LIBRARY CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS STARTS TUESDAY

On Tuesday, May 19, the library committee of the Woman's Club will start their campaign to raise funds for the ensuing year's work. Fulton is said to have one of the best libraries in the state for a town this size, and the Library Board of the Woman's Club is anxious to maintain its reputation.

Every loyal citizen of Fulton should do his or her part to see that the committee does not fail in its efforts to raise sufficient funds this year. It would be a calamity to close the library. So let everybody help to make the campaign a success.

SPLENDID PROGRAM PRESENTED AT WOMAN'S CLUB MEET

Reports of Year's Work Made at Last Meeting.

Another splendid year of work of the Woman's Club came to a close with the May meeting held Friday afternoon in the club room. The program committee presented one of the best and most delightful programs of the year. The president, Mrs. Jake Huddleston, presided over the business session, at which time reports of officers and amended reports of the departments were given.

Mrs. Pomp Binford, chairman of the Library Board, gave the library report and announced the date for the library drive for May 19. She spoke of the lack of funds to carry on this work and asked co-operation of each club member in working this much needed drive.

Mrs. J. E. Fall, chairman of the Art Department, reported an enjoyable year's study of French Art, and modern painting is the study chosen for next year. Other club members were invited to join this department.

Mrs. Huddleston reported the Community Service Department had planted trees around the cemetery and sent books to the poor farm and assisted in other community activities. Mrs. Binford reported an interesting study of three of Shakespeare's plays in the Literature Department.

The Music Department had a most successful year's work, according to reports given by Miss Doris Huddleston, chairman. Their study has been of Scandinavian music.

Mrs. Clarence Reed, chairman of the Drama Department, reported a delightful year's work in study of selected operas and concert drama in the Theatre Magazine.

It was announced that the Garden Department would sponsor a flower show in October. This department has enjoyed a profitable study during the year. All departments were urged to have their program ready for the year book at an early date.

The date for the state convention of Federated Women's Clubs was announced for May 18 to 21, at Frankfort, Ky., and a cordial invitation given to club members to attend. Delegates elected to represent the club were Mesdames Jake Huddleston, L. O. Bradford, Walter Willingham and Warren Graham. Alternates were Mesdames Gus Bard, Joe Browder, R. S. Williams and Miss Dorothy Phillips.

Resolutions to be voted upon at this meeting were read to the club by the president. Miss Doris Huddleston, of the program committee, presided during the presentation of the following program:

Paper on Some Outstanding Women of the Present Day, Mrs. Clarence Reed.

Vocal Solo: Year's at the Spring—Mrs. Chas. Brann, accompanied by Miss Sara Butt.

Reading: Little Women of Mine and the Woman Who Understands—Miss Eva McKendree.

Piano Solo—Miss Butt.

Vocal Trio: Rain—Mrs. R. S. Williams, Miss Frances Galbraith and Miss Mary Belle Warren. Mrs. Gus Bard, accompanist.

Encore—Nursery Rhymes. During the social hour tea and sandwiches were served.

More than one Fulton married man has moments when he feels that the hardest thing his family has to do is to figure out some way to spend him into the poorhouse.

Brieflets

How many Fulton old-timers can remember when a rift of smoke from a clump of woods didn't attract a bunch of revenue agents?

An eastern wag declares that the reason you can't play poker on a battleship is because the captain is always sitting on the deck.

Hand-painted china is all right, but it's hard to work up very much enthusiasm over a hand-painted face.

A lot of fellows around Fulton realize by this time that one reason they are poor is because their parents were honest.

A London dispatch says King George has to support 150 relatives. A lot of Americans know just how he must feel.

The modern woman's idea of showing backbone is to have no waist in the rear of her evening dress.

There are still left quite a few Fulton citizens who can remember when they argued over whether the tiddledy-winks or lotto was the most exciting game.

The modern flapper's idea of a hot time does not consist in standing over a hot stove in the kitchen.

Among the helpful hints in an agricultural paper we read that "Cows will give more milk if given more water." So will a milk can.

The good old days in Fulton were those when the chickens were given the table scraps that are now made over into salads.

Marriage would be a far more successful game if so many fellows didn't forget who is their partners.

Fashion experts who predict the return of the old-fashioned hop-skirt evidently have not taken the rumble-seat into consideration.

When old-time Fulton girls lost their complexions they worried about it. But not any more. Now they go out and buy a new one.

About the only state in the world that is governed entirely by women is the state of matrimony.

An Unusual Dessert

WOULD you like to know a peach of a dessert in which peaches are used in an unusual way? It's an elaborate cake, but the very first taste will convince you that it was well worth all the trouble you took.

Here it is

Peach Croissant: Make a sponge of one yeast cake, one-fourth cup warm water, one teaspoon sugar, one-third cup evaporated milk, one-third cup hot water and one cup flour. Cover, and let rise till very light. Add four beaten eggs, two-thirds cup butter, one-half cup sugar, two teaspoons salt and about three and one-half cups flour to make dough. Knead well, and let rise till double in bulk in a greased bowl, covered. Cut down, knead slightly, and pat or roll out into a thin rectangle. Brush with butter and spread one cup of chopped, well-drained canned peaches and two-thirds cup chopped vacuum packed walnuts along the center. Sprinkle with brown sugar, and bring the long sides of the rectangle together in the middle, pinching well. Place roll in a greased pan in the shape of a crescent or half moon. Brush with butter, and let rise till double in size. Bake in moderate, 350 degrees, oven for about twenty minutes. When slightly cool, cover with white icing made of confectioner's sugar, cream and orange extract.

Better Breakfasts

THE first thing that you eat in the morning should be something that will make you feel good all day. If more brides knew that, there would be fewer bridegroom glowers to bring on bride's showers of tears. Everyone wants to help a little bride, so here's a good dish to start the day with, and the menu for the rest of the breakfast, too, for good measure:

Morning Fruit Cocktail: Remove the sections of four tangerines, keeping them as whole and as free from membrane as possible. Add to the contents of a No. 2 can of grapefruit, and chill thoroughly over night. This will make enough to serve six, but let hubby have all he wants. It won't hurt him. And for the rest of the breakfast, have whole wheat cereal with raisins, corn meal cakes with syrup, and a hot beverage. Then watch hubby smile.

Vacuum Packed

There's just one point you should be careful about in the hot beverage for modern breakfasts, and that is to have it vacuum packed. Whether you are providing hubby with a product without caffeine which still gives him the coffee taste or with the real coffee which is now the national drink of America, you should buy it in the vacuum packed cans which have kept out the oxygen. For the action of oxygen is what hurts coffee and coffee products. When oxygen comes in contact with them, they lose flavor and aroma at a rapid rate.

In Case of Emergency

When you want a thing in a hurry you rush to a local store and get it. But do you realize that the existence of our stores depends upon continued business.

If every person in this community were to use the stores only for emergencies there would soon be no more places to satisfy those urgent needs.

The Best Buying Policy

You should do your part towards keeping local business alive and in a constant state of betterment by doing all your trading at home. It will be profitable to you as well as to the entire community.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, (C. 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for May 17

JESUS ENTERS JERUSALEM AS KING

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:29-48. GOLDEN TEXT—These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them; for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings; and they that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches the People That He Is King.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches the People That He Is King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to the King.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Supremacy of Jesus.

This event is frequently designated as the "triumphal entry" which is somewhat misleading. While it was his official entry into Jerusalem, it was far from being a triumphal entry. In fulfillment of prophecy the Messiah officially presented himself to the Jewish nation. It seems that back of the cry "Hosanna" was taking form the awful word "crucify." It is possible that the word "crucify" was uttered by some of the same persons who had cried "Hosanna." Though they were utterly blind to the fact, God was about to carry out his plan of Hosanna which means "save now" through the crucifixion of his son.

I. The Preparation (vv. 29-34).

1. Sending the disciples for the ass (vv. 29-30). He told them just where to go to find it, and how to answer the inquiry of the one who owned it. This shows how perfectly the Lord knows all our ways.

2. The fulfillment of prophecy (Zech. 9: 9, Cf. Matt. 21: 4, 5).

Some five hundred years before, Zechariah had predicted this event. Christ's entry into Jerusalem was an exact fulfillment of this prediction. This is highly instructive to those who would understand the as yet unfulfilled prophecies. Since the predictions of his first coming were literally fulfilled, we can expect the second to be literally fulfilled also. The first is established beyond a doubt. The second we should as heartily believe. The prediction of Zechariah 14: 3-4 will be just as literally fulfilled as that of Zechariah 9: 9.

3. Obedience of the disciples (vv. 32-34).

The request may have seemed strange and even unreasonable, yet they fully obeyed. The true disciple will render glad obedience to the Lord, no matter how strange his commands may seem. Obedience to that only which seems reasonable is not obedience at all. May we prove that we are really his disciples by obeying him.

II. The Entry of the King (vv. 35-38).

1. The disciples set Jesus upon the ass (v. 35).

This act of putting the garments upon the ass and setting Jesus upon it showed that they recognized him as their king (11 Kings 9:13).

2. Acclaimed as king by the disciples (vv. 36-38).

Some spread their garments in the way, others perhaps having no garments to spare cut down branches of trees and strewed them in his way. This, no doubt, was just as acceptable to him. They praised God for all the mighty works which they had seen.

III. The Critical Pharisees (vv. 39, 40).

Although swept along by the demonstrations of the multitude, the Pharisees deemed it prudent to ask the Lord to rebuke the disciples, as such behaviour might be interpreted by the Roman government as an insurrection. To their demand Jesus replied that such homage was not only fitting but necessary. He declared that if the multitude were silent, the very stones would cry out.

IV.—The King Rejected (vv. 41-44). Christ knew what awaited him in Jerusalem. Though surrounded by loyal hearts, he knew that the rulers of the nation had no heart for him. His coming trial and death loomed before him so that he wept over Jerusalem. He knew what awful days awaited it and that loyal hearts would gladly welcome him if they only knew. He showed them that their inability to see him as their King and Saviour would result in bringing upon them the destruction of their city.

V. The King Taking Possession of His Own House (vv. 45-48).

Upon entering the city he rebuked the rulers for allowing the house of God to become degraded by carrying on traffic therein for gain. The cleansing of the temple only increased their hatred and opposition to him. The chief priests and scribes even sought his destruction.

Christian Service

There is something deadly in Christian service, where "the excellency of the power" is of us and not of God. The tragedy in so many lives is here; they have no adequate power, home, and when they are confronted with a supremely difficult task they fail to cope with it and are disastrously overwhelmed.—Jewett.

Community Building

New Importance Given to City Shade Trees

A writer in The American City calls attention to the fact "that nature is a better artist than man when his work is viewed from the air." As seen from an altitude of 1,000 feet or more the rounded hills, the verdure tinted valleys dotted with lakes, the groves of trees and the contrasting tints of foliage of forest, orchard, hedgerow and glade, present a most satisfying picture. But the appearance of the works of man are mostly a blemish, so long has it been the practice to think of anything upon the roof as out of sight. Thus to the eye of the traveler in the air is presented, wherever towns appear, a sad array of ugly roofs, sooty chimney pots and featureless architectural members supposed by their designers not to matter because not seen from the street below.

The subject presents an entirely new problem. Already there is sufficient importance to air travel to make it worth while to consider the air view of every city. And those who realize the importance which may attach to the subject in the near future, point out that the present practice of sacrificing beautiful shade trees for the sake of street widening, may soon be regretted vainly. It has been remarked in Germany, where this air-consciousness is well advanced, that to modernize Berlin from the architect's new air viewpoint will be simplified greatly by the fact that the city is full of beautiful trees, so massed and aligned as to give a most favorable air view.—Kansas City Times.

Beauty and Utility in Miniature Greenhouse

Twenty-five dollars is estimated as the cost of a greenhouse that can be installed in the average home, following the arrival of midget golf courses and similar institutions.

A home greenhouse for persons of moderate means, described in Woman's Home Companion, consists of a few window sashes of small size; three storm windows, a little lumber and weather strip and a bit of ingenuity. It can be built outside of any ordinary window and will give the illusion of looking out into a garden, besides furnishing much recreation.

A sample greenhouse tried out grew marigolds, calendulas, browallias, heliotrope, cyclamen, lobelia, mignonette and a climbing staphanotis, besides vegetable and flower plants for spring planting. Five minutes a day sufficed for attention to the attractive miniature greenhouse.

Beautifying School Lots

Hundreds of our Missouri rural schools need water-tight roofs vastly more than they need shrubbery, exclusion of children-bearing gusts in winter more than they need flower borders, and a good coat of paint more than they need velvety lawns. At many of them a lawnmower would be far less of a blessing than even one of the rusty pumps to obviate the necessity of carrying the water pail half a mile or more. Nevertheless the Virginia plan of beautifying school lots has a suggestion to be pressed, with due sense of proportion, of course, on Missouri rural districts. The benefits to pupils and to parents as well as assuming guardianship over gem spots of green set in the midst of smiling fields are well understood by teachers.

Why, indeed, should successive school lots be included among the shabbiest of run-down premises encountered in a day's ride along the splendid new highways?—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Be a Booster

When times are hard it behooves every good citizen to be a booster for his own town. Knocking is like a run on a bank. After you have started it it goes like wildfire and like a snowball it gathers as it goes. Soon signs of depression appear, people are afraid to spend, afraid to venture, and the once good times begin to crumble. Be a booster. It gives courage. It is catching and soon your united efforts will have the old place ringing with cheer and good fellowship and hope in the future will be the keynote of good times.—Marie Blackburn, Pa., in Grit.

Smoke Causes Big Loss

Smoke which results from the use of bituminous or soft coal and from the improper combustion of other fuels in the heating and power plants of factories, homes and public buildings does an estimated damage of more than $500,000,000 a year in the United States, according to figures made public by the Fuel Research Laboratories.

Consider Home's Entrance

The entrance should be hospitable and so placed as to help the harmony of the building—not necessarily in the exact center of the front wall, but in harmony with the other features of the house.

Swamp Area Made Useful

A swamp area of 268 acres near Minneapolis, Minn., when reclaimed will contain a complete recreational field, with playgrounds, golf course and a 50-acre lake.

MAYFIELD GIRL DIES AS BLAZE WRECKS HOME

Elizabeth Lynn Bruce, 10, Is Trapped In Room and
Burns to Death

FATHER IN HOSPITAL, NOT AWARE OF CHILD'S DEATH

Mayfield, Ky., May 11.—Elizabeth Lynn Bruce, 10-year-old daughter of Boone Bruce, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Bruce home on South Tenth street early this morning. Bruce, in an attempt to rescue his five motherless children from the burning house, was badly burned on his head and neck. His condition is said to be critical. He is in a hospital.

The body of the girl was found by Fire Chief Glover soon after the arrival of the trucks. In their first attempt to find the girl, who it was known was in the house, the firemen were unsuccessful and were told that she had been found. When it was learned she had not been found search was started in the room in the front of the house where Mr. Bruce and his five children had been sleeping.

Chief Glover found the body of the child in the corner of the room. She was lying on her stomach and one arm was shielding her face. She was dead.

About midnight one of the children was awakened by the smell of smoke. Arising, Bruce was unable to turn on the lights and opened the door leading into the hall. The flames rushed into his face and burned him severely. He was unable to close the door, and the flames swept into the room in which Mr. Bruce and his five children, four daughters and one son, Paul Thomas, Armatha, Lynn, Mary and Martha Ellen, the youngest, had been sleeping. He picked up a chair and knocking out the window glass, put two of the girls out. The boy, having been able to get out, went to a window that opened into the bedroom and rushed in and pulled his smallest sister, Martha Ellen, out of the room.

In the excitement in getting out of the room, Elizabeth Lynn either had been overlooked or could not be found. Boone went to the front yard, where he fell, and according to eye witnesses, he was unable to get up for some time.

CROP CONDITIONS GOOD

It is a pleasing sight to take a trip through the country at this time and note conditions on the farm. Soil preparation continues under favorable conditions and it is estimated 50 per cent of planting will be completed this week. There has been sufficient sunshine for warming ground and plenty of rain for a good season.

While the acreage is small in this vicinity wheat is looking good. Much corn has been planted and some already up, showing good stand. The local showers and cool nights have retarded crops. Yet, taking it on an average crop conditions are very satisfactory. South of Fulton a large acreage is in cabbage, but some are complaining of the plants seeding. In the lower end of the county insects have done heavy damage to alfalfa. Acreage of cotton is being reduced in some sections. Tobacco plants are said to be plentiful and a large acreage will be cultivated this year. Large yields of all fruits and vegetables indicated. Home-grown strawberries are coming in at a lively rate and the prices are satisfactory. Pastures are in satisfactory condition and livestock looking good. Warm weather is mostly needed now and if a favorable season continues a bumper crop will be the result.

Not Always SPECTACULAR...

A child swallowed a bead a few weeks ago in Williston, S. C., which lodged in her bronchial tube. Persistent attempts failed to remove it. In desperation, a renowned Philadelphia specialist was called by long distance telephone—he rushed the proper instruments by airplane—the bead was removed—the child's life was saved.

Every day—somewhere—newspapers tell how the telephone has been of priceless service in some emergency, but these spectacular occasions are only high lights in the many regular daily uses for a telephone in the home. The neighborhood grocer—the corner drug store—the doctor—the police and fire departments—and the many friends who make the family's social hours more pleasant—all are only a moment away when you have a telephone.

With all its many advantages, modern telephone service is so low in cost that it really doesn't pay to try to do without it.

A Two Dollar Dinner

TOMATOES, onions, shrimps, pineapple, a fresh vegetable, baking powder biscuits, a fresh fruit and coffee! It seems impossible that one could serve such a dinner as this to six people at a cost of only two dollars, but here are the menu and the recipes for the main dishes:

Tomato and Onion Soup.....25¢
Shrimp and Pineapple Salad.....65¢
Lima Beans in Cream.....37¢
Baking Powder Biscuits.....15¢
Fresh Peach Shortcake with Whipped Cream.....47¢
Coffee.....15¢

Tomato and Onion Soup: Put three tablespoons butter, one cup thinly sliced onions and one teaspoon sugar in a skillet, and sauté till pale yellow. Add two cups water, and boil till onions are tender. Press the contents of one No. 3 can tomatoes through a sieve, and add to the onions with one bouillon cube. Season with salt and pepper. Boil for a moment and serve.

Shrimp and Pineapple Salad: Have the contents of one 5½-ounce can of shrimps, six slices of pineapple (three-fourths of can) diced, and one cup of diced celery well chilled. # Dinner for Four

By MARY CAREY

"UMPH!" said Timmy as the cold spray splashed his fat little chest and "Glug!" said Timmy as he was lifted pink and dripping from his rubber tub.

"Heavens!" cried Timmy's mother, "there's the phone."

"That you, dear?" Peter, on the wire, was stern and businesslike. "I'm bringing the Clarkes home to dinner tonight. Sorry I didn't know a little sooner."

Both gasped. Clarke was the chief engineer, the "boss"; she had never met him, nor his wife. "I'll do my best," she began, "but..."

"Good. Usual train. By, dear."

No details, no explanations; that was Peter for you. "How like a man," thought Beth. "Delicious dinner, charming hostess. Lovely little home—how deeply impressed: 'Never approach you, my ind; do take a vice presidency and $100,000 a year.' Beth grinned to herself. "I'll probably put salt in the fruit-put and spill soup in his lap. No. I won't either. Peter's always teasing me about losing my head. I'll show him this time."

According to Beth's way of thinking, men guests could always be impressed by plenty of good food, women by an immaculate house. The present emergency called for both.

"House cleaned, silver and brass polished, cake made, vegetables ready"—late that afternoon Beth checked over her list on weary fingers.

Fruit-put finished and put on ice, dishes laid out—5:30; strawberries hulled and sugared, cream whipped and sweetened—5:45. Then Tim had to be consoled, messy but jovial, through a great host of omelets.

She was just tucking the baby into his crib when there came the unmistakable sound of rattle, wheezing, Miranda—the family car, turning into the driveway.

Both reached her bedroom closet in three leaps. Thank heavens for modern clothes that slip on over the head in a single motion! Thank heavens for shingled hair! Two minutes later she was at the door, all in white, a calm and gracefully smiling hostess. Mrs. Clarke—how nice of you; and Mr. Clarke? Peter's grin made a silent background of husbandly pride and affection.

The dinner proceeded with the smoothness of perfection. From green shepherd glasses, to the last delicious crunch of strawberry shortcake, not a dish could have looked or tasted better, and the Clarkes were outspokenly appreciative.

"My dear, you're simply marvelous," Mrs. Clarke insisted, as they lingered with real regret over their good-bys. "Such a wonderful dinner; and you do it all so easily and so calmly."

Both glowed with delight. "Oh, it wasn't one bit of trouble. It's all in being systematic, I guess." And at that, over his wife's blond head, Jim Clarke gave his hostess a deliberate and whole-hearted wink.

Fiercely attacking the great piles of dirty dishes, Beth pondered the meaning of that wink. Could it be—spish! went a spoon into the half-filled gravy boat! Beth sprang away from the sputtering dish, bent over her front to look for possible damage and groined aloud in sudden and utter consternation. Pleated edged, inner seams, stitched outlines instead of patch pockets, indentations where buttons should have been—her white crepe de chine sports frock was quite obviously wrong side out!

"Oh, Peter," she wailed, as he came bustling back from his trip to the station. "On, Peter, why didn't you tell me?"

"Tell you what?" He followed her tragically pointing finger and roared with laughter. "Wrong side out! That surely is a good one. I never noticed."

"But Mr. Clarke did, I'm sure. That's why he winked at me when his wife was saying I was so efficient. Oh dear, and you said he hated carelessness above all things?"

"Carelessness? Jim Clarke? Why, he's the world's most absent-minded man. Once, when we were in college..."

Beth interrupted, fiercely calm: "Peter, what Clarke was that?"

He gazed at her blankly. "Why, Jim Clarke, of course. Down from Boston for a visit. I ran into him on Broad street. You've often heard me talk about Jim Clarke. Once when we were in college..."

"Peter Blythe, you never mentioned such a person in your life. You never do mention anything, 'Clarke' to me meant just one person, your boss..."

"You poor infant!" Peter sank onto theavenport and gathered her into his arms. "So you went to all that trouble, and thought you had made such a hit..."

"And then spoiled it by putting on my dress wrong side out!"

"But the big joke," confessed Peter, "is that Clarke isn't my boss any more."

"What?"

"Yep—district manager."

"A ruse?"

"Sure."

She snuggled contentedly against him. "Oh, Peter—and you never told me it's perfectly great, and maybe by the time you get to be vice president I'll really be calm and efficient and everything."

"Maybe," he grinned down at her, "but I rather hope not."

Peas Save Expense

PEAS are one of the most popular of vegetables, and they are now available everywhere all year around in cans. They are not only popular, but inexpensive. Here is a dish of meat and peas, for instance, which will serve four people and which can be had most anywhere at a cost of less than fifty cents.

Frankfurters with Parsley Peas:
Heat the contents of an 11-ounce can of peas for about three minutes, drain, add one tablespoon butter, and season with salt and pepper to taste. Four or five small frankfurters (one pound), and place on top of the peas like the spokes of a wheel. Sprinkle with two tablespoons parsley, and reheat in the oven a few minutes. And here is a dish of peas alone which will serve four people at a cost of not more than twelve cents.

Pea Salads
Don't forget, too, that canned peas are excellent in salads and all ready to combine with the other ingredients. Try this:
Potato and Pea Salad: Marinate the peas from a No. 2 can and two cups diced boiled potatoes in French dressing thoroughly. Add one-half cup diced pickled beets and one tablespoon chopped onion, and moisten with mayonnaise. Serves eight.

POULTRY

POORLY BALANCED
RATION ESCHEWED

Pays Well to Give Pullets
Most Careful Attention.

When chickens are raised by artificial means, the conditions under which they have to grow and develop are often far from ideal. If, in addition to this handicap, their ration is too scanty in amount, or if its composition is unsuited to their needs, there is little hope of being able to grow them at a profit.

Not only this, but the unfavorable influence of wrong conditions early in life may extend throughout the first laying year and so result in a decreased return as compared with the income from a well grown flock.

Carefully controlled experiments have shown that a poorly balanced ration fed to young chickens not only reduces the rate of gain, but also reduces the mature weight of the pullets, increases the age at which the first egg is laid, and materially reduces the number of eggs that will be laid during the first laying year, even though the ration fed to the pullets after they are placed in the laying house may be a good one.

Since next year's income from the poultry enterprise will depend to a large extent on how well the pullets are grown, it is obviously worth while to give them the very best of care and attention from hatching time right on through the summer. The newer information about poultry nutrition shows clearly that there is no one best ration. Either simple or complex mixtures may be used, provided they are balanced with respect to the essential nutrients required by growing pullets.

Leading Cause of Damp Litter Is Water Dishes

When damp litter appears in the laying house, too often the ventilation of the house is blamed and we fail to look for other more common causes of this trouble. While looking for possible causes of damp litter, keep in mind that it takes only a small amount of water to cause poultry litter to seem real damp.

The chief cause of damp litter, in poultry houses is the water fountain or drinking dish. Always look at the watering arrangements first. Often you will find that they leak. Many times they are easily turned over or are open so that the birds walk in them and carry the water on their feet to the litter. Many of the better fountains do not have any of the above faults, but the floor under the fountain is wet. This condition is caused by the water dripping from the beaks and wattles when the birds drink. This is very noticeable where there is not enough fountain space allowed in the pen.

Poultry Facts

The lack of lime in the poultry ration may cause soft-shell or thin and weak-shelled eggs.

The brooder house for turkeys should be moved away from other buildings to ground known to be free from contamination with chicken diseases.

The presence of additional lime in the poultry ration increases the number of eggs produced by laying hens over those produced by hens not receiving lime.

Although culling can be practiced as soon as the chicks are hatched, nearly 40 per cent of an average flock of hens will probably have to be culled between June and September.

In order to make a profit on dressed poultry, farmers should charge from 13 to 20 per cent more for dressed birds than for live ones. Lighter fowls lose the greatest percentage of weight in dressing.

Contrary to the belief of many, lime in the form of oyster shell has no effect on the color of the egg shell.

When pullets are kept in good condition there is a greater likelihood of a sustained egg production. There is also less danger from colds and milt.

No feed has any effect on the color of the egg shell. Feed does have an effect on the color of the egg yolk, but not on the color of the shell.

Do not begrudge the cost of good stock. A dollar saved on the price of a bird is often the very poorest economy; especially in this case where the male bird is concerned. In poultrydom it has practically become a proverb that the male bird is more than half the pen.

There are three minerals that have been demonstrated to be essential in the feeding of poultry. They are lime, phosphorus and salt, and their function is to build bone, make egg shell and aid in digestion.

DAIRY

SUGGESTS THREE
GRAIN MIXTURES

Corn, Oats, Bran and Cottonseed for Dairy Cows.

Feeding dairy cows rations that make for economical milk production is one sure way to cut high feeding costs, states S. M. Salisbury, specialist in animal husbandry at the Ohio State university, who suggests that the most economical grain mixture under present prices consists of corn, oats, bran and cottonseed meal.

When alfalfa hay is available, he recommends that the grain mixture be made up of three parts each of corn, oats, and bran, with one part of cottonseed. But if clover or mixed hay is fed, the ration might be modified to 2 parts each of corn, oats, and bran, and 1 part of cottonseed meal. A good grain mixture to feed with timothy hay consists of equal parts of corn, oats, bran, oil meal and cottonseed meal. These rations may be fed with or without silage at the rate of 1 pound for each 3 or 4 pounds of milk produced.

The most practical method of providing a grain ration for dairy cattle is to feed one of the suggested rations to the entire milking herd, according to Salisbury. If one cow tends to become fat and her milk production falls off too early it is well to add a little extra high protein feed to her ration. This has a tendency to stimulate milk production rather than the accumulation of fat.

If another cow is milking heavily and has a tendency to become too thin, it is best to add extra corn and oats or other high carbohydrate feeds to her ration. It is not practical, he points out, to attempt to make a separate grain mixture for each cow.

As there are about 87.5 pounds of water in every 100 pounds of milk and as a cow consumes three pounds of water for every pound of milk she produces, it is essential that she drink plenty of water, Salisbury says. In cold weather water cups in the barn are oftentimes responsible for a 10 to 15 per cent difference in milk production.

Measuring Efficiency of Cow Is the Latest Task

Electricity's latest task is a boon to the dairy industry. In the laboratories of the College of Agriculture, University of California, at Davis, Calif., there has just been completed a "respiration chamber" in which the input-output efficiency of a cow may be tested electrically. In fact, provisions are made for tests on two cows at one time.

The animals are provided with comfortable stalls in air-tight chambers, and are fed, watered, milked and cleaned under careful laboratory conditions. The feed is weighed, the water is analyzed and the air in the chambers is cooled and humidified. Attendants who enter the chamber at regular intervals must pass through an air lock auxiliary chamber to prevent air leakage.

The breathing of the animals is measured by an elaborate "mechanical lung" device called an "aspirator," designed and built by Doctor Kleiber on the staff of the college. A classifier, in the basement under the respiration chamber, separates the waste products. The entire equipment is about three times the size of a large motor bus, and it cost nearly three times as much.

Dairy Cows Rustling in Stalk Fields for Feed

Dairy cows forced to rustle around a cornstalk field for a part of their feed in winter cannot produce enough milk to make them profitable. Even when the very best of grain feeds are fed to cows which are called upon to get all their dry roughage in the stalk field, there is very little chance for them to make a worthwhile milk yield. One reason for this is that cows that are kept out of doors use up most of their feed to keep warm, and the other reason is that there is very little in cornstalks from which a cow can make milk.

A good milk-producing cow is usually thin in flesh. She is thin-skinned and cannot stand the cold. She needs to be kept in warm quarters to be comfortable. Even under such conditions she cannot make much use of cornstalks as a part of her feed. She needs plenty of digestible, milk making feeds all the time. This is true whether she is in milk or in dry condition. When she is not making milk she should be fed liberally so that she will keep on producing milk profitably when she freshens again.

Ground Soy Beans

Ground soy beans are a very satisfactory source of protein on many dairy farms. Usually only favorable comment is heard from men feeding beans during the cold weather. In summer, however, a lack of palatability in the ration containing the ground beans is often reported. In most cases, however, the beans are not refused by the herd when first ground but rather after the feed has been ground two weeks or more. The finer the beans are ground the more trouble.

Canned Foods Economy

THERE has never been a time when high grade canned foods were so cheap as now, and there has never been a time when they were as good as they are today. Year after year the research facilities of the industry itself and of many great scientists in big universities have been utilized to improve both the products and the methods by which they are canned.

Why not capitalize these facts this winter when incomes are apt to be slim and the cost of food a factor to be considered with care? If you can buy canned foods, with no waste, cheap, why buy foods that are far less nourishing for the same amount of money spent and which will provide you with many fewer meals?

Vegetables, fish and fruits in cans are all being offered this season at bargain sales.

A Varied Menu

There are so many ways to cook and combine canned foods that your daily menu made of them can be just as varied as if you bought your food supplies without regard to price. Here, for instance, is a succulent dish that will serve four people at a cost of little more than twenty-five cents.

Baked Beans with Bacon: Fry one-fourth pound of bacon, remove about half of the fat and to the rest add one sliced onion. Then sauté golden brown. Add the contents of a No. 2 can of beans, and heat thoroughly. Serve with the rashers of bacon on top.
