"THE BONFIRES ARE ALL ASHES"

Christmas Day will dawn for many lands as a bleak and unhappy period; merely another day of horror and misery and destruction. In no land will there be joy and peace and happiness completely, for since the last Christmas Day the red tides of war have lapped around the world. Last year this nation knew a restless, uncertain peace, with a brooding thought that it was the last Christmas which would find us enjoying peace. This year we have taken the last fatal step; our nation is now geared up to the war machine and we know the inexorable demands of war will call on us for more in blood and treasure and sweat and toil. The war which last year raged in the Atlantic now compasses the great Pacific and all lesser seas. The last great neutral nation is now within the circle of fighting nations.

Yes, it is a bleak Christmas for many mothers and fathers. Others know that the next Christmas will find their sons in the battle zones. All of us will have sober thoughts this Christmas as we meet in family gatherings and talk of the joys of past Christmas periods, and of this one. We will think of the great expanse of seas where mighty fleets sweep day and night seeking to come together in battle. We will think of stalwart American boys in the close quarters of submarines as they make their lonely vigil beneath the surface of the sea in efforts to trap the enemy. We will think of others who fight on the land against the swarming thousands of yellow men who seek to drive them from their continent. Thoughts will come of that lonely island where a handful of Marines have fought for two weeks against overwhelming odds; pictures will come of frigate birds, of the coral reef, the white sun-drenched sands already stained with rich American blood, as the Marines write another glowing chapter in the rich saga that has always been theirs, as they fought "From the halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli." Thoughts will come of boys such as we know here in Fulton in fighter planes above the Philippines combatting an unequal number of Japanese in those tropical skies. We will think of those in bombers as they range far out to sea to blast at enemy shipping, and underneath all those thoughts will be the certain knowledge that very many of those boys must give their lives before victory can be won. Ah, there will be so many thoughts which will come, for war is something which calls on us for the utmost we have in every way. Every day the telegraph brings news to certain homes in America which plunges a family into grief; the tragedy is that this must continue in mounting numbers.

Bleak and forbidding though all these things may be, there are two things which we must remember. The first is that although dark days are here and darker ones must come, these cannot change the unchanging truth of the greatest truth of all ages. Through storm and shipwreck, through war and pestilence, through all the ages this truth has remained as the guiding light for all humanity through all the ages which have passed, and this truth will always remain. Nothing that we humans may do can change it in any way. No matter if all nations tear each other to pieces that old truth that solidly based rock of ages, will remain. That truth is the story of the Babe of Bethlehem, and of the Man who grew up and lived on this earth.

The story has been told and retold in all ages and in every land. It has been believed and disbelieved. It has been attacked by many races at different times. It has been the object of concerted attack by many, but not once has any man or any nation succeeded in dimming that light which began to burn from the little town of Bethlehem so long ago. It has been obscured at times. Sometimes our vision has been weak, perhaps we have lost faith at times. Churches have been destroyed, followers of the Man have been murdered. Bibles have been burned and banned, but year by year more and more people have believed in that story and in that Man.

This war will make no difference in the basic truth of that story. Some of the nations engaged in this war have outlawed that story as a childish and foolish myth. Some have never known a great deal of the story. Nothing matters. The story will endure, the belief in that Man will continue, although this war may last for years. Human beings are not powerful enough, there is not enough force and ruthlessness in the human race to blot out that story of hope and of immortality, and in the end we will see that this Man is the decisive force in final victory.

The other thing that we must remember is that final victory will be ours. There can be no doubt of this in our minds. It is well that we face the facts. It is well that we recognize the odds against us. It is well that we make our plans for a long and difficult war. It is well that we know we will be called on for the utmost in sacrifice. But we must feel deep within us the certainty of ultimate victory. This is not a bit of foolish patriotism; it is not a feeling of supremacy over other nations. No, it should be based on a deeper fundamental belief than that. We should know that our way of life, our form of free government is something the world must have and something which we must preserve and keep safely to hand over to the generations which march behind us. We bought this freedom at high price. We paid for it in blood and incredible hardship. It is worth preserving. It is worth dying for just as it was in the beginning days of the Republic. All of these things we must know, and when we know and believe them, it will be an evil day for the foes we face.

So, on this Christmas Day, bleak though it may be, with many disturbing thoughts, let us dedicate ourselves again to the old truths, the ancient beliefs which have meant so much to the human race. Also let us dedicate ourselves to the Nation which Jefferson and Washington planned and for which so many have died. Long ago some wise man wrote a significant sentence and it comes to mind today as one thing of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini and the tiny man who claims to be God in Japan and whom we know as the Mikado. This wise man must have had these men in mind when he wrote: "The bonfires are all ashes; the stars burn on in patient solitude."

The greatest star of all still burns with the same heartening light it gave over Bethlehem. That Star is at once our hope and our shield.

Churchill Says War's Turning Point Reached

American Entry And Russian Success Given Credit

Washington.—Winston Churchill, prime minister of Great Britain, seated at the side of President Roosevelt, told American newsmen today that recent events—the German defeat in Russia and America's entry into the war—had produced a turning point in the tide of world-wide conflict.

It was impossible to describe his feeling of relief, he said, to find Russia victorious and the United States and Great Britain standing side by side. It was incredible, he added, and anyone who had been through the lonely months of 1940 must thank God fervently.

Unusual Meeting
It was such a press conference as could happen only at a time of grave international crisis, the chief executives of the two great English speaking peoples, side by side, answering the questions of an electrified group of newspapermen, reporters who had just cheered the British statesman when he was introduced to them.

It was followed by the first of a series of staff meetings, as President Roosevelt called them, which brought together the commanding officers of the armed forces of the United States and Britain in an effort to work out a unified strategy for a war that is spread to the end of the globe.

Mr. Churchill, provided with comfortable working space at the White House, had spent the day in a bustle of activity, which included a conference with Lord Halifax, the British ambassador here, and the diplomatic representatives of the British dominions.

DEFENSE NEEDS MAY HALT PLEASURE CAR BUILDING

Washington.—Demands on the nation's automobile industry for production of war material—guns, planes and tanks—together with the shortage of rubber may halt construction of pleasure automobiles completely within a few months.

William S. Knudsen, OPM director general and members of the supply, priorities and allocations board, hinted this Monday in telling a Congressional committee that representatives of the industry would be called to Washington to discuss further curtailment.

To a direct question as to whether there was going to be any passenger car production after Jan. 1, he replied:

"Is there going to be any rubber left."

Congress Begins Christmas Recess And Will Reconvene On Jan. 2nd

Washington.—Congress began today a fortnight of informal holiday idleness but members already were worrying about war problems—taxes, price fixing, non-defense economies and how to deal with labor disputes—which will confront them at the new session beginning Monday, January 5.

Speaker Rayburn told House members Saturday they were free to go home for Christmas. Representatives and Senators who stay in Washington, however, will hold time-marking sessions Monday, Tuesday and Friday to conform with current rules which prohibit recesses of more than three days.

In the offing were such measures as: A drastic tax bill which may include a sales tax or a plan whereby employers will withhold a percentage of their workers' pay and turn the money over to the government.

MRS. ROSS IS HURT IN WRECK

Mrs. A. B. Ross received slight injuries last night about 7:30 when the car in which she and Mr. Ross were riding was struck head-on by a car driven by Riley Olstein of Martin. The accident occurred on the Martin highway, within the city limits of South Fulton.

Mrs. Ross was taken to the Fulton hospital for treatment. She suffered numerous cuts and bruises about the face. Her injuries were not serious.

FDR AND CHURCHILL STROLL IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON.—The President and the prime minister—the one in grey business suit, the other in red and cap—walked together in the house the British once burned.

A little while earlier Mr. Roosevelt had met Mr. Churchill at a nearby airport and, accompanied by a residential naval aide and bodyguard, the two had motored to the White House.

For a few minutes they posed at the entrance for photographs. They exchanged an occasional word as the president, grinning broadly, stood beside his naval aide, Captain John R. Beardall.

Churchill, shorter by almost a head than the American President, stood at his right, his fingers firmly gripped a walking stick to which (for purposes of London blackouts) was attached a flashlight. A knee-length, double breasted coat, buttoned high in seaman fashion.

The pictures taken, the two went into the White House—painted white to cover up fire marks when another British mission arrived for a different purpose in the war of 1812.

Now is the time to subscribe for the Leader.

FDR And Churchill Expected To Discuss Some Important Questions

Washington.—Many questions of tremendous import, including the creation of a supreme war council representing nations battling the Axis, are believed certain to be discussed by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Discussions designed to convene a conference of the anti-Axis powers here—to take effective steps to smash Axis aggression and provide "a better future for the world"—have been under way since the day of Japan's treacherous attack on American outposts in the Pacific.

While the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia are bearing the brunt of Axis attacks and must provide most of the offensive power now and in the future, all anti-Axis nations with independent fighting forces are expected to play important roles in the discussions. China has valiantly battled

A price-fixing bill to prevent skyrocketing costs and inflation, but placing no ceiling on wages; Anti-strike bill to outlaw work stoppage in war industries; A bill to eliminate a billion and a half dollars a year of non-defense spending.

Failure thus far of a labor-industry conference to work out an agreement to avoid war industry strikes aroused some Congress members. President Roosevelt had asked the 12 Representatives of industry and 12 from organized labor to present an agreement by last Friday, but the conference was called back into session today with no pact in sight.

Senator Mead (D-N. Y.), predicted that the representatives eventually would get together but warned that if they failed to do so "the road will be wide open for some kind of repressive legislation."

MRS. CROCKETT DIES LAST NIGHT AT HAWS CLINIC

Funeral Tomorrow At Johnson Grove Church

Mrs. Margaret Isidora Woods Crockett, wife of Jim Crockett, passed away last night about 9 o'clock at the Haws clinic following an extended illness. Mrs. Crockett was 71 years of age.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Johnson Grove church, with Ransom-White Funeral Home, Union City, in charge of interment. The body will lie-in-state at the family residence in Forrestdale until service time.

She is survived by her husband, a sister, Mrs. T. J. Gambill of Memphis, two half sisters, Mrs. Lennie Bowden and Miss Martha Cullum of Memphis; a niece, Miss Louise Gambill.

The Leader extends sympathy to the family in its bereavement.

Haverhill, Mass.—The Navy accepted the application for reinstatement of Harold L. J. Sturtevant, who was dismissed from the service a few months ago for pulling down the Nazi flag in front of the German consulate in San Francisco last January.

The recruiting office here, where Sturtevant applied for reenlistment, announced Sturtevant had been accepted and already was assigned to a ship.

HIGH WIND DELIVERS ROOF TO NEW GARAGE

Cumberland, Ky.—Late yesterday Joe Romono's new garage on Main St. lacked only a roof of being opened for business.

A heavy wind finished the job last night.

The roof of the Hughes Motor Company was blown from that building and settled 100 feet away on Romono's garage.

Curb Expected On Sale Of Proposed 35-Mile An Hour Auto Tires

Akron, Ohio.—Shortly after the head of one rubber company said his organization was starting manufacture of tires from entirely reclaimed rubber, the president of another firm warned the industry today against "rushing" plans for such construction. He said restrictions undoubtedly would be placed on sale of such tires.

F. W. Litchfield, chairman of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, announcing his organization was beginning to make such tires, said the product was strictly a "war tire" and should not be driven over 35 miles an hour.

But John L. Collier, president of B. F. Goodrich Company, said: "Taking reclaimed (rubber) now and putting it into passenger car

Manila, Wednesday.—A new Japanese landing in heavy force near Atimonan on the east coast of Luzon was announced today by U. S. Army headquarters.

The scene is in Tayabas province across the narrow land arm which connects the main portion of Luzon with the southern bulge.

"Heavy fighting continues in the north," said the communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, referring to the Lingayen Gulf area where the Japanese for the past two days have been engaged in a major push on the beaches against American and Filipino troops who were declared to be holding them firmly.

"Great Pressure"
"The enemy is exerting great pressure," an Army spokesman said of the Lingayen battle.

"The enemy is particularly active aeriaily at many points throughout the bay."

One Japanese aerial blow of late Tuesday was the heavy damaging of the big steel bridge at Villasis.

The bridge, the longest in the Philippines, is a vital link in the highway from the Lingayen area.

A U. S. Army spokesman said the damage already was being repaired.

First Jap Hit
It was the first Japanese hit on any of the innumerable bridges they have sought to smash in these islands.

There were no official reports from the Davao area, where the Japanese landed on the southern Island of Mindanao, but press reports quoted refugees from other Mindanao points as saying seven Japanese troopships were sunk in Davao harbor and that defense forces were taking a heavy toll of the Japanese who got ashore.

RADIO STATIONS GIVEN 'DON'TS' ON WAR NEWS

New York. —The National Association of Broadcasters has issued a wartime guide warning against sensationalism, carelessness and second-guessing in newscasts—as well as "ad lib" radio-casts on the street or in the studio.

The guide, issued yesterday, amplified the general policy of war news treatment expressed by President Roosevelt two weeks ago and advised that enemy communiques should not be used unless coupled with an official statement from the United States Government.

Another "do not" was the use by sponsors of news as a springboard for advertising "commercials."

NEW RULES WITHHOLD DATA ON CONTRACTS

Washington. —The Securities Commission has revised its rules under the 1933 Securities Act to provide for withholding information on national defense contracts whenever any executive department of the Government or the Maritime Commission has determined that the information should not be disclosed. The revision also covers contracts relating to the military forces of allies of the United States.

Joyful Yuletide

TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

We celebrate now the birth of one who gave us the Sermon on the Mount, the keystone of whose arch was the injunction "Love ye one another." Upon this firm foundation all human friendship is built.

We have been proud to count you among our loyal friends for many years, and now renew our pledge of friendship. We also take this opportunity to extend to you all good wishes for a joyful Christmas and holiday season.

CHRISTMAS TREE

AT THE MISSION
One of the most outstanding events of the Yuletide was given last evening at The Mission when the children were entertained with a Christmas tree, gifts and good cheer. The following program was faultlessly rendered by the Mission children:

Song, "America;" Song, "God Bless America;" Prayer, G. H. Osthoff; Song, "Joy to the World;" Reading, "Night Before Christmas;" Address, Rev. Cates; "Jingle Bells and Santa Claus;" Address, G. H. Osthoff. While the choir was singing "Jingle Bells," Old Santa entered with his usual good cheer and began the distribution of presents. Every child received an arm full of toys, pretty and useful gifts and the entire crowd received a generous sack of fruit and candy. Many bags were sent to shut-ins.

We greatly appreciate the splendid service rendered by the Scout Girls and the many packages they contributed, neatly wrapped with Christmas decorations, ready for distribution. And to all who assisted with cash, fruit, clothing and other donations to make this occasion one to bring happiness and good cheer to many who otherwise be neglected.

YULETIDE GREETINGS TO ALL

'Tis Christmas! Our thoughts revert from the complicated to the simple, from the cares of maturity to the carefree thoughts of childhood, from the material to the spiritual.

'Tis Christmas! . . . time to count our many friends and recall the happy relationships we have had with them during the year . . . time to express our gratitude and to wish all our friends the choicest blessings the Yule season can bestow.
