Fulton Hatchery Makes Forward Step

Mrs. Madge Gerling and J. H. Patterson, Jr., of the Fulton Hatchery have just returned from Knoxville, Tenn., where they completed a short course in poultry at the University of Tennessee. This course of instruction is valuable to hatchery operators. Mrs. Gerling said, because it provides them with much information pertaining to the poultry raising industry. In order to be a nationally approved hatchery flock selecting agents must take a course of this type and pass the examination. The Fulton Hatchery has made another step forward in following up on this course and becoming an approved hatchery.

SOFTBALL GAMES

K. U. Announced Rate Reduction

New electric rate reductions to save customers $147,554 annually, based on 1939 usage, were announced recently by Robert M. Watt, president of the Kentucky Utilities Company and Kentucky Power & Light Company, following negotiations with the Public Service Commission.

It is the second price cut made by the companies in four months, brings the total customer saving to $328,335 so far this year, and to $1,459,252 in the last six years, Mr. Watt said.

Applied to meter readings on and after June 16, the latest reduction affects all residential and commercial lighting customers in twenty-four cities with more than 3,000 population. They are: Central City, Chithiana, Danville, Earlinton, Elizabethtown, Franklin, Fulton, Georgetown, Glasgow, Harlan, Harrodsburg, Lebanon, Lexington, Middlesboro, Mt. Sterling, Paducah, Pineville, Paris, Princeton, Richmond, Shelbyville, Somerset, Winchester and Maysville.

"To encourage a constantly growing use of electricity in homes of all sizes and to enable more and more families to enjoy its benefits, Kentucky Utilities system lowers the price of service as often as operating efficiency and economic conditions permit," Mr. Watt said. "We believe our record in the last several years proves this."

BAPTIST WEST KY. ASSOCIATION MET

The Woman's Missionary Union of the West Kentucky Association met at the First Baptist Church in Fulton on Tuesday, June 18, in an all-day session. Mrs. O. C. Markham of Hickman, superintendent of the Association, presided.

The morning session was opened with the song, "Higher Ground," after which Mrs. Lula Zearfoss of Arlington led in prayer. Mrs. Edwin Hardy, Fulton, Route 1, was in charge of the program for the day, the theme of which was "A Highway for our Youth." Miss Hazel Bradley of Hickman gave a beautiful and timely devotional, taking her scripture verses from Isaiah 35: 8-10.

Mrs. Zearfoss made a talk on the summer encampment for Young People and made special emphasis on the encampment for girls, which will be held at Columbus July 8-12. Plans were made by the Association to send whatever might be needed of them for this encampment.

One of the higher parts of the program was a playlet, "Good Stewards on the King's Highway," given by six children of the Liberty Church. Mrs. J. C. Sugg gave a most interesting and instructive lesson, using as her subject, "How Far We May See," and prayer followed, led by Rev. West of the Arlington Baptist Church.

During the social hour which was held in the basement auditorium, Mrs. Lora Horton offered a noontide prayer and a delicious chicken dinner was served.

The afternoon devotional message was given by Mrs. Odell Shepherd of Bardwell, followed with prayer by Mrs. Carl Hastings. A very interesting playlet, "By the Side of the Road," was presented by Miss Mary King Blagg and a group of Arlington young people.

Mrs. Markham then spoke briefly on "The Happy Trail of Fostering." Rev. Lois Bratcher, pastor of the Liberty church, made a touching and informative talk on "That We May Walk Unshackled by Death." Mrs. Markham read a poem, "Highway of Holiness," written by Mrs. Lora Horton.

The meeting, which was well-represented by all churches of the Association, was then closed with prayer by Rev. Bratcher.

Dates of Cooperative Ram Sales Announced

A total of 230 purebred South-down and Hampshire rams will be sold in Tennessee through a series of four cooperative sales as follows: 50 head at the University Farm, Knoxville, June 28; 20 head at the Union Stock Yards, Bristol, July 5; 125 head, Fair Grounds, Nashville, July 10, and 35 head, Fair Grounds, Union City, July 12.

The consignment at Bristol will be composed of mostly Hampshires, with a limited number of South-downs. The consignment at Knoxville will contain a limited number of South-downs, but about 80% of the Rams consigned will be Hampshires. The 125 rams for the Nashville sale will consist of about an equal number of South-downs and Hampshires. The sale at Union City will consist mostly of Hampshires.

Paul P. Hite, Gallatin, Tennessee, is secretary of the sales committee. Other members are: Joe S. Carpenter, A. Carter Myers, J. P. Mitchell and John Glasgow.

Sheepmen are urged by L. A. Richardson, U-T Extension Animal Husbandman to take advantage of this opportunity to secure superior breeding stock. Of the 15,752 rams needed to service the 320,136 ewes in the State, 4,456 are of scrub and inferior breeding, he says. A lamb sired by an approved type of purebred ram is worth $2.40 more per head than one sired by a scrub or inferior bred ram. By using approved type purebred rams the income from sheep in Tennessee could be increased over $225,555, Mr. Richardson estimates.

Further information on these sales can be obtained from your county agent.

MAYFIELD POLICEMAN SLAIN BY NEGRO

Hartley H. Gillum, 65, member of the Mayfield police department for 15 years, was killed almost instantly and two other police were severely wounded Sunday night when they were shot by Sam Moss, negro, of Mayfield. Gillum, accompanied by Patrolman Dennis Vaughn and State Patrolman Steve Roberts, both of whom were wounded, and Patrolman Bill Peters, who escaped injury, had gone to the Moss home in South Mayfield on a liquor raid. They arrived about 6 o'clock and found a gallon of whiskey, a keg and several jars and jugs, but no one was at home, Peters said. They withdrew and watched the house until Moss, a former restaurant cook, came home about 7:15.

The officers surrounded the house, with Gillum and Vaughn in the front and Roberts and Peters in the rear. Moss came to the door with a shotgun and fired at Gillum. Vaughn ran to the rear, and Moss followed him, firing at him and Roberts, Peters said. Vaughn was hit in the right arm and right side. Roberts' pistol was shot out of his hand and he was also hit in the stomach. Moss also fired at Peters but missed him and then disappeared.

Gillum was dying by the time assistance came, and the wounded officers were rushed to the hospital. Gillum is survived by his widow, Mrs. Bessie Gillum; two sons, Edwin and Bill, of Mayfield; and two daughters, Mrs. Lucille Dick of Detroit, Mich., and Miss Elizabeth Gillum of Mayfield.

A posse was organized, composed of officers and citizens, to search for the negro who was slightly crippled. The Moss home was searched, even to the roof, and after the posse left, it burned to the ground. It is thought that the posse set fire to it.

Moss was killed early Wednesday morning under the home of Joe Parrott, negro, near the railroad tracks in Mayfield. After having received a tip about midnight, Coroner Brown McClain called State Patrolmen Wallace Shankle and R. L. Hagan and city policemen Newt Holmes, Ike Rogers and Bill Peters, and they proceeded to the Parrott house.

Moss was found trying to climb a fence and when he saw the officers he ran under the house. The officers called to him and told him that if he did not come out they would shoot him.

Moss replied, according to Patrolman Hagan, that he was not coming out and they could shoot. Patrolman Shankle then crawled under the house and knocked a plank off the side so they could get a better view of Moss and the group began shooting. Moss was hit seven times, according to McClain, with all six patrolmen firing at him. The bullet that proved fatal was thought to have been one that entered his right lower jaw and ranged upward.

It is believed that Moss had been hiding in the vicinity of the Parrott house since his getaway Sunday night.

THE AMERICAN SCHOOL ARMY

In a plan destined to provide a permanent trained reserve of two million men, for the defense of the United States, Representative Kent E. Keller, (Democrat) of Illinois, recently introduced a bill in the House of Representatives, for the creation of THE AMERICAN SCHOOL ARMY.

To begin with the plans calls for the training of 21,850 youths between the ages of 15 and 18, each year in military, vocational and academic education to be increased as found necessary. These cadets are to be selected according to the apportionment of the various Congressional Districts. In the Keller Plan, the Educational Board, under the Chairmanship of the United States Commissioner of Education, has charge of the academic and vocational training and is to cooperate with the War Department which provides the housing, discipline and military training. There is to be no educational requirement. The only bar against a boy who wishes to enter is a physical defect which cannot be corrected by care and training or mental deficiency as to be classed incompetent.

In reviewing the merits of his bill in Washington, Mr. Keller stated: "I repeat that no country will attack America, with our unlimited resources if America is fully prepared. The countries that understand nothing but force, can be met only by force. America must start now and fully prepare not only for the present time, but for all time to come. The American School Army plan will provide an adequate defense for future time. Twenty years from now there would be on the rolls of the United States Army, 2,000,000 men who would have had thorough military training in their formative years; who will be sounder of body and trained of hand and mind in the event they should have to bear arms in defense of this glorious country."

"Rich as America's resources are, we cannot afford to keep a large standing army, nor is that necessary. Neither can we afford the exorbitant cost of emergency preparation under the stress and waste of the excitement of an emergency after it is upon us. The American School Army plan provides the necessary defense at the lowest possible cost, from the points of view of training, of benefit to the citizenry and of releasing man power to industry during adulthood.

"In the light of the studies of the defects found in drafted men of the World War, the benefits of this training to the health of the Nation will be great. Each graduate will be equipped with a worthwhile education, trained for the responsibility of defending the nation that is already borne by every able-bodied male citizen whether he is equipped or not. Training in the American School Army therefore imposes no new obligation upon the young manhood of the nation, but equips the youth to better carry out the responsibility which is already his. Each graduate of the American School Army is to be carried on the rolls as a Reservist and subject to bear arms in defense of the United States, the same as all men now are.

"It is my sincere wish that we will never have cause to use the services of these young men in this way, and it grows more apparent day by day that the way to keep from sacrificing young men's lives needlessly is to be fully prepared. Toward this end I have worked out the American School Army plan with the cooperation of the Office of Education and the United States Army.

BACK TO EARTH

The United States seems to be turning away from all kinds of "isms" and back to the fundamental theory of our government, namely, a free people and individual opportunity—a government to protect, not to compete with its own citizens in business.

To quote the President, "Private industry will have the responsibility of providing the best, speediest and most efficient mass production of which it is capable.

There can be no question of the desire of American industry to cooperate to the limit of its ability with our government to attain unprecedented heights of efficiency and service to the end that America may swiftly be provided with the best defense system in the world. And there should be no question of the willingness of our public servants, from the Executive down, to cooperate with private enterprise in order to guarantee the successful completion of that gigantic task.

It has taken a world calamity to reawaken our people to the vital role which private enterprise plays in our national life.

The men, the machines, the resources, and the technique which private enterprise has developed, are our first line of defense. The great industries of America made possible the highest peacetime standards of living for all—and out of these industries, staffed with free men working under a free enterprise system, must come our weapons of defense.

The time when we could afford socialistic experiments to the destruction of private enterprise—if we ever could afford them—has passed. The national defense is the first and foremost duty of the Federal government in its determination to perpetuate the American way of life.

We must get back to the fundamentals of democracy if we are to survive as a free and secure people where government is the servant, not the master of its citizens.

Today the railroads have bigger and better cars, bigger and faster locomotives, far better tracks, terminals, etc., than ever before. As a railroad authority said recently, "The railroads repeatedly have handled more freight than they did in 1918 with fewer cars and engines than they had then, and have done it without delay, congestion or difficulty. And so they will do again should emergency come."

The costly lessons of the last war were not in vain, as one views the present coordination plans of the Assistant Secretary of War and the railroads.

He that is not open to conviction is not qualified for discussion.—Bishop Whately.

ALWAYS READY

One question frequently asked in these anxious days is: "Are the railroads ready?"

And the answer is, "The railroads are ready to meet any emergency." A short time ago, Assistant Secretary of War Johnson observed that the American railroads are "always in a state of national defense." There was no wishful thinking in that statement, it came from a full knowledge of the remarkable job the railroads have done, working in full cooperation with the government, to prepare against any demand that may conceivably be made upon them.

The railroads and the Army and Navy Munitions Board have worked for a number of years to make plans to meet emergencies as they may arise. These plans, to quote Secretary Johnson again, contemplate no change in the "American way of getting things done." They do not involve any emergency super-controls, or government operation. The essence of the plans is that the railroads shall be run in the regular way, with the various interested agencies of government cooperating.

In 1917 when government took over the management of the railroads as a war measure, chaos resulted in the transportation structure. At one time there were as many as 200,000 cars standing loaded on side tracks because there had been no coordination in ordering goods shipped and the time when these goods could be used or unloaded.

Under the present plan, that will not happen again. Freight will be ordered as needed and railroad cars will not be used for warehouses.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist, Director of Adult Education, UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The standard of living in this country has not been greatly affected by the eight months of European War. We have been startled by the turn of events in Europe, but to date we have not let it disturb our economic system.

Looking at the economic scene, we find that cash wholesale prices have risen about 10% over those of a year ago, but this income has not materially affected retail prices and the day-to-day living costs of Mr. and Mrs. Average American.

The National Industrial Conference Board reports its cost-of-living index now stands at less than 1% above the level at this time last year. The American family has not felt the pinch of high prices because our increased agricultural and industrial productivity has enabled supply to keep up with the increased demand coming from Europe.

Our European neighbors have not fared so well. The British housewife has experienced a 30% increase in living costs over the pre-war figures. Living costs in France, Sweden, and other European countries has increased rapidly. This means a much lower standard of living in all Europe. Many commodities that normally go into the average household budget in Europe are scarce because they are being used to feed and clothe the armies.

Are we Americans for higher prices as the war progresses? Undoubtedly the prices of some commodities will go up, for the war is bound to disrupt many trade channels. The price of automobile tires, for example, has already gone up because of the uncertainty of the raw rubber situation in the Dutch and British colonies.

But we can expand the production of most of our farm and dairy products, as well as steel, copper, rayon, and other necessities when demand warrants it, and this can prevent higher prices in these important commodities.

Consequently, unless we have both a domestic business boom which will greatly stimulate domestic buying and the placing of greater European war orders than we have had to date, I do not look for any great increase in the cost of living for some time.

Men between the ages of 18 and 35 years can work, study and play while earning a comfortable living in the U. S. Army. Local post offices throughout the country can supply information concerning how to enlist.

Young men who join the U. S. Army are assured a steady job, a steady income, and numerous other advantages for at least three years, the period of enlistment. Recruits are now being sought.

Uncle Sam is mending his defenses. Young men are needed for some of the newer arms and services. Local post offices and recruiting stations can supply necessary information.

An army moves on its stomach. Huge motorized rolling kitchens traveling at high speeds, prepare meals while enroute so that when the column halts for dinner, the food is ready to serve. Men are now being enlisted for the 7th Cavalry Brigade, mechanized unit of the U. S. Army.

ON THE day after the adjournment of the Republican national convention in Chicago in 1920, Thoreau Cronyn, of the New York Herald, telegraphed to his newspaper an uncommonly good description of the getaway. For an opening paragraph he wired this quotation: "The Captains and the Kings depart." Did his opening paragraph get by the alert copy editor? When Cronyn got a copy of his paper on his way back East, this is what he read: "The political captains and the managers of the convention have left this city." That was nearly five years ago but Cronyn has been an embittered and a changed man ever since.

"A PIECE OF THE WAY"

When we were children, we merely wanted to extend our visit a little longer by having our hosts accompany us, like many outriders of a king, as we returned to our castles. Not infrequently the children went all of the way home with us and then begged that we be allowed to accompany them back to the cross fence or the end of the pasture. Sometimes we managed to kill several extra minutes thus and put off the chores as long as possible. Regardless of how many times we started away from each other, we had to go through all of the time-honored ways of saying good-bye. When we left the houses, we went through all of the formalities with the mother and insisted on her coming to see our mother. Down the path a piece we would yell back the whole rigamarole again. Then at the parting of the ways we told each other good-bye again and again, requesting a return visit at the very earliest possible date. After we parted, we screamed back and forth as long as we could be heard. "Parting is such sweet sorrow."

Somewhat I miss the neighborliness of this old habit. We get into such a hurry these days that we hardly value our neighbors. The world is so large that we can find friends everywhere and are not confined to the narrow little community where chance has left us. But in having the world for our neighbor we lose some of the little intimacies that still mean everything in a big, busy world. Sometimes, when I am fearful of the responsibilities that mature life has brought, I wish I could go a-visiting across the fields again in the same calm way of forty years ago and loiter on the way home, accompanied by the same artless, innocent children that I used to know. All of us are middle-aged now and would probably stumble on some of the rough places made rougher by our bifocals; we might even drop one of our false plates and have to search in the weeds and grass for it. But, anyway, the leisurely walk along the path across the brook, by the hollow-tree mailbox that we once used, and down through the orchard would restore some of the love of life that we may have lost in growing up and raising our families. I could ride by stick horse along the path and show off his gait. Sally could wade in the creek to her heart's delight, away from the watchful eyes of her mother. Both of us could climb the trees by the brook and endanger the few skimpy clothes that we used to wear.

Now this is not the raving of a man who has been disappointed in life, for it has been lots of fun to live and experience all that comes to a normal, healthy being. It is a lament, rather, for some of the finest things that human society worked out in other years, things that our complex living finds hard to enjoy. "Without haste, without rest," as in the proverb, was the life of the country boy of the last generation before this. He was never idle a moment, but he made idleness itself a type of activity. He came and went leisurely, in spite of the nagging of his elders; he found rest, not on expensive vacations, but, like the heart, right in the midst of activity.

rice Jones. Members then viewed Mrs. Brann's garden which was very pretty, with about eight vegetables to eat at present. Lemonade and cookies were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Lis Moore and Mrs. Burrice Jones.

In these days of strife across the ocean let us think and hope that it can never come to us. The stars and stripes are a symbol of Democracy. Democracy is but another name of the Christian principle operating in all its purity as expressed by a nation. Democracy gives to each and every person the right to make use of all his powers, regardless of birth, rank or estate. Democracy draws its strength from the life giving air of freedom, action and service for Democracy is love. In this United States we enjoy freedom that is certainly Christ-given, for this country of ours has ever acknowledged God as the supreme being that directs the affairs of the nation. Surely no great harm will come to us with a motto like this.

11 Times as Many Deaths from Typhoid Fever

in 1910 as in 1934

The percentages are being lowered each succeeding year, and how thankful we should be. You can remember when there were numbers of typhoid cases every summer, either in your family or within your personal acquaintanceship.

PALMERSVILLE NEWS

The American Legion Auxiliary Post 55 of Martin met with Mrs. W. C. Cantrell last Thursday for an all-day picnic. Each lady brought a well-filled basket of good things and at the noon hour a sumptuous feast was enjoyed by the following: Mesdames C. M. Martin, Hoyt Kennedy, Lizzie Nowlin, C. M. Cunningham, Lolla Condra, Paul Riggin, Lillie Parham, Harry Howard, Erwin Mansfield, Elbridge Mayo, J. H. Smith, Ray Buckley, Harrison Bowlin, Victoria Tyson, and Misses Lyril Kennedy, Ina, Avo and Millie Tyson, Kara Mayo, Mary Jane Condra. After lunch a short business meeting was held, then a reading by Billie Gene Cantrell, "House with Nobody In It," and a musical number by Mrs. Harrison Bowlin, followed by each member telling her hobby, which brought many laughs.

Elder W. O. Miller of Wheeler, Miss., filled his appointment Saturday and Sunday at the Primitive Baptist church. On Friday before next third Sunday, our days of meetings will begin. Elder J. Walter Hendricks of Savannah, Ga., will be our preacher.

Mrs. Charlie Pentecost, Mrs. Herman Biggs and Mrs. W. C. Cantrell were visitors in Dresden Friday afternoon and attended the Garden Club.

Mrs. German Brown, garden leader, was hostess to the Ladies' Club Friday afternoon. Fourteen members and three children were present. A paper, "Breathe Freely" was read by Mrs. Douglas Brann. "Wilderness Mother" was read by Mrs. Lula Biggs. A business meeting was held and each club member is to give to these in charge of hot lunches 3 half-gallon jars each. A contest was won by Mrs. Bur-

THE BOY

"HAS NO FUTURE"

He is an American boy.

There are some fifteen million lads just like him in America; just as young, just as eager, just as full of promise.

Yet there are people who feel sorry for these boys. They tell us American initiative is dying, American frontiers are gone. They say there is no opportunity and no future for youth in this country.

Do you believe such statements? We people of your electric company don't believe them, and we'll tell you why:

Fifty years ago the electric industry had barely begun its existence. The same is true of the automobile industry. It is even more true of the radio and aviation industries. Coming right up to date, here are a few of the things we didn't have as recently as 1930:

Streamline trains. Transoceanic air service. New plastics and resins. Plywoods strong as steel. Fiber glass for insulation and textiles. Synthetic rubber. Synthetic hosiery. Synthetic vitamins. Sulfanilamide and sulfapyridine, drugs that are revolutionizing medicine.

There are always new frontiers and new futures in America. In good times and bad, Americans work to make the good things of life better and to make them available to more people at less cost. The employees of your electric company are typical: their efforts have helped make it possible for this company to give far better service than it could give twelve or fifteen years ago, and to charge about half what was charged then. The average customer can now use about twice as much electricity as he did then for no more money.

The men of your electric company and other electric companies were once American boys. They believed in their own futures and the future of their country. They proved themselves right by working to make the future better for themselves and their fellow citizens. They hope today's young Americans will not listen to defeatism and pessimism, because they know that everyone in America has a future if he sincerely believes he has.

True Contentment

MOST PEOPLE would agree that contentment is a valuable asset, and would willingly give much to be assured of its lasting possession. Considered, however, from the material standpoint, this state of consciousness seems to be of a fleeting nature. One may temporarily experience a false sense of contentment or satisfaction over some material possession, or because of some human condition or situation, but such a source of contentment is never lasting, for material possessions may suddenly be lost, or circumstances may be altered, and contentment give place to bitterness, dissatisfaction, and restlessness. Or one may feel that the gaining of certain desires or the realization of some particular ambition will bring contentment, only to find that such attainments, when secured, have failed to bring the expected satisfaction.

What is true contentment? May it not be defined as satisfaction, or restfulness of spirit, as serenity and peace of mind? Paul declares (Philippians 4:11), "I am, therewith to be content." Whence came to Paul the wonderful sense of peace and contentment that could not be disturbed or changed by any untoward condition or circumstance? It came from his knowledge and understanding of God, his recognition of the value and permanence of spiritual things and the nothingness of all that the material senses hold desirable and valuable. . . . Man reflects the abundance and affluence of infinite Love, the omnipotence of Truth, the eternity of Life. Man, as the idea of God, possesses by reflection all the good that God has, even as the beloved Master, Christ Jesus, implied in his parable of the prodigal, where the father said to the elder brother (Luke 15:31), "Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine." True contentment, then, comes to us in the degree of our spiritual understanding of the fact of man's eternal unity with God, the source of all good. It is an attribute of divine Mind, and therefore it is a natural quality, which man forever expresses, along with all the other attributes of God, spontaneously and without effort.

When we gain the assurance that man is ever one with God, that he is spiritual, perfect, and complete, lacking nothing that is necessary to the full and perfect expression of God, good, of Life and Love, we shall have attained to spiritual contentment, and it will be unchangeable and enduring.

Nothing can mar it or take it from us, for this exalted spiritual consciousness must of necessity destroy those disturbing and unhappy conditions of thought which find expression in dissatisfaction, covetousness, jealousy, envy, selfishness, and greed, and such unlovely traits as pride and self-satisfaction. It silences the craving of the human mind for constant acquisition of material things, and dissolves the restlessness and continual urge for mere worldly pursuits and the indulging of sensuous pleasures, which never have brought, and never can bring, happiness or contentment. It replaces the false satisfaction of worldliness and worldly knowledge with spiritual ideals and joys, and enables us to understand and appreciate the words of Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, where she writes in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 452), "Better is the frugal intellectual repast with contentment and virtue, than the luxury of learning with egotism and vice."

Again, true spiritual contentment does not mean surrender to idleness, laziness, or self-satisfaction in what has already been accomplished, a specious contentment with half-way achievement, with things attempted but not fully completed. On the contrary, discontent with oneself, a discontent that spurs one to greater effort in a worthy undertaking or cause, is helpful and beneficial. Spiritual understanding awakens thought to the appreciation of true values, and a desire to attain greater spiritual growth and achievement.

He who possesses true contentment possesses great spiritual riches, a treasure of priceless worth, and all may attain to it who are willing to seek for it and pay the price. And the price is self-surrender to God, divine Love, a willingness to put aside our belief in a material selfhood and our material sense of things, and joyously, gratefully, humbly, as little children, put our trust and faith in the omnipotence and omnipresence of the infinitely tender, compassionate Father-Mother, Love, who giveth liberally and spontaneously all good to all His beloved children. Thus may we prove the truth of Mrs. Eddy's declaration (ibid., p. 494), "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need." What need we more than this joyous assurance to bring us lasting contentment?

—The Christian Science Monitor

"The Attorney General has been requested by me to instruct the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice to take charge of investigative work in matters relating to espionage, sabotage, and violations of the neutrality regulations.

"This task must be conducted in a comprehensive and effective manner on a national basis, and all information must be carefully sifted out and correlated in order to avoid confusion and irresponsibility.

"To this end I request all police officers, sheriffs, and all other law enforcement officers in the United States promptly to turn over to the nearest representative of the Federal Bureau of Investigation any information obtained by them relat-

Springtide of Spiritual Joy

IN AN exquisite passage in the Song of Solomon, the "beloved" sings (2:10-12): "Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away. For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come." However variously this passage may have been interpreted, we may perhaps be permitted to see in it, for us, a hint of the call of divine Love to love in the human heart to awake from the dream of life in matter, to see the ever-appearing freshness and beauty of true being. Among the seasons, each of them bringing its wealth of beauty and variety, spring is thought of by many, especially by those who are acquainted with the rigors of winter, as the season most frequently illustrative of the awakening of new hopes, aspiration, courage, and inspiration.

Mary Baker Eddy, who was a lover of nature in its various forms, in a beautiful article, "Voices of Spring," in "Miscellaneous Writings" has written (p. 329), "Spring is my sweetheart," using a metaphor which points to the ever-awakening of love, of gentleness, tenderness, sympathy; and she adds that its "voices are sad or glad, even as the heart may be; restoring in memory the sweet rhythm of unforgetten harmonies, or touching tenderly its tearful tones." Thus does love mingle with love in all the sympathetic interests of the human experience. How the ever-recurring expression of love, in families and among friends, sweetens human lives, brightening the heart's harmonious meditations! Are they not easily likened to the return of springtime, after the long chill of winter? And even in those times when summer shades through most of the year, the loveliness of the verdure only more continuously reminds one that "flowers appear on the earth; and the time of the singing of birds is come."

So, in our daily experiences, even though at times there may seem to be the chilling clouds of depression, the voice of Love is ever calling to spiritual sense, "Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away;" and in obeying the call we shall "come away" from the dream of life and intelligence in matter, away from the beliefs of mortal discords, and see, through enlightened spiritual vision that "flowers appear on the earth," that in every experience we may rejoice in the beauty and the harmony of the real and eternal. There is no dearth of beauty, freshness, and goodness in the reality of spiritual being, no lack or loss, no chilling discords, no absence of Love and its loveliness.

If, however, in the dream of material experience, there seems to be some reason for sadness, then indeed "the time of the singing of birds" is come; then should we lift our hearts in songs of gratitude for the ever-present harmony of real being, of life in infinite divine Love.

How swiftly "the long winter of our discontent" melts into the springtide of joy and gladness, when we obediently respond to the call of Love, "Rise up, my love, my fair one," for love, reflecting Love, God, is indeed fair and beautiful, peace-bringing and satisfying! Now, what is one to do about the difficulties, the wrongs, the sorrows, which seem ever to haunt the footsteps of the human family? In the article mentioned above, Mrs. Eddy refers to these things and to the lessons in spiritual overcoming to be gleaned from them, and she asks (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 331): "When downtrodden like the grass, did it make them humble, loving, obedient, full of good odor, and cause them to wait patiently on God for man's rich heritage—'dominion over all the earth'? Thus abiding in Truth," she assures us, "the warmth and sunlight of prayer and praise and understanding will ripen the fruits of Spirit, and goodness will have its springtide of freedom and greatness."

ing to espionage, counter-espionage, sabotage, subversive activities and violations of the neutrality laws." Since that time there has been considerable agitation in the mind of the general public concerning subversive activities in various parts of the nation. It has become advisable that investigation of these matters be conducted on a national scale by a national agency which will in turn make its report to the proper designated Federal agency.

The agency selected for this service, by the Attorney General, is the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, which has headquarters in various parts of the United States.

As a means of more closely coordinating these activities in Kentucky and being of greater aid to this agency itself, it is very much desired by our Government that all persons, group and officials who wish to report any matter pertaining to what they consider subversive activities make such report to the Kentucky office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, 633 Broadway Building, Sixth and Broadway, Louisville.

These reports should be brief and concise, giving the names, locations and activities in order that the Department may be fully advised of the facts and circumstances of each case. All communication, of course, being confidential.

It is well to remember that individual citizens as well as groups and officials can play an important roll in these matters. It is also important to keep in mind that constitutional rights of individuals' welfare and interest of the general public.

May we urge wide publicity of this important information in order that every citizen may be properly

"Display" Farms Show Value Of Electricity to Agriculture

Millions have inspected this modern all-electric demonstration farm.

By IRA MILLER
Farm Electrification Bureau

SEEING is believing! From time to time, electrical manufacturers, private and public power companies, and state agricultural colleges have established demonstration or model farms to show the practical value of the more than 200 uses of electricity in agriculture. In most instances, these farms have been converted from old-time manual or semi-mechanical operation to full electrification of nearly every farmstead and household chore.

Such farms—always open for public inspection—have been the means of acquainting thousands of farmers with the multitude of ways in which electricity can contribute to their convenience, comfort and safety. Accurate and careful cost records maintained on each piece of equipment have provided positive and indisputable evidence—if it were needed—not only of the economy of electrical operation but also of the fact that it actually makes and saves money for the farmer.

which go to make up this practical working farm.

Sponsored by the private electric light and power companies of the country, this farm shows more than 100 applications of electricity on the farmstead as well as in the farm home. Every piece of equipment, every use of electricity—in the house and outbuildings—is of every-day value and use to the average farmer and, even more important, well within his means.

Every farmer who is interested in making the maximum use of electricity, and who can possibly or should combine business with pleasure and visit the electrified farm at the World's Fair. If it is not practical for him to do that, he should make a particular effort to inspect a demonstration farm if there is one in his vicinity.

Another farm display that many thousands of farmers already have attended is the Rural Electrification Administration's "Farm Equipment Tour" which has been visiting various parts of the country since the latter part of 1938. Made possible through the cooperation of the manufacturers and distributors of electrical equipment with various federal and state agencies and local projects, this tour is in effect an electrified farm on wheels. Some 20 trucks and trailers make up the show which should be viewed by every farmer and his family in the electrified districts through which it passes.

Richard Adams and John Roland Harrison won blue ribbons in the State Farm Demonstration contest held at the University of Kentucky last week. The subject of their demonstration was "Making Sugar Cured Bacon on the Farm."

Junior Week was highly enjoyed by the Fulton County delegates attending.

Do not give up your garden to insects. They are all controllable. Call or write to your county agent for information on the control of garden insects.

The Beef Cattle tour and Picnic that was planned to be held on June 26 has been postponed to a later date due to the condition of work the farmers are in at the present time. The tour and picnic will be held after the wheat harvest is over.

National Corn Champ Tells How It's Done

The winner—Clark W. Dellinger.

It wasn't done with mirrors, that record-smashing official yield of 180.1 bushels of corn per acre which made Clark W. Dellinger, Clark County, Indiana, 1939 national champion corn producer. The enormous production was the result of a systematic use of the latest and best corn-growing practices.

The five-acre plot in a 14-acre field on the Ohio River bottom which Dellinger chose for his crop was naturally fertile, but it came a long way from the perfection which he set as his standard. The land had usually been planted to corn. Last year he allowed it to make a tremendous undergrowth, which was plowed under about nine inches deep in May. The land was fitted by two double discings, two harrowings, and two culpackings before planting. Corn of the Johnson County white variety, of his own growing and selection, was planted late in May. It was rowed three feet each way, with from two to three kernels per hill.

Though the land was rich, he knew that it had been used and was not up to its once virgin fertility, so he added fertilizer of 0-14-6 analysis, applying it to the hill at the rate of 125 pounds per acre. Six cultivations through the growing season cleared the way.

H. R. Smalley, Director of Soil Improvement Work, The National Fertilizer Association, commenting on why the corn champion used fertilizer on rich soil, said, "Big yields take fertility from the richest soil. The grain alone removed from Dellinger's land 250 pounds of plant food per acre. A 50-bushel corn crop, including stover, removes 156 pounds of plant food from the land—82 pounds of nitrogen, 29 pounds of phosphoric acid, and 25 pounds of potash. Return of this plant food to the soil is essential to continuing yields."

That charity which longs to publish itself, ceases to be charity.—Hutton.

As your enemies and your friends, so are you.—Lavater.

Fine Medicine Enjoys Great Sales

Eighteen years ago Mr. Nash began manufacturing a medicine for temporary Constipation, Biliousness caused by unbalanced diet and the most prevalent type of Malaria in the Southern United States. He named his formula Nash's C. & L. Tonic and Laxative.

At that time Mr. Nash had no money to advertise but due to his many years of experience he made such a good medicine that his satisfied users became his best advertisers. Last year nearly a million bottles were sold on his personal guarantee and only an average of one bottle in each nine hundred was returned for refund.

If you have no organic trouble but suffer from either of these ailments Mr. Nash urges that you try Nash's C. & L. and if you are not satisfied your druggist is authorized to refund every cent you have paid. Give Nash's C. & L. Tonic and Laxative a chance to help you. Price 50 cents.

For sale by all good Drug Stores and featured by Evans Drug Co. and Bennett Drug Store.

ELECTRIC SERVICE RATES REDUCED IN FULTON

Our policy is to lower the price of electricity as often as economic conditions permit. We are therefore putting into effect, as of June 16, the second rate cut made here in 1940. On the basis of 1939 usage these two reductions will result in additional savings for our customers in the cost of current.

NEW RESIDENTIAL RATES

$1.00 Minimum Monthly Charge, Includes 14 Kilowatt-hours
5.25c per kwh for the next 36 kwh
3c per kwh for the next 150 kwh
2.5c per kwh for all over 200 kwh
1c per kwh for off-peak water-heating where customer has electric range

NEW COMMERCIAL RATES

$1.00 Minimum Monthly Charge, Includes 14 Kilowatt-hours
5.5c per kwh for the next 36 kwh
5c per kwh for the next 200 kwh
3c per kwh for all additional kwh

MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

RESIDENTIAL ELECTRIC SERVICE COST COMPARISON

NOW YOU GET 16.6% MORE CURRENT FOR $1.00

In 1934—You got 12 kilowatt-hours for the $1.00 minimum charge you paid each month.
In 1940—You get 14 kilowatt-hours for the $1.00 minimum monthly charge.

Thus you receive 16.6% more electricity (2 kwh) at no additional cost.

YOU SAVE 17.3% NOW IN THE COST OF 25 KILOWATT-HOURS

In 1934—25 kilowatt-hours cost you $1.91 Yearly
In 1940—25 kilowatt-hours cost you 1.58 Saving
Monthly saving to you 17.3%, or.....$ .33 $3.96

YOU SAVE 11.4% NOW IN THE COST OF 50 KILOWATT-HOURS

The vivid term "Fifth Column," has an ominous significance these days. It first came into use during the Spanish civil war, when an insurgent general announced that he had four columns of soldiers driving toward Madrid — and a Fifth Column, consisting of spies, saboteurs and other enemies of the Spanish Republic, within the city. And since then, we have seen Fifth Columns operating with almost demoniac efficiency and success in other parts of the world. The Nazis have developed the Fifth Column technique to an extraordinarily high level—to a very large extent, the collapse of Norway, Iceland, Poland, and Belgium was due to the activities of Nazi sympathizers and purchased terrorists within those besieged nations. Somber rumors of Fifth Column work have even come from France—as witness the recent wholesale dismissal of 15 or 20 French generals who had, according to Premier Reynaud, made inexcusable and impossible-to-understand blunders. And in the British Isles, the authorities have gone to unprecedented ends to ferret out and arrest any and all persons who might be expected to aid a German invasion.

That the high officials of the United States are tremendously worried by the specter of Fifth Column activity here, goes without saying. The President has mentioned it in a speech, and it widely believed that his suggestion that he be empowered to call out the National Guard in peace-time was based on a fear that some such step might become necessary to put down Fifth Columnists at home. At the moment, the potential U. S. Fifth Column consists of avowed Hitlerites—the bulk of whom are organized in the German-America bands and similar societies—and, to a lesser extent, the Communists, who have been running around in circles attempting to justify Lenin's denunciation of imperialism and conquest with Stalin's Communist Nazi pact and the Russian invasion of Finland.

The expected Fifth Column technique in this country is simple and rational. In the words of the President, the Fifth Columnists would attempt to "create confusion of counsel, public indecision, political paralysis and, eventually, a state of panic." In other words, the purpose would be to prevent the attainment of anything resembling national unity. Group would be set against group, class against class, jealousy and hate would be fomented. It is apparent that a start has already been made to this end by alien groups. And, according to Dies Committee evidence, it is a fact that both the Moscow and Berlin governments have paid Fifth Column agents actively at work here.

After the policy of confusion would actually come sabotage and terrorism. And there is a widely held fear that we may see this before long, as the armament program swings into high gear. Finally, once the country was thoroughly disorganized, minority groups would attempt to take over the government. We are now embarked on a war against the Fifth Column. The Government has moved cautiously, but it is moving. Registration and observation of aliens is likely to come soon—the proposal that the Department of Justice be given control of the Immigration Service shows the way the wind is blowing. And far more severe measures are envisioned.

There is an obvious danger in all this—and a danger that is exceedingly hard to avoid. That danger is that anti-Fifth Column work may become a hysterical witch-hunt. People would exploit personal grudges by unjustly denouncing others to the authorities—vigilante groups operating outside the law but supported by enraged public opinion, would come into being. The experience of the last war should be recalled, when we went to ridiculous lengths in prosecuting people of German and Austrian heritage whose patriotism was unqualified. Responsible government officials say that every effort will be given to protecting the innocent as well as apprehending the guilty—and that is one tough job.

While the public at large watches Europe, and is mesmerized by the carnage in the Old World, experts are watching the Far East and Latin America.

Japan has not, as feared, moved to seize or "protect" the Dutch Indies—prime source of vital U. S. rubber and tin. But Japanese relations are still in what the diplomats call a deplorable condition.

Leading publicists are urging that the U. S. take the lead in negotiations, on a frank and realistic basis, which might produce a U. S.-Nipponese agreement, fair to both sides, that would assure peace in the Pacific.

The effect of Europe's war on much of Latin America has been disastrous. South America is a major source of Europe's peace-time commodities—and as Hitler's legions have swept on the Latin people have lost tremendously important markets. U. S. wonders how to help compensate for this loss, without creating a new surplus problem at home. Purpose of it all is to keep Latin America as free as possible of Nazi influence—Hitler's agents are working their heads off South of the Rio Grande.

New Product Will Improve Lard

(Special)—A revolutionary new development whereby the addition of extremely small quantities of a vegetable substance obtained from a tree makes possible tremendous improvements in lard, oldest of shortenings, was announced here recently by John Holmes, president of Swift & Company.

The vegetable substance, known as gum guaiac, comes from the sap of the guaiacum tree which grows in the West Indies and Central America. By the addition of minute quantities of this vegetable material it has been found possible to protect lard's natural advantages and at the same time to keep it fresh when the lard is exposed to air without refrigeration.

Regarded by food scientists as the most important lard development in more than 50 years, the discovery is described as of "vital importance" to more than 4,000,000 American hog producers as well as to all housewives, grocers, meat dealers, chefs and bakers.

A search was begun 10 years ago by the company's food research laboratory to find a substance which would protect lard against the effects of oxygen in the air and also enable the food to retain its growth-promoting qualities and other inherent advantages.

Dr. R. C. Newton, chief chemist of Swift & Company, and Dr. D. P. Grettie of his staff, who share responsibility for the discovery, found that the natural juice of the guaiacum tree, added in extremely small amount, protects the lard from oxygen. A direct result is protection of the linoleic constituent in lard which has been shown to be a health factor as important as vitamins, in research carried on at the University of Minnesota. Lard is the richest known source of this vital element.

Mr. Holmes said the new lard is an important advance because it is odorless, bland in flavor and is resistant to oxidation.

"These are all qualities the modern housewife wants in shortening and cooking fat, according to many recent surveys," he pointed out.

"Added to lard's previous advantages, including high digestibility, the greatest shortening power, high energy value, plasticity at low temperatures, economy and general desirability for biscuits, bread, pies, cakes, and other baked goods, these new qualities give lard a premier position among all shortenings."

"From the grocers and meat dealer's viewpoint," Mr. Holmes continued, "the new bland lard is an important discovery because it means more effective merchandising and selling effort can be put behind the product. Its longer keeping quality makes this possible."

A four-year study of lard containing gum guaiac, under a fellowship with the Department of Physiology at the University of Chicago, resulted in what Mr. Holmes described as "completely favorable findings after the most exhaustive tests of the kind ever made." The company then applied to the United States Department of Agriculture for permission to make the new product under federal inspection. Permission was recently granted for production at the company's Chicago plant.
