"I MOVE WE CLOSE the patent OFFICE"

...there's nothing more to invent!

In 1840 a certain United States Senator introduced in Congress a bill to close the Patent Office. There was no reason to keep it open, he said, because "we have reached the absolute limit of our inventive capacity; there is nothing more to invent.

Nothing more to invent? In 1840 the telephone had not been invented, nor the automobile, nor radios, nor electric refrigerators, nor vacuum cleaners, nor washing machines, nor any one of the hundreds of thousands of items we now use every day.

This strange bit of history has its moral. Our coastal defenses, and the Dewey Johnson and son, and many mechanics among the people of the electric industry and the government Patent Office. There was no incentive to invent, because our country was not using any other inventions than we could produce.

This strange bit of history has its moral. If you are not using any other inventions than we could produce, you are not inventing.

The new tax bill, according to William Sellars, will take a large part of the oil industry's profits and leave them with no more than 10 percent. A study of the bill shows that it has happy hearts among those who have already paid large dividends. The bill is a great sacrifice for the oil industry, even if it means that the industry will have to pay more taxes in the future.

WILLIAM SELLARS

The Congressional amendment, providing for the increase in the tax rates on all income over $400,000 per year, was passed by the Senate in the last session.

The amendment, which is to take effect on January 1, 1919, will impose an additional tax of 10 percent on all incomes over $400,000 per year. The amendment is expected to raise an additional $28,000,000 in taxes.

The amendment was introduced by Representative J. W. Wilkie of New York, and was passed by a vote of 108 to 137. The amendment was supported by the President, who said that it was necessary to raise the tax on the wealthy.

The amendment was opposed by representatives from the Southern states, who said that it was unfair to impose such a large tax on the wealthy.

The amendment was also opposed by some members of the oil industry, who said that it was unfair to impose such a large tax on the industry.

The amendment was supported by representatives from the North, who said that it was necessary to raise the tax on the wealthy to pay for the war.

The amendment was supported by representatives from the South, who said that it was unfair to impose such a large tax on the wealthy.

The amendment was supported by representatives from the West, who said that it was necessary to raise the tax on the wealthy to pay for the war.

The amendment was also supported by representatives from the East, who said that it was necessary to raise the tax on the wealthy to pay for the war.
