HORSEBREAK BAKERY TO ENLARGE PLANT

For the little bakery in the town of Fulton, they have been selling bread, cakes and pastries for over 50 years. The business is now expanding and they are planning to build a new, larger bakery plant.

The announcement of this expansion has been made by the owners of the bakery, who have invested a large amount of money in new equipment and new buildings.

The new bakery will be located on the outskirts of the town, and will have a capacity of producing 100,000 loaves of bread daily. The new building will be completed in six months, and the expansion will create new jobs for 50 people.

The expansion of the bakery is a sign of the growing popularity of home-baked bread and pastries. The bakery has been known for its high-quality products, and the owners are confident that the expansion will meet the increasing demand for their products.

The new bakery will have a modern design, with state-of-the-art equipment to ensure the highest quality of products. The owners are committed to using only the finest ingredients, and they plan to expand their product line to include a wider range of pastries and breads.

The expansion of the bakery is a sign of the growing importance of local businesses in the community. The owners are proud to be a part of the Fulton community, and they are looking forward to serving the people of Fulton and the surrounding area with their high-quality products for many years to come.

The expansion of the bakery is a significant milestone in the history of Fulton. The owners are committed to continuing their tradition of high-quality products and customer service, and they are looking forward to serving the people of Fulton and the surrounding area for many years to come.
