Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! for of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen."

Merchants are urged to decorate the fronts of their buildings so that the lighting will be uniform.

A large Christmas tree will be erected on the bandstand on Lake street and it will be decorated with varicolored lights.

The stores are being decorated with merchandise on display and windows are being tastefully arranged to bring out the Spirit of Christmas. Already many are buying holiday gifts and avoiding the last minute rush of shoppers.

A RESOLUTION

As the end of 1940 approaches the time draws near for New Year's resolutions. May we suggest for your consideration insofar as it is applicable to you, the following:

"I hereby resolve without qualification or mental reservation that during 1941 I will be a better Christian, a better husband or a better wife, a better father or a better mother, a better son or a better daughter, a better neighbor, and a better American."

With such a resolution made and kept this will be a better world, and it won't make much difference what happens to your other resolutions.

In Tampa, Fla., a woman refused to give her age to the clerk in the county judge's office when applying for an automobile driver's license. She was kindly but firmly told that she could not be given a license unless she stated her age. "Then I don't want one," she said, and left the office.

EVOLUTION OF A CROP

Many of our agricultural crops have an interesting history, some of them, such as the potato and tomato, having been used as foods only in comparatively recent times. The potato did not come to be recognized as a staple crop until about the time of the Revolutionary War, and the tomato, once considered poisonous, was adopted as a food still later.

But of all the crops now being given widespread and increasing attention, the soybean perhaps has the most amazing history, so far as America is concerned. Although used as human food in Asia for 5,000 years, it was only introduced into the United States quite accidentally in 1894, and for another century was looked upon only as a botanical curiosity.

Few soybeans were grown commercially in the United States until about 15 years ago, but since that time production and consumption have increased with almost incredible rapidity. The production of soybean oil meal alone has risen from 21,000 tons in 1929 to more than a million tons annually.

This increase in production and demand has been due largely to the use of soybean oil meal as a protein ingredient of feeds for livestock, including hogs, dairy cows, sheep, poultry and in fact, all kinds of domestic animals. This increasing popularity has resulted from its proved superiority, because of unexcelled qualities of palatability, digestibility, nutritional value, and its comparatively low cost.

From its obscurity of a few years ago, the soybean has risen to the proportions of a major cash crop.

with unlimited possibilities for further expansion.

Shortly before H. G. Wells lectured in Birmingham, Ala., recently a man called at the public library and asked for a book on Wells. The librarian inquired whether he wanted an autobiography. The patron looked puzzled for a moment, and then said: "No, lady, I want a book on how to dig 'em."

Oil from German incendiary bombs has caused the death of several swans which habitually swim in the Thames river in London. Recently 30 of the birds were caught and given a good scrubbing with soap and clean water, after which they were released on a clear stretch of the river.

BRITISH WOMEN IN WAR

About three million British women, from Queen Elizabeth to the humblest slum dwellers, are now mobilized in various war-time organizations. These include about one woman in every four between the ages of 18 and 50.

Most of these women are engaged in war work not unusual for their sex, being employed as clerks, typists, telephone operators, cooks, nurses, and the like, but a large number do duty in connection with the military services and wear distinctive uniforms.

Queen Elizabeth is commandant-in-chief of the service women, and conducts meetings for bandage-rolling at Buckingham Palace. Pauline Gower, daughter of a member of Parliament, who has had more than 2,000 hours in the air, heads the air transport auxiliary of women, who fly planes. The Duchess of Gloucester and the Duchess of Kent, sisters-in-law of the King, are in service, the former as a commandant of air women and the latter as a Woman's Royal Naval Reserve commandant and nurse. Diana Churchill, the prime minister's daughter, is also in the Naval Reserve.

There are about 15,000 women ambulance and truck drivers, 120,000 serving as air-raid wardens, 13,000 in the auxiliary fire service, and 25,000 in the auxiliary air force, to mention only a few of the women's organizations performing war-time duties.

French women in Britain have an auxiliary of their own, of which Mme. Renee Mathieu, former tennis champion, is commander.

Bread is the staff of life.—Swift.

A DOUBLE FAKE

Among the many freaks and fakes exhibited by the great showman, P. T. Barnum, who declared that "people liked to be humbugged" and cashed in on the idea, was the "Cardiff Giant," represented to be a petrified man, ten and a half feet tall.

The "giant" was a fraud, being a crude statue of a man, carved out of gypsum in Iowa, and buried by a practical joker, in the bed of a creek near Cardiff, a hamlet near Syracuse, N. Y. The joker then had the statue "discovered," and spread the news of the find far and wide. That was in October, 1869.

Later it was exhibited around the country as a "petrified man," and a good many scientific men were inclined to believe it to be genuine until a Yale professor made an examination and exposed the fake.

While the "giant" was in popular favor and drawing large crowds Barnum tried to buy it to add to his collection of circus sideshow attractions. When the owner named a price thought too high, Barnum proceeded to have a giant of his own made. This imitation of a fake—a sort of double fake—was successfully exhibited by Barnum as the Cardiff Giant, in America and abroad, for several years.

The original "giant" received some fresh publicity some time ago owing to the fact that the Chamber of Commerce of Syracuse wanted to have it brought back to that city from Iowa, where it has been resting in obscurity for several decades. So great was the sensation originally created by the giant hoax that the statue has come to have a certain historic value.

Facts recently published show vividly the ability of the American railroads to handle the nation's freight load—and to handle it in time of emergency, no less than under normal conditions.

The few Doubting Thomases who question the ability of the railroads to do this, says the Nation's Business are "reminiscent of the time in 1836 when, months after the locomotive engine 'George Washington' had climbed a six per cent grade, certain scientific gentlemen of the age were busy proving by their calculations that it had done no such thing because it was a mathematical impossibility."

Railroad cars today are far bigger and stronger, and are capable of providing a great deal more service than in 1917. Today's locomotives are half again as powerful as their 1917 predecessors, and far more speedy and efficient. Everything that has anything to do with the railroad plant, from rails to signal systems, is the finest in history. For example, today's average freight train speed is nearly two-thirds faster than it was in the World War period.

There is lack of understanding as to just how much drain the defense program will put on the railroads. It has been pointed out that a 45,000-ton battleship recreates 5,000 carloads of freight—and delivery is spread over a number of years. A million men in an army camp sounds impressive—but 600 carloads of freight each day will supply them with all the goods, clothes, weapons and everything else they can use. And 600 carloads is about six-tenths of one per cent of average daily carloadings last year.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

The refusal of Congress to adjourn, despite the prodding of some Administration officials, was not a surprise. The world is changing fast these days. And the nation's lawmakers feel that they should be on hand to deal with problems as they appear.

Big problem now is how to give more aid to Britain and at the same time keep a semblance of neutrality. This country has been shooting the works on behalf of the British for a long time. She has our 50 obsolete destroyers, and production of American factories is practically at her command. The U. S. Army and Navy have announced that they will give her precedence in aircraft. But there is one catch—Britain must pay for whatever she buys. The Johnson Act does not permit this government or its citizens to give credit to any nation which is behind on war debt payments.

The way the wind blows now was recently indicated by the statement Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador to this country, made on his return from his homeland. England, he said, does not want men. She wants only material. But he added, England's cash is running out. He foresaw a difficult year ahead for England, in which she will need all kinds of war supplies and "perhaps finance."

When queried as to whether he believed the U. S. Congress should repeal the Johnson Act, Lord Lothian offered no comment. But it is obvious that was what he had in mind. The various American groups which are in favor of doing everything and anything to help defeat the Axis—such as William Allen White's committee for aiding England—are beginning to train their sights on the Johnson Act. It seems a certainty that a resolution to repeal the act will be introduced in Congress.

That resolution will be bitterly contested, especially in the Senate where the isolationist group, headed by Senators Johnson, Nye and Clark, are strong. But the probability is that the Johnson Act will be thrown overboard. The Roosevelt policy has been to steadily increase our help to Britain, and the Republican minority, which largely follows the foreign policy laid down by Wendell Wilkie in the campaign, generally agrees. If the Johnson Act is repealed, will we become embroiled in the war? No one can accurately answer that question. The controlled German, Italian and Japanese press continues to criticize this country, but their governments still formally regard us as a friendly power. Germany does not want us to enter the conflict—the American Navy would be a potent force on Britain's side, and might be the decisive factor. So the best guess is that, even if we do go to new limits to aid Britain, the Axis powers will not take any retaliatory action.

Another thing Britain is going to want from us is merchant ships. Her losses due to German submarine and raider attack are alarmingly high. The present German policy is to sink enough British-owned and controlled shipping to starve the Isles. American shipyards may soon be busy with orders for Britain. British shipyards are working 24 hours a day now, but reports say that production of finished vessels is low.

Hitler has formally inducted some more little countries into his Axis. But that doesn't mean a great deal. Rumania, Bulgaria and the other minor Balkan countries are in peril of their lives. They must do what Hitler demands, or submit to military conquest. It is one thing to force foreign ministers to sign pacts—it is another thing to get the people of those countries to avow the Hitlerian philosophy. And according to all the experts, the Balkan people hate Hitler even as they fear him.

Worst blow to the Axis has been Italy's fiasco in Greece. This has reduced Italian prestige to the vanishing point. And, say some, it has brought with it the possibility of internal dissension in Italy. The Italians didn't want war. They are suffering seriously from the British blockade. And a considerable proportion of the Italians heartily dislike Germany. It is noteworthy that the German press has lately begun to denounce Greece—Hitler may be coming to the conclusion that he will have to pull his friend Mussolini's irons out of the Aegean fire. And, in the past, press attacks in the German press against other European countries have been the prelude to military action.

In the long run, the Greek situation may prove a great boon to England. Reports say that the English are doing far more to help the Greeks than they admit. They have been swiftly developing important air and naval bases on Greek land, where their planes and battleships can strike against Italy.

Britain's big blow at home now is said to be lack of sufficient anti-aircraft equipment. Most of it has been concentrated about London, which explains why Germany has been able to carry on tremendous severe raids over the Midlands and elsewhere with few plane losses. It is believed the lack will be made up by spring.

TAGGING OUR BRAINS

In recent years there has been an ever increasing effort on the part of psychologists, psychiatrists, psychoanalysts, and what have you, to determine and classify the mental deficiencies of the well-known human race.

Some time ago a comprehensive survey of mental diseases by specialists in psychiatry and allied fields was undertaken. After nearly three years of labor, a new classification of such diseases has been published, the chief divisions of which are:

Amentia, neuroses, and psychoneuroses, schizophrenic neuroses, psychopathic constitution, affective and emotional psychoses, toxic psychoses, epileptic psychoses, organic brain disease psychoses, and other miscellaneous types. Which ought to catch nearly everybody on one count or another.

It is interesting to note in this connection that a mental diagnosis of the late Sigmund Freud, high priest of psychoanalysis and dream interpretation, revealed that he himself was a bit goofy, through "lack of inward integration."

Whether all these investigations in mental science and pseudoscience are doing us any practical good is a moot question. To a great extent, the conclusions reached by the so-called experts appear to be so much bunk, although some discoveries of value may have been made.

A close analysis would probably reveal that all of us are a little cracked, either habitually or occasionally. In fact, as someone has said, "crazy people are just like other people, only more so." And if, as some contend, crazy people are the happiest, why worry? But perhaps it is more fun to be nutty with a fancy psychosis.

WHILE BRITAIN STANDS

So long as Great Britain remains unconquered hope remains for a real peace, which will release Europe—including the German people—from the prison of totalitarian terror.

While Britain stands, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Norway, Denmark, Poland, Czechoslovakia are only temporary slaves.

While Britain stands there is a chance to stop the trend toward utter lawlessness and anarchy which today spreads the threat of robbery by violence around the world.

While Britain stands there is hope for a genuine "new order" under which some sort of self-governing federation will preserve the liberties of small nations.

While Britain stands there is hope that the ideals of Christianity, liberty, justice, enlightenment and tolerance will have a free opportunity to develop.

While Britain stands paganism, despotism, injustice, imposed tolerance will not have official sanction by the dominant governmental power of Europe.

While Britain stands Japan, Russia and Italy recognize some restraints.

While Britain stands the Monroe Doctrine can hardly be seriously menaced.

While Britain stands totalitarian trade cannot coerce the markets of the globe.

While Britain stands the United States is not a democratic island in a world dominated by dictatorships.

While Britain stands "fifth columnists" in America remain merely slinking plotters, lacking great military or economic support.

While Britain stands America can spend some time on building a two-ocean navy.

While Britain stands there is time to debate the preparedness in the United States.

While Britain stands those who fail to read the lessons of history can say she is fighting only her own battle.

While Britain stands America can stay out of war.

A WORD TO SCARE US

If one is over 30 years old, the chances are two to one that he has "periodontoclasia." The word itself is a jaw-breaker, sufficiently formidable to frighten us, and the disease it represents is nothing to joke about. It is commonly known as pyorrhea, and next to tooth decay is the most prevalent dental disorder, according to the Dental Institute of America.

Broadly speaking, pyorrhea consists of diseased pockets about the teeth, the tissues supporting which become irritated for various reasons, causing lowered resistance to the invasion of germs. In time, the germs destroy more supporting tissue, the tooth is loosened and often lost. Pyorrhea literally means a flow of pus.

"Neglected and ignorance account for the startling prevalence of this disease," says the Institute, "for dental science has evolved a simple and highly effective method of treatment. Vast numbers of people are losing their teeth from sheer lack of dental care."

Statistics by some authorities indicate that the percentage of Americans having pyorrhea range about as follows: At 20 years, 10 per cent; at 30 years, 50 per cent; at 40 years 80 per cent; at 50 years, 90 per cent or more.

Records show that in nearly all advanced cases there is evidence of total neglect of professional dental attention over a considerable period of time.

So whether we call it pyorrhea or use the more fearsome term, periodontoclasia, we should look out for this highly prevalent disease, and have it treated early, thus preserving health and possibly extending life.

Meeting Industry's Defense Telephone Needs

MANY southern industries are strenuously at work building new plants, expanding existing ones, and generally getting their facilities and man-power to advance the nation's defense program.

It is a tremendous and urgent job they have taken on. Their rapidly increasing communications needs create an equally important job of service expansion for the Telephone Company, including the engineering and installation of enlarged telephone facilities in many localities.

These industries are going ahead with their production and expansion activities and plans, with confidence that the Telephone Company will meet their telephone needs promptly and fully. Their daily requirements are being provided now, and the thousands of highly trained telephone workers are prepared with materials and experience to meet whatever service demands the future holds.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN AMERICAN BUSINESS

BUSINESS—Decks cleared after a November in which four holidays or semi-holidays—one every week—caused some slow-downs (Election day, Armistice and two Thanksgivings), retail trade is plunging optimistically into a four-weeks drive leading to the top holiday of them all, Christmas. Many experts are predicting the period from now to Yuletide will see heaviest buying of its kind in 10 years. Expanding payrolls and increased employment, primed by increasing United States and British spending for arms, set the stage for a very busy month. National Retail Dry Goods association, surveying 5,700 leading stores, estimates cash registers will ring up $1,350,000,000—an increase of eight per cent in dollar volume. . . . Experts estimate that 2,000,000 persons previously unemployed have found jobs since the beginning of the year, and predict that at least that many more—probably a bigger number—will find work in 1941.

WAR AND THE FARMER—What is the European conflict doing to agriculture? A whole continent of markets for U. S. farm produce is being annihilated. . . . but America will spend five billion extra on defense next year, and farmers expect added payoffs in defense industries will boost buying power tremendously and help sell many more bushels of apples and pecks of spinach right here at home. Losses in foreign markets are further offset by the increased efficiency of America's domestic surplus-disposal machine. An increasingly effective cog in this machine today is the "producer-consumer" drive as conducted by chain stores to help market crop excesses. Marketing reports show "producer-consumer" drives staged by mass distributors at the request of growers have helped boost consumption of some farm products as much as 25 per cent during emergency periods in the first eight months of 1940.

BITS O' BUSINESS—Thirty-four of country's biggest department stores surveyed the likelihood of draft calls affecting their personnel; found that, on the average, 15.3 per cent of all employees were eligible. Of these, 8.9 per cent were men between 21 and 36 without direct dependents. . . . The South is beginning to lose its fear of the economic effects of the mechanical cotton picker, which next year will be produced in considerable quantities. Labor shortage, acute in some spots this year, may grow sharper as defense drive takes more workers, making the machines welcome replacements for human hands. . . . Retail sales of automobiles continued through November the brilliant pace of October, many makes setting all-time highs; Chevrolet has already hit the 300,000 mark in production of 1941 models. . . . Daniel Willard, who will be 80 next January 28, handed in his resignation as president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad the other day—for the tenth time in 10 years—and as usual it was declined. He's been proxy since January 15, 1910.

BUSINESS TURNS AMBASSADOR—Private business in the United States is taking an ever more active part in fostering better understanding among the American republics. While the State department's "division of cultural relations" has begun distributing thousands of American books to the Latin nations, efforts of private business firms are tying in nicely in a general effort to acquaint South Americans with their Yankee neighbors. . . . Examples: Schenley Distillers corporation has begun publishing a magazine describing interesting features of life in the United States for its customers in the southern hemisphere. Readers Digest has inaugurated a Spanish edition for the South American trade, and the radio networks are increasing their volume of short wave transmissions to the War cuts cotton exports

NATIONS AT WAR—BUY WAR MATERIAL—Cotton piles up!

A European war crisis that has caused a drastic reduction in cotton exports this season, will be on farmers' minds as they go to the polls on Saturday, December 7, to cast their ballots on the use of cotton marketing quotas for 1941. During the first three months of the present marketing season, the United States exported less than 300,000 bales of cotton, as compared with about 1,700,000 bales for the same period last year. A two-thirds majority of cotton farmers, voting in this and 18 other states in the cotton belt, is required to put quotas into effect.

Latin nations following surveys which showed a tremendous listening interest.

THINGS TO WATCH FOR—Square milk bottles—not cardboard ones, but glass. Latest sortie in the battle of the glass bottle industry to hold the milk trade, these are said to effect a 29 percent saving in space, 20 per cent in weight, and can be used on standard filling and sterilizing machines. . . . Pocket flashlights that can be recharged by plugging into an ordinary electricity outlet—because they use storage battery instead of customary dry cells; a special design prevents spilling battery water. . . . Glass airplane wings! Well, not solid glass, but fibreglass fabric is proposed as wing covering. . . . Glass fiber is coming into use importantly as tape for electric wire insulation—won't burn out as happens so frequently with ordinary cords on irons and toasters. . . . An electric coffeemaker with a built-in switch that automatically shuts off the current when the water passes into the upper bowl. . . . Canned French-fried potatoes. . . . Chewing gum using southern pine pitch as a base instead of the hard-to-get chicle from Yucatan.

COTTON GROWERS URGED TO VOTE ON QUOTAS DECEMBER 7

Present Supplies 37 Percent Above Normal; War Cuts World Consumption

All eligible Tennessee Cotton growers are urged to vote in the marketing-quota referendum on Saturday, December 7, by J. P. Chase, State AAA committeeman and prominent Shelby County farmer.

Reviewing the referendum background, Mr. Chase points out that there are two important facts for growers to consider: First, a marketing quota is provided by the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 when cotton supplies are 7 percent or more above normal, and second, a two-thirds majority of the growers voting in the Cotton Belt is required to put quotas into effect.

Today's cotton supplies are 37 percent above normal. The World supply of American cotton is estimated at 25 million bales, as compared to the normal supply—which is made up of normal exports and domestic consumption plus an adequate allowance for carry-over—of about 18 million bales.

Mr. Chase declares that increased world consumption of American cotton is not indicated in the immediate future. Past history shows that war conditions not only cut down the Nation's cotton exports, but also reduce world consumption, he says.

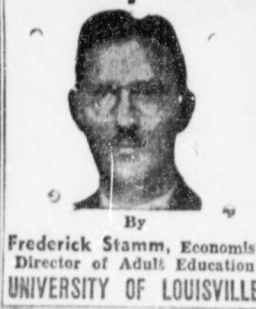

"Each grower has a vital interest in working toward the best price possible for his cotton," Mr. Chase states. "He needs to consider marketing quotas in terms of surplus cotton supplies and reduced consumption due to the present European war."

"Every farmer who produced cotton in 1940 should go to his community polling place on December 7, and express his opinion on quotas for 1941. A large majority of cotton growers voting will mean providing plenty of "protective" foods, such as milk, eggs, green leafy vegetables, tomatoes, and citrus fruits.

Better living, land, and livestock are being reported by farm-unit test demonstrators cooperating with the TVA and the Tennessee Agricultural Extension Service in an improved farm management and fertilizer testing program since 1935.

Money Talks

Installment sales are increasing according to several recent reports. This undoubtedly is the natural outgrowth of better business, higher wages, and expanding payrolls.

Many laboring men and their families have had to do without many necessities and semi-luxuries for a long time. Now that they have steady work and a regular income, installment buying is becoming popular, both for the consumers and the merchants.

Installment sales have two sides, good and bad. On the good side, they enable the consumer to enjoy an automobile, a radio, an electric washer, an electric refrigerator, etc. before it is actually paid for. In many respects this is excellent; a good number of our population either cannot or will not save enough money to pay cash for these conveniences. Consequently many people would never enjoy these articles if they had to pay cash. The merchant is glad to make installment sales, for it moves the merchandise off his shelves.

The bad side of the picture is not so bright. Many merchants extend credit too liberally in order to make sales and consequently cannot collect their money. Repossession is expensive both to the seller and the buyer. From the consumer's standpoint excessive installment buying is bad, too. It ties up future income for many months. It means any reduction in future income often results in either sacrificing on some of the necessities as clothing, food, housing, etc. or giving up the articles previously purchased. Thus, the consumer often loses not only the money he has invested in his installment articles, but also the articles themselves.

Prudent and wise extension of credit is a good business policy. A large portion of this country's business is done on a credit basis. But unwise credit extension leads only to losses and "economic headaches" on the part of both merchants and consumers.

BIG Any Way You Look At It!

Out of the great Ford plant has come the biggest car and biggest buy in 38 years of building value! It is bigger in wheel-base, bigger in body size and over-all length than any Ford V-8 ever built! It offers a brand new Ford ride . . . the biggest step forward in riding comfort in all Ford history. It offers so many important improvements that we believe it easily qualifies as the most dramatically improved new car of 1941.

Before you decide on any new car, see this one. Drive it. Let the family try it. Then let us show you how little you need pay to trade your old car for a big new 1941 Ford.
