THE LISTENING POST

● George is a big overgrown lad of seventeen and lives in California. Big in every way, he gives promise of being much bigger once he has filled out and taken on a few more years. He will be as big and as strong as a horse, and he is the type which baseball scouts look at with extreme interest. When the big league scouts look at a young ball player they do not see the faults which exist then. They know, if the lad has the stuff, these faults can be corrected. They are interested in finding out if he can hit and run and throw. If he can do those things they look for another feature. They want to see if he has big strong hands and a body big and strong enough to stand the punishment which big league play throws on it. Yet, little men make the grade at times—but the little man must be a real star and overcome the handicap of his size. In the main, scouts want to see a big, strong boy who seems to have the makings of a ball player.

● This lad I am talking about, young George, has all these things. I have been watching him for quite a while, and he has had an unhappy time here. Several times he has dropped easy balls batted or thrown at him, and baseball fans are not of the forgiving sort. They hate bitterly to lose a ball game, and they get steamed up when a husky boy makes a ghastly error and lets enemy runs pour in. George has done these things, and he has also fallen before curve ball pitching time without number, when a hit mean the difference between winning and losing. I know that he has felt it, for I can see in a boy's face what he is thinking many times. The other night I saw George plumb the depths and reach the heights within a few fleeting moments. Here was the setup:

● Two men were out, and an enemy runner was on third base. The batter hit an easy fly to George in left field. George came galloping in. He was so determined to make that final out and I could see it in his determined manner. In his anxiety he misjudged the flight of the ball, as he has done several times. Then he backed up, and in a final desperate effort, he thrust one hand up and grabbed at the ball. It popped out of his glove and the runner scored. Bitter thoughts raged through the hearts of Fulton fans, and I guess several of us would have cheerfully boiled George in oil at the time. George dropped back to his regular position and there was utter dejection in his manner. Back there in the far shadows he suddenly threw his glove on the ground and jumped up and down on it.

● Then came the final out and the team trotted in. George came in slowly, as if dreading the ordeal of nearing the stands. He did not enter the dugout. He sat alone at the base of a pole on the outside and there was something pathetic in the droop of his big shoulders. He did not look up. Then a local player reached first, then another. George got up, took his bat and came to the plate, and I could see there was a do or die slant to his shoulders. He has a beautiful swing at the plate, but to date his hitting has been nothing to write his Aunt Mary about. But he does have power and when a guy has power things are likely to happen. He took the first pitch and it was called a ball. Then the enemy hurler let fly a fast ball which seemed just below the shoulders of big George. George took a step forward, his bat swung with devastating force, there was a sharp, clean crack, and the ball started towards the fence like a startled quail. Up and up it went, until it finally struck a pole outside the park. Had

Act To Curb Strikes In Defense Work

Bill Would Give President More Power In Labor Dealings

Washington. — Advocates of legislation to give the President broad powers to cope with defense strikes won a preliminary test of strength Wednesday as the House began consideration of the measure, which also would defer men of 28 from the draft.

Opponents of the bill's labor provisions sought to have them considered separately from the deferment section, which has evoked no opposition, on the theory that their prospects for passage would thus be diminished. But the House, by a roll call vote of 217 to 148, decided to take up the bill in its original form.

Rousing Debate Held
In a rousing debate over the rights of labor, opponents of the measure shouted that it would destroy the right to strike while others argued that strikers would be denied only the "special privilege of using a lead pipe" to impose their will on the workers.

The section to which labor has objected most strenuously would make it unlawful to keep a worker from his job by force, stipulating that this prohibition shall not abridge the right to strike. Violators would be deemed guilty of sabotage and subject to a $5000 fine or five years imprisonment.

The President would be given statutory authority to take over and operate a plant where the management refused to utilize existing Federal mediation facilities and to order production resumed at a plant where it had stopped through subversive activities or otherwise.

Donovan Says He Will Demand University Gets $100,000 More

Lexington, Ky. — Dr. H. L. Donovan, new president of the University of Kentucky, said Tuesday he would ask the 1942 Legislature to give the university in excess of $100,000 more than its present allotment.

"The university's income today is approximately $100,000 less than it was a decade ago, although there are more students enrolled and more responsibilities," he said in an address before the Lexington Kiwanis Club.

Says New Gym Is "Must." "I will ask the next General Assembly not only to restore that $100,000 but to grant a larger amount for building maintenance and operations."

"Education of our youth cannot wait until this war is over; it must go on now," the new president said. He said a "must" on the university's program was a new gymnasium-auditorium.

The state of Indiana, Dr. Donovan continued, appropriates four times as much to its two state institutions of higher learning than Kentucky does to the university.

He said the U. K. enrollment probably would drop 10 to 12 per cent during the next two years, but predicted that 6,000 students would be enrolled by 1950.

School To Be Rebuilt At Early Date

Union City, Tenn. — Governor Prentice Cooper told delegation of citizens from Martin Wednesday morning that the state would provide $35,000 toward the replacement of the Industrial Art Building of the University of Tennessee Junior College, and added that additional funds will be made if sufficient need is shown.

In addition to the fund to be supplied from the state's sinking fund, $11,000 will be available from insurance carried on the building, newest and finest of the camps structures, which went up in flames June 21.

University of Tennessee Trustee George Rowlett headed a large delegation of Martin citizens which conferred with the Governor prior to the meeting of the Reelfoot Lake Commission held here today.

Tentative plans for the new building, as presented by Cooper, call for a large structure than the old building, possibly a two story building to replace the old one-story structure.

College authorities declare the increase in size has been made necessary by increased enrollment since the old building was erected.

17 Freight Cars Are Derailed At McConnell

Wreckage Blocks Main Line of I. C.; Traffic Detoured Through Rives

Seventeen cars of freight train B. C. 4, enroute from Chicago to Birmingham, were derailed and turned over about a quarter of a mile south of McConnell this morning about 4:50, causing considerable damage to the equipment and blocking the main line. The derailment was apparently caused by a broken flange on a car, loaded with pig iron.

The train was in charge of Conductor E. H. Taylor and Engineer J. E. Hefley. Work of clearing the track has been underway all morning, but it will require about 10 hours to get all the wreckage off the main line, so that traffic can proceed. It is hoped to have all the cars removed from the scene by tomorrow afternoon. Trainmaster H. K. Buck and Supervisor W. H. Purcell are in charge of clearing the wreckage.

All traffic over this line has been detoured by way of Rives over the GM and O to Jackson, Tenn. This includes the Seminole and the City of Miami, I. C.'s crack streamliner, which goes through Fulton about 3 o'clock.

Only a few of the derailed cars were completely wrecked, although considerable damage was done and local officials this morning estimated the total damage at about $9,250. About 2000 feet of the track was damaged.

Wrecker crews from Jackson, Tenn., and Paducah were called to the scene of the accident, since the Fulton wrecker is in Memphis at present.

Mexican Says U. S. Must Invest In Latin America

Chicago. — The United States must invest heavily in Latin American enterprises if it desires to maintain its own economic health as well as that of the nations south of the Rio Grande, Eduardo Villaseñor, president of the Bank of Mexico, said Wednesday.

Unless the United States exports capital tending to develop the Latin American economy, Latin America will be unable to continue purchasing American goods and services at the current rate, Villaseñor asserted in a prepared lecture at the University of Chicago.

Heavy Loss In Packing Plant Fire At U. C.

Reynolds Company Is Hit By $40,000 Fire

Union City, Tenn. — Damage estimated unofficially at $40,000 or more was caused by fire which swept a main portion of the plant of the Reynolds Packing Company this morning.

Officials of the company said they expect insurance to cover a considerable portion of the loss.

The fire broke out shortly after 9 o'clock and was not brought under control until after 11 o'clock. The entire facilities of the local fire department were called into action.

One hundred employees left the plant without injury and most of them aided firemen in combating the blaze.

Company officials said a heavy loss would be suffered on meats and other products which were in storage in the burned building.

The fire came at a time when the plant was producing maximum volume. How long production will be stopped was not estimated.

The fire started in a bacon-smoking room on the first floor of the plant and was confined to a two-story section at the back of the offices and the front one-story portion, as fire walls prevented its spread into other parts of the plant.

Roosevelt Urges U. S. To Pray For New International Order

Washington. — While some Government sources described it as lacking an exact parallel in American history, the occupation of Iceland by armed forces was cited Tuesday as one of the many instances in which the President, acting as Commander-in-Chief, has sent soldiers, sailors and marines to foreign soil.

President Roosevelt, in announcing the latest move, told Congress specifically he had acted "as Commander-in-Chief."

Lists Other Expeditions

Edward H. Foley, Jr., Treasury general counsel, recently supplied a list of foreign expeditions which included the sending of a naval force to Cuba, by President Buchanan, with orders "to protect all vessels of the United States on the high seas from search or detention by the vessels of war of any other nation."

Other instances Foley cited were President Wilson sending the Navy to Vera Cruz, Mexico; President

Grant dispatching an expedition to Santo Domingo; President McKinley transporting men to China during the Boxer uprising; an 1854 naval expedition to Nicaragua; and in modern times, a number of marines landings in Latin America.

Unique In One Respect

The Iceland expedition, however, appears to be the only one providing for the use of American armed forces to replace those of a nation at war, in this case Britain.

One Government attorney said that the President's action might safeguard the peace of Iceland. Great Britain is at war with Germany, he explained, and consequently German planes or forces might have attacked Iceland at any time.

Since the United States is not a belligerent, this official said, occupation of Iceland by American troops—and removal of British forces from the island—should insure that Iceland would not be attacked.

A NEWSPAPER CLASSIC

Many people, who are interested in history and personalities, have heard of "Sunset" Cox, a man who served as Congressman from Ohio and New York, as minister to Turkey and famous traveler. He lived and died a long time ago, but his memory is still alive to many. Not so many, however, know how he came to wear the name "Sunset," and in fact, it is generally believed that his initials "S. S." may have prompted the name. We read recently thereason for the name and it is interesting.

In May, 1853 Cox was editor of a newspaper in Columbus, Ohio. Late in the evening the foreman sent word to Editor Cox that the composing room needed more copy to finish up the editorial page for next morning's paper. Cox had arrived at the office just as the sun was setting. He looked out of the window for a few moments and then entered the composing room where printers were waiting. Leaning over a makeup stone he began writing and turned out this editorial:

A GREAT OLD SUNSET

What a stormful sunset was that of last night! How glorious the storm and how splendid the setting of the sun! We do not remember ever to have seen the like on our round globe. The scene opened in the West, with a whole horizon full of golden, interpenetrating lustre, which colored the foliage and brightened every object into its own rich dyes. The colors grew deeper and richer until the golden lustre was transfused into a storm cloud full of the finest lightning, which leaped in dazzling zigzags all around over the city. The wind arose with fury, the slender shrubs and giant trees made obeisance to its majesty. Some even snapped before its force. The strawberry beds and grass plots turned up their whites to see Zephyrus march by. As the rain came and the pools formed and the gutters hurried away, thunder rolled grandly and the firebells caught the excitement and rang with hearty choruses.

The South and the East received the copious showers, and the West all at once brightened up in a long polished belt of azure, worthy of a Sicilian sky. Presently a cloud appeared in the azure belt in the form of a castellated city. It became vivid, revealing strange forms of peerless fanes and alabaster temples and glories rare and grand in this mundane sphere. It reminded us of Wordsworth's splendid verse in his "Excursion":

The appearance instantly disclosed
Was of a mighty city; boldly lay
A wilderness of buildings, sinking far
And self-withdrawn into a wondrous depth.
Far sinking into a splendor without end.

But the city vanished, only to give place to another isle, where the most beautiful forms of foliage appeared, imagining a paradise in the distant and purified air. The sun, wearied of the elemental commotion, sank behind the green plains of the West. The "great eye in heaven," however, went not down without a dark brow hanging over its departing light. The rich flush of the unearthly light had passed, and the rain had ceased when the solemn church bells pealed, the laughter of children rang out and, joyous after the storm, was heard with the carol of birds; while the forked and purple weapon of the skies still darted illumination around the Starling college, trying to rival its angles and leap into its dark windows.

D. N. B. CRIES FOUL AT SOVIET TACTICS

The querulous tons of Dienst aus Deutschland in its report of yesterday's fighting is more eloquent of the real situation on the far-flung battlefield than all the Berlin and Moscow communiques combined. Stubborn Russian resistance in general and Russian guerrilla warfare in particular are getting on the nerves of the official German news agency. The slowing down of the Nazi Blitzkrieg on all fronts is too much for the boastful disseminator of German successes and German victories and it lets out a yelp of foul and trickery.

Russian "corpses" strewn along the line of march rise up to attack the flank of the invaders. Russian case-mates along the way wake up only after the Nazi legions have passed and pour murderous fire into their rear. Crews of armored cars disappear in the wheat fields when their vehicles are smashed and turn up suddenly to snipe upon German columns. For once D. N. B. is dealing with facts and facts are not to its liking. For once the German technique of warfare—penetration and encirclement—is meeting with difficulties; the advance units get too far out in front and the encirclement process fails to put out of commission the opposing forces behind them.

It was this kind of warfare that Stalin urged in his broadcast to the Russian people last week. He called for the formation of units "mounted and foot" in areas occupied by the enemy. He also urged that cattle, grain and rolling stock be removed from threatened districts. He stressed the fact that history shows there has never been an invincible army and never will be. But guerrilla warfare and the scorched earth will not alone suffice to defeat the purpose of the Nazis.

The Red Army must be kept intact. It must avoid the pincers of encirclement. It must escape the manifold traps set for it and affect an orderly retreat. Any large body of guerrilla forces that are cut off might seriously weaken the defense of Leningrad, of Moscow and of Kiev. Hitler's one aim is to crush the Red Army as he crushed the French Army and the armies of Yugoslavia and Greece.

Guerrilla warfare of which D. N. B. complains carries with it the threat to the German lines and also to Russian resistance, but D. N. B. is patently worried.—Courier-Journal.

Candles were lighted. The piano strikes up. We feel it good to have a home, good to be on earth where such revelations of beauty and power may be made. And as we cannot refrain from reminding our readers of everything wonderful in our city, we have begun and ended our feeble etching of a sunset which comes so rarely that its glory should be committed to immortal type.

Tigers Snap Losing Streak By Beating Hoppers Twice

The Tigers snapped a four game losing streak here last night by taking the Hopkinsville team into camp twice, the first time 4 to 3 in a tight eleven inning tilt, and the second 1 to 0 in a seven inning game. Lake, who relieved Emrich in the eighth inning, was credited with the first victory, while Big Harry Sprute threw a three hitter at the Hoppers in the nightcap. The first game started at six o'clock with the lights coming on about 7:30, and the last game got under way at 9:15.

The first game saw the Tigers go into the lead in the fourth inning with a three run outburst with Derrick driving in two runs with a timely blow. The Hoppers tied the score in the eighth and in the eleventh Joe Lis rapped out a timely double to send Ivy in with the winning run. But for a questionable decisions in the ninth the Tigers would have won in that frame had the decision passed great arguments.

In the nightcap Harry Sprute pitched the best game of the season, walking four, but pitching out of several holes with his blazing fast one and a puzzling curve. He fanned five men, and was given brilliant support. Bruhn was also good for the Hoppers and gave up five hits. Frankie Faudem, celebrating his nineteenth birthday, drove in the winning run in the fifth inning. Frankie probably saved the game in the seventh when he threw a perfect strike to third base to retire Kdevar. The latter had reached second when Vico dropped his long drive to left and no one was out. Sprute tried to catch him off base and the throw rolled into center. Faudem fielded it and threw perfectly to Mullen to get the big Hopper outfielder and that, stopped the rally.

Derrick again showed last night why he was picked for the All-Star game, roving all over the field and handling a dozen chances without an error. He was a tower of strength to the Tigers all the way, as was Faudem in center.

Today is an off day and tomorrow the Tigers go to Bowling Green for three games.
