May Day Is Child Health Day

May Day has for many centuries represented the joy of springtime. The Romans held a beautiful flower festival in honor of the Goddess Flora. The ancient barbarians of Europe celebrated the day by kindling beacon lights on all hill tops. In England the celebration of May Day reached its fullest development. Early in the morning all the people went out to the woods to gather flowers and hawthorn branches. Coming home at sunrise, they decorated every door and window in the village with blossoms. The most beautiful girl in the village was chosen Queen of the May. In the early days members of the nobility and even Kings and Queens took part in the May Day festivities, dances and songs.

May Day has for centuries been associated with spring flowers, happy children, May pole dances. All symbolizing the joy of the world in nature's outbreak into spring.

In the last few years this day has taken on a new significance, and has become a day on which people who are interested in child health, survey the field for childhood needs, and plan for future work. To the children themselves, the day represents recognition of their achievements in becoming strong happy citizens. And they strive to reach the standards and requirements to become a Blue Ribbon child. Every child that reaches the following requirements will receive the Blue Ribbon at the May Day celebration:

The Pre-School and Blue Ribbon Health Standards Adopted by the Fulton County Health Department

The standards for four to six years are:

I. Physical findings: normal weight for height and age; good posture; abdomen not protruding and shoulder blades flat; teeth free from decay or other defects; normal throat or defects corrected.

II. Immunization: Vaccination against smallpox; toxin-antitoxin given to prevent diphtheria.

III. Habits: Drink one quart of milk every day; eat a green leafy vegetable very every day; eat no sweets; eat day; eat fresh or stewed fruits no pork other than crisp breakfast bacon; eat meat not more than once a day; do not drink tea, coffee, soft drinks, nor eat fried and highly seasoned foods; eat nothing but milk between meals; drink at least four glasses of water every day; go to bed not later than seven p. m.; sleep with windows open; at least one and one-half hours' rest during the day; at least three baths weekly; wash hands before eating after going to the toilet; brush teeth twice daily, after breakfast and before going to bed; have a natural elimination of waste from body every morning; play and exercise short of over-fatigue.

Standards for children six years and over are:

I. Physical findings: normal weight for height and age; good posture; teeth free from decay or other defects; normal throat or defects corrected; normal eye sight or defects corrected.

II. Immunization: Vaccinated against smallpox, if under ten years of age, give toxin-antitoxin to prevent diphtheria.

III. Capable of passing grade in school.

IV. Health habits: same as standards for four to six years except that bedtime for those under twelve years of age may be eight p. m., and those over twelve years not later than nine p. m. One hour rest period in a day required, and six glasses of water should be drunk daily.

Every child in Fulton county wants to be a Blue Ribbon child and receive the beautiful Blue Ribbon, lettered in gold, which will be presented at ceremonies being planned for our May Day celebration. The first day of May is celebrated every year throughout the United States as Child Health Day.

BASEBALL SEASON OPENS AT FULTON

The baseball lid was pried off last Sunday at the fair grounds. The lid was pried off by the Gadsden ball team. The Fulton team helped them.

The game was too one-sided to cause any enthusiasm. There were hits that should have been easy outs, and runs scored that should never have crossed the plate. The final score was Gadsden 12, Fulton 3. Raines, pitching for Gadsden, struck out ten of the Fulton team and allowed three of them free tickets to first base, two of which grew into runs. Ruskin, pitching for Fulton, struck out three Gadsden batters and walked one and hit one with a pitched ball. Neither of these free tickets were coined into runs.

The Gadsden team outshone the Fulton team. They have a very good infield, while their pitcher had the home team under his control all the time. With the exception of two fly hits caught by the center fielder, all the put outs and assists were infield chances. Fulton got five hits, one of which was a two-base hit by Forrest. Gadsden got twelve hits, including one two-bagger, two three-baggers and one home run. They also scored a home run on Forrest's error in the sixth inning. Ruskin pitched a good game for Fulton and with better support would have fared better, there being seven errors made behind him and Webb, who relieved him in the sixth inning. The outstanding player on the Fulton team was Pedro Hawkins, who filled in at short. He had seven chances, all hard ones, and got away with five of them, making two errors in the eighth inning, which developed into scores. At the bat he fanned three times, but came through with a hard drive to right field which got away from the fielder and Hawkins stretched it into three bases. He was quick to take advantage of the other fellow's mistake which goes to make a good ball player. I predict he will develop into a very fast man, but will have to have the proper coaching.

The Fulton team will have to plug up some bad holes in the team if they wish to get anywhere this season.

There is some talk of forming a "Hard Roads League," which will include Dyersburg, Union City, Midway, Wickliffe, Hickman and Fulton. The teams to be composed of all home boys, none of which shall receive any salary. They propose playing Sunday games and holidays and should create quite a lot of interest.

A genuine old-timer is the Fulton man who can remember when he often had to pick the moss from his teeth after having taken a drink from the dipper of the old town pump.

A successful man is one who can, after having taken two hours for lunch, decide he won't go back to work until the next day.

Spring Activities

Negro Hanged In Union City

George Smith, 22, a negro brute, was hanged in the court house yard at Union City, Saturday afternoon by a mob composed of several hundred citizens.

About 1:30 o'clock Saturday morning the negro attempted to criminally assault a prominent young white girl in that city after gaining entrance to her room through a window. He clutched her by the neck, but she frantically fought the brute until he released his hold so she could scream, attracting her parents in an adjoining room. The negro jumped out of the window and ran away.

Officers were at once notified and bloodhounds were quickly brought to Union City from the state penitentiary. They took up the trail at once and the negro was captured with his clothes on in bed at his home. He was identified by fresh scratches on his face inflicted during the frantic fight with his victim, also by fresh paint on his clothes obtained when he attempted to enter another home during the night.

The negro was lodged in jail, but citizens with sledge hammers broke in, overpowering the sheriff and deputies, and quickly rid the community of a desperate brute.

INDICT NEGRO ATTACKERS

Fulton Suspects to Face Murder Charge at Elizabethtown.

Elizabethtown, Ky., April 20.—Three negroes, two of whom are wanted in Fulton county, Ky., and East St. Louis, Ill., for robberies and attacks on women, were indicted here today charged with the murder of Thomas Tillery, a farmer.

Tillery was shot to death at his home near here, April 8, when he refused the trio's demand for his automobile after they had committed a series of robberies in Louisville and along the Dixie Highway and had been forced to abandon the machine they had used.

Charles Rodgers, 22, and Walter Holmes, 30, have been identified as the pair who robbed two homes in Fulton county, March 11, and attacked three women, then attacked three women in East St. Louis in a similar series of robberies of homes in one night. Walter Dewberry, 22, caught with Holmes and Rogers, near here, is believed to have joined them after the East St. Louis crimes. Seventeen witnesses in all identified Rodgers and Holmes as being the men wanted for the attacks on women.

40-Year Enginemen Honored At Banquet In Memphis

Memphis, Tenn., April 21.—Three members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers who have been continuously in service of the Illinois Central Railroad or its predecessors for 40 years were presented with badges denoting that fact at a banquet given last night at Hotel Claridge. The banquet and presentation ceremony was sponsored by Lodge No. 762, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which is made up of engineers employed on the Illinois Central System.

More than 200 members of the several B. of L. E. lodges in Memphis, their wives and daughters and invited guests assembled at the Claridge for the banquet. C. W. Miller presided and Clifford Davis, vice mayor and former employee of the Illinois Central, made the opening address.

The three men receiving the 40-year badges were Carey W. Jones, engineer on the Memphis Division of the Y. & M. V.; Joe McCann, engineer in passenger service between Memphis and Paducah, and J. W. Shepherd, who formerly was traveling engineer and is now foreman at Fulton, Ky.

The badges are given only to those who have had continuous membership in the organization with lapse of dues, withdrawal or transfer. Included among the guests were five 40-year men from Louisville, Ky., and Charles Pearce, general chairman of the B. of L. E., with headquarters in Chicago. The men receiving the badges last night were formerly active engineers on the C. & O. Railroad before that line was bought by the Illinois Central in 1896 and made a part of the system.

DEMOCRATS VOTE AGAINST PRIMARY

"Conventionites" Have Added Strength to Stand

Louisville, Ky.—Ranks of the Democratic state central executive committee who favored a convention to nominate the party's ticket held firm Monday, collected seven more votes to fortify their position and defeated 32 to 14 a motion to rescind the committee's action February 20, when a convention was voted 27 to 22.

The vote followed a tumultuous two hour committee session, in which speakers for the convention and primary were cheered and applauded, or booed and hissed, according to the sentiment of their hearers. The meeting was attended by 500 enthusiastic partisans.

The meeting was called by Judge Charles A. Hardin, Harrodsburg, chairman who with Vigo Barnes, Hopkinsville, waged a losing fight for a primary.

Announcement of the vote was greeted by a demonstration, but it was not so uproarious as many that followed remarks of speakers for both sides. The room was cleared after the primary-convention vote, and the committee went into executive session to consider plans to resist a suit filed in Franklin circuit court to prevent convention nominations on the ground they are unconstitutional.

Henry Ford should go down in history as the man responsible for the abolition of the hitching post.

This is the season of the year when the average Fulton housewife thinks things would look better if the bed was where the dresser is now.

Brieflets

When the meek inherit the earth, as the Good Book says they will, we suppose the unmeek will immediately have an inheritance law passed putting a 100 percent tax on them.

Our idea of a model wife is the Fulton woman who isn't afraid it will strain her eyes to look for the god in her husband, or ruin her voice to sing his praises occasionally.

It's a bad idea to meddle with a hornet, or a man who is minding his own business.

Music may have charms to soothe the savage beast, but not when it comes from a neighbor's radio running long after midnight.

We have also reached the point where the hand that once rocked the cradle now rocks the steering wheel.

Any Fulton man can be a good gardener if he can find a way to keep his back from wearing out as quick as his enthusiasm does.

To get a reputation for wisdom, say nothing when you don't know very little when you do.

The only difference between a movie plot and a garden plot is that in the movie plot you can usually tell what is going to come up.

It isn't always safe to judge a Fulton man by the company he keeps. It might be his wife's folks.

The question of the hour seems to be not so much "to tax or not to tax?" as where and what to tax.

The only time it doesn't pay to advertise is when you advertise your ignorance.

Paris says that shiny cloth is fashionable this spring. Judging by the seat of some Fulton men's trousers they are right in style.

You never heard of a Fulton woman losing any sleep because she is two-faced, but a double chin will often keep her worrying all night.

CAP AND BELLS

FOR ALL OCCASIONS

The turn was over, and the orchestra was silent for a while.
"I say," said the conductor, leaning down to speak to his first violin, "what ever key were you playing in?"
"Skeleton key," returned the violinist readily enough.
"Skeleton key?" echoed the conductor. "What ever do you mean?"
"Fits anything," was the reply.

Right!

He--You're so good at conundrums--try this.

EVERYWHERE you go you hear reports of the good performance and reliability of the Ford.

One owner writes—"The Ford Tudor Sedan I am driving has covered 59,300 miles through all kinds of weather. It is still giving perfect satisfaction."

Another owner describes a trip of 3217 miles in 95 hours over bad roads and through heavy rain and sleet in the mountains. "Throughout the entire trip," he writes, "the Ford performed excellently and no mechanical trouble of any kind was experienced. The shatter-proof glass undoubtedly saved us from serious injury when a prairie chicken struck the windshield while we were traveling at 65 miles an hour."

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the Ford. Then, from your own personal experience, you will know that it brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

THE GOVERNMENT HELPS

THE United States Government is cooperating with the National Canners Association to inform the public more fully about the contents of containers of canned foods. It is doing this by amendment to the Food and Drug Act which became a law on July 8 of last year. This amendment authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to establish definite standards for all canned food products except meat and meat foods which are subject to the meat inspection act, and canned milk—and to promulgate a form of label designation for foods which fall below the standards which he set.

Peaches, Pears and Peas

The first standards set by the Secretary of Agriculture under this new law were for peaches, pears and peas and they go into effect on May eighteenth. Beginning on that date all canned peaches, pears and peas, coming within the jurisdiction of the amendment, and falling below these standards of quality will be required to be designated on their labels as "Below U. S. Standard—Low Quality But Not Illegal."

This statement will be displayed prominently on the container below the name of the article, and will be of immeasurable help to the housewife by informing her that the canned food, while substantial and edible, even though not so palatable or so attractive as a standard product.

No Safeguard Sacrificed

All canned foods must conform to the requirements of the Federal Food and Drug Act, the purpose of this new labeling is simply to enable the housewife to differentiate at a glance between the best grades and those which are not so good. Commenting upon this fact, Dr. P. B. Dunbar, Assistant Chief of the Federal Food and Drug Administration, recently said:

"It is not the Administration's conception of the purpose of Congress that the labeling for substandard foods is intended to stigmatize unduly the article to which it is applied. The amendment makes it very clear that its purpose is to let the consumer know what goods are below standard, but it is our conception that a substandard product is wholesome and edible. If the product were unwholesome or inedible, its distribution would be illegal under the terms of the national pure food laws."

The Standards Set

The standards for these three products, stripped of technicalities, are as follows:

Canned peaches are to be considered the normally flavored and normally colored canned food consisting of the normal—and uniform sized, tender, unbroken halves of the fruit of the peach tree and sugar solution. There are also proper technical specifications as to the relative weights of the fruit and water in the container, and the consistency of the syrup.

Canned pears are considered by the new standard to be normally flavored and normally colored canned food consisting of normal sized, tender, unbroken, peeled halves of the fruit of the pear tree, from which the calyx and seed cells have been removed, with or without removal of the internal stem, and sugar solution. Specifications as to the relative weights of the fruit and water in the container and the consistency of the syrup are included in this standard, too.

Canned peas, under the new standard, are the normally flavored and normally colored canned food consisting of the tender, immature, unbroken seed of the common or garden pea (Pisum sativum), with or without seasoning (sugar-salt), and with added potable water in such proportion that when the contents of the container are poured out and returned to the container, standing on a level surface, and the peas leveled with a spoon without downward pressure, the liquor is not above the upper level of the peas.

Full Cans Assured

The new standards also provide for the proper filling of all cans. Their requirements for fill of container state that "canned foods shall be considered as standard fill if the entire contents occupy 99 per cent or more of the volume of the closed container. Canned foods which fall below the foregoing standard of fill of container shall bear the name of the article immediately preceded, wherever such name appears, by the words 'slack filled' in letters of at least equal size and prominence."

Thus, under these new regulations, the housewife is assured that she will not only know that canned foods she buys are above or below these definite standards, but that she will get all of the food she pays for in every can.

A short stretch of pavement, connecting two highways, is now being laid on State Line street alongside the Browder Mill, and this will be a great convenience to the traveling public, as well as to the general public. A slab, with an average width of thirty feet, is being laid from the Church street corner to the Illinois Central railroad, where it will join with Lake street paving. This short stretch will connect Highways 45 and 51. The work is being done by W. M. Hill and Sons, and is being paid for by the property owners in that section.

BELOVED WOMAN PASSES AWAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Joan Hicks Stewart, 71, were held Monday at Mt. Zion church, conducted by the Rev. L. E. McCoy and Rev. N. W. Lee. Interment followed in Wesley cemetery.

Mrs. Stewart passed away Sunday at her home near Fulton. She was a devout Christian woman, loved and esteemed by a large circle of friends, who sincerely sympathize with the bereaved.

Besides her sons, she is survived by five grand-children, one sister, Mrs. Alice Nance and one brother, Bob Hicks.

CHEESE AND BUTTER SCHOOL

Part of a "Live at Home" program consists of using dairy products to advantage Mrs. Paul Williams, Food Leader from Crutchfield, and Miss Alda Hanning, Home Agent, learned at the District Training School, held at Mayfield, April 15, for Food Leaders and Home Agents, by Miss Florence Imlay, Food Specialist and Dairy Products Specialist from the University of Kentucky.

The importance of milk and milk products from a food value standpoint was stressed. Demonstrations were given on proper methods of making butter and cottage cheese by the dairy specialist and about a dozen new ways of using cottage cheese in sandwiches and salads and new milk drinks was given by Miss Imlay. A Training School for Food Leaders and other members of Homemakers Clubs who can come on time and stay for the whole demonstration will be held at Fulton, April 28th, and at Hickman, April 30, at 10:00 a. m.

MAKING FARM RELIEF

After all, it may remain for the farmers of the U. S. to make their own relief. From way up in Alberta, Canada, comes a report to the effect that rural residents of that province are solving their problems in their own way. Since it is a matter of vital interest to everyone around Fulton a few details in connection with their plan are not out of place at this time.

Realizing their wheat is not apt to be a commodity much sought after by Europe, and that it may be a long time before the price climbs back above the dollar mark, they have turned their attention to other activities. Dairying is said to be proving profitable in hundreds of cases, while on other farms poultry raising is being turned to. Even this early in the experiment success seems assured.

Cows and chickens are good things to have about the farm at all times. When grain prices are low the opportunity is especially good. More and more, since the war, the policy of putting all of one's eggs in one basket has been demonstrated to be bad. Variety usually pays better than a single crop or two, for the good reason that adverse weather conditions or poor markets are not likely to affect all crops and thus prevent the making of profits.

Peas Save Expense

PEAS are one of the most popular of vegetables, and they are now available everywhere all year around in cans. They are not only popular, but inexpensive. Here is a dish of meat and peas, for instance, which will serve four people and which can be had most anywhere at a cost of less than fifty cents.

Frankfurters with Parsley Peas: Heat the contents of an 11-ounce can of peas for about three minutes, drain, add one tablespoon butter, and season with salt and pepper to taste. Pour into a shallow baking dish. Grill or fry eight frankfurters (one pound), and place on top of the peas like the spokes of a wheel. Sprinkle with two tablespoons parsley, and reheat in the oven a few minutes. And here is a dish of peas alone which will serve four people at a cost of not more than twelve cents.

Pea Salads

Don't forget, too, that canned peas are "excellent in salads and all ready to combine with the other ingredients. Try this: Potato and Pea Salad: Marinate the peas from a No. 2 can and two cups diced boiled potatoes in French dressing thoroughly. Add one-half cup diced pickled beets and one tablespoon chopped onion, and moisten with mayonnaise. Serve in lettuce nests. Serves eight.

POULTRY

(By J. T. Watkins)

We don't very often reprint articles written by other scribes in this column, but the following article written by Bruce W. Ulsh, a poultry magazine devoted to all buff chickens. This article substantiates what I wrote several weeks ago, and is reprinted with his permission. It is too good not to pass it along:

Buy Chicks—Good Prices Assured

There will be money in Poultry in 1931. Official reports show that farm flocks have been reduced 32 percent or almost one-third. Feed sales meanwhile have dropped from 32 percent in the Central West to 54 percent in the Inter-Mountain States. Eggs hatching in hatcheries the first two weeks in April are but 25 to 50 percent of average hatches for these two weeks, when hatchery production should reach its peak. Eggs going into incubation during the same period in hatcheries is estimated at 6,000,000—considerably below other years, while chick orders for the same time are 3,000,000.

Meanwhile, 1931 prices of live poultry, broilers and eggs reflect the rapid reductions in poultry flocks. On March 18, 1931, colored fowls were only 1 cent lower than March 19, 1930—24 to 27 cents compared with 27 to 28 cents last year. Leghorn fowls were strong and coming up, though still 4 cents off 1930. Broilers, which all winter have been bringing 5 to 8 cents more per pound than one year ago, still compare up even in 1930. Capons bring more, turkeys the same, ducks even.

"Golden Buffs" comes to you earlier this month to impress you and your friends to—

"Buy chicks; buy hatching eggs. Now! This is the year to go back into the chicken business, when everybody is going out of it."

Poultry will make you money. Get out your equipment; clean up the brooder house; heat up the brooder, and start a flock of chicks. Brooding days are here at last. Spring has arrived!

In buying, purchase quality. Poor chicks may have paid in the past but those were unusual days when anything would sell and any kind of eggs were in demand.

With farm flocks reduced a third now is the time to start a breeding flock. Buy the best you can afford.

Compare the depression along other lines of farm and garden products, and poultry holds out certain promising prospects. There is nothing on the farm and the idle man's suburban home which offers anything like so good an opportunity as chickens right now.

This month's issue is speeded up to bring our readers these facts—not for the purpose of selling poultry but to help you make money. Order yourself chicks or eggs at once. Consult the ads; buy the best quality you can afford, and remember, Quality Only Pays, because the market is willing to pay a little more for quality.

Heat up that old brooder stove, and get going. Try even just one hatch of chicks, and see if "Golden Buffs" hasn't given you a good inside tip on how to make money.

We will stake our reputation on it—buy chicks—buy from our advertisers. Write today.

You can get a good start by getting baby chicks from the Fulton Hatchery in lots of 25, 50, 100 or as many as you may desire. Place your order in as soon as you can. Mr. Drew tells me he don't know when he will close down the machines, but I will bet he runs until the middle of June anyway.

Politicians should be thankful to Columbus for having discovered America, because he made it possible for them to do to it what they have done.

HIGH RECORD IN TESTING CATTLE

Campaign to Eradicate Tuberculosis Goes On.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A new high record in the tuberculosis testing of cattle is revealed in a report just made by public by the United States Department of Agriculture which shows that in October 1,320,885 cattle were tested by federal, state and county veterinarians working co-operatively. In October 3,416 more cattle were tested than in May of last year when the testing reached its previous high total in the co-operative campaign to eradicate tuberculosis, says Dr. A. E. Wight, in charge of bovine tuberculosis eradication for the United States Department of Agriculture. It is noteworthy that the reactors in October were 3,769 fewer than the reactors removed in May.

The high record for October was the result largely of active work in the states of Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and New York, in each of which more than 100,000 cattle were tested. The highest number of tests, 158,132, was made in Wisconsin. In Iowa and Illinois there were 133,883 and 133,645 respectively. Slightly more than 1.4 per cent of the total cattle tested in all states during October were classed as reactors, signifying infection with tuberculosis.

Three states—North Carolina, Maine and Michigan—have completed the tuberculosis testing of all cattle, and the extent of the disease in these states is now materially less than half of 1 per cent of the cattle remaining. Areas in which the numbers of tuberculous cattle does not exceed this small percentage are classified by the United States Department of Agriculture as "modified-accredited areas." A total of 1,973 counties, or more than one-third of the counties in the country, have virtually eradicated bovine tuberculosis. Approximately 400 additional counties are actively engaged in eradication of the disease.

A new statistical summary of the tuberculosis eradication work with respect to cattle, swine and poultry has just been issued by the department.

Further Proof of Value of Improved Dairy Sires

The bull is half the herd—and then some. Here is an illustration from Indiana to prove the super-influence of a herd sire in influencing the production of his daughters. An Indiana dairymen purchased a registered Holstein cow and four of her daughters. There had been two bulls in service in the herd from which the purchase was made and it happened that two of the daughters of the cow were from one bull and two from the other. The dam of the four had a mature record of 10,336 pounds of milk and 328 pounds of fat. One pair of her daughters averaged 6,835 pounds of milk and 195 pounds fat at maturity. The pair from the other sire averaged 13,140 pounds of milk and 411 pounds of fat. The first sire was worse than worthless. The last was a wonderful breeder. It is not known whether this great sire was available when his real merit was known through the production of his daughters or whether he had already gone to the block. The latter fate has too often overtaken sires of equal merit.

Utilizing By-Products in Economical Manner

Wisconsin farmers, in spite of the fact that prices of dairy products have been relatively low during the past year, are nevertheless feeling the agricultural depression less than the farmers of most other states, says the Wisconsin Agriculturist. For many years the efficient dairy cow has been the most consistent profit producer in the whole field of agriculture. The average Wisconsin farmer, however, could secure even greater profits if he would make the best possible use of his byproducts in the shape of skim milk, buttermilk and whey. These products have a higher feeding value for hogs and poultry than most people realize.

Balanced Ration

What is a balanced ration for a dairy cow and why is so much said about it nowadays? A balanced ration is simply one in which the amount of protein bears a certain ratio to the amount of carbohydrates and fats present. Protein is used by the dairy cow for building muscular tissue, blood, bone and the production of curd in milk. Carbohydrates are used by the cow to supply heat for her body and to furnish energy.

Drop in Milk Flow

Once a cow is permitted to make a drop in her milk production due to exposure out of doors or due to improper feeding for a few weeks, she cannot be brought back to her former production during that milking period. So even when weather is favorable, cows running in cornstalk fields and getting no other dry roughage, will decline in milk flow rapidly and soon become unprofitable. Cleaning up the stalk field is a job for horses who are not worked much.

Better Breakfasts

HOW often do you have fish for breakfast? Why not have it oftener? Fish is so easy now to get in cans, and cod fish balls, flakes and cakes and kippered herring are all time-honored breakfast dishes. But here is another dish, just tested by a dietitian, which is delicious and easy to make, and gives your "better breakfast" a different tang. But, first, here's the whole menu so that you will know what kind of a breakfast to serve it with:

Sliced Bananas
Ready to Eat Cereal With Top Milk or Cream
Breakfast Mackerel
Toasted Holland Rusks
Hot Beverage

You know how to prepare all these things, except Breakfast

Mackerel, and here's the recipe for that:

Remove the contents of a 14-ounce can of fresh mackerel in large pieces and lay in a shallow pan. Dust with paprika and cover with strips of bacon. Bake in a hot oven until the bacon is crisp. Serve with wedges of lemon. This recipe will serve four people.

For Good Coffee

Have good coffee for your hot beverage with this breakfast, and in order to be sure that it is good and fresh buy it in vacuum packed tins. Coffee packed that way can't deteriorate since it is sealed under oxygen, and more and more of the best coffees are packed in this manner, so you can have your choice of almost all the good brands.

HOW TO PRAY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 13:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Us to Pray.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Us to Pray.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—What Is True Prayer?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—Why Pray?

I. "Men Ought Always to Pray"

(v. 1).

Prayer is absolutely necessary to the spiritual life. It is to the spiritual life what breathing is to the physical life. Men ought to pray under every variety of circumstances—in times of sorrow and burdens for strength to endure, in times of joy and success for grace to behave aright. Prayer ought to be persisted in even when the answer is not immediately seen. "All men pray at times." To the Christian alone belongs faith-filled and persistent prayer.

II. The Urgent Prayer of a Widow

(vv. 2-8).

The picture here is of a helpless widow who was being cheated out of her property rights, coming to a godless judge for redress. Her only means of getting help was to prove the justice of her claim by her persistence.
Even this did not gain access to his heart for he feared not God nor regarded man. He complied with her request to get rid of her. The point here is not that God is like this unjust judge, that he can be teased into compliance, but rather the teaching is by contrast. If such action can be secured on the part of a godless judge by persistence, how much surer will the help of God be given to his elect who cry unto him day and night. The helpless widow pictures the church in this age suffering the deprivation of her rights.
It is not the church praying for vengeance upon her enemies, but suing for the possession of her rights by virtue of her covenant relation in Christ. The inheritance of the church will be actualized at the coming of Christ. This is why the truth concerning the coming of Christ is so vital to Christianity, and why so disastrous consequences follow the loss of this blessed hope. Every prayer offered by the church will surely be answered.
The apparent delay in the vindication of the church may dishearten some and cause others to mock (II Peter 3:4). Jesus' question should be a solemn warning against allowing apparent delay of the coming of the Lord to crowd out our praying. Though many may give up, we should be assured that genuine faith will abide and that the divine promise concerning the coming of Christ shall be fulfilled.

III. The Prayer of the Proud Phar- isee (vv. 9-12).

1. He took a striking attitude (v.
11).

The Jewish custom was to stand while praying, but the word "stood" implies the assumption of an osten-tationous position. He was self-righteous and trusted in himself.

2. He prayed with himself (vv.
11, 12).

He used the name of God, but it was really a soliloquy. He pretended to be thanking God when he was really complimenting himself—rehearsing his own goodness. His whole thought centered in himself. He congratulated himself for his morality (v. 11). He thanked God that he was not as other men are, such as extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as the publican who was standing afar off. One who has been kept from these gross sins ought to be grateful to God but should not set himself above his fellow men because of it. He congratulated himself for his religious merits (v. 12).
He fasted twice a week and gave tithes of all he possessed. He thus informed God that he did more than what was required, implying that God was under obligation to him.

IV. The Prayer of the Humble Pub- lican (v. 13).

In contrast with this supposed saint stood the publican, whose shame kept him from even looking up to heaven beating upon his breast as a sign of anguish of soul and crying out to God to be merciful to him, a sinner.

V. Christ's Testimony (v. 14).

Christ declared that the publican went away justified rather than the Pharisee. The one great and urgent need on the part of men is the confession of sin and a willingness to cry unto God for mercy.

The Ear of God

A friend of any kind and to any extent or degree is something in this cold and lonely world, but to have a friend who has the ear of God, and who fills God's ear from time to time with our names and our cause, Oh, who shall find such a friend in me!—Alexander Whyte.

Trusting in God

Surely it is a poor creed that will only allow us to trust in God for our selves.—George MacDonald.

Community Building

Excellent Results of Child Health Program

A five-year health program in the elementary schools of Little Rock, Ark., has built up a health consciousness in the entire community, not only in the city, but in the county and state as well. Martha C. Allis relates in a description of this work in Hygeia Magazine.

In the primary grades the health teaching is handled by the teacher of the grade. In the fourth, fifth and sixth there is a health teacher for the group. At the beginning of each term, the nurse, teacher and health director inspect and score the children for defects and health habits and then they co-operate in efforts to have corrections made. The aim of the program is twofold: teaching and getting corrections made, but it is intended that the teaching shall so interest the child that he will get corrections made. Miss Allis points out:

That the Little Rock program has achieved this result is shown by the fact that every child knows his defect or failing and works hard to get rid of it. Both teachers and children work like beavers to get as many perfect children as possible in each room. The five-year report shows that 18,553 children had dental corrections; 2,500, tonsil and adenoid operations; 2,171, eyes corrected and 5,327, other corrections.

The health program has been carried out in sixteen white and seven colored schools, reaching approximately 7,000 white and 3,000 colored children. Although there are not as many corrections of defects among negro children, the work has been successful among them.

Easy to Remodel Home by System of Changes

Modernizing the home does not necessarily mean remodeling the entire dwelling. Many home owners have adopted the plan of remodeling or re-furbishing one room each year. Others start modernizing their homes first by making the changes most needed and then doing less vital alteration work later.

Perhaps the first year the front porch can be rebuilt, the second year the attic can be made into an extra room or two, the third year new floors can be laid in the first-floor rooms and so on until the dwelling has been brought up to date.

By spreading the cost of improvements over a period of time many householders have been able to pay for modernizing operations out of income. In this manner many old homes have been gradually improved until they compare favorably with many newer structures without putting the owner to great immediate expense.

Fighting City Dirt

A professor at the University of Illinois college of medicine thinks that the dust, smoke and grime of the modern city makes this the dirtiest age of history and that the time will come when the people will abhor these nuisances, which he calls atrocities. A fair degree of abhorrence already exists. It has not waited for the water and other power development and segregation of industries, which the professor sees as a condition of its coming. But couldn't the professor tell the public how its objection to the uncleanliness in cities could get it some where without waiting for developments that will be the work of generations? In short, how the cities are to curb their smoke nuisances in the winter months?—Kansas City Star.

Vines for Every Purpose

Vines can be grown anywhere if they are planted properly and selected according to their natural habits and inclinations. There are varieties for every purpose—annual and perennial, hardy and tender, shade-loving and sun-seeking, evergreen and deciduous. Some are noted for their lovely blossoms; others for their colorful fruits and berries. Whether you desire a dense screen, a tall climber or a ground cover, you will find a vine that will exactly serve your purpose. Even apartment dwellers may know the charm of Mother Nature's graceful draperies—the ever-popular ivy and wandering Jew will thrive in window boxes or pots.

Health Service

That national health is a dollars and cents asset to the country and that absence of disease in a city not only makes it a more desirable place in which to live, but also brings added citizens and increased industry to it, were two of the points made in an address on "Public Health Service: A Sound Investment," by Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life, before the American Public Health association at Fort Worth, Texas.

Community Helps

Vigorous action by individual and local groups should be directed to: Cleaning objectionable things off the roadsides, in and on the fringes of our villages, planning and zoning for the protection of the roadsides; cleaning up and patrolling roadsides in the rural districts, landscaping and planting areas which may be improved.

Dollars and Doughnuts

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

POLLY ANDREWS sat at her desk in the room she was pleased to call her "office" with her chin cupped in her two slim hands. She was thinking deeply.

Except for the fact that her glance was turned inward rather than outward she could see through the glass doors eight empty gray enameled tables, flanked with their chairs, on the center of each table a spotless dolly with yellow daffodils in a crystal vase.

So would the scene remain all day. Charming—and unoccupied. Oh, possibly one or two old customers would drop in for doughnuts and coffee. But there would be no steady stream of patrons 1-2-3-4-5, in profits and going away to advertise.

The assistant superintendent of the contracting company which was engineering the job, coming in one day with Peter Drake, one of the young surveyors, had advised her to move her quarters.

"Why, I couldn't do that!" Polly had exclaimed. "The investment would be too great. Because this is my home, I can figure my rental as very little."

He was a nice young fellow, the assistant superintendent. Almost as nice as Peter Drake who had drummed up a lot of trade for her among the men. John Cary his name was and she remembered how he had leaned across the little candy counter. "Where you made your mistake," he said gravely, "was in the sign you hung out."

"What do you mean?" she had queried blankly.

"It should have been 'Ye Doughnutte Shoppe.' Change it to that and you'll see what will happen."

Recalling the instance, she smiled. If she could only put up a sign over the main road so alluring that cars would read it, stop, and detour around!

But what an unusual sign that would have to be!

Suddenly she grinned. "It can't do any harm," she said to herself. "I'm at the last ditch anyhow." Dimpling, she rose, went over to the telephone and called up a sign painter.

Four months later, John Cary driving his roadster along the new road at a mean forty-five, suddenly put on his brakes. "My eyesight must have deceived me, but I am going to find out." And he backed to the sign he had just passed.

DOUGHNUTS

ONE DOLLAR EACH

"Can it be?" he mused, "that our friend Polly has found a recipe for making doughnuts worth that? I shall have to find out."

If a dozen cars were already parked before the old slope-roofed house which Cary noticed had been freshly painted with a cunning green lattice over the doorway that matched the blinds. The place advertised prosperity.

Then he saw Polly coming toward him, the same winsome Polly, yet with a new little air about her. An air of success.

"How do you do?" she said cordially and held out her hand. He seemed like a very old friend because he had known her in the days of her discouragement.

"Tell me about it," he begged presently.

Polly beckoned to her assistant. "Mr. Cary will have the usual service," she said.

When the white-napkin tray was set before him, he looked at it in amazement. Two dainty sandwiches, a cup of coffee, relish, a generous slice of cake and—the inevitable doughnut in the very center of the tray!

"Exactly!" said Polly. "The rest is thrown in with the doughnut. It is all a matter of psychology. I catch 'em by shocking 'em. They are curious to see who could possibly have the nerve to charge a dollar for a doughnut and figure they'll be only stung once. Then, they're so delighted at the way they've been fooled, they come again and again and bring their friends. And I'm getting a dollar for the same stuff that I couldn't get fifty cents for before!"

Cary regarded her with admiration. "You and I," he said, "ought to start a chain of Doughnut-for-a-Dollar Shops on the cross country routes of travel. It's a great idea. Do you know," he went on thoughtfully, "I've thought a great deal about you since the days we used to drop in while the road construction was on. May I—may I come to see you again?"

"Of course," said Polly. "We welcome repeaters, you know." Then she smiled mischievously. "Any day but next Thursday."

Cary looked puzzled. "Next Thursday?" he asked.

Polly smiled gently. "That is the day Peter Drake and I are to be married," she said.

Indians Like Movies, Radio

Peasants of India have taken to the movies and the radio. They especially delight in acting for the films which are made and afterwards shown by traveling exhibitors in the villages with a view to instructing their fellows in better modes of life. The peasants call the loud speaker "the iron voice" and admire it because it does not contract the septic throat, usually the lot of the human being who lectures in a Punjab village.

Canned Foods Economy

THERE has never been a time when high grade canned foods were so cheap as now, and there has never been a time when they were as good as they are today. Year after year the research facilities of the industry itself and of many great scientists in big universities have been utilized to improve both the products and the methods by which they are canned.

Why not capitalize these facts this winter when incomes are apt to be slim and the cost of food a factor to be considered with care? If you can buy canned foods, with no waste, cheap, why buy foods that are far less nourishing for the same amount of money spent and which will provide you with many fewer meals?

Vegetables, fish and fruits in cans are all being offered this season at bargain sales.

A Varied Menu

There are so many ways to cook and combine canned foods that your daily menu made of them can be just as varied as if you bought your food supplies without regard to price. Here, for instance, is a succulent dish that will serve four people at a cost of little more than twenty-five cents:

Baked Beans with Bacon: Fry one-fourth pound of bacon, remove about half of the fat and to the rest add one sliced onion. Then sauté golden brown. Add the contents of a No. 2 can of beans, and heat thoroughly. Serve with the rashers of bacon on top.

Vital Foods

In these days when we are evaluating vitamins so ardently, it is valuable to know about inexpensive ways in which to obtain our full vitamin quota. Tomatoes have become famous for their vitamin content, and tomato juice is now fed to babies by the doctor's orders. Here are some delicious and inexpensive tomato dishes each of which will serve four people:

Macaroni and Tomato: Boil one-half package macaroni until tender, then drain. Simmer for ten minutes the contents of a No. 2 can of tomatoes with one-half bay leaf, two slices onion, one teaspoon sugar, and salt and pepper to taste. Remove bay leaf and add to the macaroni. Costs about 15 cents.

Clam and Tomato Broth: Combine half the contents of a No. 2 ounce can of tomato juice, and season to taste with salt and pepper, celery salt, tobacco sauce and one teaspoon lemon juice. Heat to boiling. Costs about 25 cents.

Steamed Tomatoes and Celery: Combine the contents of a No. 2 can of tomatoes with one-half cup diced, cooked celery, salt, pepper, one tablespoon butter and one teaspoon sugar. Simmer gently for a few minutes. Costs about 17 cents.

Baked Tomatoes and Peppers: Shred one green pepper and place with the contents of a No. 2 can of tomatoes and one teaspoon salt and a few grains of pepper in a buttered baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven until peppers are tender. Add one tablespoon of butter and serve. Costs about twenty cents.
