Democrats Will Pick State Ticket On May 12th

Convention to Be Medium of Choosing Candidates.

WELLS FOR GOVERNOR

Primary Advocates Lose Again as Committee Agrees to Convention Method.

Louisville, Ky., April 25.—Kentucky Democrats will nominate their state ticket at a convention to be held in Lexington May 12. That was finally decided upon at a meeting of the Democratic State Central Executive Committee in Louisville, this week, which was convened to reconsider its previous action in declaring for a convention instead of a primary.

Significant is the fact that after two months of agitation, the state committee ratified its previous action by a vote of 32 to 15 in favor of the convention method of naming the party candidate for governor and other state offices, while at the February 2nd meeting the vote was 25 to 22.

Admittedly the meeting of the state committee was dominated by the supporters of Judge Ruby Laffoon of Madisonville, one of the West Kentucky aspirants for the nomination for governor, who was picked by a group when their original choice, Sen. Ben Williamson, of Ashland, declined to become a candidate for governor. Judge Laffoon at first favored a primary, but after a convention was called he held it unwise for the state committee to change the method of making the nominations.

West Kentucky will still have another entry in the Democratic gubernatorial stakes. Judge Rainey T. Wells, of Murray, has entered the lists. Judge Wells, a former member of the state tax commission, is now president of the Murray State Teachers College and Normal School. He has long been active in and identified with West Kentucky politics.

His entry makes the ninth in the race for governor on the Democratic side.

Besides Judge Laffoon as now made up the Democratic gubernatorial entry list includes Lieut. Gov. James Breathitt, Jr., of Hopkinsville; former Congressman Rep. S. Ware, of Covington; Rep. W. B. Ardery, of Paris; Congressman Ralph W. Gilbert, of Shelbyville; State Auditor Clell Coleman, of Harrodsburg; Judge W. R. Shackelford, of Richmond; and Congressman A. J. May, of Prestonsburg. Mr. Ardery opened campaign headquarters in Louisville, this week, to further his fight for delegates to the state convention.

All sorts of rumors are afloat of slates, trades and combinations, and it is frankly conceded by many of the Democratic leaders that the plan of nominating a state ticket by convention for the first time in thirty-one years is fraught with potential danger to the party interests and the success of the nominees at the November election.

Animosity Breaks.

The present situation further exemplifies that "politics make strange bedfellows," for leaders who have been fighting each other consistently for more than a score of years may now be found in the same political huddle. While the race track interests are disclaiming any fight on Breathitt, most of the politicians identified with the racing group are supporting the candidacy of Laffoon, and long-time members of the Beckham faction have gone over to the side they have bitterly fought for many years, and vice versa.

The storm aroused over the method of making the state ticket nominations is expected to arouse intense interest in the mass conventions to be held in each county on May 9. It is freely predicted that the mass conventions to select the delegates to the state convention will be the largest in point of attendance in Kentucky's political annals. It will be the first time that women will participate in such gatherings and enough has been shown to demonstrate that the women will not be absent when the county conventions are held. Their presence, too, is expected to have a deterring influence on any rough tactics that long have been associated with such political gatherings.

COURT UPHOLDS THE VALIDITY OF DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Plea For Mandatory Injunction to Prevent Lexington Meet Denied

Frankfort, Ky., April 27.—Circuit Judge Thomas B. McGregor today sustained the demurrer of the Democratic state central executive committee to the petition of four Christian county Democrats attacking the constitutionality of the state's optional primary law. Judge McGregor upheld the validity of the committee's action in calling a state convention at Lexington May 12 and denied the plaintiff's plea for a mandatory injunction.

Pewitt Home Destroyed By Fire.

The one story frame dwelling, corner Fourth and Eddings, owned by Bert Milner and occupied by Raymond Pewitt and family, was destroyed by fire Wednesday morning. The furnishings were removed from the burning structure, damaged and water soaked. The dwelling and furniture was insured by Fall & Fall.

The fire department should be congratulated on their splendid work in saving adjoining property and the quick work of extinguishing the fire. They were on the scene in seven minutes after the alarm was given.

Depositors Will Soon Get Dividend

Ben Sneeden, receiver of the closed First National Bank here, said at a meeting of depositors Tuesday night that he felt "reasonably sure that he could pay a 25 per cent dividend within the next 30 days to depositors." He said there is now a total of $32,352 on hand in the bank.

REVIVAL MEETING AT FIRST METHODIST

The revival meeting now in progress at the First Methodist church is well attended. Dr. Fred H. Peoples, of Jackson, Tenn., is doing the preaching. He is a fluent speaker and his messages are indeed inspirational. Ralph E. Johnson, of Nashville, is conducting the singing, which is greatly enjoyed by the large audiences.

Wells Announces For Governor

To the Democrats of Kentucky:

I make my announcement as a candidate for governor, subject to the action of the Democratic Party. In making this announcement for governor of Kentucky, I deem it unnecessary to present a lengthy discussion of any purposes or policies which I would intend to pursue as such official. I fully recognize that our party has sole authority to adopt its principles and platforms, and its nominees are assumed to be in accord therewith, and represent and earnestly support them. Any opinion I may have as to the administration of the state's affairs could be considered only as personal, in advance of our party's declaration.

In selecting their nominees, voters should have an opportunity to judge of the fitness of the aspirant for office to assume the responsibility and perform the required official duties. This knowledge can be obtained from an analysis of his experience as well as any announced statement.

In reaching this decision, I have not been guided solely by personal ambition or by a by personal ambition or by a political honor. My final decision has been reached by reason of earnest solicitations from many citizens throughout the state with unselfish purposes, and I deem, with the sole desire that I could render some efficient services to the Commonwealth, and with the hope that, if I should receive the confidence of my fellow citizens and undertake to assume the arduous duties devolving upon this office, I might be able to render some service with credit to myself, and some satisfaction to my fellow citizens, and real benefit to the state.

I believe that the state government should be economical, administered with due regard to the proper and necessary construction and maintenance of its public roads, penal and charitable institutions, public school system, and all institutions of higher learning. I believe that every official and employee of the commonwealth should render full-time and efficient service for the compensation received. The natural resources of this state are comparable to those of other states of this nation. With proper encouragement, sincere consideration, and fair treatment, the agricultural, business and industrial interests of Kentucky can be materially advanced for the benefit of all its citizens.

It shall be my purpose to undertake to co-ordinate the administrative offices of this commonwealth in a desire that every department and institution may, with the least expense, best serve the purposes for which they were established and maintained.

I shall conscientiously, earnestly, and diligently undertake to enforce all laws and lend my assistance to the judicial and legislative branches of the government in the discharge of their duties.

I believe that every citizen should give to his state a continuous, loyal, and patriotic support and the local and state officials should so administer the duties devolving upon them as to render the greatest service possible to the citizenship as a whole. In undertaking to have the opportunity of acting as governor of Kentucky, I pledge myself to serve to the best of my ability the interests of all its people.

Mrs. W. O. Shankle and Son, Wallace, Hurt When Car Hit By Truck

The Paducah Sun-Democrat says Mrs. W. O. Shankle is recuperating from injuries suffered when her automobile collided with a truck in that city.

Mrs. Shankle's car was thrown to the curb and she sustained serious injuries. Her son Wallace Shankle, 18, who was riding with her, was also painfully hurt.

Mrs. Shankle suffered bruises and a sprained back. Her head was also hurt when she was tossed against the top of the car.

The driver of the truck escaped injury.

Fulton friends hope for Mrs. Shankle's speedy recovery.

MUSICIANS TO OBSERVE MUSIC WEEK HERE MAY 3RD-8TH

Fulton's observance will take the form of choirs of the various churches having special programs Sunday, May 3rd.

The music department of the Woman's Club will sponsor programs each morning at the schools. Miss Eva McKendree is chairman of music week programs.

Music is perhaps the only force in the gamut of human emotions that meets all life on common ground, according to James A. Fitzpatrick, producer of Music Master films. The same music that brings peace to the souls of supermen will also bring charm to those in the lower walks of life, he continues.

Good music holds no argument, no creed and nothing that is in any way offensive to the human race. Part of Mr. Fitzpatrick's article is reprinted below:

"Other arts may surpass the understanding of the masses, but where is the heart so dumb that will not awake to the tune of 'My Old Kentucky Home'?" Or where is the soul so calloused that does not find a ray of hope in 'Lead Kindly Light' or 'Nearer My God to Thee'? The universality of music is one of the redeeming features of life. It unconsciously develops a better understanding between men.

"Auld Lang Syne" is said to be a Scotch tune, but its spirit is too big for Scotland alone—it is a world tune! 'Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms' may have been born in Ireland, but it outgrew that country long ago. Great music like great men, can not be confined to a birthplace!

"There are no commandments in music—nothing that says 'thou shalt not'—yet through its subtle power many a misdirected mind has been adjusted.

"Therefore, let us appreciate good music, and to the musicians who are given the power to render it, let us lose no opportunity to express our gratitude. It is a God-given gift, and should be respected and encouraged for the good it surely does in this old world-day world!

"The observance of music week is commendable and should do much to awaken interest in the furtherance of music along its many lines. Every music organization in the country should make an effort to arrange for special programs and special talks during this week."

Brieflets

A high hat may get you by in New York City, but in Fulton people insist on knowing what is under it.

Now that divorces may soon be obtained by mail in Utah more married women will be saying to their husbands, "For two cents I'd leave you."

A man in Washington City has been laughing steadily for 25 years. And yet congress isn't in session all the time.

Some Fulton parents argue that the main trouble with college training is that it postpones the youngster's training for four years.

One trouble with the world today is that there are too many crooks in politics and not enough cooks in the kitchens.

It is no use roasting the younger generation. The more you roast them the rawer they get.

Fulton would be a much nicer place to live in if some way could be found for heating a wife's cold supper with a husband's hot temper.

There are a lot of people in this country who think that good spirits can only be kept up by pouring bad ones down.

The women of Japan are said to be wild to get the vote. The women of this country were wild to get it, too, before they got it.

Any Fulton married man will tell you that the only thing that gets less results than honking for traffic to move on is yelling at the wife to hurry up.

The government could create jobs enough but the trouble is that most idle fellows want positions.

A statistician says there is one broom for every woman in the United States, but that does not mean that there is a woman for every broom.

As a general rule the Fulton man who insists on whispering to you hasn't very much to say that's worth listening to.

The modern girl may know the ropes, but they are not the kind you hang washing out on.

The only time a woman has no chance to change her mind is after she has started a parachute jump.

The good old days in Fulton were those when a girl didn't lose her complexion every time she cried.

One danger to which the modern girl will not expose herself is that of catching her fingers in a clothes-wringer.

PLANS MADE FOR NEXT SUNDAY

The first Sunday in May of each year is Go to Sunday School Day in Kentucky.

On this day, if no other, every man, woman, boy and girl should go to Sunday School. Sunday Schools build churches, and certainly not a person in Fulton who reads this article would want to live in Fulton, much less rear a family, if it were not for the influence of the churches, and it is through the Sunday School that leaders are trained for the carrying on of the church.

Make plans now to attend Sunday School next Sunday. If necessary, sacrifice some pleasure trip, a golf game, a little sleep or the funny papers, and let's have more people in Sunday School next Sunday than ever before.

Everybody think it, everybody talk it, everybody invite someone and everybody go.

The Urge to Live

By JOHN HAMLIN

THE dull clack of the shears matched the discouraged look in Dan Berry's eyes. He had shaped cardboard to fit the inner sole of his shoe on other mornings; but yesterday he had walked a hole in the thin sole of his second shoe. Two pieces of cardboard were needed now.

No money for a new pair, only a five-dollar bill remaining from his last commission check—enough to eat on till he made another sale—it ever. But he'd worked through his best flat of prospects. Few had bought—nobody else wanted the set of books he was offering.

Awful, a book agent's lot. "H—l, what's the use!" Dan Berry jammed the cardboard into place and worked his foot into the shoe.

"A ditch digger's more independent, makes better money."

But he couldn't dig ditches, couldn't get any kind of a job. No place open for a gray-headed man, with lines in his face and tired eyes. No use trying; there's no use striking out this morning.

Thank the Lord, nobody looked to him for support, friends avoided him of late. Nobody cared what happened—he didn't, either.

His landlady had gone out for the day. No trick to fasten down the window, tack a blanket over the door of his hall room, turn on the gas in the heater.

Dan Berry carefully tied the laces of his worn shoes, stood up and winced. The cardboard hurt the bottom of his feet—well, what of it?

He limped across to his unmade bed, picked up a heavy blanket. It would cover the door completely.

Half-way to the door, the zzzing of a bell sounded. The blanket dropped from his nerveless fingers.

Again the bell sent its metallic peal echoing through the house. There was nobody in but himself. He hesitated and for the third time the bell rang.

How often had he rung door bells, waited expectantly, hopefully; rung the second time, less expectantly; the third time all hope vanished. A wretched feeling—he preferred a curt dismissal to an unanswered door bell.

Berry hastily picked up the blanket, tossed it upon the bed and forgot to limp in hurrying to the front door.

From the hallway he saw the head and shoulders of a man through the glass of the door. The shoulders drooped wearily, gray hair showed above the collar; the hat was ill fitting.

When the knob turned in Berry's grasp, the man wheeled.

Berry caught sight of the brief case the man was carrying. An agent! Here's where he could pay off a hundred scores, enact the role of a dominant householder—heap insults upon this pestering peddler.

Directly he noted the man straightening his shoulders; smiling off the lines of dejection, forcing a spark of interest in tired, blue eyes.

"Good morning!"

Berry's acute ear caught the meant-to-be-cherry greeting; more than that, it was like an echo of his own voice when he was inwardly praying that here, at last, was somebody who'd sign on the dotted line.

Then, while still in this strange mental swirl, Berry suddenly became conscious of familiar words, phrases that he had learned by heart, repeated time and again, mostly under just such odds as this—himself standing outside the door, trying to melt cold resistance.

Curiosity swept away all antagonism. He was interested to learn how this agent put over his selling talk.

"Come in!" Berry flung the door wide.

The man's face lighted up in a way that brought a damnable lump into Berry's throat. "Sit down," he gruffed.

The man opened his brief case to the accompaniment of the stereotyped sales talk. Berry sat down beside the agent, scanning the familiar pages of the prospectus. He exclaimed over the fine illustrations, asked intelligent questions—heard the man clear up to the psychological point where he produced samples of bindings, took out a fountain pen and pushed the contract invitingly towards him.

"Five dollars down is all that's required. The books will be shipped to you immediately. The balance paid in twenty monthly installments."

Berry took the fountain pen, rolled it between his fingers tentatively. He pressed down the nib, saw that the ink was ready to flow, then stole a glance at the agent.

He was bending far forward, the tired lines had vanished, his eyes glinting with an hypnotic expression. Dan Berry lifted the pen from the paper, without signing and the man slumped, ageing twenty years instantly.

That struck home. Dan Berry understood. He signed on the dotted line, arose and walked down to his bedroom. Returning, he handed the agent the five-dollar bill.

He heard the man's thanks, bowed him out the door and limped on back to his room. He picked up his own brief case, put on his out-of-date hat and limped out of the house.

He had brought down upon himself an urge to live. He had signed one of his own firm's contracts, bound him to go on struggling till those twenty monthly installments were paid to the last cent.

Touch of Fur Enhances Print or Lace Gowns

Most of the sheer afternoon and evening frocks flaunt a dash of fur here, there, or somewhere about them, which is especially true in regard to the new prints and the adorable lace gowns which are so decidedly in the picture.

Striped Novelty Woolen for Spring Sports Wear

The conspicuous presence of Roman stripes, and if not stripes, then gay plaids, in the mode attests the importance of striking color effects. The ensemble pictured is of smart gray woolen interwoven with Roman stripes.

'ots' Sheer Frocks Will Be Very Gayly Smocked

Not only is smocking as popular as ever, but little dresses of sheer materials such as swiss, organdie, handkerchief linen and voile will be elaborated with handwork of every description. Even on the wool coats tiny yarn-embroidered flowers sound a decorative note, or appliqued cutouts are worked on a contrasting background.

Blouse of Fine Lace With the Bolero Suit

An outstanding favorite this spring is the bolero suit worn with a lace blouse. If not a separate lace blouse then fascinating lace touches elaborate sleeves and necklines on the new frocks. It is said that the black chiffon gown with tinted or natural color lace yoke will remain popular throughout spring and summer.

Canned Foods Economy

THERE has never been a time when high grade canned foods were so cheap as now, and there has never been a time when they were as good as they are today.

Year after year the research facilities of the industry itself and of many great scientists in big universities have been utilized to improve both the products and the methods by which they are canned.

Why not capitalize these facts this winter when incomes are apt to be slim and the cost of food a factor to be considered with care? If you can buy canned foods, with no waste, cheap, why buy foods that are far less nourishing for the same amount of money spent and which will provide you with many fewer meals?

Vegetables, fish and fruits in cans are all being offered this season at bargain sales.

A Varied Menu

There are so many ways to cook and combine canned foods that your daily menu made of them can be just as varied as if you bought your food supplies without regard to price. Here, for instance, is a succulent dish that will serve four people at a cost of little more than twenty-five cents:

Baked Beans with Bacon: Fry one-fourth pound of bacon, remove about half of the fat and to the rest add one sliced onion. Then sauté golden brown. Add the contents of a No. 2 can of beans, and heat thoroughly. Serve with the rashers of bacon on top.

A $2 Dinner For 6

By taking advantage of the present low prices of canned foods you can serve the following dinner for six people at the cost of approximately two dollars.

Clam Chowder 38¢
Veal Loaf 76¢
Mushroom Sauce 29¢
French Fried Potatoes 10¢
Cabbage Salad 10¢
Bread and Butter 11¢
Vanilla Ice Cream with Pineapple Sauce 26¢

Clam Chowder: Add two cups milk to the contents of two 10½-ounce cans of clam chowder, season to taste with salt and pepper, and bring to boiling.

Mushroom Sauce: Melt two tablespoons butter and brown slightly in pan, add two and one-half tablespoons flour, and stir smooth. Add enough water to the liquor from a 4-ounce can of mushrooms to make one and one-half cups, and add slowly to the first mixture, stirring until thick. Add one teaspoon kitchen bouquet, salt and pepper to taste and the mushrooms in sliced pieces, and reheat. Serve with the veal loaf.

A Delicious Dessert

Vanilla Ice Cream: Scald two cups evaporated milk and one cup water. Mix together three-fourths cup sugar, two tablespoons flour and one beaten egg; add to milk and cook in double boiler ten minutes. Cool, add one teaspoon vanilla, and freeze.

Pineapple Sauce: Add one-third cup sugar to one cup crushed pineapple, and boil five minutes. Cool, and add one drop oil of peppermint. Serve over the ice cream.

Community Building

Spreading Demand for More Beautiful Roads

Strange things are happening to the Great American Road.

For several years the American Civic Association has been giving prizes for the most attractive, the most neatly kept wayside refreshment stands, in an effort to improve the looks of the usual rickety food purveying shacks of the traveled highways.

In New Jersey they have passed a law putting billboards under state control, charging a tax on space used, and reserving the right to bar excessively unsightly structures.

And in New York Governor Roosevelt has asked for an appropriation to be used in setting out trees along highways in certain districts. He says:

"These plantings would be primarily to demonstrate that the highways could and should be made more slightly. An increasingly large body of public opinion recognizes the beauty of tree-lined highways, as well as their economic value."

What the present concern with roads really means is that America, after spending its entire career to date getting ahead in the world, is setting itself in order for more civilized living. —Philadelphia Ledger.

Worth-While Comment

by Southern Newspaper

More and more public officials, civic organizations and citizens generally are paying more attention to trees and other natural assets that add to the beauty of urban centers. Certainly no community has finer trees than Mobile has, nor is there anything connected with the city's life that is more attractive to strangers who visit Mobile.

While it is proper to save these trees when they can be saved the people here also should pay more attention to planting trees. Some of the older trees are dying out. Young trees should be planted to take the place of these when they can no longer hold out against time and the elements.

Along many of the streets of Mobile, and in some of the park areas there are trees that will not last many more years. Young trees should be coming on to take the place of these old trees. It would not cost much and it certainly would be worth while.—Mobile Register.

More Action, Buddy

We talk too much and do too little. From the days when the expression, "There oughta be a law," originated on the Texas frontier, we have had the notion that once we passed a law or even a resolution, our problem was solved ipso facto. Nowadays public officials attach the same weight to their own mere statements, and we the people too often accept their valuation. We might better use the words of the movie director to a posing youth: "A little more action, Buddy; a little more action." And we might apply the suggestion even to ourselves in our efforts to improve our towns, our societies, our churches, our schools, not to speak of our personalities.—Nelson Antrim Crawford in the House-hold Magazine.

Making House a Picture

Shade trees are valuable because they increase the worth of your property in a very few years, provide delightful shade in summer, and serve to break the cold winds of winter. Before planting your trees it is always wise to draw a rough plan and then work with it as a guide. Plan your planting so that, when your place is approached from the road, a pleasing picture will be seen. Plant large trees at either end of the house, but studiously avoid any plantings that will obstruct the view from the road. Let the passer-by see your home and then you can see him.

Improve Home Grounds

Home owners can help make their city a better place in which to live, by improving the home grounds.

We often see an elegant house that lacks the final touch to change it into a "home." Landscape planting is the frame of the picture; the artistic setting; that final touch that changes a house to a home.

As a background or a frame to the picture which is to be created, shrubs or trees are indispensable. The idea being to have the surroundings harmonize so that the impression will be comfortable and homelike.

Many-Colored Face Bricks

American face brick manufacturers have far outstripped the rest of the world in the wide range of color tones and textures presented to the home builder. Now the prospective home builder has offered for his consideration a whole sweep of colors, in smooth and rough textures, ranging from pure pearl grays or creams, through buff, golden and bronze tints to a descending scale of red, down to maroons, purples and even gun metal blacks.

Routing Highway Traffic

Some small towns have concluded that routing highway traffic through their main streets does not materially aid business, but only causes congestion, and the speed of the tourist cars adds to the danger of the streets.

The DAIRY

BADGER HOLSTEIN
BEST AT MILKING

Wisconsin Four-Year-Old
Makes New Machine Mark.

A new national record in the "Farmer's Class" milkings has been established by Wisconsin Mandy Homestead, a four-year-old Holstein, according to the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

On a two-time milking, with a milking machine, "Mandy" produced as a junior four-year-old, 682.48 pounds of butterfat (833 butter) in 20,114 pounds of milk in 365 days. This is 45 pounds more butterfat (56 more butter) and 1,947 pounds more milk than the previous record holder, Chesney Pieterje Sweet, owned by the county of Essex, Cedar Grove, N. J.

At no time during the year, according to the owners, Charles Hughes and son of Neenah, Wis., was Mandy milked more than two times a day, and it wasn't until she had been in milk for seven months that they suspected that she was headed for a record. She was milked with a milking machine throughout the year.

Mandy calved May 4, 1928, and started her test on May 7. She weighed 1,500 pounds at that time, and also as the test year closed. She carried a calf for seven months of the test and is due again in July.

No special care was provided for Mandy, and she was put on pasture a few days after calving and remained there with the rest of the herd until November 1. According to Hughes, her ration consisted of ground corn, oats and barley, with the addition of bran, oilmeal, and gluten feed. She ate from eight to sixteen pounds of this a day in addition to hay and pasture. No special mineral feed or mineral mixture was provided at any time, although several commercial feeds were tested but without result.

Poor Dairy Ration Not Bad in Many Respects

The commonly considered poor ration is not so bad in some respects, according to Dr. F. B. Hadley of the department of veterinary science of the University of Wisconsin. The data that have been gathered on this subject have come from the herds of dairy cows at the experiment station that are being put through a five-year test to determine the importance of ration in the ability of cattle to withstand the ravages of the abortion germ.

The poor ration is one composed of corn, silage, timothy hay, non-legume pasture and corn gluten meal. The ration is not balanced in protein and low in minerals. The other herd of cows is on a ration of legume hay, silage, legume pasture, oilmeal, bone meal, salt and a well-balanced grain ratio plus a half pound of cod liver oil daily. The cows on the low protein and mineral ration maintained their weight and gave practically as much butterfat in a year as did the herd on the better balanced ration and getting the cod liver oil.

Healthy Calves Raised Without Use of Milk

Although it is much easier to raise calves by feeding them milk for six months or more, good calves can be raised without milk after the first two months, provided that they have a good start and are strong, healthy calves at weaning time.

It is essential that such calves be allowed to eat grain and hay at an early age. The grain fed during the first two or three weeks is cracked corn or crushed oats, or a mixture of both, fed dry. When the milk is discontinued a more complete mixture is used. It is best to feed some form of leguminous hay, because of the protein content.

Dairy Notes

Higher production from the dairy cow means higher profits.

Young bulls as well as older ones should have access to salt.

Every calf should be provided with plenty of roughage, such as alfalfa or mixed hay, as soon as it will eat it.

Members of New York dairy improvement associations prove that a larger ration of grain for cows is not an expense but an investment, and in some instances the return is as much as 300 per cent.

It takes two purebreds to make a world record at the pail. The best cow in the world can't do it with a scrub to handle her!

There is no better dairy feed than silage, legume hay, ground corn and cob meal, cottonseed meal, and wheat bran or ground oats.

That the feeding of silage to the dairy herd increases milk production and brings greater profits is just one of the many talking points in favor of the silo on the farm.

IT LOOKS BRIGHTER

That the backbone of the "buying strike" has been broken and that this country is "over the hill," so to speak, is indicated by reports of auto sales and production for the past several weeks. The auto industry has come to be a reliable barometer of industrial conditions and in a way regulates every activity, even to agriculture.

From Detroit, recognized as the home of the auto, comes a report to the effect that April production is going to reach 350,000 cars. While this is much less than we have been accustomed to in more prosperous years, it is far ahead of the same month in 1930, and means that people are again buying cars instead of "making the old one do" as was the rule last year. This increased production means, of course, that many thousands men have returned to work, not only in the auto plants but in all allied industries. That includes glass factories, steel mills, the paint and varnish industry, leather and upholstery plants, etc. It also means more to transportation, since all this material must be carried to Detroit, and other points where autos are made.

The Fulton citizen who is slow to look on the sunny side is now warranted, it would seem, in adjusting his views and assuming a more optimistic spirit. Of course talking hard times really doesn't make hard times, but it helps to keep good times away. So, since it doesn't take any more energy to blow a horn than it does to swing a hammer, it looks like the time for throwing the hammer away is here. The sooner it is done the quicker the country will be back to the sort of conditions we've been longing for.

OUR BEST INVESTMENT

Not long ago the city school child had only a few blocks to walk between school and home and the rural school child had to do from one mile to three each way, depending on the location of the school. Today the city child still walks, and frequently for greater distances while the rural child rides in comfort and safety.

This is just one great change that has come into the educational system of this country since the day of the little one-room school, so well remembered by older residents around Fulton. Centralized and consolidated schools, better school rooms, better conditions and this newer and easier method of getting the children to and from them means the present generation is enjoying opportunities undreamed of by their fathers and mothers. It means too, and we do not have to leave our own community to realize it that the poor child's educational advantages are just as great as those of the rich child. It has not been so very long ago that this was not the case.

Everyone is proud of the schools in this community. They have a right to be. But it is well at the same time to bear in mind that openly proclaiming that pride is bound to make these schools still better. Here's one tax that should not cause protest or complaint. We may be paying too much for a lot of things, but we're getting our money's worth from our schools. They are an investment that will not wear out or decrease in value, for they represent an investment in the future high standards of citizenship in the community, and a man has to be pretty miserly to not recognize that.

SPRING DRIVING

Fulton motorists are eagerly welcoming the return of the spring driving season, for after all, it ushers in the time of year when they really get their money's worth out of the investment.

But it is also the time of year when driving hazards are most numerous and traffic dangers greatest. In this connection, too much cannot be said about the dangers that lurk back of what may appear to be perfectly safe driving. You may be driving serenely along an apparently clear highway when one of the wheels suddenly strikes a deep rut and lurches the car over an embankment. Or you may take a curve in the road with extreme care and precision, when another driver comes along and almost rams into you in a wide-swift turn.

And so it goes. Unexpected dangers, near tragedies, and breath-taking escapes come up daily in our motoring to bring home to us the necessity of always keeping on guard for any emergency. We cannot merely drive and forget what we are doing. We cannot for a moment lose our grip on the steering wheel or direct our attention from the road ahead of us. And we cannot depend on others for their proper conduct. We must be always on alert. If we happen to feel ill, or tired, or out of sorts, we should not take the responsibility of driving. For it is one that involves the safety of yourself and your passengers, not to mention others who happen to be using the streets or highways at the same time.

POULTRY

(By J. T. Watkins)

Everybody who lives in this locality have either secured some baby chicks or are going to do so before the hatching season closes—that is, everybody who wanted them. Now, my suggestion is, don't sell off all the cockerels until some of them develop enough to tell if you will have enough outstanding males to go with your flock. If you don't have enough cockerels that are above the average, I would suggest you spend some money this fall and secure two or three males from some breeder who had bred for laying, and has had his flock certified and blood tested, to place at the head of your flock in the coming spring. This will increase the value of your flock as producers and next summer you will see the value of my advice. The cock bird is 50 per cent of the flock.

Spring Mode Calls for Jackets Which Contrast

Contrast, contrast, we must have contrast, says fashion. Wherefore the majority of the spring suits and ensembles register striking contrast in the jackets which are worn with them. The suit which Lita Chevre, Radio Pictures featured player, is wearing this spring and which is here illustrated interprets the contrast theme via plaid and plain.

There is some talk of having as many of the flocks in this district certified and blood tested as the owners desire, and I think it is a wonderful step in advancing poultry in this district. It won't be many years until no hatchery will hatch anything but accredited and blood tested chicks, and the sooner the breeders here attend to this matter the sooner the BEST poultry county in the state.

During the six years that I have been interested in poultry here in this vicinity there has been a wonderful improvement in the poultry, but we have done only half enough. We have established a good hatchery, and it will grow larger each year, for there is a good market here for every chicken you want to sell. We have two poultry houses which buy poultry for the big markets and ship the poultry away alive. And then we have the Swift plant which will buy every chick you can produce, provided it comes up to a certain standard. The Swift plant dresses poultry for a particular market and every chicken has to be just so, or that market won't accept it, so it stands to reason if you will produce the kind of poultry the fancy market wants, you will find a ready place to sell it at the Swift plant. They want all you can produce, but they must be GOOD.

To produce the kind of poultry that will bring the top price on the market, you must have a STANDARD bred flock. Now, I mean by this that it must have blood lines behind it. Just because a hen is red is no sign she is a Rhode Island Red; but she must have the makeup of a bird of this breed. The same applies to all different breeds, and if you will settle on one breed, and improve that breed each year, you will find the returns from your sales improving each year. When you can produce a flock of birds good enough to win in the show rooms, then you can command the highest market price for your stock.

It used to be that poultry from below the Mason and Dixon line brought less money on the markets, but do you know that right now some of the choicest sales made on dressed poultry in New York are raised right here in this community? That is because I have been boosting better poultry and you have followed my advice and improved your flocks, so that now we have some as good farm flocks as there are in the country. But that is not enough; we want to work on those breeders who are still breeding scrubs or dung hills and influence them to discard the scrubs and put in a flock of STANDARD birds, no matter what breed it is, just so it is STANDARD.

There will be just about half enough chickens raised this year as are needed, so you want to make arrangements to have your flock in such shape that next year you can double your output, and the hatchery will double its output and the number of FANCY DRESSED POULTRY shipped from Fulton will be double and the amount of money turned loose in Fulton will be DOUBLE.

Rail Spending
Aids Business

A Message from
L. A. Downs,
President,
Illinois Central System.

Dependable for 80 Years

When the railroad's spending power is curtailed, everyone else's earning power is unfavorably affected. Prosperous railroads are therefore essential to general prosperity.

The railroads have been subsisting on a restricted diet. In the best of recent years, despite economical management, their margin of net earnings has been extremely small. Hence recent revenue losses have forced them to reduce their spending drastically.

A sound program for general prosperity must provide a permanent betterment of this condition. If the railroads can increase their margin of net earnings in good times, they will not need to resort to such extreme reductions of spending in dull times.

The railroads cannot be a major factor in stabilizing business if they are forced to operate year after year on a too narrow margin of net earnings.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

Chicago, May 1, 1931.

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL SYSTEM

The purchases of this railroad, made principally in the territory in which it operates, have long been strong supports of midwestern and southern business progress.

A Two Dollar Dinner for Six

TOMATOES, onions, shrimps, pineapple, a fresh vegetable, baking powder biscuits, a fresh fruit and coffee! It seems impossible that one could serve such a dinner as this to six people at a cost of only two dollars, but here are the menu and the recipes for the main dishes:

Tomato and Onion Soup.....25¢
Shrimp and Pineapple Salad.....65¢
Lima Beans in Cream.....27¢
Baking Powder Biscuits.....15¢
Fresh Peach Shortcake with Whipped Cream.....47¢
Coffee.....15¢

Tomato and Onion Soup: Put three tablespoons butter, one cup thinly sliced onions and one teaspoon sugar in a skillet, and saute till pale yellow. Add two cups water, and boil till onions are tender. Press the contents of one No. 3 can tomatoes through a sieve, and add to the onions with one bouillon cube. Season with salt and pepper. Boil for a moment and serve.

Shrimp and Pineapple Salad: Have the contents of one 5½-ounce can of shrimps, six slices of pineapple (three-fourths of can) diced, and one cup of diced celery well chilled. Then toss lightly together, and pile into a large lettuce-lined salad bowl or on individual plates on leaves of lettuce. Mix three-fourths cup mayonnaise and one-fourth cup chili sauce, and pour over the salad. This will make a liberal main dish salad for six people.*

Lesson for May 3

JESUS IN THE HOME OF ZACCHAEUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Makes a Bad Man Good.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Makes Zacchaeus Want to Do Right.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Beginning a New Life.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Repentance and Restoration.

I. Jesus Passing Through Jericho (v. 1).

Jericho is noted as a stronghold of the Canaanites which was miraculously delivered into the hands of Israel in response to their faith, Joshua 6, and also for the faith of Rahab which saved her from destruction with the city. Two notorious sinners, Rahab and Zacchaeus, were saved at Jericho.

II. Zacchaeus Seeking Jesus (vv. 2-4).

1. His object (v. 3).
He sought to see who Jesus was. He doubtless had heard of Jesus' kind treatment of publicans, so was prompted to see what kind of a man he was.
2. His difficulties (vv. 2, 3).
(1) His infamous business (v. 2).
He was a tax collector of the Roman government. The very fact that a Jew held such an office under the hated Romans would make him extremely unpopular. Then, since he was rich, it was evident that he had practiced extortion in collecting taxes. By virtue of his traitorous act in accepting such an office from the Romans and his extortion in collecting taxes, he was ostracized from society. Many men have a hard time in coming to Christ because of their unpopular business relations.

(2) His shortness of stature (v. 3).
He was too small to crowd his way through to Jesus, and being hated by the people, they had thrust him aside, no doubt, with taunts and jeers.

3. His persistence (v. 4).

He ran before the multitude and climbed up into a tree. What he lacked in stature he was determined to make up by the height of the tree. Zacchaeus seems to have been of that temperament which knows no defeat. The obstacles placed before him he brushed aside; those he could not brush aside he climbed over, his heart set upon the goal.

III. Jesus Finding Zacchaeus (vv. 5, 6).

While Zacchaeus was trying to see Jesus, Jesus was looking for him. This is always the case, when desire is stirred up in a heart to see Jesus. Jesus is seeking that one. When Jesus saw him he commanded him to come down from the tree and declared his intention to go home with him. Jesus called him by name, but did not utter a word which would humiliate Zacchaeus. Jesus knew his heart's desire and dealt with him accordingly. All souls who earnestly seek Jesus shall be found of him. Zacchaeus quickly responded. He came down and with joy received Jesus. He acted wisely in that he did not hesitate. A moment's indecision and waiting would have kept Zacchaeus from Jesus—from Jesus and salvation.

IV. Zacchaeus' Conversion (vv. 7-10).

His conversion was sudden and thorough. He was converted before he reached the ground.

1. What the crowd said (v. 7).
They said just what they say today when sinners come to Christ. They call to mind the man's former sins. They also reproached Christ saying that he had gone to be a guest with this notorious extortioner, the tax collector. That for which they reproached Jesus was his glory. His supreme mission was to save sinners (v. 10).

2. What Zacchaeus said (v. 8).

His conversion was thorough. It took hold upon his heart. His new life was begun with resolution and restitution. He dedicated half of his goods to the poor. The man who a little while ago was a graffer was now a generous giver. His conversion got hold of his pocketbook. His determination to make restitution wherein he had wrongly exacted taxes shows the genuineness of his conversion. While God forgets the past of the sinner when he comes to Christ, the sinner who is converted will seek to make right all wrongs, he will unkind words or unrighteous deeds. Sorrow for sin is not enough when restitution is possible.

3. What Jesus said (vv. 9, 10).

"Today is salvation come to this house." The publican was now a child of God, a son of Abraham. Salvation is a present reality to those who receive Jesus Christ.

The Bible

Hold fast to the Bible as the sheet anchor of our liberties; write its precepts on your hearts and practice them in your lives. To the influence of this book we are indebted for the progress made in true civilization, and to this we must look as our guide in the future.—U. S. Grant.

Afflictions

Afflictions are not so much threatened as promised to the children of God.—John Mason.

Peas Save Expense

PEAS are one of the most popular of vegetables, and they are now available everywhere all year around in cans. They are not only popular, but inexpensive. Here is a dish of meat and peas, for instance, which will serve four people and which can be had most anywhere at a cost of less than fifty cents:

Frankfurters with Parsley Peas:
Heat the contents of an 11-ounce can of peas for about three minutes, drain, add one tablespoon butter, and season with salt and pepper to taste. Pour into a shallow baking dish. Grill or fry eight frankfurters (one pound), and place on top of the peas like the spokes of a wheel. Sprinkle with two tablespoons parsley, and reheat in the oven a few minutes. And here is a dish of peas alone which will serve four people at a cost of not more than twelve cents:

English Peas: Add one and one-half tablespoons vinegar, one and one-half tablespoons sugar and two tablespoons crushed fresh mint to the contents of an 11-ounce can of peas, and simmer gently for ten minutes.

Pea Salads
Don't forget, too, that canned peas are excellent in salads and all ready to combine with the other ingredients. Try this:

Potato and Pea Salad: Marinate the peas from a No. 2 can and two cups diced boiled potatoes in French dressing thoroughly. Add one-half cup diced pickled beets and one tablespoon chopped onion, and moisten with mayonnaise. Serve in lettuce nests. Serves eight.

HOW much does your weekly market basket cost?

A market basket providing adequate food for five persons for one week need cost only $6.55, according to a recent estimate issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Bureau of Home Economics and the Woman's Division of the President's Emergency Committee for Employment.

Prices for the weekly basket differ in different localities. Pittsburgh has the lowest prices.

$5.88. In New York City, the same basket will cost $7.03.

Below are the foods recommended for the weekly basket for a family of five, including father, mother and three children.

While the list includes dried vegetables, the cheapest possible form, many busy women who do not have time to soak and prepare these vegetables are buying canned fruits and vegetables, now offered at low prices. These being ready-prepared, also save fuel.

An Unusual Dessert

WOULD you like to know a peach of a dessert in which peaches are used in an unusual way? It's an elaborate cake, but the very first taste will convince you that it was well worth all the trouble you took.

Here It Is

Peach Croissant: Make a sponge of one yeast cake, one-fourth cup warm water, one teaspoon sugar, one-third cup evaporated milk, one-third cup hot water and one cup flour. Cover, and let rise till very light. Add four beaten eggs, two-thirds cup butter, one-half cup sugar, two teaspoons salt and about three and one-half cups flour to make dough. Knead well, and let rise till double in bulk in a greased bowl, covered. Cut down, knead slightly, and pat or roll out into a thin rectangle. Brush with butter and spread one cup of chopped, well-drained canned peaches and two-thirds cup chopped vacuum packed walnuts along the center. Sprinkle with brown sugar, and bring the long sides of the rectangle together in the middle, pinching well. Place roll in a greased pan in the shape of a crescent or half moon. Brush with butter, and let rise till double in size. Bake in moderate, 350 degrees, oven for about twenty minutes. When slightly cool, cover with white icing made of confectioner's sugar, cream and orange extract.

Better Breakfasts

THE first thing that you eat in the morning should be something that will make you feel good all day. If more brides knew that there would be fewer bridegroom glowers to bring on bride's show-ers of tears. Everyone wants to help a little bride, so here's a good dish to start the day with, and the menu for the rest of the break-fast, too, for good measure:

Morning Fruit Cocktail: Re-move the sections of four tanger-ines, keeping them as whole and as free from membrane as pos-sible. Add to the contents of a No. 2 can of grapefruit, and chill thoroughly over night. This will make enough to serve six, but let hubby have all he wants. It won't hurt him. And, for the rest of the breakfast, have whole wheat cereal with raisins, corn meal cakes with syrup, and a hot beverage. Then watch hubby smile.

Vacuum Packed

There's just one point you should be careful about in the hot beverage for modern breakfasts, and that is to have it vacuum packed. Whether you are provid-ing hubby with a product with-out caffeine which still gives him the coffee taste or with the real coffee which is now the national drink of America, you should buy it in the vacuum packed cans which have kept out the oxygen. For the action of oxygen is what hurts coffee and coffee products. When oxygen comes in contact with them, they lose flavor and aroma at a rapid rate.

HER ULTIMATUM

"John!" said the missus. "Yeah?" he grumbled. "There is just one of two things that is going to happen. Either you are going to learn to win at poker or you are going to spend your evenings at home playing checkers with me. I'm tired of your money going to buy new hats for the wives of those other players."

WHAT SURGEON FELT

"So the famous surgeon felt your pulse and then recommended an operation."

"No, not my pulse, you idiot, my purse."

Give Three

We'll always give a loud And lusty cheer For friends who never write "Wish you were here!"

Refrain From Singing

"Shall I sing for you, Mr. Flatman?" asked Miss Gushing, who was very proud of her voice.

"Have you a song with a refrain?" he asked.

"Yes, of course."

"Then, please refrain."

Method

Dave—Why are you giving your fiancée a cigarette case? Does she smoke?

Rod—I don't know, but she's just about to break off our engagement, and send my present back, and I can use it myself.

Scare for Burglar

Wife (at 2 a. m.)—Wake up, John, wake up! There's a burglar in the next room.

Husband (sleepily)—Well, I've no revolver. You go in and look daggers at him.

What Passed

Magistrate—Describe what passed between you in quarrel with your wife.

Accused—The plates were the usual dinner size, your worship, and the teapot had a broken spout.

UNDER A CLOUD

"They are suspecting that that avi-ator is claiming records that are crooked."

"Oh, it's not the first time he's been under a cloud."

Ode to Edison

Hush, little goldenrod, Don't you cry— You'll be a 'bloom tire By and by.

Made Her Wonder

"Were you nervous," asked young Mrs. Jones, "when you begged daddy to give his consent?"

"He gave me the fright of my life!" granted Jones.

She's wondering still what he meant.

Denies Everything

Judge—Sam, this is a serious charge against you. Have you anything to say in your defense?

Sam (thoughtfully)—Yoh Heno', I not only denies the allegation, but I also declares the alligator am wrong.

Smallpox Scare

Doe Monk—Just a moment more, Mr. Rhino; as soon as my able assist-ant, Doctor Woodpecker, gets through that rather—er—thick epidermis, I'll administer the vaccine.

No Time for Statistics

Wag—Next to a beautiful girl, what do you think is the most interesting thing in the world?

Nag—When I'm next to a beautiful girl I'm not thinking about statistics.

A Fudge Sauce Romance

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright)

DUNCAN HODGES was not particularly sensitive. Soft music made him feel neither sad nor sentimental. The fragrance of sweet flowers on a spring day did not fill him with poetic longings. He felt no special thrill at the sight of the rosy glow of sunrise. His friend, Charles Cornwall, told him that whenever he chanced to get a whiff of that particular brand of expensive perfume used by the girl to whom he had once been engaged, he felt a queer, depressing sort of thrill. Duncan Hodges had listened politely—maybe other men were like that, but Duncan couldn't understand it.

He had seen Dora Claire that afternoon. They were going to a masquerade dance together in a week and they had been shopping to get their things.

"You're going to look too wonderful for words, Duncan," cooed the little girl at his side.

"Going to look pretty nifty yourself in that Spanish get-up," countered Duncan.

"Do you really think so—Duncan?" she asked. "I wonder whether you mean it. Men say such nice things—but when you know they say the same things to all the girls they know—it doesn't count for much."

Dora sighed. It was a sigh that went more or less directly to Duncan's heart. They walked on a step or two and Duncan hurriedly reminded himself that Dora was supposedly something of a flirt, and that it had even been hinted that the reason she had accepted his own addresses for the past months was because of his good job, and not inconsiderable private fortune. Still, she was a nice girl. Perhaps the tender feelings he had about his heart were as a matter of fact love—perhaps he really did care a great deal for Dora.

"I swear I never say things to girls just to say them," Duncan was beginning. "When I say you are the prettiest girl in our crowd I mean it." This was a good beginning. They were passing a popular candy store—that was the end of romance at least so far as Dora and Duncan were concerned. For up from the basement, out from the shop there came the enticing fragrance of fudge sauce. Duncan took two or three good whiffs—and—presto chango!—there came before him—between him and Dora—it seemed—the image of a frank-faced girl with reddish hair—a few freckles—eyes that were merry though not exactly beautiful. It was Jane Cobham.

"You didn't finish what you were saying," said Dora.

Duncan said that he was going to ask Dora to drop into the confectionery shop and have some tea or something. And all the time that they sat there vis-a-vis Duncan got whiffs of fudge sauce and with every whiff thoughts of Jane Cobham became more and more vivid.

Back in his rooms that night Duncan sat thinking of Jane—Jane, the girl he had liked so well four or five years ago when he was a student at a co-educational college. He hadn't had much money to spend then, but quite often he took Jane to the sweet shop and treated her to chocolate fudge sundae. He had never analyzed the matter but now he knew that somewhere in his mind the smell of hot fudge sauce was intricately mixed up with thoughts of Jane Cobham—and both seemed very pleasant. He remembered that he had once intended to ask Jane if she would not marry him.

Duncan went through with the masquerade. Dora scolded him for his indifference. Then she began flirting with some of the other men—thought she was punishing him, perhaps. And all the time he was figuring out how he could get away from his job long enough to run out to the college town where Jane Cobham lived—the daughter of a very much under-paid professor.

Duncan arrived one afternoon and went straight to the old Cobham house, looking for all the world as it had four years before. He rang the front doorbell and Jane answered. She seemed a little embarrassed, but she didn't look a day older than when he saw her last. In fact, to Duncan there seemed to be a softness and sweetness about her that had never been observable before. Duncan thought that was perhaps because she was engaged. So as soon as they had taken chairs in the rather shabby living room he asked her outright and in plain words whether she was engaged.

"Of course not, silly," said Jane.

"Well, let's go down to the sweet shop and get a sundae with fudge sauce."

Jane giggled a little. "I thought you would have outgrown things like that. We have a tea room here now. I should think tea and toasted English muffins would seem smarter to you now."

"Next time, perhaps," said Duncan. "But all I want just now is fudge sauce."

A week later, back at work, Duncan came upon his old friend, Charles Cornwall. "Congratulations," he demanded. "I'm engaged—guess you know her—Jane Cobham. Maybe you're right after all about the power of the senses—but it wasn't roses or expensive perfume with me—it was just fudge sauce."

Rail Spending Aids Business

A restricted diet of net earnings, enforced for years, has cut down the ability of the railroads to maintain their normal spending power in dull times, according to President L. A. Downs of the Illinois Central System. This is unfortunate, he says, as everyone else's earning power is unfavorably affected when the railroads' spending power is curtailed.

"In the best of recent years, despite economical management," Mr. Downs explains, "the railroads' margin of net earnings has been extremely small. Hence recent revenue losses have forced them to reduce their spending drastically."

A sound program for general prosperity, he concludes, must provide a permanent betterment of this condition. The railroads cannot be a major factor in stabilizing business if they are forced to operate year after year on a too narrow margin of net earnings.

MANY MEDALS GIVEN SCOUTS

More medals and merit badges were pinned on the breasts of Boy Scouts at their meeting in the scout hall on the night of April 24 than were ever received at any previous assembly. Scouts receiving 5,000 point medals were: James Allen Willingham, Wendell Binkley, and Harold Binkley.

Scouts receiving 3,000 point medals were: Graham Wilkins, William Henry Edwards and George Alley.

Scouts receiving 1,000 point pins were: Lynton Lemonds, Lawrence Rike, Paris Campbell, Miller Burgess, Ernest Berninger, Clovis Burns, Robert Grogan, David Clements, Billie Whitnel, James Leath, Roy Edwards, James Boaz and Jack Hardesty.

The Scout who has qualified for five required and five optional merit badges, and is entitled to a Life Scout Badge, was William Henry Edwards.

The Scout who has qualified for five optional merit badges and is entitled to a Star Scout Badge was James Boaz.

Scouts who were entitled to First Class Badges were: Richard Williams, Dean Campbell, James Leath, Lynton Lemonds, James Boaz, Billie Whitnel, Paris Campbell, Frank Marsh and Roy Edwards.

Scouts who were awarded Second Class Badges were: James Carver, Harvard Waken, Jack Hardesty, Roy Edwards, Ernest Berninger, John Lloyd Jones, Dick Hill, Joe Beadles, O. B. Paschall, Miller Burgess, William Scott, Ben Evans, Billie Godfrey, and Eldridge Dixon.

Accessories Must Sound Striking Color Notes

Riotous color for accessories—a message which designers are interpreting via vivid stripes as instanced in the smart ascot tie, separate jacket and matching pocketbook pictured. Splashes and dashes of gorgeous plaid are likewise popular, or else tricolor or multi-color effects.

White Enlivens Black or Navy Crepe Frocks

Fashion demands white trimming and white accessories for the early spring navy or black afternoon crepe frock. The gown in the picture tells this trend to a nicety. A cool nook with one-shoulder scarf, also the flowing sleeves which are lined to the elbow with white are smart details.

In the present contest for leadership with Murray, Paducah and Mayfield, the total number of points earned by Fulton Scouts now exceeds by 17 the number won by our nearest rival, Paducah. The winner of this contest, ending next Friday, receives a loving cup.

Resplendent in their brightly beribboned decorations, some of gold, some of silver, some of bronze, the Scouts proudly left their hall like a company of young Lindberghs or Sergeant Yorks or Admiral Byrds.

Vital Foods

IN these days when we are evaluating vitamins so ardently, it is valuable to know about inexpensive ways in which to obtain our full vitamin quota. Tomatoes have become famous for their vitamin content, and tomato juice is now fed to babies by the doctor's orders. Here are some delicious and inexpensive tomato dishes each of which will serve four people:

Macaroni and Tomato: Boil one-half package macaroni until tender, then drain. Simmer for ten minutes the contents of a No. 2 can of tomatoes with one-half bay leaf, two slices onion, one teaspoon sugar, and salt and pepper to taste; remove bay leaf and add to the macaroni. Costs about 15 cents.

Clam and Tomato Broth: Combine half the contents of a No. 2 can of clam broth with one 10-ounce can of tomato juice, and season to taste with salt and pepper, celery salt, tobacco sauce and one teaspoon lemon juice. Heat to boiling. Costs about 25 cents.

Stewed Tomatoes and Celery: Combine the contents of a No. 2 can of tomatoes with one-half cup diced, cooked celery, salt, pepper, one tablespoon butter and one teaspoon sugar. Simmer gently for a few minutes. Costs about 17 cents.

Baked Tomatoes and Peppers: Shred one green pepper and place with the contents of a No. 2 can of tomatoes and one teaspoon salt and a few grains of pepper in a buttered baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven until peppers are tender. Add one tablespoon of butter and serve. Costs about twenty cents.*
