Laughing Around the World

BY ERVIN S. COBB

A young mother was talking to a group of people who were at a dinner party. She was very happy and said, "I love my children! They make me laugh all the time!"

"What do you mean by that?" asked a man at the table.

"Well," said the woman, "I have a little boy named John and a little girl named Mary. Whenever I see them, I can't help but laugh."

"Do they always make you laugh?" asked the man.

"No," said the woman. "Sometimes they drive me nuts. But they always make me laugh in the end."

"Why is that?" asked the man.

"Because," said the woman, "they are just so full of life and joy. They always have something funny to say or do."

"That's wonderful," said the man. "I wish I could have children like that."

"I'm sure you could," said the woman. "Just be happy and enjoy every moment with them. They are a joy to be around."

"I will," said the man. "Thank you for sharing your story with us. It has made my day."

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

This has been a quiet Congress as far as bills. That doesn't mean that the lawmakers are mum on the subjects which do come before them. Congress is supposed to represent the people, and the people want action in Congress.

Most economic issues facing the Congress are to be found in the details of what to do about the national debt. As was expected, the same issues have gone beyond the reasserted support of the gold standard to the search for a more flexible monetary system.

The House passed a bill setting the interest rate limit at 6.5 per cent, and the Senate approved an amendment to increase the rate to 7.5 per cent. These bills are now before the House. Where it faces strong opposition from the anti-inflation movement, the bill may be modified to a higher rate, or be defeated. Even if it is passed, it does not appear likely that the bill will be given the support of newspapers and magazines that have long advocated a higher rate.

However, a bill providing for a minimum wage of $1.00 per hour has been passed by the House and Senate. This bill now goes to the President for his signature. It is expected that he will sign it, but it is doubtful if he will do so.

The abundance of peace and truth

Peace is not the absence of conditions that make trouble. It is the presence of conditions which make peace. Peace is not the absence of problems. It is the presence of solutions. Peace is not the absence of war. It is the presence of its opposite: peace. Peace is not the absence of conflict. It is the presence of resolution. Peace is not the absence of suffering. It is the presence of compassion. Peace is not the absence of pain. It is the presence of healing. Peace is not the absence of fear. It is the presence of trust. Peace is not the absence of division. It is the presence of unity. Peace is not the absence of (2x)....
