ancestors than they have now. The pillow shams bore the time-honored couplet, one line on each sham:

"I slept and dreamt that Life was Beauty."
"I woke and found that Life is Duty."

Tidies, or antimacassars, had their mottoes, too, like the one I mentioned in this column, with its appropriate German verse. Mottoes graced one's school books, sometimes, as when the teacher wrote the pupil's name and then added a motto.

Copybooks could hardly have existed without their mottoes. After one had practiced writing individual letters and could analyze them to the teacher's satisfaction, whole sentences were given to be copied: "I will try to do wonders," "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," "A wise son maketh a glad father," "The wages of sin is death. We liked the mottoes best that used the most difficult letters, so we could show the teacher how well we could write. I do not remember just now whether the moral precepts did any immediate good.

Mottoes also appeared oftener in talk, though they are common enough now. Hardly anything could be mentioned without its suggesting a pat question, brief and pointed. Benjamin Franklin, the Bible, and other source were drawn upon for these illustrative sayings.

As with so many things, this love for mottoes and maxims allied our generation with ages long past. Quotation books were common in the Middle Ages and later. Many of them were used as textbooks, to illustrate grammar and rhetoric. Our grammars of a half century ago were almost always full of re-peating or diagraming, but probably put in with the hope, too, that they would inspire us to better deeds. Who knows but they did have an influence, whether they appeared in samplers, or mottoes, or copy-book material, or sentence for grammars?

TAYLOR AND HEDY LAMARR IN THRILLING LOVE STORY

Indo-China, with its mystery in-trigue and mingled races, becomes the setting for the first co-starring picture for Robert Taylor and Hedy Lamarr, "Lady of the Tropics", opening Sunday at the Fulton Theatre.

Taylor appears in the new pic-ture after co-starring roles with several of the screen's most glamorous women and Miss Lamarr makes her long-awaited debut for M-G-M fol-lowing her sensational triumph in "Algiers."

Against the oriental setting, Tay-lor plays the role of a young, pen-niless American who, arriving in Saigon, meets and falls in love with Manon, the beautiful Eurasian play-ed by Miss Lamarr.

Hopeful of leaving Indo-China to establish herself as a French wo-man, she is prevented by Delaroch, portrayed by Joseph Schildkraut, who is madly in love with her. She becomes the young American's bride but Delaroch continues to keep her shackled to the East.

During her young husband's ab-sence in the interior, Manon feigns friendship for Delaroch to obtain passports for herself and her hus-band. Misunderstanding the hus-band quarrels with Manon and threatens to kill Delaroch. To save her husband, Manon finds her own solution in a tensely dramatic cli-max.

Amid lavish Oriental settings, the picture is unfolded with the aid of a supporting cast that includes Gloria Franklin, Ernest Cossart, Mary Taylor, Charles Trowbridge, Frederic Worlock and Paul Porcasi. Jack Conway directed.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

A glance at the various business barometers—and a cursory reading of the more experienced annualists and forecasters—produces some grounds for optimism. For several months industrial conditions have been improving. And the "conservative" tendency shown by the last rebellious Congress in its closing weeks has proven to be an excellent psychological factor. Congress didn't do what business asked—the fact is that it left an unusual number of major problems untouched—but most business men think there has been a healthy change in attitude on the part of many Senators and Representatives.

Most significant recent event in the business world has been a fairly sharp rise in the index of durable goods production. Heavy industry almost always goes down first when a "depression" or a "recession" is pending and almost always goes up last when we are on the verge of a "recovery" movement. In June durable goods production jumped about ten points, and later figures indicate that the betterment has continued.

You'll find Buckley's gives definite quick relief from that choking, gasping struggle for breath. "On its way." Continue for a few days and soon you'll hear little more from that tough old hang-on cough that nothing seems to help. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back, be sure you get Buckley's Canadian Mixture.

major barometer of the "light industries", started upward several months ago and, by and large, has held its course. As retail sales figures show, consumer purchasing power in most areas is relatively good.

Improvement is also evident in that all-important field—employment. According to Business Week, employment gained 400,000 in a recent month—biggest increase for that month in ten years. This upward swing in jobs, say most of the economists, should continue well into fall and perhaps longer.

Looking at specific industries, there seem to be a few black spots. Home building has finally tended downward, by comparison with last year, but the reduction in interest rates put into effect by FHA is expected to slow and possibly change the downward trend. Automobile production is low just now, but a sharp rise in output will set in soon, as the new models flow off the assembly lines. Retail inventories in most lines are low, which is always a good sign. There has been a fairly substantial amount of new security financing. And electric power output, in the light of the season, is at an excellent level.

Big question mark is whether the reduction in WPA appropriations (from $2,200,000,000, the amount spent in the year ending June 30, to about $1,570,000,000, the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year) and the consequent cut in WPA employment will have a serious deleterious effect on business. Hope is that private capital, encouraged by the relative economy-spirit shown by Congress, will take up the slack. Many feel that, for first time industry has a chance to prove that large-scale deficit-spending by the government is no longer necessary to support the nation.

POULTRY FEEDING

Successful poultry raisers well understand the importance of scientific feeding in making their flocks profitable, and are alert to take advantage of new discoveries and developments such as are being continually made by nutritional experts.

In this connection, wide attention has been directed to studies made by Professors Kennard and Bethke, and published by the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station in recent bulletins.

Among extensive experiments with vegetable proteins and minerals for poultry they compared various levels of meat scraps with soybeans oilmeal for chick and growing pullets.

"That the soybean oilmeal rations used in these studies proved somewhat superior to the meat scrap rations was surprising and almost unbelievable at the time," it was said, but was confirmed by subsequent experiments.

In these tests soybean oilmeal proved comparable to milk for the finish feeding of market broilers while studies showed that ground whole soybeans were decidedly inferior. Likewise, tests conducted by other stations have generally indicated that the oilmeal was superior to other vegetable protein concentrates and that it was a satisfactory substitute for meat scraps when properly supplemented with suitable minerals.

The observations made with respect to the feeding of poultry apply with equal force to feeds for hogs, dairy cows and sheep, for all of which soybean oilmeal has proven to be highly desirable.

ASTRONOMERS WORRIED

Since 1675 the Greenwich Observatories, and for many years its workshop of British royal astronomers, and for many years its meridian has been considered longitudes from which both east and west longitude is determined, by most civilized countries.

But Greenwich is becoming unfit as a place for astronomical work, according to a report of Dr. H. Spencer Jones, royal astronomer, because of interference of various kinds from modern London.

The glare of the city's lights thrown against the sky, the thundering of trains, the sulphurous fumes from factories, and electrical interference with delicate instruments are among the nuisances which worry the astronomers and hamper their observations.

While it may be necessary eventually to remove the royal observatory to another location, it is not believed that this will be done in the near future, and the astronomers will have to make the best of the situation. The United Kingdom has several modern observatories, among them being those at Edinburgh, Dublin, Oxford and Cambridge.

A 12-year-old fire truck was used to put out a blaze at Olney, Ill., when firemen were unable to get their new one going.

Francis Bendelari, arrested in New York for begging was found to have bank books showing deposits of $2,583.

Emile Gingras of Montreal went to sleep in a house he had entered and was caught with two bags of loot he had intended to steal.

When his overalls were caught in a tractor drive shaft Andrew Wilson of Valley City, N. D., was practically stripped and painfully bruised.

Thieves near Spokane, Wash., stole 3,000 feet of copper wire from an electric power line.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of waste impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter. The kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

HALF and HALF

The really smart shoes this season—the ones that are labeled Fall 1939—are not all suede, are not all patent but—half and half! This giddy little tie is one of the smartest versions of this new trend, and its sparkling patent forepart and heel, its rich dull suede backpart, give it an utterly new look! In black only, and on a comfortable medium heel.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday September 10, 1939.

The Golden Text is: "Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you; for him hath God the Father sealed." (John 6:27).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Through faith we understand that worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear." (Hebrews 11:1,3.)

1102 NEW TAX LAWS NOW IN 41 STATES

The National Consumers Tax Commission has reported that a total of 4338 tax bills went into legislative hoppers in the 44 state legislatures during 1939 and produced 1102 new tax laws.

The report was compiled for use among the 6000 study groups of the commission. It traced tax trends which indicated heavier burdens on property, commercial vehicles, incomes, cigaret smokers, liquor and insurance purchasers. Nearly three-quarters of the bills dealt with these subjects.

Legislators gave consideration to hundreds of miscellaneous items in their search for more potential revenue sources. The report said these sources included, "hatching eggs and tractors, smelts and tourist camps, baby chicks and bachelors, Indian relics and mules."

The study showed that California led the states with 348 tax bills considered. Tennessee legislators introduced 245 proposals. New York 200, and Massachusetts 195.

Mrs. Frank Walsh of Chicago testified that she and her husband had lived together for 10 years without a word of conversation.

Miss Mary Lithner of Dublin locked in a room by her father, escaped through a chimney and married Thomas Morgan.

land has been, and is, the greatest for reasons peculiar to its history. After the emergence from feudalism the English kings attempted arbitrary government. King Charles was defeated and beheaded in a revolt of merchants and yeomen, who then ruled England for the years of the Long Parliament and Cromwell.

"When the aristocrats resumed the government at the restoration of Charles II, and again at the election of King William and Queen Mary, it was to rule as the commercial classes wished.

Blood for England's Wars.
"To the aristocrats went the enormous titles, the gaudy raiment, the shining swords, the judicial pomp. The actual power resided in the men in the counting houses and the merchant ships.

"The aristocrats and the jails furnished the blood for England's wars; the merchants furnished the treasure. The merchants obtained more wealth; the aristocrats more governorships, more generalships, more judgeships, more beautiful embassies.

"This political accord created the British empire whose complexity is only rivaled by its extent. In 1814 it included the settlements of Australia and New Zealand, Canada, and Ireland, and South Africa, part settlement, part conquest; conquered peoples in India, Egypt, the Sudan and a score of smaller places; strategic concessions as Tientsin and Hongkong, controlling the trade of large areas of territory in other countries; purely military bases, such as Gibraltar in Spain, the Falkland Islands, Bermuda, and Trinidad in America. Portugal and its colonial empire were added as dependencies.

Fleet World's Biggest.
"British commerce was borne by the biggest merchant fleet in the world; it was financed by the largest banking system and insured by Lloyd's, the world's greatest insurance exchange. It was connected by cables belonging to subjects of the empire—cables which were twice as numerous and twice as long as those owned by all other countries, and over which passed news of the world, collected by a British news agency and furnished to the newspapers of all countries in the form best suited to advance the imperial interest.

"This gigantic empire fostered British industry and gave its subjects natural advantage in dealing with all the countries of the earth. It gave aristocratic employment to thousands of military and administrative officers—all interested in its maintenance and expansion.

"In consequence of its business relations with all the countries of the world, the empire developed diplomatic relations, carried on by men trained in the service and devoted to the success of the empire.

Empires Coerced by Navy

"This empire was protected, policed and coerced by a navy which ruled the waves, and by armies which, except in the case of the American revolution, have been adequate to meet all demands.

"France emerged from the feudal system at about the same time as England. It, as England, had religious, political, and commercial civil wars, but in them the merchant class never triumphed.

"The crown became absolute, leading large aristocratic, military, and administrative hierarchies—all riding heavily upon the commercial and working classes.

"When Frenchmen scoured the ocean and settled foreign lands, it was to increase the glory of their king. French armies marched across Europe for the same purpose.

"Commerce and industry, regimented under government control, withered; the armies and navies could not be maintained; America and India were lost to the British.

Regimentation Ends Monarchy

"The monarchy fell from bureaucratic regimentation, to be followed in a few years by the Napoleonic empire. Again the navy sailed and armies marched, for the glory of the monarch, to Egypt; to Lisbon; to Naples; to Moscow. Trade and industry were neglected. France once more collapsed in exhaustion.

"Another generation and another Napoleon arose. French navies sailed to Russia; to Mexico. French armies marched to victory at Sedan.

"Prussians, Bavarians and Wurttembergers formed the German empire at Versailles, and remained on French soil for three years while collecting a heavy ransom for withdrawal. With the ransom went the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine.

"France was crushed. Gone were imperial dreams. A republic of little merchants was set up, somewhat rapaciously administered by a central bureaucracy, inherited from Richelieu and the Napoleons.

"The republic also inherited Algeria, which had been occupied under Louis Philippe, and Madagascar, which was claimed by right of discovery. Furthermore, it inherited the army with all of its traditions of greatness and adventure.

"From reasons of tradition and patriotism, from fear of further German invasion, the army became the career most desired by Frenchmen. Officers were chosen by competitive examinations, and the ablest students in the technical colleges obtained commissions, excepting in the cavalry which remained the only career open to the old nobility.

"After France adopted the system of universal military training, every Frenchman passed through the army and learned to admire and look up to its splendid officers. The army thus obtained an influence entirely outside its legal status.

Indo-China Conquered

"Partly from offense received, partly from an instinct to exercise its functions, partly to forget the disgraces of Metz and Sedan, the French army pushed its conquests from arable Algeria into arid Tunis, mountainous Morocco, and tropical Congo. It completed the subjugation of Madagascar. Cause being found, it invaded and conquered Indo-China.

"Few Frenchmen settled in the conquered territories, whose economic development has been mediocre. The conquests were, first and last, military, and military riches were sought in the form of Algerian, Moroccan, and Negro troops.

"Most of my service in the late European war was in contact with Moroccan divisions, and I can assure that when organized by French officers they are the peers of any soldiers in the world.

France Looks for Allies
"Encouraged by military successes against the natives, reinforced by African troops, France looked around for allies, with whose support it could again become, if not a dominant, at least an equal partner in the game of international politics.

"Old Germany, so often ravished by Swedish, Russian, and French invasions while split up into principalities, did not emerge from the feudal system by the reforms of Stein until early in the nineteenth century. German human beings had been rented out like horses to attack our forefathers in the revolutionary war. Germany was, therefore, three hundred years behind the other empires in political and industrial evolution. In world politics it was almost another hundred years behind, because it was not until the triumph over France, following victories over Austria-Hungary and Denmark, that Bismarck consolidated four kingdoms, six grand duchies, five duchies, seven principalities, three free cities, and the French provinces of Alsace and Lorraine into the German empire.

German Power Born of Sword
"Germany's power, created entirely by the sword, was exercised by hereditary military nobility which took little count of the industrial civilization springing up within its enlarged frontiers. Keenly aware of the empires France and England had amassed during its years of fragmentation, Germany pressed forward to obtain a great er position in world affairs, sent an army to Peking in 1900, obtained such colonies as were not already preempted, and desired a world position in keeping with its new found power.

"With Germany at this time was associated Austria-Hungary, a group of discordant races united under the Hapsburgs. Their emperor was the successor of Charlemagne, but now sunk the glory of the Hapsburgs. Pillaged by Frederick the Great, three times overrun by Napoleon I, saved from revolution by the czar of Russia, defeated by Napoleon III, overthrown by Bismarck, Austria-Hungary was hard pushed to maintain itself and dependent upon its youthful neighbor for support.

"The rulers of Austria-Hungary feared that unless it incorporated at least a part of the countries recently held by Turkey, the empire would dissolve into its constituent races.

"Italy, once called by Metternich 'a geographical expression,' had been united into a kingdom hardly forty years, operating inefficiently under a form of government modeled after England's, but without England's traditions to help it work.

"With rapidly increasing population, without natural resources within its border, Italy was looking for an opportunity to increase its territorial holdings.

"To the east lay Russia, much the youngest of the nations to enter European politics. Far from marching to the Crusades, Russians were at that time slaves under the yoke of the Mongols. So great were their sufferings that the brutalities of Ivan the Terrible and Peter the

Gentlemen:

About 8 months ago I began the use of your Min-Lax Tonic and Cuasoe. At that time I was suffering from a general run-down condition. My health had been bad for a long time, besides general weakness, I was suffering with stomach disorders and piles.

Your Min-Lax Tonic and Cuasoe corrected these conditions to my entire satisfaction so that my general health, since using them has been better than for a number of years. In addition to above troubles I used your Cuasoe on a malignant sore on my lips and also same kind of sore on the left side of my head.

These sores had been pronounced cancer and I had received cancer treatment from two different institutions. I am not prepared to make the positive statement that these sores were cancers, but I do know that they had refused to yield to treatment, until I applied Cuasoe.

I am happy to say that I received great benefit from the use of Cuasoe and that these malignant sores or ulcers, or whatever they were have disappeared. It gives me great pleasure to recommend both Min-Lax Tonic and Cuasoe, and I am recommending them every opportunity I have to my neighbors and friends.

Yours very truly,
H. C. LASSITER

White Bluff, Tennessee

May 5, 1938

I am writing this to say that on May 3, 1938, my two boys and I became very ill, about 2 p.m., vomiting most severely, and after a few hours our bowels began acting every few minutes with severe cramping pains throughout the abdomen. We got no relief until about 8 p.m., when we began to take Min-Lax Tonic and after taking the second dose, one hour after the first, we began to improve very rapidly and were all able to be up and eat breakfast yesterday morning, 12 hours after beginning to take Min-Lax Tonic.

MRS. J. B. MADEWELL
White Bluff, Tennessee
R. F. D. No. 1

MR. J. N. HINSON, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., unsolicited writes as follows:

"Just two weeks ago today, you gave me a bottle of your Mineral Products Remedy, MIN-LAX Tonic. At that time I was so weak from an attack of influenza and general run down condition, it was with the greatest difficulty for me to sit up or walk without falling. As a matter of fact, I did fall from sheer weakness and was unable to get up without the assistance of two friends, Mr. C. G. Joplin and Mr. A. E. Black, who happened to be present. They assisted me to my feet and washed the blood from my left eye, which I severely cut when falling.

"I have taken your remedy, MIN-LAX Tonic as you directed, and am most pleased and happy to testify to the wonderful effects received from its use. I have gained five pounds in weight and am eating heartily three times daily and have returned to my work feeling like a new man.

"I thank you from the bottom of my heart for this great medicine and verily believe that the good Lord directed you to me."

History of Europe Told By McCormick

Great seemed to them hardly more than necessary military discipline.

Queen Connives at Mate's Slaying.
"At the time that George Mason and Patrick Henry were formulating the doctrine of free government, the infamous Queen Catherine was conniving at the murder of her husband, and Russian girls were on sale at the slave markets of Odessa and Constantinople.

"From the time of Peter, Russian monarchs had entered European quarrels and copied European diplomacy and European military theory, but had done little to improve the lot of the hundred million illiterates of many races among whom serfdom existed as late as the year 1862, and was abolished in emulation of Lincoln's emancipation proclamation.

"The despotism of a bureaucracy and an officers' corps was endured partly through ignorance and partly because the Slavs were still in a war for racial independence.

"The Turks had been driven from the Crimea, and had just been ejected from the Balkan peninsula, leaving new states, Rumania, Bulgaria, Serbia, and Greece, without civilized traditions, seething within and without with tribal rivalries. Russia wished to protect and lead these states as fellow Slavs, and watched its old ally, Austria, with bitter jealousy.

Japan in Feudal Stages.
"Japan was an oriental country in the early stages of feudalism when awakened by Perry. It immediately instituted a bloodless revolution, and adopted a constitution modeled on that of the German empire, reposing all final authority in the military.

"The sons of the ruling families were sent far and wide in quest of western education. Soldiers studied in the German army; sailors in the British navy. The Japanese armed services were modeled after these organizations.

"Japan made war on China in 1894, and won easily, but was refused permission to occupy Korea and the Lio-tung peninsula by the joint action of Russia, France and Germany.

"In consequence, Japan entered into an alliance with England to keep these countries off its back, and in 1905 destroyed the Russian navy, and defeated its armies. Japan forced Russia to cede the half of Saghalien which had been annexed in 1857, to surrender its lease of the Kwantung peninsula and Port Arthur, evacuate Manchuria, and recognize Japan's sphere of influence in Korea.

Long History of Strife.
"Over many years these different countries had fought one another—singly, or in such alliances as the needs or ambitions of the moment made advantage.

"In 1914 Russia, France, England and Japan were in one alliance; Germany, Austria, and Italy in another.

When your son or daughter is away at school, does your guiding influence remain at home?

As boys and girls leave for schools and colleges, homes are made lonely and the young people face homesickness and separation from the guiding influence of home.

The affectionate, sympathetic understanding present in home-life is difficult to maintain by letters, but by telephone, home ties can be kept alive and warm. Telephone visits at regular intervals with children away at school are as intimate as though the children were at home with you. They'll be happier, and do better work. And what a joy these inexpensive voice-visits will be to you.

The best plan is to arrange for your boy or girl to call home "collect" at regular intervals at a particular time. Then by using Station-to-Station service after 7 P. M. or at any time on Sundays, you can talk 100 miles for 35c, 200 miles—65c, and greater distances at correspondingly low cost.

MOTOR MEMOIRS

BY H. O'HARE

"Such was the state of Europe and the world, when friction between Austria and Archduke Frances Ferdinand, and to the outbreak of the world war.

"Italy deserted its allies and joined its enemies upon promise of great territorial reward.

"Japan remained true to its alliance with Great Britain, and seizing the German territory of Kiaochow, drove German ships from the Pacific, escorted Australians and New Zealand troops to Europe, and took all German islands in the Pacific ocean north of the equator.

Our Relations with Europe.
"Now, since the situation in Europe interests you primarily because of its effect upon us, it is necessary to trace our relations with European governments.

"Our forebears while still British citizens, carried on wars with France and Spain, the other two great countries occupying America. With the assistance of British armies, they took Canada from France. Later, with the assistance of French and Spanish armies, they drove the British from the original thirteen colonies, Florida, Louisiana, and the Northwest Territory, of which Illinois forms a part.

"Their energy far surpassed that of any other people in any time. They recovered from a devastating war, originated the best government ever devised by man, and pushed forth in every direction.

"New England ships became the world's greatest carriers. When these were harassed by Barbary pirates, the new nation carried on a successful war in Africa.

The Uge for Expansion.
"The struggle for expansion led to the invasion and acquisition of Florida from Spain, and of Louisiana from France, under virtual threat of war.

"A combination of circumstances led to the second war with England—with indecisive results. Both countries remained within their territories at its conclusion, and extended the common boundary.
