Honoring Our Heroes

In days of peace, as in days of war, Americans do not forget their heroes. Certain evidence of this is now to be had, as our people irrespective of religious or political belief prepare to honor the soldiers of all wars on a day long ago established for that purpose.

On this Memorial Day citizens of Fulton join with their fellow Americans in the nationwide tribute to the men, living or departed, who sacrificed for the country at times when it was in need of real men, patriotic men in whose hearts burned the love of country and home. Not everywhere will bands play and martial music again be heard. Not everywhere will there be a tramp of marching men and the pomp of parade and ceremony. But no place will there be found forgetful hearts, for in every state of the Union there will be breathed from millions of hearts silent prayers for those who in all the wars gone by gave unflinchingly in the name of patriotism. It is to them we owe the peace we now enjoy; it is to them we owe the blessings of the free institutions of which we boast. And it them our thoughts turn in thankfulness on this Memorial Day.

We are not a warring people. Peace is a heritage more valuable to us as a people than all else. Yet there is a heritage more valuable to us as a people than all else. Yet there is a consolation in the knowledge that if peace must be put aside for the moment, the nation will not lack for protectors. That has been proven beyond dispute, and in honor of those who have proved it by adding brilliance to the pages of our history our love and affection, our honors and our tributes are now extended. May those who have served us and passed on sleep in the peace for which they fought, and loved. May those who fought for us and yet live to receive our tributes be blessed with the knowledge that their sacrifice is not forgotten by a people who, in peace or in war, do not forget, and will not forget.

FAIRVIEW BEAUTIFULLY DECORATED IN LOVING REMEMBRANCE

Fairview cemetery never looked prettier than on last Sunday. It was Decoration Day and from early morning until late in the afternoon flowers were placed on the graves in loving remembrance of those who had passed away. The entire city of the dead looked like a veritable flower garden, with roses predominating. The cool weather retarded the outdoor blooming of lilies, but many hot-house blossoms were used. Flowers of various kinds were plentiful and beautiful.

In the afternoon the American Legion conducted appropriate exercises, being assisted by the Spanish-American War Veterans, Boy Scouts, a few Civil War Veterans and the Drum and Bugle Corps. A line of march was formed downtown, and led to the cemetery, where Hon. Jere Cooper, Tennessee congressman, delivered an eloquent address. At the conclusion of the address a firing squad from the American Legion fired a salute, and then the buglers sounded taps over the graves of the departed.

The age of discretion usually arrives accompanied by rheumatism, high blood pressure and heart trouble.

A shiftless man is one who is usually out of everything except debt.

JUNIOR DEMONSTRATION TEAM

Girls Junior 4H Demonstration Teams will hold their annual meet at Cayce Friday, May 29, at 1:30 o'clock.

An exhibit of some of the girls 4H club work will also be held. Most of the girls work in Fulton county is in clothing but the Cayce 4H girls have had foods and will have some food exhibits.

The competing demonstration teams are Elizabeth Walker and Dorothy Eliot of Crutchfield and Annie Laurie Burnette and Edna Earle Pewitt of Palestine. There will probably be a team from Cayce too. The winning team will have enrollment fees paid to District 4H Camp in July in Fulton.

ADVISORY COUNCIL MEETING

An Advisory Council meeting for Presidents and Secretaries of Homemakers Clubs will be held Wednesday, June 3, at Cayce at 1:30 o'clock.

Miss Zelma Monroe, Assistant State Leader of Home Demonstration Agents, will be in the county to attend the meeting.

Presidents and Secretaries of clubs are: Mrs. John Binkley, Mrs. Wesley Botts, Boaz Chapel; Mrs. Dean Collier, McFadden; Mrs. Wesley Cooper, Mrs. Cecil Morrow, Sassafras Ridge; Mrs. Cleave Vaughn, Mrs. Roy Carlton, Blue Pond; Mrs. Meritt Milner and Miss Sadie Jackson, Lodgeton; Mrs. E. B. Prather and Mrs. King Davis, Hickman; Mrs. W. V. Little and Mrs. S. A. Waggoner, Crutchfield; Mrs. W. B. Sowell and Miss Alice Sowell, Jordan; Mrs. Morgan Davidson and Mrs. Leslie Nugent, Palestine; Mrs. Birdie Pewitt and Miss Margaret Jones, Cayce.

About 600 people in Fulton county saw the experimental white rats sent Miss Henning, Home Demonstration Agent, by the University of Kentucky as a part of the "Live At Home" program of the government.

The purpose of the experiment is to show the difference milk alone will make in the diet and to emphasize the importance of farmers using more milk and milk products rather than selling all or most that they get or feeding all of it to the stock.

The rats were sent to Dora Mae Duncan, Home Agent at Madisonville, Ky., Monday.

SENATOR BARKLEY DELIVERS AN ELOQUENT ADDRESS

Decoration Day at the Bardwell cemetery was fittingly observed Sunday, with a splendid program sponsored by the Lions' Club of Bardwell.

U. S. Senator Alben W. Barkley of Paducah was the principal speaker, and delivered an eloquent address, paying loving tribute to the deceased.

The city of the dead never presented a lovelier appearance with the Lions' Club in charge. Every nook and corner of the large enclosure had been cared for and each grave was covered with beautiful blossoms of rare fragrance.

Probably two thousand people visited the cemetery during the day, including a number from Fulton.

About the only knocking around Fulton in the good old days was that which accompanied the then popular game of croquet.

In Memoriam

A Serious Threat Being Whispered

Out of Chicago comes a newspaper report that measures far more to the country than appears upon its face. There is a hint in it of serious upheavals unless an immediate start is made toward tax relief.

The Fulton citizen who has seen taxes mount slowly—almost imperceptibly—over a period of some 20 years, need not get the idea, however, that he is the only victim. So general has the complaint become that today there is scarcely a state in the Union in which the citizens are not protesting. It is not necessary to go into figures to show that taxes have outstripped wages, land values and the increase in real estate valuation since the World War. And yet these things on which taxes must be based if they are to be just and fair.

The danger that now threatens is not that the taxpayers will be forced to suffer the loss of their property through delinquency in tax payments, but that they will organize and, through such organizations, repudiate all taxation and defy collections. If it comes to this, then the country is going to be in a bad way and every part of it will quickly be affected. If the threat, which is now only in the whispering stage and which has not yet become a nation-wide roar, serves to make legislators in the various states stop, then none of us like to contemplate what may be the outcome before many more months have passed.

RICE A. PIERCE MAY BE VETS' COMMANDER

When the thinning ranks of the Old Guard in Gray assemble for the forty-first annual reunion at Montgomery, June 2-5, a follower of General Forrest, Maj. Gen. Rice A. Pierce of Union City will be a nominee for the position cherished by all veterans—commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans.

General Pierce as commander of Forrest's Tennessee Cavalry, was inducted as a candidate by the Tennessee Division reunion held at Columbia last October. As commander he had been instrumental in the reorganization of his division, bringing its electoral voting strength from 60 up to 82.

General Pierce, when but a youth of 15, enlisted in the fall of '62 in the Fourth Tennessee Regiment under Col. George G. Dibrell. Later his regiment was placed under Forrest's command, under whom he served until the end of the war, coming through the conflict unscathed. After the war he became a lawyer and distinguished himself on many occasions, one of his most notable cases being as defense counsel for the Rankin-Taylor "Night Rider" incident at Reelfoot Lake.

Following General Pierce's election as commander of the Tennessee Division, U. C. V., at the Charlotte, N. C., reunion in 1929, ex-Governor Patterson wrote:

"... There is no one in the state whom the people will be more delighted to see honored. For 50 years or more, Mr. Pierce has been before the people, either as a member of Congress back in the 70's and 80's or as taking a prominent part in every state political contest since that time. Few have excelled him as a trial lawyer in hotly contested law suits, and though now he is past 80 years of age, he still is active in his profession. His mind is clear, his step elastic and his voice yet fresh and resonant. Like and old tree, sound in body and limb that bears abundant fruit, so General Pierce lives on, enjoying life, helping others and splendidly filling his obligations of citizenship."

His success as a division commander General Pierce attributes to the efforts of the U. C. V. "They are the lifeblood of the organization," he says.

Questioned yesterday as to the possibility of his election next week, General Pierce only smiled and said: "I don't know, but I would rather be commander-in-chief than president of the United States."—Ex.

MRS. ABERNATHY DIES

Mrs. Bell Abernathy, wife of L. F. Abernathy, of Dukedom, Tenn., died at the Curlin-Neil Hospital Tuesday morning at 11:15 after a brief illness. Funeral services took place at Good Springs Presbyterian church building near Dukedom, at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday, and interment in Good Springs cemetery. Funeral services were conducted by John T. Smithson, minister of the Central Church of Christ of this city.

LOVING CUP IS WON BY LOCAL ORGANIZATION

All of B. & L. Directors Attend State Meeting.

The silver loving cup which was offered by the Louisville Building and Loan Association for the association which had the largest percentage of its directors present at the Hopkinsville state meeting last week, was won by the Fulton Building and Loan Association. The local organization has nine directors on the board, and all nine of these men attended the state meeting and remained for all the sessions. The record of the local firm was therefore 100 per cent, and Secretary Ernest Fall brought back the cup, and it is now on display at the company's offices on Main street.

The directors of the local company are as follows: T. M. Franklin, I. H. Read, Joe Browder, Arch Huddleston, Paul Pickering, Ernest Fall, Vodie Hardin, W. P. Murrell and Joe Davis.

T. M. Franklin, who is president of the local association, made the speech of acceptance when the cup was presented, and told the convention how well the Fulton Building and Loan Association had functioned for the past seventeen years. He stated that almost every director attended the monthly meetings of the organization, and that their best efforts were given at all times. He credited the remarkable success of the local organization to this unselfish work of the directors.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Mrs. Frances Wiley was pleasantly surprised on May 23rd, when a number of her good friends met in her home and spread a dinner "fit for a queen," in honor of Mrs. Wiley's birthday. Those who had a share in the lovely affair were:

Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Rudd, Dr. and Mrs. R. T. Rudd, Dr. and Mrs. Russell Rudd, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Dawes, Mrs. W. S. Boulton, Mrs. George Osthoff, Steve Wiley, Mrs. Mattie Simmons of Hickman, Mr. and Mrs. Vester Rudd of Hickman and Mrs. Wiley.

After the dinner a most happy afternoon was spent, and all left wishing Mrs. Wiley many more birthdays.

Brieflets

The average Fulton man doesn't yearn for a dollar that will go farther. What he does want is one that will make a round-trip quicker.

Maybe the reason Solomon had so many wives was so things wouldn't be torn up so long at house-cleaning time.

A woman's as old as she looks, a man is as old as he feels, and an egg is as old as it is.

Wonder how many Fulton old-timers can remember when now and then a "rat" could be seen peeping out from a girl's hair?

A mine owner is the only man who can achieve success by running his business into ground.

Quiet weddings are all right, but what this country needs is more quietness after they're married.

The recent King of Spain got a lovely reception in Paris. But so could any ordinary Fulton citizen if he landed there with fourteen million dollars.

College men get more orders in college than they do after they graduate and start selling something.

Women seem to have abandoned the hat pin for all time, but they never will be completely disarmed until they give up their umbrellas.

If you want to find the thriftiest man in Fulton, find the one who has learned how to hold his living expenses down to a dog-trot.

Another thing this country needs is a man who can make two jobs grow where only one grew before.

Fulton would be a still finer place in which to live if we could do as well to day as we expect to do tomorrow.

The world is made up of two classes of people—those who pass the collection plate at church and those who let it pass them.

MORE CONCRETE STREETS

W. M. Hill & Sons, local contractors, have had a large crew of men at work on State Line street this week, completing the job of paving two blocks from the Browder crossing to Mulberry street. A well built concrete street now takes in all the business blocks from Browder's mill past the O. K. Laundry. Truly, the public-spirited citizens sponsoring this splendid improvement are to be congratulated.

Plans are now on foot to have the State Line street work extended, also to concrete Mulberry and Washington streets.

Tea With Kate in the Kitchen

By JANE OSBORN

SATURDAY luncheon had consisted of very, very thin soup, with a few very small croutons — and there wasn't much in the plates either. Then there had been midget fish balls — one to a person — short rations of bread and butter — plenty of pickles, weak tea and — that was all. Roderick Hemstead, who occupied one of the front rooms on the second floor of the fine old-fashioned house had come home early, in time for luncheon, and intended to spend the afternoon working over some papers from the office. He had dropped in for luncheon, to which he was certainly entitled since he paid full board. Nora Lane was home, too, though on school days she bought her luncheon at a little tea-room near the school where she taught.

Now Roderick sat in his room considering his papers, but much more seriously considering how hungry he was. He'd go out and get some afternoon tea if it wasn't such an infernal nuisance.

Nora had been correcting papers, but it seemed now as if she couldn't correct another unless she had something to eat.

Starvation fare — that's what it was at Mrs. Miller's boarding house.

Just then came a curious kind sort of scratching noise on Nora's door. "It's just me," said a voice as Nora opened to see an oldish woman in a blue ging ham dress. Nora knew at once that this was Katie, the cook, though she had seen her only a few times.

"I thought maybe you'd come to the kitchen for a cup of tea," suggested Katie. "Lunch was none too hearty." She laughed a little and waited for Miss Lane to accept her invitation. "You see Mrs. Miller is away. Won't possibly be back until after dinner to night. I always have my tea and toast at four, and I thought I'd see if there was anyone in that would like some."

So Nora Lane, feeling as guilty as a child about to pilfer the pantry, followed the broad-backed Katie to the kitchen below. Steps on the back stairs following them proved to be those of Roderick Hemstead, who sat across the dining room from Nora. She knew his name, thought him very good looking, and that was about all. "This young gentlemen was working in his room," explained Katie. "I knew that meal would never last him through the afternoon."

Katie was now setting tea cups and saucers and spoons on the lumpy white oilcloth top of her kitchen table. The tea was excellent, freshly brewed and piping hot, and there were sandwiches of Katie's home-made brown bread.

A half hour had passed when Nora and Roderick dropped their way up the back stairs.

"Wasn't it fun?" asked Nora.

"You bet," said Roderick.

"And it isn't as if we weren't entitled to the things, either," defended Nora. "We both pay full board and we are hardly ever here for luncheon. Wouldn't Mrs. Miller have a fit?"

"That's what makes it such good sport. Wish I sat on the same side of the dining room that you do."

"Why?" asked Nora.

"Guess," said Roderick.

Frequently that winter Mrs. Miller had engagements on Saturday afternoon and for some reason Katie always found her young man and her young lady, as she called them, in their rooms, ready to be asked to a kitchen tea party.

Then came the final kitchen tea party, to which Roderick and Nora came looking so confused and self-conscious that Katie felt sure that Roderick had stolen a kiss on the back stairs. Never was a tea party more delightful, and Katie was in rare good humor. Perhaps they were too pre-occupied. Anyway they did not hear the footsteps of the ampie Mrs. Miller coming through the pantry.

"Katie," she shrieked, "what do you mean by this? How dare you? I discharge you on the spot!"

Katie and Nora looked helplessly at each other and Roderick, who had risen, bowed slightly to his landlady. "Let me explain," he said. "We have been making arrangements — Miss Lane and I — with Katie to come and keep house for us. But perhaps I had better explain. Miss Lane and I are engaged. We shall settle in our own house immediately after our wedding. Nora blushed and nodded an affirmative to the bewildered Katie.

"How dare you conspire to get my cook away from me, right here in my own house?" shrieked Mrs. Miller.

"That's just it. As a matter of fact we hadn't spoken of the matter to her. We were going to. But we felt a little reticent about making advances here, as you say, in your own house. But since you have already discharged Katie, of course we need no longer feel any such scruples. Katie, do you accept our offer?"

Katie said she did. And there was a decided coolness between Mrs. Miller her cook, and two of her best-paying boarders until the three left two days later.

Better Breakfasts

BREAKFAST is your first taste of the day. If it tastes good, the rest of the day is likely to be a success. But if you start off dissatisfied, the day may be a disappointment. And it's so easy after all to put a little thought on breakfast, and serve at least one new dish instead of the no-nutritious "same old thing." Here's a suggested menu for a breakfast appropriate to this season.

Whole Strawberries with Powdered Sugar
Ready to Eat Cereal
Cornmeal Waffles with Syrup
Hot Beverage

The different dish in this breakfast is the cornmeal waffles with syrup, and here's the way to make them. Beat four egg yolks until thick and yellow. Add enough water to the contents of one ounce can of evaporated milk to make one and a half cups, then add to egg yolks. Add one cup of sifted flour, four teaspoons baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Add one cup cornmeal and then eight tablespoons melted butter, and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake as usual and serve with syrup. This makes seven or eight waffles.

Keep Your Coffee Fresh

Whether your hot beverage is coffee or one of the products with coffee which still give the coffee taste, be sure to buy one of the kinds that come packed in vacuum cans. That assures its perfect freshness until you open it, and putting it into a screw-top rubber gasket mason jar, and keeping the top screwed on tight will preserve its fragrance and aroma satisfactorily until it is used up.

FOODS IN SMALL CANS

A RECENT survey revealed the fact that an amazing number of different products are now processed and put up in those convenient 8-ounce cans which contain just enough to content two people, or the contents of which can even be consumed by one hungry person alone.

These small individual cans have proved a boon to the cities where storage space is at a premium. When one realizes that 57 per cent. of our population now lives in cities, as compared with 40 per cent. in 1900, one understands the reason for their popularity.

The season of summer bachelors is fast approaching. For the sake of these bachelor maids and couples without children, nearly a hundred different packs of fruits and vegetables are now put up in these small cans.

Here's the List

The fruits include apple sauce, apricots (plain and peeled), blackberries (including a fancy grade), cherries (Royal Anne, black ring, red pitted and black), cranberry sauce, figs (including a California variety), fruit cocktail, fruits for salad, fruit salad, grapefruit, grapes (seedless), lozberries (including a fancy pack), olives (ripe), peaches (diced, halves and sliced), pears (Bartlett and diced), pineapple (crushed, tidbits and juice), plums (green sage), prunes (fancy purple, fresh Oregon and stewed), raspberries (red and black, including a fancy red pack), rhubarb and strawberries (including a fancy pack).

The vegetables are artichoke hearts, asparagus (cut tips, dainty salad points, large tips, mammoth tips, medium tips, natural green cuts and small tips), beans (cut, refreeze, cut stringless, cut wax, green lima, lima, medium green lima, New England style, oven baked and red kidney), beets (diced and sliced), Brussels sprouts, carrots (diced), carrots and peas, corn (Country Gentleman, fancy Crosby, golden bantam, golden bantam crushed, golden cream, kernalettes, popping, white and whole grain), krautline, mushrooms, peas (garden, run of garden, sweet garden and sweet wrinkled), sauerkraut, spinach, succotash (golden bantam corn, white corn and with green lima), tomatoes (plain and sauce), turnips (diced), vegetables (mixed and for salad) and vegetable surprise.

Other products are brown bread, mackerel, molasses (Barbados), spaghetti (plain and prepared) and shrimp. There are probably several more which were missed in the survey, but many good recipes have been evolved from the above.

Some Fruit Recipes

Here are some fruit recipes, for instance, which are easy to prepare and will serve from two to four.

Raspberry Cream: Soak two teaspoons gelatin in two tablespoons cold water five minutes. Bring the contents of an 8-ounce can of raspberries, three tablespoons sugar and two tablespoons lemon juice to boiling, pour over gelatin and stir until dissolved. Cool. When about to jelly, fold in one-half cup heavy cream. A can of the new beating cream which has just been put on the market can be used if you have no refrigerating facilities.

Blackberry Cobbler: Heat the contents of one 8-ounce can of blackberries to boiling, add one tablespoon of flour mixed with one teaspoon of sugar, and cook till slightly thick. Add one teaspoon of lemon juice and one teaspoon of butter, and pour into a buttered baking dish. Cut rich baking powder biscuit dough in tiny rounds and lay over the top. Bake in a hot oven, 450°, for fifteen minutes.

Lesson for May 31

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

GOLDEN TEXT—Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me; nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:39-54.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Obeying God at Any Cost.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of Gethsemane.

I. Jesus at the Mount of Olives. (vv. 39).

He went from the upper room under cover of the night to the Garden of Gethsemane, a favorite resort on the slope of the Mount of Olives, a short distance east of Jerusalem (Matt. 26:30). It is a place where the oil was crushed out of the olives. Gethsemane means "oil press." Olive oil was precious, being used both for food and lighting. The bruising and crushing of Christ in this Garden has yielded the largest blessings to the world.

II. His Companions (vv. 39, 40).

Peter, James and John, who had been with him on the Mount of Transfiguration, were permitted to go with him into the deep shadows of the Garden (Matt. 26:37). He took those who were best able to apprehend the meaning of the tragic hour to be his sympathizing companions. This was needed to prepare them as his witnesses. Knowing the peculiar trial through which they would soon pass when the Shepherd should be smitten, he needed to prepare them for it. They needed to taste the bitter cup of which he drank and of which they, too, later should drink.

III. Jesus Praying (vv. 41-44).

1. Withdrawal from the disciples (v. 41). Even these members of the inner circle could not now go with him. He tore himself away from them, for he must be alone in this darkest hour. He knelt down and prayed.

2. What he said (v. 42). "If thou be willing, remove this cup from me."

The cup did not mean primarily the physical sufferings of the cross, though they were exceeding great. He did not now desire to escape from the cross and thus to stop short of his redemptive work, for this was the supreme purpose of his coming into the world (Heb. 2:14). He was so completely identified with a sinning race that the judgment of a holy God which rightfully would have fallen upon it was about to strike him—the Father's face was actually turned from him. The cup, therefore, meant his death as the bearer of sin. He came to Gethsemane with the full knowledge of what it meant, and consciously brought his human will into accord with the divine will. He bowed in submission to the Father's will. So great was his agony that he sweat, as it were, great drops of blood. In this crucial hour an angel from heaven strengthened him. He won the victory in submission to his Father's will, and from henceforth went with unflinching steps to the cross.

IV. The Disciples Sleeping (vv. 45, 46).

They had boasted of their fidelity (Matt. 26:25), but could not watch with him for an hour. He had issued a word of warning to them (Luke 22:34), but they were so benumbed with sorrow that they failed to keep awake. He gently reprimanded them and commanded that they should arise and pray lest they enter into temptation.

V. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 47, 48).

1. The betrayer (v. 47). It was Judas, one of the twelve. He had enjoyed the most intimate relations with the Lord; eating with him, listening to his teaching, witnessing his marvelous miracles, and enjoying his countenance. These privileges intensify the horror of the deed. He even guided the mob to arrest Jesus.

2. The sign of betrayal (v. 47). It was a kiss, the token of the most tender affection and friendship.

3. Jesus' tender words to him (v. 48). These words to the infamous disciple reveal the infinite tenderness of the Lord's heart. Many professing disciples today are proving their disloyalty to Jesus and even to the name of Christ, and especially ministers and teachers, who deny the virgin birth, deity, and vicarious atonement of Jesus Christ, are following in the footsteps of Judas.

VI. Jesus Arrested (v. 54).

The multitude led by Judas invaded the sacred precincts of the Garden and arrested Jesus and brought him before the High Priest. Peter followed him afar off. Peter's downfall may be traced to his self-confidence.

Peas Save Expense

PEAS are one of the most popular of vegetables, and they are now available everywhere all year around in cans. They are not only popular, but inexpensive. Here is a dish of meat and peas, for instance, which will serve four people and which can be had most anywhere at a cost of less than fifty cents.

Frankfurters with Parsley Peas:

Heat the contents of an 11-ounce can of peas for about three minutes, drain, add one tablespoon butter, and season with salt and pepper to taste. Pour into a shallow baking dish. Grill or fry eight frankfurters (one pound), and place on top of the peas like the spokes of a wheel. Sprinkle with two tablespoons parsley, and reheat in the oven a few minutes. And here is a dish of peas alone which will serve four people at a cost of not more than twelve cents:

English Peas: Add one and one-half tablespoons vinegar, one and one-half tablespoons sugar and two tablespoons crushed fresh mint to the contents of an 11-ounce can of peas, and simmer gently for ten minutes.

Pea Salads

Don't forget, too, that canned peas are excellent in salads and all ready to combine with the other ingredients. Try this:

Potato and Pea Salad: Marinate the peas from a No. 2 can and two cups diced boiled potatoes in French dressing thoroughly. Add one-half cup diced pickled beets and one tablespoon chopped onion, and moisten with mayonnaise. Serve in lettuce nests. Serves eight.*

Uncle Sam Recommends

HOW much does your weekly market basket cost?

A market basket providing adequate food for five persons for one week need cost only $6.55, according to a recent estimate issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Bureau of Home Economics and the Woman's Division of the President's Emergency Committee for Employment.

Prices for the weekly basket differ in different localities. Pittsburgh has the lowest prices—

Below are the foods recommended for the weekly basket for a family of five, including father, mother and three children.

While the list includes dried vegetables, the cheapest possible form, many busy women who do not have time to soak and prepare these vegetables are buying canned fruits and vegetables, now offered at low prices. These being ready-prepared, also save fuel.*

Flour and cereal (1½ pounds bread equals 1 pound cereal)	17-24 lbs.
Whole fresh milk	23-28 qts.
or
Canned unsweetened milk	23-28 tall cans
Potatoes	15-20 lbs.

A Sea of Tomatoes

THE United States is turning red. No, we don't mean Bonaparte but tomatoes. The amount of tomato juice which is now drunk in this country would make a veritable sea. This juice was originally squeezed from fresh ripe tomatoes, but more and more brands of it are now being put up in cans.

With the development of the sanitary enamel lined can and the perfecting of factory methods of canning tomato juice, it has leaped suddenly into fame as one of the most widely used beverages in this country.

Good for All

From infancy to old age, tomato juice is a good food. It is rich in mineral salts and in vitamins A and B. It is also recognized as one of the most important sources of vitamin C and lacks in this respect with oranges and lemons. The vitamin C in the tomato is resistant to heat, a characteristic shared by few other foods, and so the tomato is equally valuable raw or cooked.

Color Denotes Health

The rich red color of tomato juice has no other connotation except health. The juice should include some of the pulp to give it prompt color and this problem has been solved in the several good and inexpensive canned juices which are now on the market.

A Can of Corn

"WHAT can I do with a can of corn?" asks a housewife who is open to conviction, and an able answer has been provided for her in a leaflet recently issued by the magazine "Charm," published by L. Hamberger & Co. Publishing Company, Newark, N. J.

This leaflet enumerates twenty-two different things which a housewife can do with a can of corn, and gives the recipe for each of them. These recipes include: Cream of Corn Bisque; Fried Corn; four kinds of Corn Fritters; Corn Pancakes; Corn Pudding au Gratin; Corn Timbales; Spanish Corn; Scalloped Corn and Tomatoes; Corn and Pineapple au Gratin; Corn and Cheese Pudding; Egg Plant with Corn; Corn Chowder; two kinds of Corn Chowder; Corn, Tomato and

FARM POULTRY

PURE BRED HENS
ARE PROFITABLE

Cost a Little More but Pay
It All Back in Eggs.

April is a good time to make every effort possible to produce pure bred poultry instead of mongrels. If flocks of hens are kept on our farms that possess the colors of Joseph's coat, combined with numerous sizes and shapes and producing a product that would take an expert to tell the shades and texture of the shell, then poultry profits will be slim. With small profits, our interest will lessen, and it takes interest to make us go after poultry in the right way, in the opinion of D. H. Hall, extension poultry husbandman, Clemson college, South Carolina.

"Have you ever seen a farmer that was interested in a mongrel flock of chickens? If you have, you have seen more than I have," says Mr. Hall. "As a rule, when the farm flock are mongrels, the farmer himself will always tell you that they belong to the wife, but when pure bred poultry comes on the farm, then this same farmer doesn't mind showing the visitors the poultry, and most of the time, will claim every one of them."

"Pure bred poultry will also attract attention to the farm. I do not care how humble the home may be or how poor the farmer is himself, people will always stop to look at a flock of pure bred chickens. When other people are interested in the things you have, there is usually a sale for them at a good profit."

"What about the cost? Pure bred chickens may cost a little more, but they will pay back in eggs and meat more than mongrels ever can. The pure bred poultry producers in each county should get behind this movement and plan pure bred poultry on each farm."

Right Number of Males Required in Hen Flock

There is no absolute rule in regard to the number of males needed in a flock, but there are some general recommendations that will prove helpful in deciding this question. For the Asiatic breeds one rooster is needed for six or eight hens. These birds are slower moving than the American breeds. The American breeds, such as Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and Wyandottes, need one rooster for every ten or twelve hens. With Leghorns and other Mediterranean breeds one rooster to fifteen or twenty hens is usually satisfactory.

The activity of the males will make some difference in regard to the number needed. In comparatively large flocks fewer males will be needed than where the rooster and hens are closely confined. It is better to have a few more males at the beginning of the season than to decide so that there will be sufficient even though some of them may become disabled or die. If new males are added later in the season they will usually start fighting and do more harm than good. A few extra roosters early in the season is a more practical method of meeting the situation.

Increasing Demand for Capons of Good Quality

There is a steadily increasing demand for capons as the market becomes appreciative of their superior quality for table purposes.

The question is sometimes asked: "What is a capon?" The answer is: "An unsexed cockerel"—or a bird from which the reproductive organs have been removed before it has been fully developed or attained maturity.

This operation has the effect of causing a more placid temperament to develop in the bird, and the fighting instinct is lost as the result of the castration of the infantile, undeveloped sexual nature. After the operation has been performed these birds grow rapidly; and their flesh retains the tender condition of young chickens up to the time when they are fully grown.

Egg Hatchability

Birds which have been producing large numbers of eggs throughout the winter are usually found to produce eggs late in the season with a lower fertility and hatchability. The explanation of this is that the vitality of the birds has gone into egg production. The hatchability of these eggs can be improved, however, by giving the flock all the direct sunlight they can get during the winter. Cod liver oil is also of some value, as are the good glass substrates.

Mating Geese

The best results with the heavy breeds of geese come from mating in trios or using not more than three geese with each gander. On duck farms, a mating of seven ducks to one drake usually gives good results. Ganders are usually larger and coarser than geese with larger heads and thicker necks and they have a more shrill call. The cry of the goose is rather harsh. The only sure way to determine the sex will be an examination of the organs.

The DAIRY

HIGH QUALITY OF
DAIRY PRODUCTS

One of Most Important Concerns of Industry.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Raising the quality of the nation's supply of dairy products, particularly market milk and cream, until the point is reached where all the people, whether they live in city or town or on the farm, will be universally provided with an abundance of dairy foods of high wholesomeness and quality, is one of the most important concerns of the dairy industry of the United States, says O. E. Reed, chief of the bureau of dairy industry, in his annual report to Secretary Hyde of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Reporting upon the bureau's milk quality-improvement project, Mr. Reed says that this is considered one of the most important features of the work of the bureau and the regional dairy extension specialists. Considerable progress in quality improvement has already been made in several states. This is the result of the co-operative efforts of the bureau and the extension services of the state colleges of agriculture, the report says.

"To reach the goal of general high quality is largely a matter of getting before the dairy farmer and others of the industry the facts regarding the practice which have been found to give the best results," says the report. "To stimulate the development of a comprehensive plan for improving the quality of milk, a great deal of work has been done, not only in planning programs but in making them effective in some of the states."

The importance of interesting the boys and girls of the 4-H clubs of the country in the program for improving the average quality of the milk produced on American farms, has been recognized by the bureau and the extension service in the quality-improvement activities, says Mr. Reed. He says that suggested programs for quality improvement have been drawn up for the use not only of the adults who are the dairy farmers of today, but also for the club boys and girls who will be the dairy farmers of tomorrow.

The quality-improvement work is now in progress in many places, with the bureau, the state extension services, state and city departments of health, and other agencies, all co-operating. Some dairy communities have made marked improvement in the quality of the dairy products which they produce and market, says Mr. Reed.

Good Method of Rearing Calves With Nurse Cow

Here is a method of starting calves without using milk that comes from a dairyman who has used it for years. The calf is left with the mother for the first four or five days. It is then removed to a Holstein nurse cow, a low tester, that can start three calves nicely at one time. If the nurse cow is producing more milk than the calves should have, the cow is partly milked before the calves are allowed to her. When the calf is three or four weeks old a mixture of equal parts of coarse ground corn, rolled oats, bran and half part of powdered skim milk is put in a bucket in the calf's pen; good alfalfa hay and water are kept before them from now on. At ten weeks the calf is eating regularly of other feeds and can be taken off the cow. The amount of powdered milk in the meal is doubled and fed twice a day, all the calves will clean up until the calf is six months old.

Clean Milk Important for Human Consumption

No greater bed of usefulness exists than the production of milk for human consumption. Milk is the food on which growing children are reared and from which they should receive the strength and vigor necessary to make them strong, useful citizens. Adults, too, especially invalids and those weakened by improper nourishment, need milk in the diet to repair waste and build up strong new tissue. Recent investigations in nutrition have shown that milk contains certain other substances which are essential for the proper growth of the human body.

Milk production also carries responsibilities. When carelessly produced and improperly handled, milk may be the means of spreading disease. Every owner of a dairy herd should consider it his duty to himself and to the community to keep only healthy cows, supply them with wholesome feed, and keep them in clean, comfortable quarters.

Affect Milk Flavor

Outside of the unfavorable effect of moldy and decayed feed on the health of the cows, such feeds are apt to impart to milk and its products undesirable flavors resulting from these defects. Thus moldy straw and grain, decayed roots, etc., give milk and its products objectionable flavors which injure their market value. Certain feeds, such as silage, beet tops, cabbage, etc., give milk, cream and butter, flavors which are not desired.

David Knitting for His Nerves

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

"You have simply got to take up knitting," said the great nerve specialist. "Get some wool, a pair of needles and go down to Atlantic City and sit on the board walk and knit."

"Me knit! I certainly would look cute sitting on the beach like some Aunt Jemima knitting pink wool and all the idlers stopping to roar at me. No, thanks!"

"You prefer, then, my young fellow, to end your days in a home for neurasthenics, babbling forever about spring blossoms or trying to find a nice easy place to jump off the roof." The doctor became more serious. "Don't be a coward about life. Face it out. Perhaps a short summer of knitting, just simply giving your hands something to do, will set you on your feet."

David laughed. His nerves were not quite gone and, after all, life had heaps to offer. He would be a sport and obey the doctor's orders. Anything was better than the state he was in. Only yesterday he had shrunk from crossing the street alone and nothing could induce him to go into the subway. Certainly knitting was preferable to that mangled state of nerves.

So David packed his case, told his sister all about it and she gave him good advice as well as knitting needles and wool. But the brainstorm that was the most brilliant of her career was her suggestion that David put on Aunt Effie's clothes when he came from his bathhouse.

"Her bonnet, with the string to tie it on and her great cloak and ample skirts—why, David, you could sit on the sand and knit prize sweaters and no one would even cast a glance at you."

"You're the prize brick, Sis," laughed David. "I'll put Aunt Effie's clothes on and knit till I haven't a nerve left."

Consequently, the old lady sitting daily on the white sand attracted little or no attention. David gradually learned to knit mechanically while he breathed in deep draughts of nature's healing breezes. His nerves were responding to calm thought and in forgetting himself in the new guise he felt immensely improved.

It was Elsie's wee dog that first upset the apple-cart of calm thought. The dog, dashing about in quest of fun, found David's woolly ball, began playing and ran joyfully off across the sand.

And David, because he always had rather stationary when wearing Aunt Effie's clothes, just sat and watched.

And Elsie, seeing the old lady's predicament and the havoc being wrought with the wool, gave chase after Fido.

It was then that David's calm deserted him. Elsie, in drenching and most becoming of bathing suits, in hot pursuit of a small dog, caused not only a burst of laughter from David, but also a heavy heart throb. Elsie, with fair hair blowing about in the breeze and as graceful as a nymph, made David tensely conscious that there were bits in the feminine world distinctly wonderful.

After a final desperate plunge the small dog was captured.

David's heart beat fast. The girl was approaching him to offer an apology.

"I'm so very, very sorry," she said in the sweetest of voices. "Fido is always doing something awful."

"But this is not awful," David quickly told her and when Elsie jumped back, startled at the great boom of his voice he realized that he was supposed to be a lady.

"But he has unraveled all your lovely knitting," Elsie managed to say and looked ruefully down at a mere strand of what had been a fairly well formed sweater. "Couldn't I knit it back for you? I will slip into my bathhouse and get into my frock and come back here. You will wait?" she questioned.

"I certainly will," David agreed with a slightly modified voice.

As soon as she was out of sight David arose, dashed into his own bathhouse and emerged in the most trim of white flannels.

He seated himself on the exact spot and waited.

When Elsie appeared he knew that his nerve cure was making tremendous progress and would continue to do so so long as Elsie would help him to pass away the shining hours.

She stopped in dismay at seeing the big man sitting where the old lady with the knitting had been.

She was about to turn away, when David drew from his pocket a great ball of wool and aimed it straight at Fido. That wise little animal took his cue with the same accuracy that a well trained god of love takes his arrow and shoots.

Elsie stood still, took a straight and intensely interested look at David, then walked slowly toward him. David arose to his feet and held out the remnants of that sweater.

"I'm ready now for you to reknit my sweater," he said with a boyish laugh.

Elsie, too, laughed, and Fido scampered up delighted at being so completely tangled up in the wool of romance.

The specialist had most decidedly done the right thing for David.

VET LOANS $730,000,000

Bureau Expects Total Mark to Exceed Billion.

Washington, May 28.—A total of $730,000,000 has been paid out under the new bonus loan law during the last few months, it was learned at the veterans' bureau today. Thus far 1,910,922 former soldiers have taken advantage of the provisions of the law, which permit veterans to borrow up to 50 per cent of the value of their adjusted compensation insurance policies.

The new loans bring the total borrowed on veterans' insurance certificates up above the billion dollar mark, as previous loans of more than $300,000,000 had been arranged at lower interest rates. Washington, D. C., leads the country in the amount of money paid out with a total of $141,000,000. New York City came second with $72,000,000.

As more than 40,000 loans have not been acted on and applications are still arriving, veteran bureau officials expect the total loans under the new act will amount to close to a billion dollars.

PRISONER LOCKS UP JAILER AND FLEES

Clinton, Ky., May 25.—Clinton's second jail delivery in three days occurred Sunday. John Beshears, held in the county jail on a charge of false swearing, overpowered Jailer Jake Massey, took his keys and let himself out of the jail. The keys were later returned to the jailer by Oliver Frizzell of Fulton, who said Beshears left them with him.

The jailer had gone upstairs to build a fire for a woman prisoner when Beshears grabbed him and took his keys from his belt. The prisoner locked Jailer Massey in a cell, where he remained about 30 minutes. The jailer's shouts were finally heard by outsiders and he was released.

Last Friday Leonard Kesterton, a prisoner in the Clinton jail, escaped from his cell. He is still at large. An automobile owned by Phil Porter, which disappeared at the same time, was found near Hickman Sunday.

POULTRY

(By J. T. Watkins)

Well, are you making your preparations for the show to be held at the fair this fall? Sure, there is going to be a fair. And a poultry show, although I suppose there will be some restrictions placed in the poultry house, as there will be in other departments. The prize money will not be as large, but the honors will be the same. They can't reduce them. And right now we are on the threshold of big business in the poultry business. Fulton county is coming to the front as a poultry producing county, and may some day be the BEST poultry county in the state. I HOPE SO.

If you are in the poultry game, stay with it, for each year it is going to grow.

Last week Mr. C. C. Blacknall, general agent for the DIXIE poultry journal, was a caller in the office, and while there he informed County Agent Brown the management of his paper was going to place the names of two hundred 4-H club members on their list for one year's subscription free of charge. We understand they have made this same offer in each of the counties in the Purchase. This is a mighty fine offer, and there will be two hundred members of the 4-H clubs in Fulton county who will get a year's good reading about poultry free of charge.

Speaking of 4-H club work, we want at least one hundred boys and girls to take up poultry as their project during the coming year. We are going to see if we can't have someone furnish 100 baby chicks to each member next spring as a starter, and let you pay for them in the fall. If we can put this over, we will give a 4-H poultry show during the month of December in some suitable building, where you can compete for the prizes, and also sell your surplus stock. Think this matter over and when we come to your schools this fall be ready to enroll as poultry raisers.

We were informed the other day there would be a meeting of the poultry breeders of Graves county to make arrangements for a large poultry show in connection with their dairy show to be held in September. Good! I hope they put it over, and I hope some of Fulton's best bring away the ribbons.

If they have a big poultry show at Mayfield, as they hope to, I will get in touch with three or four good "chicken" raisers in each of the eleven counties and invite them to meet there one day during the show and organize THE PURCHASE POULTRY ASSOCIATION, to be composed of breeders from all the counties, and make arrangements to hold a big winter show once each year in one of the cities in the district.

Now, a word to you old members of the Fulton Poultry Association: Why don't you get busy and re-organize? It was a shame to let this drop through. There are enough breeders to have a membership of at least 100 members, and you should meet regular each month and DO SOMETHING.

be Soon Forgotten?

The loss of old friendships is probably most often due to friends moving to other localities. Keeping up a correspondence is bothersome and even irksome to many of us, so that these friendships once dear to us are gradually lost.

But this need not happen to you. Thousands of people now know from experience that their telephone is the tie that keeps friendships alive. Your friends, wherever they may be, are as close to you as your telephone. A call now and then to your out-of-town friends will keep these old and dear friendships alive, affording much happiness to you and to them. The cost is negligible. You can talk a distance of 150 miles for as little as fifty cents when using Night Station-to-Station service after 8:30 P. M.

Guiding Your Children

Bad habits lead children astray. Good habits guide them safely into the path of character, uprightness and independence.

You can start them right by teaching them to save money. Set them an example by saving yourself. Make them admire thrift.

Once started, the saving habit helps to form other good habits. It provides experience for them in handling their own funds.

This start in the right direction is but a simple step. Bring children to the bank when you start them to school.

HOW TO LIVE

More attention is given now by the average Fulton citizen to the questions of what to eat, when, how and why, than ever before. Diet is one of the most popular subjects of talking, writing and radio broadcasting. Nearly every day brings out new ideas and new warnings. Frequently new preachers tell us the old preachers were wrong, and that we should do just the opposite of what we were instructed to do a few years ago. All of which makes us feel like giving a pat on the back to the British doctor who has just said that the petted, pampered and dieted children of today are no healthier nor happier than those of the mud-pie period. Of course it is wise to give a thought to the quantity and quality of our eating. But ordinary common sense and alert intelligence ought to suffice. Too much thought on the subject, attended naturally by some worry, will do more harm than good. Eat the things that are agreeable to your appetite, and that agree with you, avoid overloading your stomach, and you'll manage, somehow or other to stay on earth a good long while. But don't dig your grave with your teeth.

LOOSE TALK

When this country's troubles have been checked up a certain amount of them can be traced directly to loose talk. During the past year several banks in various parts of the country, have been forced to close their doors, and depositors made to lose hard-earned money, simply through foolish and reckless gossip circulated about their financial condition. Unfortunately, it has been impossible in every case to get hold of and punish the ones who started the gossip and kept the loose talk circulating. There isn't a bank in the country that can't be weakened or wrecked, by loose talk, no matter how substantial or solid it may be. Legislatures realize this, and many states have laws under which those who circulate such reports about a financial institution can be punished. But the trouble is, as with all gossip, it is next to impossible to locate the ones responsible for originating the false reports. This country would be far better off if it could put a few of its "loose talkers" behind the bars.

POULTRY

UNIQUE PLAN FOR RAISING TURKEYS

Timely Hints for Using Restricted Range Idea.

The discovery that turkeys can be successfully raised in confinement is leading to more extended use of that method. Below are listed some suggestions for turkey producers who are intending to follow the restricted range plan. This plan should be followed specifically if the turkeys are to be raised successfully.

Two yard areas should be provided one called the brooder range, the other termed the rearing range, the first being near the brooder house, the second to be used after the poult is no longer need brooder heat. There should be sod ground that is not infested with blackhead and where chickens have not ranged recently. It seems to be impossible to keep turkeys free from blackhead if they are allowed to mix with chickens. Other wise they may be brooded and fed the same as baby chicks with all feed given in hoppers.

Approximately 200 poult can be brooded in a 10 by 12 brooder house. This should be used for the first eight to ten weeks, after which the poult should be moved to the summer range quarters as no further heat will be required.

Four separate yards should be provided adjacent to the brooder house. Each should contain 500 square feet of sod and each should be used only two weeks so that the poult will have access to fresh ground every two weeks.

From the brooder house, the young turkeys should be moved to the rearing range, where a cheap roosting shelter should be provided. A range of one acre of sod is considered sufficient for 100 young turkeys from the age of eight weeks until they are marketed. This area should be divided into four sections and each section used in succession one month. The secret of successful turkey raising rests largely on providing fresh ground and hopper feeding all feed, composed of course with strong, healthy poult and a suitable ration.

In the selection of range, it should not be chosen where chickens ranged recently or where there is a possibility of drainage from the poultry yard reaching the turkey range. It is desirable to have all of the poult the same age. There is no question but that turkeys can be successfully raised in confinement and that it does not pay to let turkeys range for their feed.—H. L. Kempster, Missouri College of Agriculture.

All-Mash Ration Grows

Rapidly in Popularity

The all-mash method of feeding chicks has grown in popularity during recent years, as it assures the caretaker that each chick will get a balanced ration, rather than to consume some part of the ration, such as scratch grains, instead of the entire feed.

Successful feeding is one of the requirements in getting satisfactory growth and development of young chicks. Even though a good ration is used, it should not be assumed that every grower will be successful in raising a large proportion of the chicks which are placed in brooders. However, one cannot overlook the matter of feeding and expect to be reasonably successful.

Better Egg Production

During Winter Months

To get the best or even good egg production during the winter months, one should provide a green feed or a substitute. Test work at Ohio has proved that really high-grade green leafy alfalfa and red clover are rather efficient substitutes. But even then, a green feed of some sort is helpful and gives variety. Of those that can be grown during the summer, sugar beets or mangel-wurzels are the best. A considerable supply can be grown in a small space in the garden or field. They need rich soil, should be planted by June 1 and kept clean during the growing season.

Vitamin E Needed

Vitamin E plays an important part in the hatchability of eggs. This vitamin is essential to good hatching. It is not known exactly which feeds available for poultry contain this vitamin. However, it is known to exist in well-cured, green colored alfalfa. Alfalfa fed, either in a rack or as part of the mash, will provide both vitamins A and E. It is probable that the usual amount of alfalfa, about 5 per cent in the mash is not enough.

How Many Cockerels?

One of the problems for the flock owner who produces eggs for hatching is that of providing the proper number of pullets or hens per male bird. Opinions and experience show a variation of from eight to twenty-five females per male. Without a question a larger number of females can be mated with Leghorn roosters than with the American breeds. Probably twelve to fifteen for Rocks, Reds and Wyatts, and fifteen to twenty with Leghorns are satisfactory.

Why Isn't It Done?

WE Americans are disposed to laugh at the conservative Englishman who advances as an all-sufficient objection to any innovation: "But it isn't done, you know." Have we a right to? As a matter of fact, we are just as hidebound and illogical about many things.

If you were going to buy a trunk, for instance, would it strike you as the acme of efficiency to have to go to a different store to buy the key? And yet that is a proceeding which we exactly parallel when we buy cans of food in a grocery store, and then tie ourselves off to a hard ware store to get an instrument with which to open them.

Make It Convenient

Housewives are beginning to ask for the convenience of being able to buy cans and can openers in the same place. That's one reason why grocery stores ought to sell can openers, but there's another equally cogent one, too. If the grocer wants to make a hit and keep on selling his canned foods, he should be sure that his customers get a good can opener and not one of those which have been so aptly described as the "punch, push and tear" variety with their danger of injury from jagged points of tin.

Efficient modern can openers are simply operated by squeezing two handles together or merely moving a clamp to force the prong or cutting wheel into the tin. Then the cover is removed by turning a large wing nut or handle which cuts it off clean and leaves the edges of both can and cover smooth.
