Humphreys For State Senator

In this issue of The Advertiser we are publishing the announcement of Robert Humphreys, of Mayfield, who has recently entered the race for the State Senate from the First District, composed of Fulton, Hickman and Graves counties, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary, August 1.

He needs no introduction to the voters of this district, because his name has long been associated in political circles in West Kentucky. He has always worked for the best interests of the Democratic party and is fully capable of serving the people of this district most faithfully if elected to the office he is now seeking.

A vote for this young thoroughbred Democrat will be appreciated and he is asking both men and women voters to consider his claims. Read his announcement below:

To the Democratic Men and Women of the First Senatorial District of Kentucky:

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Senator, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary on Saturday, August 1st, of this year. For many years I have had an ambition to serve the district in the upper house of the legislature, and I believe myself competent to serve you. I am a Democrat and have loyally supported all nominees of the party since I came of voting age. In 1919 I was elected a member of the lower house from Graves county and served one term, which is the only office I have ever sought.

For the past six years I have been a member of the State Democratic Central-Executive Committee, and have at all times supported such action of the committee as I deemed wise and just for the party. At the last two meetings of the committee I voted for the calling of a primary for the nomination of State candidates because I believe the primary method to be the most democratic and just means of selection, but since a convention was called I will cheerfully support all nominees selected by it. I am a Democrat, and if elected I expect to work for and with the Democratic administration, and I believe the hope of good government in Kentucky lies with the Democratic party. I shall support a measure repealing that part of the election law which permits the calling of a convention, and thus require all district and State nominees to be chosen at a primary election. I believe that a primary creates less discord, and that a convention in many instances is disorderly and unfair, and that the majority of Democratic men and women have no voice in their party affairs.

I believe that the system now in vogue in Kentucky whereby selfish men in both parties control the administration of the state government is unwise and vicious. I believe that the bi-partisan system brings into power the weakest men in both parties, and I shall vote for a repeal of the laws establishing bi-partisan boards. The party in power should have the full responsibility and such is not the case under the present system.

I believe that a candidate who promises you results which he cannot deliver is dishonest and unworthy of your support. I merely promise you careful, honest and intelligent service, and if you elect me I shall be very appreciative.

The district is composed of three counties—Hickman, Fulton and Graves—and I shall consider myself the servant of all the counties the same.

The time is short, the district is large and the office is not a rich office, and many of you I will be unable to see, but I will deeply appreciate the support of all Democratic men and women in the district.

Respectfully,
ROBERT HUMPHREYS,
Democratic Candidate for State Senator.

SUNDAY WEDDING

A wedding of interest to residents of many neighboring states was solemnized Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 508 Hopkins street, when Alex Noffel and Miss Josephine Hamam were united in marriage.

The bride wore a close-fitting costume of pink and blue georgette, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of bride roses. Her sister, Miss Naylie Hamam, as bridesmaid, wore a costume of pink georgette and carried a bouquet of pink radiance roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. Willie Homra attended as best man. The bride was given away by her father, Geo. Hamam. The Rev. Geo. W. Goodman, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, read the solemn marriage service of the Episcopal church in a most impressive manner.

A wedding dinner was served after the ceremony at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daher E. Noffel. This dinner was a most bountiful feast, and the center of the table was a large bride's cake, flanked by a somewhat smaller one of the groom.

The groom is a well known young business man of Fulton, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daher E. Noffel. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Metrie Hamam, and is a general favorite in her social circles. She is a graduate from the 1931 class Fulton High School and a talented young lady.

Over 200 guests were present, coming from all the surrounding towns of Kentucky and Tennessee, as well as other states. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for a short honeymoon trip to St. Louis and other points. They will be at home to their friends at their new residence, 128 Norman street, after Friday of this week.

REVIVAL MEETING AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Good crowds are attending the revival meeting at the First Baptist church, and increased interest is displayed at each service. Dr. Boone is a powerful preacher and delivers the gospel messages in a masterly, plain, forceful way. He talks to the congregation just as a father would to his child, full of feeling and meaning. His earnest efforts to save the lost is having a telling effect and the city and vicinity will feel the influence for years to come.

The song service is a pleasing feature of the meeting and the junior choir is of valuable assistance to the seniors, who are under the direction of Dr. Warren, pastor.

Everybody is cordially invited to the services at 9:30 a. m. and 7:45 p. m.

Not that it makes any difference, but we can't help feeling sometimes that it's a good thing a lot of mirrors in Fulton can't talk back.

If Rip Van Winkle tried to do his stunt today his wife would be married again before he got to snoring good.

One Nation Evermore

Vast Audience Witness Pretty Church Wedding

One of the most beautiful weddings of the early summer was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at the First Methodist church, when Miss Mary Nell Owen became the bride of Mr. Milton Exum.

The sentiment and joy of youth characterizes the sweetly impressive marriage of two of Fulton's most charming persons. The romance that culminated so happily began during their high school days.

The handsome edifice, lovely with flowers and with the pretty costumes of the bride and her attendants, added to the picturesque setting.

The pulpit and the altar decorations, one of the most ornate of the season, was patterned in the green and white color scheme.

The altar was banked with palms, ferns and vines, mingled with potted plants, while the whole decorative effect was dotted with beautiful Easter lilies.

The chancel rails were intertwined with Southern smilax and drooping vines, while waxen candles held in candleabra, completed the charming effect.

The nuptial music was played by Miss Doris Huddleston, under whose skillful touch a program of beautiful numbers was given.

Following the ceremony Schubert's Serenade was played, and Mrs. Loel Hindman, always a favorite, sang in her sweetest voice "I Love You Truly," by Bond, and "At Dawning," by Cadman.

Lohengrin's Wedding March was the signal for the approach of the bridal party. First in the group came the ushers, Mr. Thomas Exum, brother of the groom; Mr. Johnnie Owen, brother of the bride; Mr. Glenn Wiseman, Mr. Lester Newton, Mr. Uel Olive, Mr. Max Pickle.

The bridesmaids, lovely in their gowns of pastel shades, with hats, slippers and lace mitts, the same shade of their dresses, carried arm bouquets of pink radiance roses and sweet peas, tied with two-toned satin ribbon.

Miss Sara Owen, sister of the bride, wore pink; Miss Margaret Owen, of Paducah, cousin of the bride, peach; Miss Helen Exum, sister of the groom, orchid; Miss Elizabeth Blanton, of Wilmore, Ky., yellow; Miss Luella Wood, flesh; Miss Burnice Yarbrough, of Nashville, Tenn., green.

The maid of honor, Miss Mildred Graham, wore a model of blue organdy, combined with cream net, fashioned with a wide waist, circular skirt of net and organdy bands with a wide sash of cream satin tied in back with streamers falling to the hem of the gown, a picture hat of hair braid and satin ribbon; slippers and lace mitts of the same shade completed the costume. Miss Graham's arm bouquet was Talisman rose buds, larkspur and delphinium, tied with two-tone satin ribbon.

The little flower girls wore exquisite frocks. Mary Jane Owen, niece of the bride, wore blue organdy, and Anna Frances Graham, pink organdy. They wore shoulder bouquets of baby rose buds and lilies of the valley; they carried tiny baskets of rose petals, which they scattered in the path of the bride.

The ring-bearer, Jackie Adams, wearing a black and white satin suit, carried the ring on a black and white satin pillow, and with him came the miniature bride, little Lois Jean Hindman, who was most adorable in a ruffled dress of cream organdy and a veil of ivory net combined with orange blossoms matching that of the bride. She carried a miniature bride's bouquet.

Following on the arm of her brother, Mr. Harold Owen, came the winsome, smiling bride in her exquisite wedding gown of imported lace over ivory satin, fashioned with long full skirt. The veil was fastened to a cap of lace and caught with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of calla lilies tied with ivory chiffon lace, and was met at the altar by the groom, who was attended by Mr. Joseph Schuck as best man.

During the impressive ceremony, which was read by the Reverend W. A. Wood, pastor of the Methodist church, Miss Huddleston played "To a Wild Rose," by McDowell. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used as the recessional.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Exum left for a motor trip. For traveling the bride wore a two-piece suit of brown silk crepe and white satin, hat of brown and white straw, slippers of white doeskin, trimmed with brown, white kid gloves; she carried a white pigskin bag; her necklace was of brown and white ivory beads, and wore a shoulder bouquet of Pernet roses.

The bride is the attractive and talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Owen. She graduated from Fulton High School in 1926, later attended Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky. Received her A. B. Degree in Biological Science in 1930.

She also received a diploma from the speech department, School of Expression, at Asbury College. She was a member of the Philomathean Social Club and Spanish Club, and since the completion of her education has enjoyed widespread popularity.

Mr. Exum graduated from Fulton High School in 1926. Attended Greer College in Chicago, Ill., and is now radio technician in Fulton. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Exum, and is a popular young business man of the city.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Owen and daughter Mary, of Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Price Penister, of Lexington, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Tully Owen, of Paducah, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Yarbrough, of Nashville, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil D. Jones, of Nashville, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rice, of Paducah, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rice, of Paducah, Ky.; Mrs. J. T. Rice and daughters Anna and Lena Mae, of Paducah, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Rudeman Harmon, of Paducah, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Gene Childress and daughters, Lotie Mae and Helen, of Paducah, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Young and daughter Mariana, of Paducah, Ky.; Miss Ruth Wasson, of Veva, North Dakota; Mr. Maurice Burkholder, of Batavia, Ohio; Mr. Allen Cox, of Jackson, Tenn.; Miss Detzell Spurlock, of Jackson, Tenn.; Mrs. Virginia Love, of St. Louis, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Hackey, of Sherron, Tenn.

Many Social Functions

During the week the charming bride was complimented with numerous social functions. Monday afternoon, June 8, Mrs. J. J. Owen complimented her daughter with an open house at her pretty suburban home in Highlands.

The house was beautifully decorated with standards of Madonna lilies, roses, sweet peas and larkspur, the predominant colors being pink and white. The guests were welcomed by Mrs. Owen, Miss Nell and Mrs. T. M. Exum, mother of the groom.

The trousseau of the bride was displayed in an upstairs room, to which the guests were escorted by Miss Mildred Graham. The wedding gifts were arranged in the sun parlor of the home, and Mrs. Harold Owen of Nashville assisted the guests there.

Miss Helen Exum presided over the register, and over one hundred names of friends were entered during the afternoon. Mrs. Tully Owen of Paducah and Miss Burnice Yarbrough of Nashville served the guests with punch in the dining room. The crystal punch bowl was placed in the center of the table, which was covered by an imported lace cloth. Others assisting with the entertaining were Miss Margaret Owen of Paducah, Miss Elizabeth Blanton and Mrs. Price Pinkston of Lexington, Ky.

Brieflets

One thing the matter with a good many Fulton people today is they are so busy sighing for what they haven't got that they can't enjoy what they have.

A modern home is one where the Bible gets as little wear and tear as the cook book.

If a fellow works hard and saves his money by the time he is fifty he can afford to have a nervous breakdown.

When you find a Fulton fam-timer talking about "the good old days," he means the days when the impression of a girl's kiss didn't have to be wiped off.

About the only ground that is not good for divorce in Nevada is failing to have enough money to pay the attorney.

Why is it that the man who plays golf for exercise thinks cutting grass is work?

When you find a Fulton family whose members all want to tune in on the same station at the same time, the end of the world is just around the corner.

Many women drivers seem to think they don't have to pay any more attention to traffic lights than they do to their husbands.

You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but the rest of the time they will make fools of themselves.

A dog fight may not be considered a good investment, but when one occurs in Fulton it attracts a lot of interest.

Since the June graduates are again here to tell us how to run the world, maybe they can also tell us what's the matter with it.

All nuts on an automobile should be tight except the one doing the driving.

You can still buy the old-fashioned sugar candy, but nowadays it comes in a box with ribbon tied around it and sells for 90 instead of 10 cents a pound.

The modern debut is just an expensive way folks have of telling the world that daughter is now on the market for a husband.

"SHAWIE'S" IS NEW PLACE TO EAT

Shawie Noffel has opened up a new and beautiful place to eat in the building recently vacated by Neeley's barber shop. He calls the place "Shawie's" and it is most elegantly fitted up with soda fountain, all sorts of equipment for serving sandwiches, salads and light lunches, etc. It will no doubt be a popular place with the traveling public, as well as the home folks.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

By Miss A. Henning, Agent

The advisory Council of Homemakers Clubs met Wednesday, June 3, at 1:30 o'clock at Cayce. Nine of the ten clubs were represented.

At the meeting it was decided that "A More Beautiful Home" should be the three-year goal toward which every Homemaker should work and the projects leading toward that goal to be "Backgrounds of the Livable Home" 4 months, "Furnishing the Livable Home and Refinishing Old Furniture" combined 9 months, "Accessories in the Livable Home" 5 months, and "Keeping the Family Fit," a nutrition project, 9 months.

Besides the project on "Improving the Exterior of the Home," the Council asked for a minor project in "Table Service and Etiquette," to be in charge of the Home Agent, as well as some special handwork before Christmas.

The County Officers present were: Mrs. W. V. Little, Crutchfield, President; Mrs. John Binkley, Boaz Chapel, Vice-President; Mrs. King Davis, Hickman, Acting Secretary; Mrs. Gus Browder, Palestine, Program Conductor; Mrs. Jim Dawes, Home Improvement Leader; Mrs. S. A. Waggoner, Crutchfield, Clothing Leader; Mrs. Birdie Pewitt, Junior Leader.

Community Canners

The Fiscal Court has made two hotel size pressure cookers available to the people of the county for canning purposes. The canners hold 20 glass quart jars at a time, which will make it possible to can from 300 to 500 quarts in a day. It requires from 30 minutes to one and one-half hours to process vegetables in a pressure cooker.

The cookers will be scheduled through the Home Agent to twelve communities in the county, six of which will be on the bottom. A small fireplace will be built in some centrally-located place and the women will bring their materials to can, working in shifts as it will not take long to can all one family has at a time. The canner will be in each of the communities one day a week.

Miss Henning, Home Agent or a Foods Leader of Homemakers Clubs, who has had work under the Foods Specialist from the University, will stay with the canner the first two days in a community, in order that the latest methods in canning may be used by the women. These canners are for everyone, but especially those who secured Red Cross Garden seed this spring.

POULTRY

(By J. T. Watkins)

Now is the dull season for the poultry editor. There is not very much to write about locally, unless we visit the different breeders and write up their flocks, and I don't have much time to get out in the country right now. Another reason, I don't know what they are going to do at the fair this year, so can't write anything about that.

However, one of the outstanding breeders of the county was in the office the other day, and he wants to organize an association that will benefit those breeders who may care to join in on the project. He has sold about seven thousand baby chicks this season, dealing only in barred rocks and white leghorns, but he told me he had inquiries for about two thousand Rhode Island Reds. Mr. Burnett suggests enough breeders join to insure rapid delivery of all orders that may come in for all the popular breeds, and if you breed reds and have an order for buffs, turn the order over to the secretary so the order may be filled without any delay, and maybe at the same time the buff breeder may have an order for reds that he turns in for you to ship.

Now, I think this is a good move in the right direction, but I want to offer a suggestion, should you go into this association, first have your flock blood tested and certified, then each member can advertise baby chicks as "good as any" and "better than most," or, in other words, we can sell the chicks with an iron-bound guarantee behind them. Another suggestion: If you have not sufficient male birds to insure good fertility, spend a few dollars for some outstanding male birds for your flock, but don't under any circumstances allow inferior male birds to run with your flock, for the male is fifty per cent of the flock, and one scrub male in three years' time will convert your flock of STANDARD-bred birds into a bunch of dung-hills.

Now, a word to you breeders of scrubs: This is the time of the year when poultry is paying the least for the money invested, and remember, a scrub hen will eat as much as a Standard-bred hen and produce way less for what she eats, so now, while it is the dull season, why not sell off all the scrub stock you have on the farm, watch your chance to buy some standard-bred pullets and re-stock your farm with something good. Unless I am very much mistaken, there will be a good demand for hatching eggs next year, and the flocks that produce the eggs will all be inspected before a single egg is bought, and you will have to be able to deliver the goods if you wish to sell eggs to the hatchery.

If you will make inquiries I think you will be able to secure pullets from the following breeds close to Fulton that will start you off on a good line of poultry: Barred, white and buff plymouth rocks, white and silver laced wyandottes, jersey giants, light brahma, black langshans, buff and white orpingtons and white leghorns. Secure yourself one or two dozen pullets of any of these breeds, buy a good cockerel to go with them, and you will be fixed to supply your share of the hatching eggs, or if you wish to hatch the eggs yourself and sell the baby chicks, you can do so, or maybe you had rather grow them into pullets and sell them to prospective breeders.

Let's do away with the scrub and make Fulton county a STANDARD-bred poultry raising county. Begin now to eliminate the scrubs by getting rid of all the BUM roosters. Why is it a farmer will go "batty" over registered Jersey or other breed of cattle, have nothing but pure-bred hogs and be satisfied with dunghill chickens?

One Pilot That Didn't Fail

By DORIS DUFFY

KATE GREGORY and Titus Smith had eaten prunes and oatmeal and weak, warm coffee beside each other at Mrs. Jarvis' boarding house table for four or five months, yet they were still Miss Gregory and Mr. Smith to each other. Sometimes they discussed the weather—just enough to know that Miss Gregory preferred anything to very cold weather while Mr. Smith didn't mind the cold so long as it was dry cold.

"Anybody here going to try for the thousand-dollar prize for the best amateur short story?" asked Mrs. Jarvis from her place behind the coffee percolator at the head of the table. "The Evening Planet is offering it. With all the talent we have here it seems as if some one ought to try."

"I've often thought I'd like to try to write," said Miss Gregory.

"I wouldn't be surprised if most of us had the material for a good short story if we only knew how to present it," said Mr. Smith.

Thus were sown the seeds of tender romance.

That night at dinner Mr. Smith asked Miss Gregory if she had begun her story and she looked surprised and said she really had no intention of competing, and Mr. Smith said: "I wouldn't mind trying if I had someone to help me." Then somehow it was agreed between them that they would try to write a story together—it seemed preposterous to do it when they had always been so formal and unresponsive to each other. It was arranged that they should write together evenings when both were disengaged, in a room on the third floor that was at present unoccupied.

"Let's have the hero just medium size with grayish eyes," said Kate Gregory when they had met to discuss the characters and plot. "I think people are getting tired of six-foot heroes with steel blue eyes and all—Titus Smith was of medium size with grayish eyes."

"Let's have the heroine a little plump. Might even have her freckled. Titus was freckled, you know. It makes a character seem more human if she isn't perfect." He might have added that Kate Gregory was a trifle freckled and that she was a little plump.

After several nights the plot was agreed upon, or at least such plot as the story possessed. The hero and heroine were to meet in a city boarding house. That would give Titus a chance for his minute realism that he seemed to enjoy so well. The action must occasionally lie in the country—woods and fields—that would give Kate a chance for nature description that seemed to be her natural forte.

"One thing that will be difficult to manage," said Titus Smith, "if we intend to make this strictly realistic, is the love-making and proposing. People really don't make love and propose the way they do in books, you know. Love-making isn't at all like that. And the reason why so few writers ever get the right slant on it at all is because most people aren't quite responsible when they are making love. No man ever honestly remembers just what words he used in proposing to the girl he really loves. What they really say might sound inappropriate, childish, insane. The realistic writer would get the thing the way it really happens. If we can't do it right we'd better omit the actual love-making."

So the story progressed, painstakingly, methodically. Then the business-like atmosphere of the little vacated room on the top floor seemed to change. Sometimes Titus sat for a half hour at a time just staring at the manuscript pages he was trying to revise and Kate at her portable typewriter sat forgetful of the descriptive passages she was trying to put down in black and white.

"We've got to get a little more pep in here," said Titus. "We need a real climax—a denouement or something like that—something gripping."

Kate blushed and then blushed again from embarrassment at having blushed.

"Maybe we ought to do a love scene," she said, trying to keep the story in mind.

"Maybe so," sighed Titus. A pause and another sigh. "Hang it all. You know Kate—"

"We really ought to get this story finished—but—"

"How can we when—?" And that is as far as mere words carried them. Titus' strong broad paw felt its way over the rather plump fingers of Kate Gregory. They grew bolder and held those plump fingers in a firm embrace. Kate looked at Titus and then, unable to look longer, dropped her eyes. Encouraged by new-found strength, Titus, to his own great surprise, kissed Kate's cheek—once, twice three times. A little more of such pantomime, and then from Titus:

"It will be easier now that we're engaged—"

"I didn't know it would be like that—but it's wonderful—getting engaged."

A week or so later they went back to their task of story writing.

"It'll be a cinch now, writing the love passages—now that we've had experience," said Titus. "And yet, when you come to think of it, what did we say?"

"Dear me, I don't know," said Kate.
